The president has a plan for investigating the farm situation for the purpose of determining what legislative programme of aid should be carried out, but when it came to the idea of government ownership of transportation and the limitation of the powers of the supreme court he was emphatic in his denunciation of both. One he rightly termed a "most perilous undertaking" and the other he declared would be an admission that self government and this republic were failures.

The address is characteristically Coolidge and deserves a careful reading. Common sense features it from start to finish.

SUSPENDING HUNTING SEASON.

No more delightful could the fall of 1924 be, even if it had been delivered on order. This will have to be admitted even though we are prone to find fault with most weather conditions. But while it is delightful it is dry, and being dry there are certain dangers which cannot be disregarded by those who must give consideration to safety measures.

The dry fall has made the woodlands a tinderbed. The leaves flash into flames almost without urging. A discarded match has kindled a blaze before it is realized, and if by chance the back is turned when such a fire starts there is more of a problem involve din checking the fire than might be imagined.

The combination of dry weather and hunters has its menace to the woodland. It is because of it that Governor Cox of Massachusetts has given warning that there will be a suspension of the hunting season if there is an increase in the number of fires. Resort has been made to such protective measures in the past with good results. No one will ever know how much loss has been prevented by keeping the hunters out of the woods when they are as dry as they are at the present time. But when one stops to realize that the presence of hunters in the woodland is threatening the property of others with destruction it can be readily appreciated that there is justice back of such action. When the time comes that hunters and others can roam the woods without leaving fires behind them there will be no cause for any such restriction. There is little to indicate hoevwer that that condition is being rapidly approached.

FOLLOW PRESIDENT'S EXAMPLE

Reports from Washington state that while no irrevocable decision has been made it is probable that President Coolidge will vote by mail instead of taking the time and going to the expense that would be involved in his case of going to Northampton, Mass., to cast his vote November 4.

There are two points worthy of attention in connection with this matter. In the first place it will be noted that the president is going to vote, even if he has to go to Northampton to do so, and secondly provision exists in some of the states whereby absentee voting is permitted.

President Coolidge is, of course, setting the right example in connection with the privilege of voting. There is a duty involved which the head of the nation rightly appreciates and which he intends to fulfill. Whether it is done by actually going to the polls or by mail makes little or no difference. The essential thing is to vote. That is what the president is going to do and that is what everyone who is able to get to the polls and who is a voter should do on election day. Don't be a stay-at-home.

If it were the case that the president's home was in Connecticut, there would be no alternative to appearing at the polls and actually casting his ballot, for Connecticut has no absentee voting law. There are 31 states where those out of the state can vote by mail at general elections and there are nine others where this can be done if they are out of their precinct but not out of the state. The advantages of the absentee voting law speak for themselves.

President Coolidge has no thoughts of losing his vote. The example he sets in that respect is the proper one and the opportunity which his state gives him and others to vote from a distance makes an excellent impression. The day should be hastened when voters in all states will be extended such an advantage.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

From such information as has been brought forth by the evidence before the senate campaign fund committee, the whole cry of slush fund appears to be much ado about nothing. The fact of the matter is that few expected anything different.

There was the wild claim put forth by the third party leader about a $12,000,000 fund and the uses to which it would be put. Instead of disclosing any such fund, or one that comes anywhere near it, the reports show that there is no fund of the kind claimed and that the republican fund is now less than what the Wilson fund was or the funds for Cleveland, McKinley, Hughes and Harding, and that it isn't proposed to raise a fund of over three million.

Furthermore it is shown that the money raised and being used is being used is being employed for legitimate purposes. The claims of corruption were of course baseless. They were raised for political effect just at this particular point in the campaign and they had been liberally discounted in advance of the committee hearing. How desperate is the situation of those conducting the investigation before the committee is shown by the manner in which they are beating about the bush and trying to drag in personalities for such influence as testimony, which has nothing to do with the funds or the campaign, might have. The La Follette claim has long since proved a dud.

FOOTBALL TRAFFIC.

Once more we have reached the season of the year when much traffic on the state highways is bound to be created by those going to the big football games. In previous years, as well as this, the state police have been employed with excellent results in giving special attention to the conduct of the highway users on those days.

Such advice as is furnished for the benefit of the motorists, and such guidance as is offered through the naming of routes, the warning against proper observance of highway regulations and the rules of the road should be accepted and respected in the spirit which it is offered.

It is a time when cooperation on the part of all is called for and, in the interest of safety and the prevention of congestion, it should be cheerfully and conscientiously furnished. Let it be remembered that football traffic isn't the only traffic and safety should be the object of all.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Why can't some of our brainy writers give us a book on dead leaves? There is no reason why the philosophers should balk at the proposition. But as they are a lofty, aristocratic bunch, they might be inclined to feel that such a common subject was hardly worthy of their lofty field. There is less reason why the poets should tackle it because there is neither beauty nor idealism in dead leaves. There is every reason why the subject should appeal to the historian because he deals with the "has beens" of the past near and remote. Dead leaves are a record of the past, and he might find illustrations from Nineveh, Babylon and ancient Rome. He might show that leaves like nations have their birth, growth and decay. The scientist might put in his oar and show that dead leaves are evidence of the regularity of nature; as surely as October comes dead leaves appear and have for untold ages. The political economist might show the loss of property that comes from burning dead leaves. Then choirs might sing, "Nothing but Leaves."

Exactly what is demanded by the term, "social equality"? The idea of equality is found nowhere in the natural world. The nearest approach to equality is in the awful deadness of the polar regions, and the uniformity of burning deserts. We certainly do not find it in the beauty spots of the earth like Switzerland, the Yosemite valley, the Adirondacks, the Hudson and thousands of other places equally delightful. One of the great delights of travel is the fact that there are no two landscapes just alike, any more than there are any two faces just alike. If the interior of continents were not higher than the sea levels there would be no arterial system. If then there are such inequalities in the physical world why should we not expect the same in the social? There have been social distinctions as there have been intellectual ever since the world began, and probably will be as long as man inhabits the earth. What would be gained by peasants hobnobbing with princes? Their condition is none too good as it is.

There are today and there always have been physical distinctions, and these distinctions will never wholly be done away with. Are not some little children born into this world strong and healthy and do not others come weak and sickly? As far as anything they have done personally, the latter are just as much entitled to the blessings of health and strength as the former. As far as can be determined, in many cases, no fault lies at the door of their parents. But still the fact remains that some children will grow up to the adult stage strong and robust, while others will never be very strong. It always has been so and it always will be as long as man functions on the earth. No doubt the more the race improves physically the stronger will the coming generation be. But it is folly to expect in this life absolute physical equality. It is difficult for man to raise standards of equality anywhere while nature is everywhere against it.

There never has been a time when the average voter was called upon to exercise greater independence in balloting than this year, because the issues have been so confusing. Far and away the greatest speech that has yet been delivered for clear, logical thinking, and mental grasp of the facts involved is the one recently given by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university warning the people against the sop tarown at them by LaFollette in regard to the public ownership of the railroads. It may sound all right in the ears of the unthoughtful about dividends that will come by way of tax reduction. But where is the money coming from to buy the roads that will require at least forty billions? It will be the people who must raise that money. Is there any more reason that the government can run the railroads any more economically than the present managements that have had long and trained experience? Did not the government try a hand at it during the World war? And out of the muddle it got us into we have not yet recovered. It is to be hoped that the intelligence of the nation will not get into that snare.

Can America afford to have professional begging on her streets? Is it not a practice that tends to impeach the ability of our different boards of relief to cope adequately with poverty? The federal government is doing all in its power to take care of the disabled in the World war. We do not see those who wore the soldiers' and sailors' uniform selling lead pencils and shoe strings on the street. Boys who had their limbs mutilated in the war, so as to be unable to earn their own living are mercifully kept from the humiliation of begging. But we see those not in uniform with limbs gone or in other ways incapacitated from supporting themselves begging on the street. The effect it has on the public generally is unwholesome, and creates the feeling that human beings in a civilized country, and especially in a wealthy country are entitled to better treatment. There are other and better channels through which such unfortunates can be supported.

How true it is that a loss somewhere in nature is made up by a gain somewhere else. We are all familiar with the fact how the blind have a wonderful sense of touch; how the deaf have great acuteness of vision. Nature does the very best she can to make good any losses. There would seem to be a law here that applies generally to life's activities. It is very noticeable in agricultural affairs. When the season is very hard on potatoes, it produces corn in abundance. The cold and wet of May that is excellent for grass is not so good for garden produce generally. This year has marked another thing along this line; the drought in June and July that made things look sick has been largely atoned for by a remarkable autumn, in which produce has been raised out of season, notably corn. Thus we find that the balance has been struck.

Did you ever have pets experience with a dog? (and he is a big fellow too) At your approach, he opens wide his jaws, and shows a set of perfectly white, sound teeth! He barks vigorously and dances about you in high jinks, but somehow you get the impression that there is a good deal of bluff in his noise, because he greatly overdoes it. It is not the part of prudence, neither is it good policy to run from him, for that is just what he wants you to do. It is still more foolish to strike him or stone him, for he is half convinced that he is doing his duty. Just hold your ground; keep your eye on him, and gently approach him, all the time talking to him mildly. He will begin to surrender and within five minutes he will be licking your face. There are lots of men that you can get in this way—and no other.

A Bloemfontein, South Africa, doctor, has figured that in the last 13 years, he has traveled 250,000 miles in an automobile that had covered 4,000 miles before he bought it.

WHEN THE HOUSE CHOOSES A PRESIDENT.

If no candidate for president receives a majority of the electoral votes, the Constitution provides that from the three highest on the list of those voted for, the house of representatives shall choose immediately the president by ballot. But "in choosing the president the votes shall be taken by states, the representatives from each state having one vote." A quorum for this purpose "shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice." In the case of the vice-president, if a majority of the electoral college do not unite on a candidate, "then from the two highest on the list the senate shall choose the vice president; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of senators, a majority of the whole number being necessary to a choice." If no president is elected by either the electoral college or the house before the expiration of the current presidential term on the 4th of March following and if a vice president should be elected by that time, as J. A. Woodburn notes in The American Republic and Its Government, the constitution provides that this vice president shall become president until an election of a president is accomplished. If neither president nor vice president be elected by March 4, he tells us, the Constitution does not indicate who shall act as president, and nobody is vested with power to determine the question. There would be an interregnum, unless the existing president and vice president should resign before the close of their term, in which case, by the provisions of the presidential succession bill, the secretary of state would act as president until an election be made. The Constitution should provide, he adds, that "an existing president should hold office until his successor be elected."

What happened in 1800—A presidential election has been referred to the vote of the house of representatives on two occasions—in 1800, when Jefferson was first elected; and in 1824, when John Quincy Adams was elected. The contest in 1800 between Jefferson and Burr resulted in the adoption of the twelfth amendment to the constitution. Before the adoption of this amendment the electors voted for two candidates for president. The candidate receiving the most was made president and the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes was made vice president. This election in 1800 is notable also for the fact that then members of the electoral college voted by parties for the first time. Jefferson and Burr, writes R. H. Fuller in Government by the People, each received seventy-three votes, the full strength of the democratic-republicans. Adams received sixty-five votes, this authority relates, and Pinckney sixty-four, one federalist elector voting for John Jay so that Adams might have one more vote than Pinckney and thus be entitled to the presidency if the federalists should win. The Democratic-republicans had not taken this precaution, we are told, and thergfore there was a tie vote between their two candidates, Jefferson and Burr, for the presidency, although they had intended to elect Burr to the vice-presidency. Because of this tie, the house of representatives, where, after thirty-six ballots, ten states voted for Jefferson and four for Burr,

What happened in 1824 — In the presidential campaign of 1824 Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay, and William H. Crawford were candidates for president. John C. Calhoun was chosen vice-president by the electoral college, but none of the presidential candidates had a majority of the electors, the vote being: Jackson ninety-nine, Adams eighty-four, Crawford forty-one, and Clay thirty-seven. The election of the president, R. H. Fuller notes, was therefore again thrown into the house of representatives and Adams was elected by a majority of the states, receiving thirteen votes to seven for Jackson and four for Crawford. Clay had been dropt because he was not among the first three in the electoral college.

According to Professor Woodburn, in the volume above mentioned, it was charged that a corrupt coalition had been made between Adams and Clay. Clay, being fourth on the list of candidates, could not be voted for, and it was said that his influence resulted in the election of Adams. Professor Woodburn adds that Clay was afterwards made secretary of state by Adams, which gave color to the charge, tho "there was not a bargain, corrupt or otherwise, between the two men." But Jackson and his friends always felt that the people had been deprived of their choice, and this election is said to have increased the democratic movement for a direct popular choice of the electors and for a more popular system of party nominations. By the time of Jackson's second election, in 1832, the representative party convention system was coming into use,

What happened in 1876—In 1876, Professor Woodburn goes on to relate, there was a still more serious dispute over the presidential election—"a dispute which clearly illustrated an almost fatal weakness in the system of electing a president by the electoral college." In that election there were 369 electoral votes, 185 being necessary to a choice. The democratic candidate, Mr. Tilden, carried, without dispute, 184 votes, lacking only one of enough to elect; the republican candidate, Mr. Hayes, had 163 votes. We are told further that in four states—Oregon, Florida, South Carolina, and Louisiana, with twenty-two electoral votes—there were disputed returns. If in any of these states the democratic electors were found to have been chosen Mr. Tilden would have a majority in the college and would be elected; while the republicans in order to elect their candidate must have all of the twenty-two. Of course, the republicans, as loyal party men, laid claim to all these doubtful states, remarks Professor Woodburn, and the democrats did the same, though the democrats would have been satisfied with only one. In the disputed states the two sets of electors met, voted, and sent up the certified returns to Washington. In congress the republicans had a majority in the senate, while the democrats had a majority in the house. On this point R. H. Fuller, as cited above, has the following to say:

". . . Neither party was able to have its return from the disputed states declared valid. It was finally decided to refer the controversy to a 'returning board' or electoral commission, consisting of five senators, five representatives, and five judges of the United States supreme court. This commission decided that Hayes had carried Florida by a plurality of 926 and Louisiana, by a plurality of 4,627.

"The supreme court of Florida had given Tilden a plurality of 94 in that state, and the face of the returns in Louisiana, it was asserted, gave Tilden 5,303 plurality. The electoral votes of these two states, however, were counted for Hayes, giving him 185 electoral votes and Tilden 184. The count was not completed until two days before March 4, 1877, when the new president was to be inaugurated."—Literary Digest.

Mary Garden Had Little Encouragement

Although she received little encouragement from those about her, Mary Garden, in Paris, studied from early to late each day—then without warning was told that her backer had withdrawn her support.

The Garden family in her native Aberdeen, Scotland, was not musically inclined, and believed theatres were wicked places.

At six she was taken by her parents to Brooklyn, N. Y. Beginning the study of the violin at eight, she was told by her teacher at the end of two years that she might make a brilliant amateur player in 20 or 30 years. Then came several years of study of the piano after the family had moved to Chicago.

Singing as did other school children and knowing nothing of voice training, she continued with the piano until 15, then began voice culture just to add an accomplishment.

At 16 she saw her first play and soon afterward took the small part of Angelina in Trial by Jury, given by a church musical club. Then she decided to be a singer. Her father could not afford to send her to Paris and a rich woman offered to back her, but the girl had to wait until she finished school at 19 before she could win her parents' consent to go.

Living in a small room in Paris, she toiled incessantly. Few thought she would be successful and she seldom received praise. Then came the withdrawal of support and she was alone in Paris with 50 centimes.

Walking in the Bois to divert her mind, she met Sibyl Sanderson, who finally drew out her story, took her to live at her home and obtained for her a teacher and a chance to understudy at the Opera Comique at 100 francs a month.

After waiting two weeks she was summoned to take the place of the star in Louise. She had not studied acting, appeared with the orchestra, so the musical director protested, but she sang the last two acts and received an ovation, then apeared in the role for 100 nights.

Then came triumphs in other countries, including successful debuts in Ney York and Chicago. She was managing director of the Chicago Opera Company for a season, the only woman to hold such an office in this country, and she is one of the most popular stars in the United States.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Hjalmar Branting, who has again become premier of Sweden, is the leader of the Socialist-Democratic party and generally regarded as one of Sweden's strongest men. In spite of the fact that he is a Socialist and, indeed, the founder of Swedish Socialism, it can surprise no one at all acquainted with the story of the man, that he has once more been called to take the helm of state. It is not that he is a great politician, or a great parliamentarian, or even a great partisan. But rather because he is simply a very able man. Very much in earnest, and ready at all times to support any cause that he believes just. Mr. Branting has led a most strenuous life. The only son of a distinguished Swedish university professor, he received his early education in France. While a student his tastes lay in the direction of mathematics and astronomy; but he threw up the promise of a scientific career for journalism and politics.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Is Life Worth Living?

"So we, thy people and sheep of Thy pasture will give the thanks forever; we will show forth thy praise to all generations."

Our faith should be no mere exotic, covered with a glass lest the winds of heaven should visit it too roughly; but rather it should be like the green blade of corn, on which the rain may descend and the scorching sun shine, and the winds blow, but which, because God's sun does shine upon it, and as a result of that, has a vital power; then, not in spite of, but because of these influences, should still grow up to the tiny blade, the tender ear, and to the ripened corn. Is this life worth living? Let us look at life as a whole.

It is not all darkness; it has its crimson glows and its golden sunsets, it is not all clouds, and even those we have have their silver linings. It is not all winter; it has its summer days on which it is a luxury to breathe the breath of life. Life has its May when all is glorious. Then the woods are vocal, the winds breathe music, the very breeze has mirth in it.

Though darkness comes alike to all, yet we all have such periods—call them intervals, at least — between storm and storm, interspaces of sunlight between the breaths of the gloom, while over every one of us the night at last sweeps down.

Let us admit, that God is very good to us, and that the lesser evils of our lives are often only an anticipation of our own making, not of God.

Yet if we ask if these colored threads are strong enough to weave the warp as the roof of life we know what the answer must be. Let us grant that childhood, keen as are its little trials, can hardly be otherwise than happy and its tears are dried almost as soon as the dew on the rose.

If there be no God, no heavens unseen, if there be no atonement for intolerable wrongs, if praying nations lift up their hands in vain, if hallow echoes are all the answer which follows Christ's words upon the cross, then life is a make believe which nothing can save from meanness. Ask the Christian, "Is life worth living?" and he will say, "Yes;" for to live is Christ and to die is gain." Death is the veil which they who live call life!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Near East Relief Work.

Mr. Editor: My visit to Russian Armenia has fully confirmed my previous impression of the magnitude and importance of American relief work in that corner of the world. Our charity there has not only saved thousands of lives; it is actually building a new type of national life.

The traveler need but compare an old Armenian village with a near east relief orphanage. In the former, life is found in its primitive form; there is no home life: no idea of order, cleanliness, sanitation, conveniences; the whole life for centuries has been stunted by constant menace of war and massacre; there has been no incentive to progress, the people are not touched by modern ideas. In the American orphanages is security, order, cleanliness, new and better methods of keeping house and tilling soil; above all the spirit of cooperation, friendliness, service, is making a profound impression upon thousands of children.

Children trained in these agricultural and industrial orphanage schools, when absorbed in the national life, will be builders of a new Armenia. They have seen not only the outer comforts of life; they have been touched by a new spirit; life has a new meaning for them.

The spirit of service is the driving power among the American workers. They are a fine lot of men and women, wholesouled, devoted, jolly and happy in their work. This American attitude of service is a puzzle to all the peoples of that part of the world, Turks, Russians, Tartars and the rest. They see the hard work Americans are doing, they see also our good cheer and happiness. They know that behind our little band of workers stand millions of Americans giving freely of their money. Why? What do we want? What are we after?

For the first time in the history of these nations, they see representatives of another nation working, spending, facing difficulties with a smile—not to exploit a weaker nation but to help it get stronger and better. For no ulterior motive, but in a spirit of unselfish service. America throughout the near east is giving an object lesson in the spirit of the Golden Rule, in religious broadmindedness and cooperation. It seems incomprehensible to people used to religious bigotry, narrowness, hatreds, national selfishness and enmity. But it is bound to be the most potent factor in their future development.

CHILD TRAINING

THE POWER OF EXAMPLE

Maude Freeman Osborne

If parents would remember that the power of example is greater than precept, there would be not only less of the "don't" philosophy in bringing up children, but more real results. In other words, when parents themselves set a good example, children find it much easier to conduct themselves properly than when just told what is right.

It is of little effect to tell children not to get angry, or to scold or punish them for getting angry, or to have them read the Bible verse, "He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city," when there is someone in the house, especially someone they love and reverence very much, who once in a while has a display of temper. True, children often because of this instruction "want" to keep from getting angry, but they find it hard to do so when they have the opposite example set them.

I am reminded of what a friend who had lost her only son told me. It was that she felt as if she must "dress and go, and keep cheerful," sad as she felt, in order that her fortitude might be remembered by her daughters if ever any of them had a similar experience.

Sarah was visiting Aunt Harriet who was suddenly taken ill one day as she was preparing dinner. Sarah could do everything but bake the pie. Looking in a cook-book was no aid to her. She simply did not know how to handle the dough!

Cousin John said, "Oh, I can make a pie."

"You can?" said Sarah. "You never made a pie!"

And he did make a fine pie, although not so good as Mother's.

I was very much amused at my little Laddie and a neighbor's child Billie, playing house. Billie, the older, was "Mama." Slapping the dolls and animals around, and talking in a peremptory manner, "she" was evidently bent on instituting order out of chaos. Suddenly, in great dismay, "she" exclaimed, "Oh, my! There's the telephone!"

Going to an imaginary telephone, "she" said in a very low voice, "Hello." Then followed one side of a conversation, in the sweetest, most cooing tones imaginable. After the final "Good-by," the slappings and commands began again.

My eyes were opened. "Oh, what is the use," thought I, "of preaching what we do not practice, when their little ears and eyes are so sharp and their powers of observation so keen—when they can see right through one like that?"

Truly, good examples do far more toward constructive character-building than all the advice that can be given.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the work of reconstructing the Laurel Hill school was proceeding in a satisfactory manner and it was expected at that time that the work would be completed by December, 1, 1874, a month ahead of time. The cost of the reconstruction was given as $3,100. That week Norwich lost one of its prominent citizens and merchants, by the death of Gurdon A. Jones, 71 years old. The funeral of Robert Coit was held the same week. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of October, 1874, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 19, 1874—Brewer's drug store on East Main street was set on fire Saturday night by the explosion of a demijohn of benzine in the cellar. Mr. Turner had gone down in the cellar to draw some castor oil and deposited the lantern at what is usually regarded a safe distance from the demijohn. The alarm was given and in a very few minutes a fire stream was carried into the rear of the building and the fire was subdued at once. The flames had run up the stairs and exploded a jug of whiskey in the rear end of the store. This too was quickly put out with no greater loss than not over $1,000.

The City of Norwich has been withdrawn from the Norwich line for a week. Edward Woodward goes on duty today as clerk of the City of Boston.

Sedwick Post are preparing to give a grand masquerade about the first of December. They know how to organize a very successful ball.

Tuesday, Oct. 20, 1874—Patrick - - - was arrested in Greeneville Sun. night by Policeman Holmes and Policeman Fillmore for intoxication. He was placed in the lockup overnight, being the first we believe to enjoy the honor of accomodations in this newly built Traveler's Rest. Policeman Fillmore going to the cell, yesterday morning, to take him to the city court, found the bird had flown. He had dug a hole through the wall into the next cell, the masonry being perhaps a little green. The other cell was unlocked and the rest of the work of getting out of the building was easy. He dropped in at his boarding house to say goodbye, then disappeared to parts unknown.

The woods are full of chestnuts this fall, as seldom before. A good patch of woods will yield ten bushels of them. Nothing prevents the market price of them going down to a dollar, but the simple fact that nobody will take the trouble to collect them for less than they bring now, $1.75 and $2.00 a bushel. The large markets in New York, Providence and Boston are now overflowing with them.

An unusually large number of tickets to Europe are being sold in town. They are mostly to factory people. More are being sold than after the panic a year ago when there was such a rush abroad.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE OFFICIAL SPEAKS FOR COOLIDGE AT RALLY

A vote for LaFollette is a vote thrown away or is a vote for Charles Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, who has no use for the American negro, said Frank P. Chisholm, field secretary of the Tuskegee Institute, one of two colored speakers at a republican rally in the town hall Friday evening under the auspices of the Coolidge and Dawes Colored club. The other speaker was William A. Byrd of Jersey City, well known colored orator, who impressed his audience with the importance of electing the entire republican ticket on presidential election day, November 4th. There were about 200 men and women at the rally, including a number of white people.

Judge Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee, presided over the rally which was called a few minutes after 8 o'clock. In his introductory remarks Judge Libby said that it is up to the voters of the United States to decide whether or not they want a change in government. It is a momentous time, said Judge Libby, and it behooves us to vote conscientiously and above all—to vote. Judge Libby then introduced Frank P. Chisholm, field secretary of the Tuskegee Institute, as the first of the two speakers on the programme.

The republican party has been a great friend to the negro and the negro has been a great friend to the republican party, said Mr. Chisholm. In recent years, in four states, at least, the negro has been the balance of power in elections. It is important to bear in mind the marvelous advance the negro has made under freedom and the part the republican party has played in this advance. The negro is a positive economic asset to this nation.

Mr. Chisholm spoke of the large property holdings of negroes in the southern states. There is little doubt, he said, that their homes number well over 600,000, absolutely free of debt and encumbrances. He pointed out that 50 years ago only ten per cent. of the negro population could read and write. Today 80 per cent. of the negro population can read and write. There are over 1,700,000 colored children going to school today. It is hard to find a negro school that is not overcrowded. Religion tells the same story. In 1850 the total number of colored churches was about 700. In 1920 there were many thousands of colored churches, and the value of negro church property has grown from $1,000,000 to $50,000,000.

This progress has been made under a state of freedom. The negro has had good friends in the republican party. Abraham Lincoln and the republican party gave the negro his freedom 60 years ago. Among all our friends in the republican party today, there stands at the head our president, Calvin Coolidge (applause). He is of old New England stock. The speaker then went on to tell of a few of the things Coolidge has done for the colored people of the country since he has been president. He spoke of a $2,000,000 government hospital erected at Tuskegee institute for the wounded colored soldiers of the World war, and now only recently, President Coolidge, against strong political opposition, installed there an entire personnel of colored doctors and nurses.

As long as President Coolidge stands for the interests and advancements of the negro, I, personally, don't care whether Coolidge ever says anything about the Ku Klux Klan, said Mr. Chisholm. It is deed, not words that count. In this political contest a proposal has been made to have the power of the United States supreme court vetoed by congress. The constitution is the bulwark of our liberties. LaFollette stands for making congress the judge of its own acts. It is our supreme court that guarantees the rights of American citizens. If the Ku Klux Klan should ever attain a majority in congress and the power of the supreme court be taken away who knows but what would come would be the abolishment of all denominational schools and the endangering of freedom. This is a menace that must be combatted by every negro man and woman voter.

Davis says he is against the klan. But the backbone of the democratic party is for the klan. I don't see how the negro can expect much help from Davis if he were elected. Mr. Chisholm said he didn't think LaFollette can be elected and didn't think Davis can be elected. A vote for LaFollette is a vote thrown away or is a vote for Charles Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, who has no use for the American negro. LaFollette can't be elected. It is either Coolidge or chaos. I want every colored voter to go to the polls on election day and vote the republican ticket from top to bottom.

Mr. Chisholm said he was always in favor of woman's rights. Some argued, he said, that woman's place was in the home. I think woman's place is anywhere where she can serve. Snow the democrats under with an avalanche of votes, snow them under so deep, snow them under face downward, that the more they struggle the deeper they will bury themselves, he said in closing.

Made Eloquent Address.

Judge Libby presented as the second and final speaker of the evening Dr. William A. Byrd of Jersey City. I am not going to say anything about the klan, said Dr. Byrd, because the republican party, in its wisdom, ignored it. This country has been purchased by blood, the blood of the revolution and especially the blood of the flower of the north who saved the nation and freed the slaves under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln. (Applause). So long as America remains America will the black race owe to that party its allegiance. If the Union had been destroyed both black and white people would never be what they are and the white people owe to the republican party the same allegiance that the black man owes to it. The republican party stands for definite and humane things.

The party of slavery was the democratic party. Calvin Coolidge stands squarely for human rights and human justice, regardless of color. The same democratic party that is running the negro out of the south through lynchings and murders is up here in Connecticut and in Massachusetts begging on its knees for the vote of the colored man. The republican party stands, first of all, for America for Americans. They say we stand for the tariff. We do stand for the tariff. The democrats have always been interested in either free slavery or free trade. The republican party has always stood for those things that will make America free from the entanglements of Europe.

We must be free from European entanglements. We don't want a league of nations. The only league we want is the American league. You are told that if you go to the democrats they will give you a job. It isn't a job you want. It is your rights you want. Give me my rights and I'll get a job. The republican party is the greatest industrial party of this country. If the democrats get in power the factories will close. If you want good homes, good wages, if you want your children educated I say to you, stand by the republican party that has made the country what it is. You cannot afford to come to Connecticut and fight against the party, the blood of whose sons freed you. There may be some good democrats.

Regarding the selection of a successor to the late Senator Brandegee, Dr. Byrd said: I know Connecticut will send another true and tried republican who will not be under the rule of southern democracy.

Who is La Follette? He is an old man, sour, crabby, who thinks he ought to be president. La Follette says in his literature that the soldier ought to have a bigger money consideration. What was La Follette doing when our boys were in France in the trenches? What was La Follette doing during the war? He was in the senate, trying to obstruct the progress of the war. La Follette is impossible. He hasn't a ghost of a chance of being elected. Dr. Byrd said that it looks as if Calvin Coolidge will have between 300 and 325 electoral voters when the votes are counted election day.

Dr. Byrd, who is a graduate of Princeton college, is one of the finest colored orators ever heard in Norwich. He is a remarkable speaker and handled his subject in a way that won him universal admiration from both the white and colored people in the audience. The rally came to an end about 9.30 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the Alpha Class was held Thursday evening in the social rooms of the Church of the Good Shepherd. The meeting took the form of a Hallowe'en party. The rooms were dimly lighted with candles and about 8 o'clock the grand march was started, led by "Pus-in-Boots." Many of the characters represented ghosts but one delegation of sheeted figures carried a "K. K. K." banner. There were Pierrots, gypsies, eccentric old ladies, etc. Mrs. Lena Pukallus presided at the piano and played the selection for the grand march. There were Hallowe'en games and fortunes were told by a gypsy.

Refreshments of doughnuts, cheese, apples, punch, popped corn and candy were served. Later the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. M. A. Barber and a business session was held. There were reports by the treasurer, Mrs. George A. Boon, and the secretary, Mrs. John H. Bell, new business taken up, future work planned and the quarterly quota to the church was ordered paid. There were about 30 present and the evening proved a most delightful one. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Thomas W. Wilson, Mrs. Herman Pukallus, Mrs. Theodore Pike, Mrs. W. A. Bussey, Mrs. Peter Wilson and Mrs. W. C. Young.

Heat and Fat Men

Fat men stand the heat better than lean ones, the Bureau of Mines has established through experiments in a specially constructed chamber at Pittsburgh.

The fat men, the bureau found, lost more weight when subjected to uncomfortably hot temperatures, but they were less exhausted when they were relieved. In a state of rest and in still air, the experiments disclosed, the human body cannot endure indefinitely a temperature higher than 90 degrees Fahrenheit, with 100 per cent relative humidity.

Pulse rate, rather than rise in bodily temperature, it was discovered, apparently determines the extent of discomfort in high temperatures. Subjects became very uncomfortable when the pulse reached 135 pulsations a minute. Sad unbearable symptoms appeared at 166. The highest pulse rate recorded was 184.

The American Engineers Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers cooperated in the experiments, which were designed to afford a study of conditions as they might affect miners.

Walter Merritt Fernald, connected with the editorial and news departments of the Hartford Times from 1913 until he joined the staff of the Boston Transcript last May, and managing editor of the Ansonia Sentinel from 1901 to 1914, died at his home in Melrose, Mass., from blood poisoning after a week's illngs.

GRUELLING CONTESTS ANTICIPATED ON EASTERN GRIDIRONS THIS AFTERNOON

New York, Oct. 24.—(By The A. P.) Most of the contenders for eastern football laurels of 1924 reach the crossroads tomorrow. The path that leads to title glory will be trod by a diminished band of warriors by the time the shadows have fallen across the fields of battle that promise stirring fights for supremacy in many sections.

Six of the eleven more important teams on the Atlantic seaboard that have not yet tasted defeat will meet in three of the day's outstanding engagements. Harvard clashes with Dartmouth at Cambridge and Lafayette lines up against its old rival, Washington & Jefferson, at the Polo grounds in two contests that promise to be among the most closely fought of any. Rutgers, conqueror of Cornell, meets Lehigh, which held Princeton to a scoreless tie, in the third struggle involving unbeaten arrays.

Harvard, Lafayette and Rutgers, on new season's record, loom as the most likely to emerge triumphant from these frays, but they are not conceded decisive margins.

The five remaining undefeated teams also have formidable opposition. Princeton faces a difficult task in trying to check the onward drive of the unbeaten team from the west, Notre Dame, but Yale is expected to come through in their annual game at New Haven. Chick Meehan's Syracuse outfit, invading the nittany lion stronghold, is favored to conquer a Penn State eleven which apparently is not as strong as in the past few seasons.

Pennsylvania, leading the eastern contingent with five straight victories to its credit encounters Virginia and on past performances, should win, while the remaining unbeaten team, Williams, which broke Cornell's long winning streak, battles Percy Haughton's improved Columbia aggregation. Williams looks the stronger but Columbia has made steady progress and showed to Pennsylvania only by the margin of a field goal a week ago.

Notre Dame's invasion of the Tiger jungle in the most important intersectional clash of tomorrow's schedule has attracted interest. The Hoosiers, fresh from their triumph a week ago over Army, will match Swift, machine-like attack of their brilliant backfield against an aggressive, fighting Princeton eleven. Rockne's "Comet" will be favored to win, but the Tigers, with a superior like re-enforced by the return of Captain "Buzz" Stout at end, will not go down without a real battle.

So far this season the east has fared well in important intersectional games with the middle west. Notre Dame will be seeking a second intersectional victory, while Colgate has been beaten by Nebraska, Navy by Marquette and Brown by Chicago.

New York city will entertain an exceptional array of college talent tomorrow. Besides the W. & J.—Lafayette and Williams—Columbia games, Penn State, Virginia and Center will settle their 1924 rivalry at the Yankee stadium, with the Mountaineers taking the field favorites over the "praying colonels."

The list of more important eastern games tomorrow and the records of 1924 performances follow:

Dartmouth at Harvard 16-0.
Notre Dame at Princeton 25-2.
Syracuse at Penn State 10-0.
Virginia at Pennsylvania no game.
Rutgers at Lehigh 10-0.
W. & J. Lafayette 6-6.
Center-West Virginia no game.
Williams at Columbia 10-0.
Boston University at West Point no game.
Fordham at Holy Cross 7-13.
West Va. Wesleyan at Annapolis 27-.
Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh 7-2.
Bucknell at Georgetown 14-7.

TIGERS TNXIOUS TO PUT CLAWS INTO ROCKNE'S PETS

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 24. — The Princeton Tiger was roaring tonight, anxious to be let loose in Palmer stadium tomorrow afternoon against Notre Dame's Notre Dame outfit to revenge a stinging 25-2 defeat handed out last year.

While the Orange and Black went through a light signal drill this afternoon, Rockne and his men working out at the Deal country club near Asbury park.

Captain Adam Walsh of the Hoosiers, appeared with his hand in a cast and it was definitely learned that he will not play against Princeton. The balance of the team, however, was pronounced in excellent condition.

Princeton, for the first time this season will go into a game with its greatest strength at Coach "Bill" Roper's command. Brad Dinsmore and Captain "Buzz" Stout, both of whom were kept out of the games because of minor injuries, will be at their respective places with the former directing the team.

BROWN WILL DEPEND ON SPEED TO BEAT YALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Providence, Oct. 24.—Minus Capt. Harrison but otherwise ready for action, the Brown eleven will leave here tomorrow morning for its annual contest with Yale in the Bowl. Head Coach Robinson said today that the Brunonians would probably start the following:

The Brown line as Robinson has named it will average 184 pounds, from end to end. The backfield average is 160 and a fraction. The figures mean that Yale will have weight advantage in its forwards and in its backs. But the Brunonians believe that they have a faster combination than the one Tad Jones will use and that their speed will help offset the difference in weight.

What the Brown line, which was a disappointment two weeks ago in the Chicago game, will do against the Elis tomorrow is the big question. Robinson and his assistants have worked heroically with the forwards, trying to speed them up on offense and to knit them together on defense. Eckstein's disability has been a handicap, and the failure of the guards candidates to make visible progress has also hindered the development of the sort of line for which Robinson is best known. If the Brown forwards find themselves tomorrow the belief here is that Yale is going to have a real task on its hands.

This belief is based on the fine showing of the Brown backfield in games to date. Dixon isn't much to look at physically, but he has speed, hits the line hard and is strong on defense. Keefer, too, is a threat that the Elis have made ready to meet, while Richardson and Sweet are ball-carriers of more than ordinary merit. In addition, the Bears have first string backs in Payor, Klump, Higgins, Pohlman and Mishel. An army of supporters will accompany the squad to New Haven.

FAST GAME EXPECTED AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

New Haven, Oct. 24.—The Brown football squad which will face the Yale eleven in the annual battle at Yale bowl tomorrow, will not arrive from Providence, R. I., until tomorrow noon and will not have an opportunity to practice in the big saucer except just before the game.

Brown will star the game without the services of Captain Jim Sheldon who was injured in the early part of the season and has not yet fully recovered. It is possible that he may go in for part of the contest. Brode, of last year Brown freshman squad, will substitute for the leader of the Bears and is considered to be almost as capable as the varsity captain.

Eckstein, rated as in the class of Capt. Lovejoy of Yale and Garbisch, of the Army at center, and Dixon, the light but snappy quarterback, are also left out of the opening lineup, but it is more than likely that they will get into the battle before the game progresses very far. Reports from Providence during the week have indicated that both of these men have been rested up for the Yale game and that they are again in good condition after having been on the hospital list.

While the Yale coaches expect a hard game against Brown, it is likely that they will throw many substitutes into the battle during the afternoon as the lineup is by no means settled for the rest of the year. The Yale team wil star with a slightly different lineup than that which opened against Dartmouth last Saturday. This was shown in the signal drill this afternoon. Eckart will be again at right guard in place of Wortham who replaced him at the beginning of the Dartmouth game.

Before the game is over it is expected that Hart and Osborne will go in at ends; Stewart and Wallace at guards; Burt at center, White in field, Bunnell, Lindley, Kline and Scott will probably be given a chance to show what they can do. If he is in good shape, there is a possibility that Conway will get a tryout at tackle. He was moved up from the scrubs last Monday and was injured the first day at scrimmage. He played on last year's freshman team and the coaches intended to develop him for future years. It also is indicated that Wadsworth, Wienecke and Barclay, all of whom have been tried out at quarter, will be tested out at halfback tomorrow. Jack Failing, one of the punters on the squad, will probably not be in the game as he is recovering from a slight attack of bronchitis.

Following are the officials: Referee, W. R. Crowley, Bowdoin; umpire, W. M. Hollenbach, Pennsylvania; linesman, M. D. Williams, Wesleyan; field judge, F. W. Durleight, Exeter.

RECORD PURSE OFFERED IN GRAND CIRCUIT NEXT YEAR

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—The rainy day sweepstakes, one of the features of the Grand circuit for two year old trotters will have a value of $25,000 in 1925. The biggest purse ever offered for an event of this class, W. G. Kinnan, general manager of the Forest City livestock and fair company, announced today.

The event, as in the past, will be raced during the second grand circuit meeting at North Randall.

The purse this year was $10,500. Entries close Feb. 1, 1925. Colts and fillies foaled in 1924 will be eligible.

HARVARD HARRIERS BEAT DARTMOUTH FRESHMEN

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 24.—Harvard drew first blood in the week-end contests with Dartmouth by winning the varsity and freshman cross country races, each by the score of 18-37, and the varsity soccer game, 3-0 today.

In the vasity race, Walter Tibbetts of Boston, Harvard, placed first, covering the five mile course in 27 minutes, 39 4-5 seconds, leading Byron Cutcheon of Long Branch, N. J., Harvard, by a yard. A. O'Neil of Boston, Harvard, won the freshman race.

Bulkeley to Play Crosby Today

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 24—Final practice for the Bulkeley football team was held this morning at ten o'clock. The team with several radical changes is set to meet what offensive plays the Crosby High school eleven of Waterbury will attempt to warr at the local line. The visitors coming to the Whaling city with several victories in High school circles in this state, and among those teams Crosby has defeated is Hartford Public High, New Britain met and defeated Crosby by a single touchdown, and a comparison between Bulkeley and New Britain will be made pending the outcome of the game on Saturday. For Bulkeley will meet New Britain High at New Britain next week in what will prove to be one of the deciding games for the Nutmeg State High school laurels.

AT THE BREED, FOUR DAYS, STARTING SUNDAY

CHAPMAN TECH OUTPLAYS WESTERLY AND WINS WITH TOUCH DOWN AND GOAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 24—Uncorking a final offensive drive upon the Westerly goal line, Chapman Tech gained new laurels this balmy afternoon at Morgan park, and took the game played with Westerly High by a 9 to 0 score. A kick from placement, cleverly done by the dusky Johnny Brown, and a touchdown in the final minutes of play by quarterback Everts gave Tech its scoring margins.

The score of 9 to 0 will in some way explain the intense struggle of the afternoon. Battling back and forth in the early minutes of play, neither team had an offensive drive which netted them any consistent gains. Both quarterbacks were merely sparring for time, or not it may be added for a break. For it was punt on the second down and in some instances the first down was picked for the punting. The Red and Black, which now perches defiantly upon the top position of the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league, were gaining almost on every punt. It was not because Brown or Williams were outpunting their Westerly rival, but because of several factors that entered into the play unsuspectingly. Tech's ends were down under the punts fast, and reinforced by additional linemen generally got their man in his tracks. Westerly failed in this one respect, and failed in several other respects as well.

The initial break of the game came soon after the second quarter had opened and Tech was the benefitor. It was a dropped punt by Westerly's general, and two Red and Black jerseyed men immediately in a flash it seemed covered that loose ball. Tech with Brown reeling off his longest run of the afternoon, about 18 yards, had ball in Westerly's territory for the first time. Here the split formation which worked with excellent results every time it was used was pressed into service. It was Brown or Kannenberg each time and a steady march down the field was only marred by a fumble by Williams. But then Westerly was also finding it difficult to hold onto the egg and Tech recovered on Westerly's 24-yard line. Several gains through the line, and the ball rested on the 16-yard mark. Tech finding it difficult to penetrate a stiffening line, and Westerly was offering much more resistence that previously. It was fourth down with nearly eight yards to go, and with the forward pass game completely smothered, Everts called for a placement kick with the reliable Brown doing the kicking. The ball left his toe on the 32-yard line and soared over the heads of the onrushing Westerly linemen. True to its course, except for a slight deviation because of a slight gust of wind which carried the ball a little to the left, the ball went through the posts for the first score of the afternoon.

The score would have been enough to win the game, as events later proved. Tech was content for that time to let matters rest for the time at least. And Westerly after receiving could do little with the stubborn offense of the league leaders. It was a matter of punting again, and at this form of game Westerly was held at arms length from the goal.

But where the offensive abilities asserted themselves in the first half under the banner of the Red and Black, it was time that a change was made to the opposing team. Tech although gaining the distinction of outplaying their "Little Rhody" rivals in the first half had to bow to the superior rush play of the visitors in the last half. Brown and Kannenberg, the two big guns in the Chapman Tech attack, were temporarily stopped. It gave Westerly a big chance to get back the three points they were behind. But though they began in steady march towards the Tech goal line the inability to take the ball over the final chalk line proved to be their undoing. They had a chance to easily put the ball over for the winning touchdown, but poor football tactics by the quarterback can account somewhat for their failure to put the ball over. After hitting the left side of Tech's line for gains that gave them first down on two downs, and occasionally an end run around the right side of Tech's line was met with a serious loss in ground. It must be admitted, that the visitors showed some good running ability in this march down the field, but lacked the punch to put it over.

Not so Chapman Tech, and after the forwards had stopped the offense, the next and final quarter found them assuming the offensive themselves. Here broken field funning with Kannenberg and Brown taking the ball brought the oval close to the Westerly line from which Everts took it over from the two yard line. Because Westerly could not solve the one winning play which Tech had in its category, they lost the game, by was a deceiving formation, based upon a split with three linemen on each side, close to the opposing end and tackle. It left an opening on two sides of the Tech center, and off this pray end runs, center plays and off tackle plays were played with marked success. The play was producing and the Tech quarterback used it very wisely. All the other Tech plays were easily smothered with little effort.

Johnny Brown and Kannenberg began their drive for All-Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic honors with gratifying results. They were the whole show for Tech and deprived of these men, the outcome of this game would have been different. Each player got off several long runs, and Kannenberg on one attempt nearly cleared all the blue jerseyed players but the quarterback. It was the longest run of the afternoon, and gained something like 27 yards or more.

GIANTS GIVE BRITISHERS REAL BASEBALL EXHIBITION

London, Oct. 24.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox, in their second exhibition game in England, today gave several thousand British "fans" a real demonstration of big league baseball. The Giants won a most thrilling game by the score of 3 to 2 with a ninth inning rally.

Among the interested spectators were the Duke and Duchess of York. The son of King George was received by Ambassador Kellogg and introduced to John McGraw, the Giants' manager. In addition the Duke met the players and insisted on shaking hands with each of them.

The Giants, playing at their best, held on to a slim one run lead until the eighth inning when the Sox drove two runs over the plate. But the apparent victors had their seeming triumph snatched away from them by the New York rally when two runs were scored. On the fielding side there was a rare bit of baseball excellence in the sixth when the Chicago infield evolved a triple play.

Now and then many of the British spectators were moved to an expression of their feelings. Occasionally some of the natives even clapped their hands and a few followed the example of the Americans present by using their vocal cords somewhat strenuously but they were the exception.

The field on which this game was played was soggy from recent rains and some few hits were scrutchy, as pitchers often slipped in fielding bunts. There were no home runs as it had been decided before the game that a hit into the stands would be good for only a two-bagger. But Bancroft, in the eighth, laced a triple to right field, his ball bounding over Meusel's head. His drive scored Mostil and he himself came in on a single by Rice. Stengel twice got doubles into the bleachers and thus drove in all three Giant runs.

The score by innings:

GOLDSTEIN OFFERED $55,000 TO MEET VILLA AT MANILA

New York, Oct. 24.—Abe Goldstein has been offered a guarantee of $55,000 to defend his world's bantamweight, title in a 20-round match in Manila, capital of the Phillippines, against Pancho Villa, Filipino holder of the world's flyweight crown.

The offer was made today to Willie Lewis, Goldstein's manager, by Frank Churchill, Villa's manager, who said he was acting for Manila promoters who have the backing of the native government and want to stage the match early in 1925. Lewis did not announce a definite decision but indicated he was favorably inclined toward the proposal.

Villa rose to rapid pugilistic prominence here and won the world's 112-pound title from Jimmy Wilde, British veteran, last year. Recently he returned to his native land after being suspended in New York state for failure to go through with a match with Frankie Genaro American flyweight champion.

McTIGUE'S LICENSE REVOKED BY N. Y. COMMISION

New York, Oct. 25—The state athletic commission today recommended to its license commission that Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, be refused a license to box in New York for a year because of his failure to accept a challenge to defend his title against Gene Tuney, holder of the American 175-pound crown.

The commissions action definitely ends prospects of a match between McTigue and Paul Berlenbach, of New York, which Tex Richard was seeking with the intention of matching the winner with Tunney.

The commission announced that while McTigue would not be deprived of his title, recognition as the ranking light-heavyweight while he is under ban would be extended to Tunney.

Tunney had previously offered to waive his right to the first meeting with McTigue to give Berlenbach a chance for the title with the stipulation that the winner was to meet Tunney in a title match before meeting any other contender. This agreement collapsed, however, when Berlenbach refused to enter into such a contract.

Upon receipt of a request from the Michigan state athletic commission at Detroit, the state athletic commission directed its doctor to examine Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight now in New York, who cancelled a contract to meet Bob Sage in Detroit tonight owing to an injury to his right thumb. Dr. P. M. Lichtenstein examined the member and in his report to the commission he statd that Shad has a strained ligament in his thumb which will necessitate his withdrawal from the ring for a short period.

Arthur Wiegand, a lightweight, who was disqualified for fouling Johnny Donovan in a Syracuse ring on October 17, was let off with a warning when it was discovered that this is his first offense of this nature.

The commission today announced definite plans for the lightweight and featherweight elimination tournaments, the first to determine a logical contender for a title match with Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and the second to place the 126 pound featherweight crown upon a new champion.

In a letter to the Madison Square Garden corporation, which body offered to stage both elimination tournaments, the commission has ruled that six men from each division will be selected by the commission to be weighed in and matched up by virtue of a draw. The first elimination tournament will be held on one night at the club with three ten round matches. The semi-finals will be drawn and will consist of 12 round encounters. The winner to meet the man drawing a bye in a 15-round match.

Academy vs Stonington Today

Today finds the Academy football team primed and ready for the referee's whistle to start hostilities with the Stonington High school eleven. It is a greatly improved Academy eleven that takes the field, both on the offensive and defensive.

Yesterday after a short drill of 20 minutes to safeguard against staleness and tiredness, the coach, Mr. Atkins and players of the squad traveled to New London to watch the Westerly and Chapman Tech elevens struggle for supremacy. Here they received valuable information that will be of great advantage to them in the next turn of the Interscholastic league.

Stonington is bringing some stiff opposition for the locals to solve. A hard, well fought contest will probably be witnessed. Both teams are out to win and there will be "fight" until the last minute of play. The fray will begin at three o'clock and with thy following lineup: Hasland, c; Hagberg, lg; Gilman rg; Hollander rt; Lukowski, lt; Carlin re; Scott le; Williams qb; McGowan rh; Higgins lhb; Hinrichs fb.

EDWARD BILODEAU, JR., NAMED FOR PROBATE JUDGE

You Can Drive It All Day Without Fatigue

What the group of Maxwell-Chrysler engineers responsible for the good Maxwell of today have accomplished is just this—

They have raised four-cylinder motoring to a plane of fineness and comfort heretofore assumed to be impossible in a car of this type.

They have accomplished it not alone through the insistence on fine manufacturing and the use of first grade materials. They have also employed engineering innovations that practically eliminate vibration and otherwise perfect performance and riding quality.

You will especially appreciate these higher qualities when you make a country run of considerable distance.

Where you used to return from such a trip thoroughly weary, now with the good Maxwell you can drive all day without fatigue.

And as for dependable, care-free, economical service, the good Maxwell still leads all cars at anywhere near its price.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

The Good MAXWELL

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Goldfish

Rain, rain, go away,
You were with us yesterday.
In the tree is every bird,
And no lovely song is heard.

Yes sirecbus, as dear Uncle Lucky says, it certainly was a gloomy day. Overhead the thick clouds hid Mr. Merry Sun from view and all the grass was wet with dew. But the ting white bungalow in the Old Bramble Patch was snug and dry. A bright fire was burning in Lady Love's little kitchen stove and the tea kettle was singing merrily, its tin cover cap bumping up and down on the back door.

All of a sudden, a tipperty tap came on the back door. "Who can be calling on such a day?" asked the pretty bunny lady, and hopping across the shiny floor, she peeked out through the keyhole. She didn't open the door right away. Dear me, no, she knew better than that. Some one might be outside whom she wouldn't care to see. Danny Fox or Old Man Weasel for instance. Little rabbits must take care not to open doors without first peeping through the keyholes. It was a great relief to the little rabbit mother to see Ducky Waddles on the little back porch instead of Mr. Wicked Wolf or Hungery Hawk. The rain didn't bother that little duck. No, indeed! he liked water under him or over him for mud puddles, they were there for his especial benefit. He could splash right into them without ruining boots.

"Come in," invited the little rabbit's pretty mother, with a smile. Carefully wiping his feet on the round rag rug, the little duck waddled into the kitchen and carefully laid on the table a bright tin pail.

"What have you brought?" asked the little bunny, standing on tiptoe to peek over the brim. The next minute, she shouted "Goldfish!"

"Wish we had a big glass bowl!" sighed Lady Love after thanking the kind little duck. "Let me see. Haven't I something that will do," and she hopped over to the neat cupboard that stood in one corner of the kitchen, but look as she might, there was nothing there that would do. Dear me, wasn't that too bad?

"Let's use the big gallon water bottle," suggested the little rabbit. "It's empty but you can fill it with fresh water."

When this was done, Ducky Waddles carefully lifted the goldfish one by one out of the tin pail with his big bill and dropped them into the water bottle after which Lady Love threw a shawl on her head and hopped out into the flower garden.

"We will make it into a flower vase," she laughed, returning with two long stem chrysanthemums.

"Ha, ha," laughed her little bunny boy, as the tiny goldfish chased one another around the stems and the golden flowers nodded their heads above, "isn't that pretty. Thank you Ducky Waddles. I have the nicest acquarium in all Rabbitland."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

FRAUD CHECK PASSER SOUGHT THROUGH INQUIRIES IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 24—The proprietor of the Lebanon Valley garage, of Lebanon, N. Y., is seeking the whereabouts of a fraudulent check passer, in a fellow who represented himself as Charles Kelly and passed a check purporting to have been issued by Thomas F. Mackie on the New London City National bank. An endeavor was made to negotiate the check in a bank at Lebanon, but when it was received at the local bank, it was found that Mackie did not have an account at the institution, neither was Mackie nor Kelly known to employes of the bank. When the fraud was revealed to the Lebanon concern officers endeavored to cause the apprehension of Kelly, but he was not known to the local police.

James Murphy, a railroad brakeman is to come before the police court Saturday morning accused of an assault in the night season upon John Rooney.

When that case came to be tried Rooney was in the hospital and could not appear. He has since been discharged and is held in the county jail on a charge of intoxication that he may be on hand as a witness tomorrow. Charles Kirby, a coal shoveler, was a witness of the assault and to him Murphy made an admission that he (Murphy) had beat down Rooney. Now the police say that Kirby cannot be found. He is an important witness in the ecase, but not a absolutely essential one, as he has told his story in the presence of several persons who will repeat what Kirby has said. A subpoena for Kirby and one or two others has been issued so that there is no doubt that the facts in the case will be presented in court when police are of the opinion that Kirby was "seen" by somebody and that he has absented himself with reason.

John Bentilelis will be charged with the sale of liquor unlawfully in the court tomorrow. He declares that he is innocent and that he did not sell nor does he admit that he ever saw the man who accuses him Benjamin Tuttle, who has been employed as what is known as a "stool" among the liquor element. It is believed, the police say, that Tuttle's record has been looked up and that his testimony will be hard tonight when the case is presented. Gentilelis is the owner of a fruit store near the corner of Bank street. His place was searched with a comb and no trace of liquor was found there at the time of the alleged purchase.

If a report that seems to be well founded is proven true there is to be a hit time for a man who is charged with having attempted highway robbery on State street, near the railway station, Wednesday night. The man held up residents on Ocean avenue and report is to the effect that he was accosted and a demand was made upon him for money. He resisted and struck his assailant, who went down but who gathered himself and did the wisest thing he could do—take to his heels before an officer could be summoned.

Frank Eldridge of Bookwith street, carpenter, who fell about 20 feet from the veranda of the structure, 105 Bank street, upon which he was engaged with other carpenters making repairs yesterday, is reported this afternoon at Home Memorial Association hospital, as somewhat improved, although the patient is not out of danger. It was at first believed that Eldridge had sustained internal injuries, but this condition, it is believed, does not exist.

Arthur Dionne, of Westerly; Mrs. Margaret Edwards, Hempstead street; Miss Sylvia Stewart, Groton; Miss Genevieve Frink, Old Lyme, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Charles Friedman, of Buffalo, communicated with the New London police late this afternoon, requesting that she be given assistance in locating her son, Charles C. Friedman, who was in the United States marine corps at one time and stationed at the submarine base. Sergeant John Cavanaugh a short time following the reception of the communication, ascertained that Friedman was employed by the Thomas Transfer company. His mother was informed to that effect.

Ralph Harris, of 451 Bank street, proprietor of a barber shop, was before Justice of the Peace W. C. Knox of Waterford this morning, charged on two counts, with evasion of responsibility and one count of reckless driving. The two counts of evasion of responsibility were nolled but on the charge of reckless driving Harris was fined $25 and costs, the latter amounting to $28.13. Harris and Harris was driving his automobile to New Haven two weeks ago and other, going through Madison he attempted to operate this machine by one owned and driven by Harry Ewaskio, 30 Gregory street and which was also bound to New Haven. As Harris car emerged from behind Ewaskio's car it crashed head-on with a car owned and driven by M. H. Mathewson, 66 College street, New Haven, which was travelling in the opposite direction from that of Harris' car. Both cars were damaged. Mathewson lodged complaint with the state police barracks at Groton and Officer Shea ordered Harris into court.

The coast guard cutter at this port brought two yachts into the harbor, this afternoon, for violation of the navigation laws, in not having the requisite papers aboard. One of the yachts is the Bettina, a craft that has a steel armored pilot house, but which had no pilot rules and no papers to show that the revenue tax on the boat had been paid. The other boat is the W. W. Bruce, owned by Lewis Phillips of 3415 Broadway, New York. She is held for violation of the navigation laws. The motor boat La Felice, a rum runner alleged, was sold today at auction for $1800. The price was a low one and the buyer, Daniel Halpin, of New York, got a bargain in his purchase.

John Heffernan was sent to the workhouse from the police court today as a vagrant—a man without any abiding place and without means to take care of himself and obtain provision of which he was absolutely in need. Heffernan pleaded not guilty when the complaint was read to him. He didn't want to go to jail because frequent experience there has made him familiar with conditions. Heffernan declared that he was never a beggar in the street, though he was not charged with that offense. Then he disclosed that he had $1 in his pocket. He also admitted that he had made his lodgings in the tramp room of the police station every night of late, but accounted for that by saying that he had rheumatism and could not work to a degree that he might obtain a boarding place. "I have lived here thirty years," Heffernan declared, and I have yet to be accused of begging or soliciting money in any way." There is a vein of humor in Heffernan. He is the man who, when accused on another occasion, gave his employment as a "chambermaid" in a saloon. He said he had good friends who provided him with food.

John Mack, who has made his home at the Learned Mission, was taken from there last night while intoxicated. He was a nuisance in the mission and a disturber. He said he met friends yesterday who had two quarts of liquor and that the party consumed a bottle of it during the afternoon. He did not disclose who his friends were and the court was left in doubt as to that part of his story. The fact that he became drunk was apparent. He rambled along in a story of doing odd jobs about the city and concluded by saying that if he was given one more chance he would abstain from liquor during the rest of the winter. Judge Prince, with compassion in his heart decided to test the sincerity of the man, and after fining him $10 suspended execution of the judgment for a year.

William Murphy, alias Frank White, a sharper from New Haven, was chased through the street and captured by Policeman Frank Lenihan some weeks ago. Murphy endeavored to "pull" a fraudulent scheme on the Nichols & Harris company here. He or some one representing the concern he pretended to be employed by, obtained an order for some advertising in a journal represented to be issued in the interests of war veterans. Murphy presented the order for payment, when it was disclosed that the amount had been raised. The firm would not pay the bill and it was then disclosed that Murphy was an imposter. He was wanted also in New Haven, so the authorities here allowed New Haven to take him, with the understanding that he should appear here when he was wanted. That time came today. The evidence against Murphy in this city, is not so strong that his conviction could be assured beyond doubt. Whether a jury would convict him was in doubt. So the complaint here was nolled on motion of the prosecutor on terms, the terms being that Murphy should pay the court here $100.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, who is on his vacation of two weeks, returned to his home on Howard street, this morning, after having visited his son, C. Harold Pinney, a student at Harvard.

The funeral of Rebecca West, the widow of James L. Rogers, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Rogers' daughter, Mrs. Mary R. Gardner, 13 Blackhall street. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Louis Kaslin of 33 Belden street, and Mrs. Eric Swanson, and infant son, 11 Grand street, returned to their homes today, having been under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Samuel Rinarski has sold a house and lot on Shapley street to Archibald S. MacFarlane.

An automobile operated by Mrs. William Gardner, of Mystic, and a commercial truck, owned by the Arrow Inn, Mystic, and operated by Forest R. Baker, Willetts avenue, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of State and Main streets. The pleasure car was slightly damaged.

Royal Cady, of Somers, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Thomas Cady, charged with failing to obey a signal. Cady furnished a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Cady approached the traffic officer at the corner of Bank and Howard street, and as a result of failing to heed the officer's signal collided with another machine.

An automobile owned and operated by David Silverman, a bellman at the Crocker House, and a car owned and driven by Benjamin Sargent, 15 Grand street, collided late last night, corner of Hempstead and Broad streets. Both cars were damaged, but none of the occupants sustained injury more serious than bruises.

The fire department was called upon this forenoon to quell fires in chimneys, the burning soot having been ignited and threatened to cause serious damage. One of the fires was at the residence, 836 Ocean avenue, formerly owned by Mrs. Beatrice Mansfield, now owned by John K. Foran. A still alarm caused the Pequot close company to respond. The fire was extinguished with chemicals and without damage of consequence. The second fire was at the residence, 276 Main street, owned by Daniel Donovan. Thomas Hose company responded to a still alarm and chemicals sufficed to subdue the fire, before damage of any account resulted.

A 350-gallon pumper, the output of the Seagrave Fire Apparatus company, was demonstrated from the municipal pier this afternon by Howard Ensign, who has demonstrated several of the pieces of fire apparatus now used by the city. The demonstration was witnessed by City Manager William A. Holt, Chief Charles Rose and George H. Watters, superintendent of the water and sewer department. The city is contemplating the purchase of a new pumper.

Alba Stevens, 89, died Tuesday morning at the hom eof Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Clark, where he had lived since the death of his wife, a few years ago. The funeral was held Friday at the Clark home.

The many friends of Edwin Ideler are pleased to learn of his recent debut, which was made at Acolian hall, in New York, Monday, October 20th. The critic of the New York Herald-Tribune said:

"Mr. Ideler, in playing the Vieuxtemps concerto, displayed a tone of most commendable quality and smoothness, and unlabored technical agility, able to cope with all the difficulties Vieuxtemps offered. He gave the slow, rather dreamy passages, in the Bax work considerable warmth, while Harry Kaufman fared well, in the piano duet. A Corelli sonata and various shorter pieces closed a well-attend concert."

Mr. and Mrs. Ideler, while in Canterbury, last summer, were guests of Mrs. Ideler's cousin, Mrs. James Lathrop. During that time Mr. Ideler played at the services at the Congregational church at the Green several Sundays, Miss Elsie Hawes, acting as his accompanist. It is with pleasure now, that local friends learn of his success in one of the leading music centers of the world, New York.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an established creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Well known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

STORING VITAMINS

The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Scott's Emulsion

is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.

Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

To an Old Broom

Many a mile we've waltzed around,
You and I, when you were sound.
Once you were clean and strong and new,
But now, work's got the best of you.

I've worn you out on stair and hall—
The path that skirts the garden wall
The kitchen oil-cloth, thrice a day,
Madly sweeping crumbs away.

From all the world they bring it in,
Dust and dirt, and grief and sin;
And you and I, in valient fight,
Have swept it out from dawn till night.

In foreign countries, bride and groom,
In marriage met, must hop the broom.
Such might have been my wedding day
I've worn so many brooms away.

When the Woods Turn Brown

How will it be when the roses fade
Out of the garden and out of the glade?
When the fresh pink bloom of the sweet brier wild
That leans from the dell like the cheek of a child,
Is changed for dry bips on a thorny braid?
Then scarlet and carmin the groves will flush.

How will it be when the autumn flowers
Wither away from their leafless bowers:
When sunflower and star flower and golden rod
Glimmer no more from the frosted sod:
And hillside nooks are empty and cold:
Then the forest tops will be gay with gold.

How will it be when the woods turn brown.
Their gold and their crimson all heaped down,
And crumbled to dust? Oh, then, as we lay
Our ear to earth's lips, we shall hear her say,
"In the dark I am seeking new gems for my crown"
We will dream of green leaves when the woodsturn brown.

ENDORSES ROLL CALL

Dear Sisters, and Editor of the Corner: Will answer present to my name, and will say I am proud to be enrolled among such a large membership which has appeared in our columns from time to time. I think the roll call a fine idea, although I have not been punctual in answering to my name. Have had a very enjoyable summer, and were I to describe all the trips I have taken I fear the editor would get weary and dispose of my letter. So will just refer to one, which I took this fall, over the hills and down the valleys, on my way to Stafford fair together with Bumble Bee and her family of bees. Although the day was quite cool, yet the little bee kept humming and was lively as could be. Such wonderful scenery as met our gaze, as we rode along, showing the wonderful works of our Creator on all sides of us. On arriving we met friends who made the day very pleasant and one long to be remembered by us all.

Esmeralda: Glad to hear from you. Have tried your recipe for dumplings and it is fine. Come and see me.

Golden Glow: Hope to see you some time.

Have just been invited to take a ride so will close my letter and hope to meet all the sisters at Buckingham Memorial in November.

Success for the Corner.

A CHAT FROM GOLDEN ROD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Some time has passed since I claimed a corner in the Social Corner page.

I saw in last week's Bulletin some one else had taken the name of Golden Rod. I am wondering if she has taken another name. I hope so as I am afraid there will be some confusion, knowing who is who, as I have been a member since April 29, 1916 and have written my name in many of the sisters' books.

Brownie: Did any one tell you about my calling on you when you were in New York? Was staying at Eastern Point so we took a drive over.

Crimson Rambler: Do you remember me? It is a long time since I saw you.

Lucy Acorn: Have often thought of you. Wonder if I pass your house is going to New London. Would like to know what your name is now as you have a new name since I was at your house.

Bluebird: Will see you soon. I wish the sisters would send in a few way to can citron. Also send some good salad recipes.

GOLDEN ROD.

GRATEFUL FOR REMEMBRANCES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is such a long, long time since I have been with you and I've been hearing about the delightful times the Corner has been having, and here I've missed all. So disappointed I couldn't have seen all at Hillside for the September picnic, but hope I shall be enjoying better health next year so we can all be together. Now I want to thank the sisters who were so kind as to remember me in my illness, with cards, letters and sunshine baskets. I've been so cheered and encouraged and I'm looking forward to thanking you all personally. I've sat up a little while yesterday and today and have made out to write this letter, the first I've written in almost a month since I was taken sick.

Hope Cobweb and Conewah: Can't begin to tell you how I enjoyed your sunshine.

Whirlwind: Received your card and regret that I could not assist you on the 8th. Was living on "filled" water and pills about that time. They tell me you are an admirable hostess.

Well, winter has given us the high sign of its approach and how fast it is coming! But personally I like winter as it seems to bring folks into closer touch in their search for amusement and companionship, church suppers, card parties, and especially our Social Corner gatherings.

Well, I will answer to the roll call and say present and wish I knew all the owners of those names.

With the increase in membership about every week, I can see where the Social Corner will make its mark. Well, dear sisters, my nurse, who happens to be Sis Hopkins husband is in excellent training and is a splendid cook so I am having splendid care and am not worrying. Now I must close, hoping to be with you soon. Best wishes, good health to all.

SIS HOPKINS.

TELLS OF OLD WRITERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank all who remembered me on my birthday. They are K. Doolittle, Whirlwind, Remember Me, Foxglove, Balsam Fir, Black Eyed Susie, Theoda, and Silver Locks.

Wildflower: Your gift was fully appreciated. Many Thanks.

Betsy Bobbet: You inquire for one of our first writers. Do you remember a few years ago that a short story appeared in The Bulletin every Saturday signed An Idler? If so, you know it was Hannah Homespun of our Corner. Her real name was Miss Alice Goodwin of Norwich. She passed away several years ago.

Bee: You once inquired for one of our first writers, Billie. She lost her husband and spends her winters in New Haven. She has been sick the past summer. She still keeps her home in Stonington where she spends the summers.

Whirlwind: You had lovely weather to celebrate the 17th as well as myself the 13th, I had a nice time for three days in succession. An old friend and neighbor when I lived on a farm was my guest.

Perhaps I am taking too much liberty in answering questions the sisters ask, but am just doing as I wish to be done by.

California Poppy: Long years ago I called on your mother when visiting at the Hoxie Brown farm. You had a brother Charlie, a sister Mattie. They died near together and as is what your mother composed and put in the paper. "Jesus took our darling Charlie on our last Thanksgiving morn. Little Mattie left us came on the day that Christ was born. With no little ones to cheer us, how our hearts with grief are riven. But our precious Saviour is near us and we'll meet them both in Heaven."

Would like very much to meet you and trust you will come to our meetings at the Buckingham. I met your husband once at Coventry lake.

Best wishes from

COOKIE RECIPE WANTED

Dear Social Corner: I noticed the Social Corner page was not very full this last week so will try to help out a bit. I wish the sister that made the lovely cookies with white frosting and cocoanut on top of them would send in the recipe. They were on the table at North Windham hall. It would be hard to say which dinner was best, North Windham or the one at Willimantic, as each was all one could wish for.

I have a good man sugar bags and will mention some of the things I use them for. I make sash curtains for kitchen and bed rooms, they launder so easily. They make good dish wipers and cut some in four pieces and hem them; they make good face cloths they are so soft. They also make good cool summer underwear, and good milk and jelly strainers. Take two bags, stitch together selvedges, flat hem and feather stitch hem with red outline thread and it makes a nice cover for dining table that is kept set with dishes all the time.

It seems as if foliage was never so pretty as now. As I have got so I dread cold winters I would much rather see the leaves opening than dropping off. But we have to have the bitter with the sweet. I will say good bye till we meet again.

DOUBLE FUCHIA.

SIFTING GRAPES FOR GRAPE JUICE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I've got so I wait a long time before writing to the Corner. Every week I mean to write but it seems things keep coming so thick and fast I begin to feel I cannot accomplish as much as I used too. I keep busy these fall days with cleaning, canning, and company three big C's and going to club meetings and so forth. Seems so my time is more than full and I must confess those dreadful stockings are not mended this week yet, but they will be before tomorrow night. I always take time to read the letters every Saturday morning and enjoy them too. I thought sure that Bug and I would be at the October meeting at the Buckingham but at the last minute she did not feel able to go. I was very much disappointed. She told me to go but I hate to start off now and hope she will be back in time and feel able to go to the November meeting.

We never hear from some of the sisters up this way. There is nexie, Blue Bird, Grand Juror and Mrs. Jack and others. Wish they would take time and write a line. And there is Free Air also. I suppose she is busy driving that new car. Rural Aunty is faithful in spite of her many troubles and much sickness and she is always cheerful and looks on the bright side of things. It would be well for lots of us if we could follow her example.

They are working on the road by our house getting ready to put in a cement road and there is much noise during the day. I like to watch them. Such wonderful, powerful machinery as they have to do things nowadays and it takes smart men to run them too. Surely we are improving with age.

Now I want to tell you how I made grape jam. You know how we all dislike to put our hands in the grapes to sift them after being cooked. Well I just took my fiery sister which looks like a quart measure and is to be had in the ten cent store, filled it half full of the stewed grapes and worked it the same as if I was sifting flour and lo and behold it was all done in a few minutes and no stained hands. I think it would work with lots of small fruits which we want to sift for jam or jell.

I have my plants all in that I want for the winter and they look fine. Every year I say I won't have so many to care for and then I hate to see them go, so in they come. Our church is to have a three night bazar the first week in December and I have potted 21 little slips of a flowering begonia to have for sale. We have had a bazar for two years and I have done the same thing and they sold readily for ten cents which is clear gain. It only makes a little work for me but I don't mind that.

The weather is still fine. I sat out doors a long time yesterday on the south side of the house.

Best wishes to all as ever

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

OUR SOCIAL CORNER

Dear Social Corner Members: It certainly seems good to see the Corner page filled with such nice letters each week. Always something for each member and also for those that are not but are interested readers.

You can scarcely go any where without meeting some of the members. They truly are a happy go lucky crowd to meet also to correspond with. Those living in the country have a rural delivery, those in the city letter carriers to bring their mail which makes it handy to get our letters. Whether they bring you all the same to them. As some of our sisters live in Maine, California, and in several of the states nearer us, May B you would enjoy corresponding with them. We also have letters from Florida the sisters writing us while visiting there. If you are A Stranger in the City, and are Lonesome, come to one of our Social Corner gatherings. You will soon forget your loneliness and be all Smiles when A Social Corner Sister greets you with Love and Friendship and they are not Slow in doing it. It is the Truth we have a Busy Body and a Butt In who have been Foxy enough to Budge in. We Don't Worry over it any. It just show their Ignorance. We have Charity and Patience for all, Eveready to welcome A New Comer, and there is always room for one More. Sometimes we have a Whirlwind while we are partaking of one of our dinners of baked Beans (Kentucky Wonder's) and Johnny Cakes Uno and Ino it would take more than that to prevent our eating so we just watch for the Sunshine to come again which it soon does. Guess you will all be glad we have such a Social Corner and if you will join our numbers we will try and make it Worth While to you, if you will Bee True to it.

BALD HILL

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I thought I would write and help fill the page as it was not filled last week. This has been a nice day for Club No. 7's meeting at Lebanon. The scenery is beautiful all through the country as there has been no rain to spoil the lovely colors of the foliage.

How many of the sisters have visited Bald Hill in the town of Union? To those who have not I will say that it is a fine trip to take. On Oct. 12 I had the pleasure of going up there.

We left home about 10:30. Going to Stafford Springs over fine roads. From there to Union green they are not as good but we had no trouble. We were told Bald Hill was about two miles from there. At the entrance to the grounds is a mail box with the name of the camp on it. The road up the hill looks like a cart path. We found several automobile parties there. Some were eating their lunch when we arrived and others came before we left. The view from the tower is grand. The Tip Top house on Mt. Tom is plainly seen also the White mountains in the distance. Looking toward the south on a clear day on can see Long Island sound, the white sails of the boats and at night the lights along the shore.

Mrs. Lawson who owns the camp stays there eight or nine months of the year. She kindly showed us her souvenirs brought from foreign lands. She has a telephone and a radio. The tower is a station for locating forest fires. It is all very interesting and a trip not soon forgotten. Perhaps some of the Social Corner sisters have been there and can tell us more about it. Any one wishing to visit Bald Hill should do so before Nov. 15 as it will be closed to visitors after that date during the winter. We met people from Putnam, Norwich, New Haven, Hartford and Willimantic. I was wondering if there were any members of the Social Corner present. I think it would be fine to have a button or pin so we would know "who is who" when we meet. I was glad to hear from Betsy Bobbett once more. I, too, think the brothers should be allowed a place in the Corner if they wish to come.

Ma of Greene Gables: We miss you. I am sorry to see so many of our number have passed on.

Kitty Lou: What a lot of superstitions you must know of. They are very interesting. I hope to be able to meet with you some time soon.

Best wishes to one and all.

PLANS TO ATTEND MEETINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I have appreciated the roll call and the quick responses of the sisters. It speaks very well for the interest manifested. I am still living in the Rose of New England. My patient is doing nicely. I was able to attend the gathering at Ocean Beach. I enjoyed a sail with Edna Marie and friends. Edna Marie invited me to have lunch with her and I intend to attend some of the gatherings at Buckingham Memorial.

Auntie No. 1: I was so glad to hear that you and unele are better.

Sweet William: I did enjoy my week end visit with you so much. Your youngest certainly has grown since I saw her last. Your older girl doesn't look like she did when she took a nap on Sister Ready's woodbox.

With best wishes to all I remain as ever

BON AMI.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Corner Editor: Having been a reader of the Social Corner page for a long time and receiving many benefits from it, I am now asking for the privilege of becoming a member. Have never attended a Corner gathering yet but hope to soon and surprise some people I know. I hope Zany will entertain us sometime at such a picnic as was written about.

If this letter reaches the Corner page I hope to do much better with the next one. For my pen name I am taking

AZILE.

PREVIOUSLY DISCUSSED AND SETTLED

Dear Corner Friends: It is with real grief that we note the loss of our sister Keturah, Mrs. Margaret Larrow. It is such a short time since we had such a pleasant visit with her at one of our picnics. She was always so bright and full of life she easily made friends and retained that friendship. This is the eleventh loss the Corner has had this year.

I see by the letters that some of the more recent writers are agitating a question that has been previously discussed and settled, that of having a pin or button for identification. That was discussed through letters in the Corner and the subject was dropped when our late editor expressed his mind in not sanctioning or approving of that public display and his decision met our approval as we had perfect confidence and due respect for what seemed to him to be the wisest and very best thing, under all circumstances to do. If I wasn't so many miles from my papers I would copy that final decision. There was no objection to the little yellow bow or badge which we wear at our gatherings and if one faithfully attends those gatherings they will be able to recognize on sight most every sister that does appear in public. There are some writers that still enjoy the mystery of having us wonder Who is Who and still others that are not able to meet with us.

Dom Pedro: I called on you one day and was sorry not to see you but so glad you were able to get out again. It must have been a treat to meet at Buckingham again.

Best wishes for the success of the Corner and all.

NATURE DRESSING AS IF FOR PARTY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I hope you are all enjoying this delightful October weather.

As usual I am shut up in my room on the northside of the house, but still I enjoy the beautiful sunshine and the bright blue skies although I get only sidewise glimpses of the street. The scenery is changing every day now and really it seems as if it is more beautiful each day. A large maple tree which is visible from my window really seems like a huge bouquet. Such lovely shades of scarlet and gold! An elm tree nearby, shows a dull gold color, and is changing very gradually.

The foliage of the shrubbery along the bank of the Yantic river seems to display as great a variety of colors as the old fashioned "hit or miss" having a party, and putting on her gayest clothing.

Wouldn't it be a pretty idea to say that the red leaves are blushing because they were so green in the spring? It is a good time to study the book of nature while she is turning the leaves for us.

Pretty soon the leaves will all turn brown, and come drifting down to fertilize the earth for another season. Perhaps you have read J. G. Hilland's Bitter Sweet, and will remember these few appropriate lines.

"Earth is a sepulchure of flowers,
Whose vitalizing mold
In boundless transmutation towers
In green and gold."

I suppose most of the sisters are canning preserving and pickling but as I am not a housekeeper I find various other interesting things to do.

I wonder if any of the sisters are in the habit of making cliplines for filling sofa pillows. I have been using all my small pieces that way, you just clip the piece to average an inch square, only they are in all sorts of shapes but not larger than an inch square would be. The effect is a soft down pillow, and very satisfactory.

Kindest regards to all the sisters.

PALMLEAF.

XMAS TREES AND DECORATIONS

Dear Corner Sisters: The origin of the Christmas tree, so most authorities declare, is so obscure it is hard to say just when this charming custom began. Historically the Christmas tree can be traced back only to the sixteenth century.

A legendary bestows the honor upon Martin Luther. One Christmas eve, traveling alone over the snow covered country, the sky with its thousands of glittering stars made such a deep impression upon the reformer that after arriving at home he tried to explain it to his wife and children. An idea suggested itself to him. He went into the garden, cut a little fir tree, dragged it into the nursery, put some candles on its branches and lighted them. The French have their legend as well. In a romance of the thirteenth century the hero finds a gigantic tree whose branches are covered with burning candles, some standing erect, others upside down, and on the top the vision of a child, with a halo around his curly head. The knight asked the pope for an explanation. He declared that the tree undoubtedly represented mankind, the child the Savior, and the candles stood for all the inhabitants in the world, good and bad.

To me a Christmas tree seems one of the most innocent and, when one considers what it stands for, really uplifting things in the world, and yet there is a pitiful and in some respects really harmful side to this traffic in evergreens. Of late the Christmas demands have been so great, it is said by persons in a position to know whereof they speak, that large sections of the country are rapidly becoming denuded of trees. New England hillsides are growing bleak and bare and in some cases springs and brooks are drying because they are no longer sheltered by the kindly spruces at whose roots they took their rise. Trees that are ten or even twenty years growing are ruthlessly chopped down to give children delight for a day or two, perhaps a week at most, and then they are thrown out for the ashman to cast away.

It seems a pity, but we must have our Christmas trees until some one invents an artificial tree that will be as cheap as the evergreen. I am afraid the country fields and hills will have to suffer at the expense of the town. No little Mexican boy or girl ever thinks of a Christmas tree or hanging up her stocking. They have something more interesting to them. Three or four days before Christmas stands spring up about the Alameda or open park without which no Mexican village is complete. All about these shops are hung the pinatas, which take the place of Christmas stockings. These are apparently great dolls two or three feet tall, dressed in tissue paper with paper mache faces and dangling legs and arms. In reality their floating paper garments conceal earthen jars for holding the candies.

Some times these pinatas are in the form of angels, sometimes fairies or they represent some person prominent in Mexico.

And still Christmas isn't Christmas without a turkey or goose; so also is it the same with the Christmas tree.

So long as there are children in holiday season, and the problem of devising novel decorations has already become a perpexing one.

This year, happily, makers of paper goods have come to the rescue with new suggestions in gift wrappings and crepe tissue which offer numberless possibilities and cannot fail to delight the little folk as well as children of larger growth.

You can get paper that is printed all over with figures of Santa Claus, about eight inches in height. These jolly little saints, white bearded and rotund, can be mounted on thin bristol board and suspended singly from the ends of branches in place of the glass balls, which, though brilliant and ornamental, have long ceased to be a novelty.

You may take two figures, place them back to back with the art paste which comes especially for such work, applying it only to the edges, and leaving an opening at the top through which to slip one of the miniature electric lights manufactured for Christmas tree illumination. A dozen or more of these most unusual little "lanterns" can be arranged among the branches with good effect.

There are Santa Claus heads which can be used for decorating, cornucopias candy bags, etc., or they may be strung on red string to form festoons or should you wish the strings to be invisible use black thread as that against the dark foliage of the tree is not noticeable. Still more brilliant are festoons of butterflies, cut from a second style of crepe paper, mounted on heavy wrapping paper and touched up with silver and gold flitters, which produce a dazzling effect beneath the artificial lights, on the tips of the principal branches mount single butterflies of the largest size, with their wings bent naturally to look as though they had just alighted. Another attractive paper is decorated with dancing Teddy bears, now one of the permanent institutions of Toyland. The bears can be cut out and used in the same manned as the Santa Claus figures, or may be quaintly dressed in tissue costumes as farmer boys and sunbonnet girls in fun—clown garb, the doublet and belled cap of the jester, sailor suits, or ballet skirts. Thus arrayed, they make attractive little favors, and may be removed from the tree and distributed at the close of the festivities.

Scarlet paper poinsettias hardly to be told from the real blossoms so perfect are they in every detail, form gorgeous tree decorations, and can be easily and rapidly made. A complete novelty is an "autumn tree" prepared as follows. Make a trunk of the length of an old stovepipe, fastened firmly upright in a shallow wooden box, partly filled with old junk or flatirons to prevent from tipping over. Cover the box with coarsely fringed green tissue or crepe paper "grass," and the pipe crumpled brown tissue paper to represent bark. Wedged into the top of the pipe and radiating in all directions arrange natural tree branches, to which have been affixed a profusion of bright hued leaves cut from "autumn leaf" crepe. For the sake of contrast wrap the gifts in dark green tissue naper and carry red and green garlands from the apex of the tree to the corner of the room. In addition to the plain tissue for wrapping Christmas gifts, a number of fancy papers are now obtainable including one printed with holly sprays. The line of so called "gift wrappings" includes many novel little devices with which an endless variety of dainty and unusual effects can be produced. An entirely new idea is adhesive ribbon, a narrow gummed ribbon of paper, put up in rolls of twenty-five yards each. It comes in the holly colors, scarlet, green and gold and is much cheaper than silk and satin ribbons. Besides being cheaper it is much easier to apply and another reason I like to use it there is no possibility of its slipping out of place before the gift reaches its destination. The joinings I cover with fancy gummed seals bearing various devices such as holly sprays and Santa Claus heads. Initial seals can be had in red and gold and I think it a pretty idea to secure each wrapper with a seal bearing the initial of the sender. As a finishing touch add a Christmas tag suspended with narrow ribbon and in case the package is likely to be received before December 1st, it may be decorated in addition with an ornamental label bearing in letters of gold thewords, "Please do not open until Christmas."

Small figures and designs, such as flowers, butterflies, autumn leaves, Santa Claus and Teddy bear heads, holly or mistletoe sprays on Christmas bells can be cut from decorated paper and napkins and pasted to Tissue holly and mistletoe are easily made, and small sprays are effective attached to one corner of box or bundle with Santa Claus seals. A few touches of bronze paint and a scattering of silver flitters will add to the frosty glitter appropriate to the season.

Paper flowers are also very pretty indeed for decorating the Christmas tree as they give it a gay, tropical appearance, indescribably charming.

Poppies are red and very noticeable. Tulips are certainly very attractive, roses are beautiful and when they are crystalized they are certainly shiny and lustrous in the evening. You can also make them with a stem that is waterproof and they can be placed in vases and put around the tree with green which gives such a vivid contrast that they are wonderfully good looking.

THE BLACK SUPERSTITION

Dear Members of the Corner: One of us wrote about supersitutions last week and it started my memory to thinking of the old time superstition. If a black cat crosses your path, trouble is coming for boy.

One day in our car we were following the state highway that led us for some time through the woods, when suddenly a black cat crossed the road in front of us. The cat seemed to begin its journey on one side of the road and to vanish entirely on the other side of the road. There was not a house or a farm anywhere or any indication of habitation by human beings though the cat was the common house cat.

I loked all around and every where I could see nothing but woods stretching out in every direction.

Where did that cat come from, and where did it go to!

Trouble did come to us but nothing serious. After a mile or more of riding after passing the black cat we made a wrong turn and lost our way for quite a while. If we had not lost our way I would never have remembered the cat.

I have read that vibrations are a part of our lives. For instance did you ever feel a nearness and nervously look around to find yourself looking into a pair of eyes staring straigh into yours?

Charlotte's Great Grandmother: Greetings and congratulations.

Sister and Brother: We'll be looking for you. Try it again.

Nellie: Where art thou?

Ruth: In your letter you did not advise me about the Norwich Bulletin.

Fannie: How are you? Come again.

One of the Social Corner members gave a prune custard pie recipe in the October 4th Social Corner that is a book to us for it is always a success and can be baked in individual cups without the time and trouble of making pie crust. It has become one of our favorite desserts.

That black cat by the way, had possibly jumped from a passing campers automobile, as cats do not like to ride, but campers often take their pets along with them.

CHOOSING THE CHRISTMAS TOYS

Dear Sorner Beaders: It seems a little early to be writing about Christmas but all the world is keeping Christmas with the children. From north to south, from east to west. Child eyes will open on Christmas morning upon a fresh, miraculous supply of toys, the play stuff of childhood. But there are two kinds that will stand beneath the fragrant Christmas trees and bulge from the tops of yawning little stockings. Perhaps you have never discriminated between them; perhaps you have never realized that there are two classes of toys—the toys of today and the toys of tomorrow.

That self-running complete toy locomotive is a toy of today. It is mechanical, dead bit of play stuff. All a child needs to do to make it run is to wind it, and, presto! the thing plays through its own volition and the child may only stand by and watch it. He has no part in its activity. Today he will be interested in watching the little locomotive steam in its uncanny, mechanical fashion around the room, asking no assistance from child hands. Did you ever think that tomorrow, your child will desert this unworthy gift of Santa Claus for the crude little train of cars which he makes himself from empty boxes and spools and strings.

There is another gift that awaits neath his Christmas tree—to toy of tomorrow. Some old fashioned-person sent it to your boy, someone who has gone back with a divine farsightedness, to his own childhood, remembering the plays he loved to play and the playthings he liked long ago This toy of tomorrow is a sturdy two wheeled cart unbreakable and full of delightful possibilities. It can't play alone; though as the toy locomotive did by winding up and electricity. It cannot do a thing without your boy's help, but as soon as he sees it his play spirit is fired with enthusiasm, every nerve every muscle in the child's body tingles and tightens. The cart means pushing and pulling, loading and unloading, playing horse, fireman, expressman, milkman, cabby and all the other delectable plays of childhood. It means keeping your child busy and happy, and it means, too, the developing the child's body. Unlike the mechanical locomotive, our toy today this other toy will interest, educate and develop your child tomorrow and the next day and for a year of tomorrow.

Let us, then, select the children's toys with exceeding care this Christmas, choosing only those toys which educate and develop.

It would seem as if the agents of Santa Claus had formed a trust for manufacture of toys of today. The average toy which we see displayed upon the counters of the toy shop does all the playing for the child. The tiny yacht has its own motor, by means of which it churs about the bath tub sea. The toy automobile wants only to be wound to dash around a small race track or connected with the electricity. The doll is dressed in the costume of a lady of Paris boulevards; she bears no resemblance to her gingham clad, little girl mother. The boy, needs toys which give him an opportunity to be an animal, to play out of doors in a noisy, healthy, muscular fashion. His toys should be selected having in mind their effect upon his physical development. He needs a large, strong cart an unbreakable wheelbarrow. A set of gardening tools and a snow-shovel that fits his size, and the best procurable sled and skates. For the boy who is interested in mechanics and has noted the occupation of the engineer, the architect, the builder, whose construction work is going on near his home would be interested in an mechanical appliance that had a pully, a drill, a derrick, a baggage truck, drawbridge used in connection with a sand box or an out of door sand pile would make a toy wonderfully entertaining and educational.

CORN BREAD AND PANNED SHAVED BEEF

Dear Members of the Social Corner: Do you know that practically all uses of corn meal require the meal to be scalded first? When sufficiently hot water is poured into the meal to form a thick pastelike substance, the double cooking removes from that the indigestible quality which many find in cornmeal.

Corn Bread: 2 tablespoons corn meal scalded. Then place one egg, 2-3 cup sweet milk, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 table spoon baking powder with the scalded corn meal. Put together in order given and beat well after adding each ingredient. Use heaping dry measure and your corn bread will be as light as cake.

Panned Shaved Beef: Toast four or six slices of bread, pour hot water over them and let stand a minute until soft.

Put a piece of butted size of an egg in the spider and stir in 1 tablespoon of flour and when lumps are dissolved stir in one cup of top milk, 1 egg (do not beat) and one half cup of picked up shaved beef. Put this on the toast, and while hot, it makes an excellent breakfast dish.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

APPROVES TWO SUGGESTIONS

Social Cornerites: There's nothing of interest for me to write about, but as I do not want to be forgotten, I will send a few lines to you. One of the sisters suggested a list of names of those sisters who have "passed on" and I hope it will meet with the aproval of all Social Cornerites and if the list is printed I hope the real name as well as pen name will be given.

Another sister wanted those who had used a number of names to tell the names they had used and discarded so I will tell her that I have been Mrs. Suze and Sunny Dick but hereafter I will be Ormandine.

Franke Lynn: A few weeks ago I was motoring with friends and as we drove through Franklin to Lebanon, I wondered if I was near you? As we passed through Norwich Town, Bean Hill, Yantic and Franklin it brought memories of my girlhood and the happy days I spent in that vicinity. I hope you are steadily improving and will soon [illegible] to get about out of doors.

Crimson Rambler: [illegible] forgot ten you but this is the first chance I have had to write a letter in weeks. I was so glad to learn that Dom Pedro was able to visit in Norwich. Have been much interested in her and its good to know she is in better health.

I spent the afternoon with Jack's Wife recently and she was making a scarf from a muff the fur was Persian Lamb) and when she had got the lining etc. separated from the fur she ripped the piece of fur through the center and that made two long narrow strips. She sewed two ends together making one long strip. She did not get it finished that day but as far as she had gone it was aqueous. She had not decided whether she should put in an interlining and have the scarf flat and wide, or sew the two edges together and have a narrow one of the choker style, but whatever she does it will be all right for that is the way Jack's Wife does her work, she always seems to have good luck with her "little economies" particularly with saving food. One of her neighbors asked her why she never went to the swill bucket as all the other neighbors did and Jack's Wife said she did not have swill to throw away. Her family ate it all. She uses every scrap of dry bread and cake, even pie, of boiled rice, or oat meal, for muffins, griddle cakes and johnny cakes and every drop of sour milk is saved for the same. If anyone wants to know the recipes for above ask Jack's Wife. They all taste pretty good anyway. I have eaten them so I know.

Now perhaps somebody will say, 'what does she use potato parings for." She burns those and that leaves nothing for the swill bucket.

J. E. T.: You are lucky if you can cast aside silk stockings when they are good enough for sleeve linings. I can't use mine for any thing 'cause I haven't any. I really do not care for them. I like lisle stockings better. Now you all know how old I am.

ORMANDINE

READY TO GIVE SHUT-INS RIDES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I guess it is about time I wrote again and let you all know I am still among the living. And O, how I enjoy these beautiful days. Surely autumn is the prettiest time of the year. Have any of the sisters gone up on a high hill and just stood for a few minutes and looked around? It is worth going a long way for, and even though we have lots of trials and troubles in our lifetime one can say, "It is a beautiful world after all." Thank our Heavenly Father for it.

This past month as I have been riding around the country seeing different places I have wished there was some one I could share my joy with as my heart gets just too full at times when I see what wonderful things God does for us all. So if any of the sisters that are shut-ins could let me know before it gets too cold, Mr. Lonesome and I will be glad to take you.

Merry Widow: Was up in your town last Sunday. We go up there quite often as I have a baby boy buried in E. C.. You perhaps know I lived near there for four years and was a member of the M. E. church in your town so you know a great many of my friends.

Daisy Dean: Was like a fish out of water the other night, till I met the dish pan. Ha. Ha.

Rosy Posy: Been intending to call but something always comes up to prevent me, but am living in hopes of eating some of those walnuts.

Mary Ouasta: Sorry I was not home when you were down this way. Please try again.

Avon: Was very much pleased to see you the other evening. Hope you enjoyed yourself as much as I did.

Twice Twenty: You certainly have a beautiful tree in your yard. We admired it Sunday when we passed by.

Kentucky Wonder: Thanks for making the evening long to be remembered. Hope to meet with you again soon.

I think the idea of having some sort of a pin is fine. How good it makes a person feel to go among strangers and recognize a sister. It is a glorious feeling so please let us have one.

Pepper Relish: 12 green sweet peppers, 12 red sweet peppers, 12 onions, 2 cups vinegar, 1 large tablespoon salt. Chop fine cover with hot water let stand 10 minutes, drain, cover with hot water again, bring to a boil drain dry add vinegar and salt, bring to a boil for 15 minutes. Can or bottle while hot. It is fine.

MUCH ENJOYED MOTOR TRIP

Dear Social Corner Friends: I must write and tell you about a delightful ride I enjoyed two weeks ago Sunday morning my daughter-in-law came after me and carried me to her home and while there I attended church in Springfield (by radio). After dinner was eaten my son and his wife and my daughter and I all started out for Columbia lake, which we reached in due time. But as it was rather cool and quite windy we didn't care to linger long. It must be lovely there in hot weather though. We went over Chestnut hill and its "some road." I should not want to try walking over it any way.

We drove through Columbia and there we saw some fringed gentian growing beside the road. I had not seen any for nearly 20 years. My son and his wife gathered some of the blossoms for me and I have enjoyed looking at them and have two or three of them now. Over in Hebron we saw the most beautiful spice bush with its red berries and of course I had to have some of that to keep though the winter and every time I look at the red berries I shall think of the way they looked beside the road like little trees loaded with red berries. I noticed a house near Hebron which had evidently been decorated with yellow crepe paper. I wondered if it was for a Social Corner meeting?

We drove over to Willimantic then to Hampton and Brooklyn and then over the road that leads past Lapsley's orchard and there I saw the trees heavily laden with the red apples and as far as one could see were the red apples amongst the green leaves and some of the branches were bent nearly to the ground with their load. [illegible] son did [illegible] got the [illegible] but no apples.

Another [illegible] which was [illegible] Daniels [illegible] evidently [illegible] we were quite near [illegible] chance to look at it as it is bounded [illegible] the fence and away [illegible] Then after [illegible] house and [illegible] ended.

Seems [illegible] not recognize [illegible] we were [illegible] in Frank [illegible] Willimantic [illegible] nicer than [illegible] which. As I [illegible] ful foliage as the [illegible] ity. Seems to [illegible] more brilliant [illegible] fore. I have [illegible] derful; trips this summer and winter when I am cooped up [illegible] house I shall live over the good times I enjoyed the past summer as I doubt others do. We also have enjoyed nice motor rides during the summer.

Delilah Dear: I presume you have received my letter by [illegible] Ma of Greene Gables. Here is Thou:

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Mrs. Shaw Calls Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a God-Send to Sick Women

Cambridge, Mo.—"I suffered terribly with pains and soreness in my sides. Each month I had to go to bed, and the doctor said to me I simply had to go under an operation before I could get help. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and I told my husband one day to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I took the third dose I felt better. I took it four times a day for two years getting better all the time, and now for four years I don't have any pains. After taking the medicine for two years I had another child—a lovely baby girl now four years old—the life of our home. I do praise this medicine. It is a Godsend to women who suffer with female troubles and especially for pains at the periods. I surely was very bad once, and I know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation."—Mrs. JOSIE M. SHAW, Route No. 1, Cambridge, Maine.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 out of every 100 were benefited by it.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED IRREGULAR

New York, Oct. 24—Stock prices made further progress on the upside today, despite some rather heavy profit-taking in recent favorites and the uncovering of a few more weak spots by bear traders. Buying was encouraged by the optimistic predictions of leaders of the steel industry, gathered here for the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute; the surplus of money revealed in the bank statements, and the gradual lessening of apprehension concerning the outcome of the national election.

Considerable irregularity developed just before the close. A bullish demonstration in the coalers, with Jersey Central jumping 14 points and Lackawanna climbing 3 1-2, was followed by the heavy selling of the rubbers, United States Rubber common and first preferred, and Fisk Rubber first preferred, dropping 1 1-4 to 2 points.

Prices common was run up to a new high at 38 3-4 and United States Cast Iron Pipe was bid up above 116 on active buying for both accounts.

Chief speculative interest in the rails was confined largely to the second grade carriers. New 1924 highs in the rail group were established by Kansas City Southern Colorado & Southern, Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred and Rutland preferred. Lehigh Valley touched 64 2-8, the highest prices in the segregation of the coal properties, and Reading closed more than two points higher at 62 1-8. Other strong spots in this group included Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred, Norfolk & Western and Texas & Pacific.

Resumption of bullish demonstrations in the motors resulted in the Maxwell issues being lifted to a new high price for the year. Nash Motors jumped 3 1-2 points and substantial gains also were recorded by Mack Truck, White Motors, Pierce Arrow preferred and Willys Overland preferred.

Fresh buying developed in the copper shares. American Smelting led that group by moving up to a new peak price for the year at 79 3-8. Subsequent profit taking forced it back about a point from the top. New peak prices also were established by St. Joseph's Lead and International Nickel.

Sugars made partial recovery from recent heaviness, American Sugar Refining, Cuba Cane preferred and Punta Alegre each closing more than a point higher. American Beet Sugar preferred broke through its previous year's low to 68 1-2. Merchandising issues continued to display a firm tone. Manhattan Shirt being one of the new favorites other individual strong spots included Fleischmann, Famous players, United Fruit, American Water Works six per cent. preferred and General American Tank Car, up 1 to 3 points.

Call money ruled unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary, due to the pressue for grain and cotton bills. Wheat exports during the past week totalled 17,700,— bushels, a new high record. Desterling ruled about half a cent at $4.49 and French francs quoted around 5.21 cents.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 24—Prices of curb securities developed an upward trend today, industrials and oils responding to better support in broader trading.

The demand for shares of Gulf Oil, a feature of the trading in that group, carried the price to 64 5-8 for a gain of nearly two points. Standard Oil of Indiana closed a point higher on a heavy turnover. Ohio Oil gained 2 3-8, Prairie Oil & Gas, 1, and South Penn Oil 3. Standard Oil of Ohio showed weakness, losing three points on a small turnover.

Strength of American Light & Traction was one of the features of the public utility group, closing at 140 1-2, for a gain of 2 3-4 points. American Power & Light and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore also were active, but succeeded in scoring only fractional gains.

United Bakeries touched a new high at 12⅜ 1-4, closing at 12⅛ for a gain of one point. Activity among the industrials also being shared by Lehigh Valley Coal. Grennan Bakeries, admitted to trading today, touched 21 1-2 but reacted to 20 1-8.

Radio stocks were firm, Hazeltine leading the group with a gain of 1 1-4 points.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 24—With bond prices fluctuating within extremely narrow limits today, new financing absorbed most of the interest in investment circles.

Negotiations were completed for a $30,000,000 Swedish loan and the bonds maturing in thirty years and bearing 5 1-2 per cent. interest, will be offered for public subscription early next week at a price expected to be slightly below par. The National City Company heads the underwriting syndicate.

Private sale of $20,000,000 Marland Oil Company two year 5 per cent. notes was made through a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan and Company. Proceeds will be used to refund outstanding indebtedness and provide additional working capital.

Arrangements were also completed today for a one year extension of the $10,000,000 Danish stabilization credit granted by the National City bank last year.

Price movements in bonds in stock exchange trading provided few features of interest. Low and medium priced railroad issues attracted the best buying support, with activity centering in "Katy" adjustment 5s, Frisco Liens, Minneapolis and St. Louis Consolidated 5s, Denver and Rio Grande 4s and Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s. Recent activity in Illinois Central bonds was linked with reports that the road soon would market a $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 issue of equipment notes.

Weakness in the sugar bonds persistent today, with Sugar Estate of Oriente 7s dropping 2 points. Other heavy spots were Brooklyn Union Gas 7s of 1929, which lost over 3 points, and Wickwire Spencer Steel 7s.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 24—All grain prices underwent a sharp setback here today, owing more or less to the closing out of big spread trades in wheat between Liverpool and Chicago, and to announcement of the first arrival of new corn here this season. The wheat market here closed heavy, 1 1-8 to 1 3-4c net lower, December 1.41 3-4 to 1.41 1-2 and May 1.46 to 1.46 1-8, with corn 3 1-4 to 3 7-8c down, oats 2 7-8 to 3 1-4c off, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 62 cents decline.

Persistent selling here by a house with foreign connections was a notable feature of the day in the wheat pit. This selling came mostly at times when the buying power was thin and did a good deal to bring about liquidating sales of weakly held lines of wheat. Many standing orders to stop losses at various definite limits were forced into operation, and the market dropped about eleven cents under the recent high point for the December delivery.

Virtually the day's lowest prices were ruling when business ended. A break of about 5 cents in the rye market here had a depressing influence on wheat values.

Corn and oats weakness was chiefly the result of sympathy with wheat.

Provisions were responsive to the downward tait of grain.

PENDLETON HILL

The first coon of the season was captured by Cameron Palmer and his nephew, Llewellyn the early part of the week. Hector, the collie owned by Birdsey E. Palmer has proven himself an excellent coon dog, the best in fact, in these parts. Mr. Palmer has been offered a large sum for Hector.

Mrs. Birdsey E. Palmer is a past master of the art of cooking coon. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer entertained at a coon dinner Thursday evening.

Misses Kittie Palmer and Sarah D. Palmer were callers Friday afternoon at the home of F. Lyman Eggleston in Ashwillet. Mr. Eggleston occupies the William Eggleston homestead during the summer. The brush are cut in the pastures and along the road side. The trees are trimmed. The apple orchard shows good care, and is in excellent bearing condition. A fine yoke of oxen was grazing in a nearby pasture. Altogether there are many evidences of good farming and a good farmer. This place has never presented a better appearance.

Mrs. Nancy Sheffield and son Amos of Westerly attended our church services Sunday morning. Mrs. Sheffield noted the fact that it was sixty two years ago since she attended this church for the first time.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Thompson enteralned at dinner Mrs. Nancy Sheffield and son Amos, and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson all of Westerly. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. John Geer, Will Main and daughter Emma and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Gladfellow spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and were entertained at tea, Miss Frank L. Palmer and Miss Sarah Ryder were afternoon callers.

The ZR-3 was plainly visible to many of the Hill people.

A number have received invitations to the masquerade Hallowe'en frolic.

In spite of many heavy frosts, one can still pick cosmos, calendula, mignonette, asters, sweet allysum, arguleatum and geranium blossoms out of the garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Palmer York and daughters, Clarinda and June of Stonington were callers Saturday afternoon at the Palmer Homestead. They are closing their summer home and returning to New York for the winter.

Mr. York is a famous bank architect, who won by competition the plans for the great federal reserve bank for this district located in New York. The new bank, which is just being completed by the Washington Trust Co., of Westerly was designed by Mr. York. Mr. York's mother was Harriet Clarinda Palmer, a sister, of the late Robert Potter Palmer; and his father was Hiram York a nephew of Miss Ruth York.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, had one of its most largely attended meetings Wednesday evening in Steiner hall when a class of 12 had the third and fourth degrees conferred. Preceding the degree work, supper was served at 6:30 by the feast committee, Mrs. Ivy Peckham, chairman, assisted by Mrs. George Brenn, Mrs. Bunce and Mrs. William Hastedt, with Mrs. Irene Burns, Miss Louise Helm, Miss Grace Schulte and Mrs. Watters as waitresses. About 150 enjoyed the attractive menu which included escalloped oysters, mashed potatoes, cabbage salad, jelly, pickles, rolls, apple pie, cheese and coffee. The decorations were in hallowe'en colors.

The degree work by the officers, the tableaux under direction of Miss Mabel Hagberg and new figures by the drill team made them that part of the evening of unusual interest. The attendance included 56 visitors from Pachaug, Groton, Ledyard, Preston City and Salem granges. The harvest march was admirably carried out under Ralph Marsh and a Pachaug grange member.

Worthy master Arthur W. Avery presided at the business meeting at which an invitation was accepted for Nov. 7 to Stonington grange will put on two numbers for the program.

ODD FELLOWS

Delegates representing thirty-six subordinate bodies attended the annual session of the grand encampment, I. O. O. F., of Connecticut at Bridgeport this week and listened to reports showing a net increase in membership for the year of 129 with a total membership of 7,941 at the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1924.

Grand Patriarch Orville Rector of Bridgeport, who submitted his annual report and presided at the session, remarked in noting the membership increase that twenty-two encampments had shown a gain in membership for the year, eleven showed a loss while three marked time. Attention was called to the loss of members by suspension, which the grand patriarch recommended be considered by a committee on the state of the order. The report gave detail of the official acts of the grand patriarch.

Grand Scribe W. S. Hutchinson of New Haven reported details of the membership gain and loss and noted that there are 7,876 contributing and sixty-five non-contributing membership in all the bodies.

Total assets of subordinate encampments July 1, 1924, was $112,431.36, a net gain of $2,806.83 in assets for the year. Total funds were $93,472.22, investments in regalia, paraphernalia, etc., $18,958.44. Receipts of the grand encampment for the year ending October 1, 1924 were $3,663.92.

Grand Treasurer William J. Bergess reported total receipts and disbursements for the year of $9,242.81, which included a cash balance of $4,446.09 in the last report, increased to $5,606.48 on October 1.

Other reports were by Grand High Priest A. M. Randall, Grand Senior Warden J. S. Austin, Grand Junior Warden Harry W. Tuttle, and Grand Representatives Frank M. Camfield, and William J. Bergess.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

At the business session of the state convention of the Knights of Pythias in New Haven this week it was voted to establish a fund for a home for members of the order and it was tentatively decided to locate the home in Litchfield county where a 100 acre farm is to be purchased for a site.

Another resolution adopted permits all chancellors who were in the chair when called to war to be raised to past chancellors. Another raised the initiation fee from $10 to $25 and another provides that interpretation of the laws of the order when any dispute arises be left to the supreme tribunal instead of to the supreme chancellor. Still another provided that the grand lodges could appropriate money for fraternal and benevolent purposes. All of these measures were recommended at the supreme lodge session and now the grand lodges of the several states are taking a referendum on the proposals.

L. Edwin Jacobs, was re-elected as historian to enable him to complete the work of preparing a history of the order in the state from 1869 to the present time.

A charter was issued for a new lodge to be known as Woodbridge lodge of Salem. This lodge is the 80th in the state.

The next state convention will be in next October in Seymour.

MOOSE

Wednesday evening brought forth considerable excitement to all those who partook in the opening of the Pinochle tournament between Jibboon Lodge No. 1 of New London and the Norwich Lodge No. 950 at the Moose home here.

The invaders arriving at 8 o'clock, inspected the quarters, very much envied the homelike atmosphere that is shown here and thought that the members belonging to the local order were very fortunate in being able to show to any visitor the achievements of hard work, and that of owning their home free and clear.

The tournament started with its usual silence, broken every once in a while by an individual who had achieved success by being able to beat the opposing team by a mere margin, whether it was luck or ability. No one could forecast the results until the last hand was dealt out and then came the exciting finish when it was found that the New London Lodge were just a neck ahead.

On Friday, October 31st, Norwich will invade New London on a return match and prove to those there, that the reason for giving them the victory had been out of true hospitality and they no doubt expect to return to Norwich victors of the tournament.

The score, New London 66,130, Norwich 62,060.

The players for Norwich J. Mehrholz 7290, F. Mehrholz 6815, George Kaplan 6795, R. Krohn 6140; H. Bruckner 6065, H. Swartzburg 5955; J. Landore 5850; P. Carolina 5925; George Seidel 5650; B. Wunderlich 5565.

The players for New London F. Valeno 7785; D. H. Holloway 6895; J. Bush 6735; George H. Moles 6700; C. B. Partridge 6670; Charles Greenleaf 6580; Y. C. Christensen 6565; H. L. Case 6200; F. A. Meyers 6005; E. Davenport 5995.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

The women of Mooseheart Legion met Thursday evening at the Moose Home, Laurel Hill, with a large attendance. Routine business was transacted. Mrs. Retkovski is to have a whist and Hallowe'en social at her home on October 31st and the members have been invited to attend.

Following the business meeting a miscellaneous shower was tendered Mrs. Clarissa Morris in honor of her recent marriage. Refreshments were served and the gathering proved to be very enjoyable for all.

Herd Prefix Name for M. J. Hoxie

"Overready," is the herd prefix name reserved by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America recently for the exclusive use of Myron J. Hoxie, of Lebanon, Connecticut, in registering animals in his heard of pure-bred Holstein-Friesian cattle.

Many breeders now have prefix names recorded for naming their animals. The great advantage to the prefix is that the prefix may become well known. It becomes a trade mark for the animals and whenever observed distinguishes the breeder. Prefix names enable breeders to use all names [illegible] in Holstein nomenclature in their registrations, even those in previous use by other persons, and makes the association of names of animals less difficult.

CUTTING DOWN FATAL ACCIDENTS THROUGH AUTOMOBILES IN STATE

The upward trend of the monthly totals of fatal motor vehicle accidents appears to have yielded to the persistent campaign of education carried on by safety organizations of the state with the co-operation of the state motor vehicle, highway and police departments and local police departments. Statistics of the motor vehicle department show that less fatal accidents were reported for each of the past two months than for the corresponding months of last year.

Whereas people were killed in thirty-two motor vehicle accidents during August, 1923, and 27 during September of that year, there were 25 fatal accidents in August and 20 in September of the present year. Notwithstanding a 20 per cent. increase in the number of automobiles registered in Connecticut not to mention similar increases in adjacent states whose people make frequent use of Connecticut highways, the number of fatal accidents reported up to the first of the present month 190, was only 22 in excess of the total shown on the department records at the same time a year ago.

None of the larger cities had more than two of the fatal accidents which occurred in the past two months. Bridgeport reported two in August and New Haven the same number in September. New Haven Hartford Waterbury and Meriden had one each in August, and Bridgeport, Meriden and New Britain one each in September.

Hartford had more than any other city of 2,251 general accidents which occured in September, its total being 251. New Haven had 244, Bridgeport 201; Waterbury, 136; New Britain, 76; Meriden, 50; and New London 45.

There were 188 automobile accidents reported to the motor vehicle department during the week ended October 18, from the fourteen cities making weekly reports. Bridgeport, with sixteen accidents, had one of the best weeks since the city has been making reports to the department. New Haven led all cities, Hartford was second and Waterbury third. Applying the percentages of late reports, New Haven had approximately fifty-seven accidents, Hartford fifty and Waterbury twenty-nine. The numbers actually reported were: New Haven thirty-eight; Hartford forty five; Waterbury, twenty five.

Reports from other cities were as follows: Meriden, fourteen; New Britain twelve; Stamford eight; Norwalk seven; Norwich six; New London five; Danbury five; Winsted four; Greenwich two; Middletown one.

COMMITTEE REPORT ON SALE IS ACCEPTED

The report of Thomas S. McGinley, appointed as a committee to dispose of the Highland apartments in New London, which was sold on Oct. 13 to Edward L. Broder of Hartford for $136,190.72 was accepted by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in the superior court at New London Friday. The deed of transferral was approved and supplemental judgment of distribution of the proceeds of the sale among the several creditors was entered.

In a separate action the court approved the account of the receiver of the apartments and granted compensation to the receiver and his attorneys.

Judgment by default for failure to plead was entered by Judge Nickerson in three separate actions brought by the Union Bank and Trust Co. against the Soltz Co. and others. The suits arose over note transactions. Five other similar motions went off the list.

In the case of Shay vs. Niantic Menhaden Oil and Guano Co., the bond of the receiver was reduced to $1,000, and the semi-annual statement of the receiver was approved.

Alimony of $80 per month which Linwood Massey, chief petty officer attached to the Submarine Base has been paying to Catherine L. Massey was ordered reduced by Judge Nickerson to $60 per month from Oct. 24 which Massey will pay every two weeks on the fifth and the twelfth of the month from now until the court should order otherwise.

After hearing arguments on a motion to set aside a judgment of nonsuit in the case of Johnson vs. Wheeler, Judge Nickerson took the papers and reserved decision.

The first Monday of December was named as the time limitation on a mortgage foreclosure for $723.63, ordered by the court in the suit brought by the Jewish Agricultural society, Inc., of Colchester, against Solomon Simon, also of that place.

In the foreclosure suit of the Niantic Lumber Co. against Harwood, judgment was entered and the first Tuesday of December named as time limit for redemption.

SALEM FARMER GOES TO COUNTY JAIL

John Czerkots, a farmer of Salem, went to jail Thursday night to work out a fine of $200 and costs which was given by Justice of the Peace John Hackett when the accused pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law. Two state policemen, Honeyman and Stanton, made a raid upon which the evidence was secured.

The evidence against the accused consisted of a 25-gallon still, which was located in the house, and 25 gallons of moonshine in a barrel outside of the house and into which the brew was running at the time the raid was made.

REPORTED ON VISIT TO NOROTON HOME

Report of the trip to Noroton home on visiting day recently was made at the meeting of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16, Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial by the president, Mrs. Clara P. Burke. She was accompanied on the visit by the patriotic instructor, Mrs. Grace Fowler, these two representing the corps and taking the candy which was sent for the veterans at the home.

Mrs. Burke spoke of their inspection visit to the kitchen, the ice box and the oven, all of which were found in satisfactory condition. After luncheon had been served there was a programme in the hall, after which the gifts of candy were distributed to the different inmates.

The executive committee made a satisfactory report of the whist that was recently held by Sedgwick corps and it was decided to hold a Hallowe'en supper at the end of next week. The usual reports for secretary and treasurer were presented and accepted. Mrs. Fowler, the patriotic instructor, recited Betsey's Flag, and the meeting closed in regular form with salute to the flag and America.

EAGLES WILL PARADE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Norwich Aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., held their regular meeting this week with Worthy President Timothy Fields in the chair, voting to take part in the Armistice Day celebration and parade. It is expected that the full membership of the aerie will turn out. The meeting appointed a committee of three, Matthew Keough, R. A. Krohn and Maurice Frieberg to make arrangements to secure the returns at the rooms on election night. It was also voted to enter the newly organized fraternal bowling league and Royal E. Grover was made captain of the Eagles' team. A social hour followed the business meeting.

MASONS DECLARE HOLIDAY FOR ARMISTICE PARADE

The local masons' union at a meeting in Carpenters' hall this week unanimously voted to observe Armistice Day, November 11th, as a holiday in order that they may properly take part in the big parade and celebration to be held here in connection with the dedication of the soldiers' and sailors' memorial tablet on Chelsea parade. On that day no member of the local union will be at work on any kind of masonry.

CONTRIBUTED $500 TO HELP COLCHESTER FARMER

The sum of $500 has already been subscribed for Frank Wasniewski of Colchester, who lost his barn and stock of 10 cows and two heifers and three horses by fire last Saturday. A good deal of sympathy is felt for the family. His hay, much of which had been cut on other farms outside during the summer, was destroyed, also his farming tools and silo, leaving him practically helpless in his farm operation. Mr. Wasniewski has a family of eight children, the youngest only a few weeks old. A stream of autos passed the house Sunday and Monday and the occupants watched the smouldering ruins and the digging of a long grave for the animals. Dwight Marvin, a neighbor, drove over a cow and presented it to the family and others followed with gifts of money.

SPECIAL ELECTION WILL COST NORWICH $3,000

The special election which must be held for United States senator will entail upon Norwich an additional election of expense of about $3,000. Although there will be but one office to be voted for, the cost of the election will include all the usual details of rental of polling places, transportation of the machines, hire of election officials for all six of the districts of the town and other items. The only difference from a general election is that the lists of voters do not have to be prepared and printed.

COUNTY RALLY FOR HOLY NAME MEN

Rev. William A. Keefe, state director of the Holy Name societies of New London county, has arranged for a great county rally of the Holy Name society to take place at St. Mary's Memorial church Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. All the priests of the parishes of New London county have accepted an invitation and will urge at the masses in their respective churches Sunday that very large delegations attend the rally. Every man in New London county is to be invited and a very large and enthusiastic Holy Name demonstration is assured. Father Keefe has a very important message which he will present the Holy Name men. He will discuss the striking features and important resolutions of the great Holy Name demonstration at which over 200,000 from every part of the United States recently assisted in Washington, D. C. This year, is an important year in Holy Name society annals, it being the 650th anniversary of the founding of the society. The importance of Holy Name work, both for church and state, was proven at the Washington convention when President Coolidge and Cardinal O'Connell, as a personal representative of Pope Pius, the 11th, addressed under Holy Name auspices, the largest audience ever addressed by a president of the United States. Rallies, parades and demonstrations of one sort or another are held frequently throughout the country, the purposes being to arouse the manhood of America, to the three great principles of the Holy Name society, namely, a pledge of allegiance to Jesus Christ, a protest against blasphemy and foul speech and a renewal of pledges of loyalty to God and church and country.

The demonstration at St. Mary's church Sunday afternoon while directly under the auspices of the Holy Name societies of New London county is absolutely free and every one, Catholic or non-Catholic, will be cordially welcome.

HADDAM DIVORCE SUIT REVIVES OLD MEMORIES

Two divorce actions, one of them recalling a family difference which stirred Haddam three years ago, together with other actions at law, were returned to the superior court in Middletown this week.

The first is the suit of Mary E. Loewe of Haddam against Dr. Leonard J. Loewe, whose whereabouts are not now known, which is likely to attract much attention. Dr. Loewe was medical examiner for Haddam for more than eight years, when he suddenly departed.

The complaint alleges desertion. The marriage date is given as July 10, 1901. It is charged that Dr. Loewe left on Sept. 10, 1921. It was known that he went at first to Birmingham, Ala. But he has now left that city and the complaint says he is "of parts unknown."

The second divorce is instituted by Katherine E. Ely of Saybrook against Lawrence E. Ely, also of parts unknown. They were married on March 21, 1918. Desertion is alleged from Sept. 25, 1921. The wife asks for a divorce and the custody of two minor children. One is six years old and the other five.

GIRLS PRESENT STUNTS AT INTER-CHURCH COUNCIL

Stunts given by the girls of Christ Episcopal church, the United Congregational church and the Central Baptist church made an interesting programme for the 125 in attendance Friday night at the meeting of the inter-church girls' council at the Central Baptist church. The United Congregational girls were declared the winners for their stunt in Armistice day. The subject of the Christ church girls was Hallowe'en and of the Central Baptist girls John Brown's Body, Mrs. William H. Dawley, Mrs. D. Louis Browning and Mrs. Shields officiating as judges.

Games and songs, with refreshments, were included in the entertaining programme of the council.

DIVORCE FOR DESERTION FOR TWELVE YEARS

Edith Hareld of Eastern Point, Groton was granted a divorce from Walter J. Hareld by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson at a short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning. The decree was granted on grounds of desertion, evidence being introduced to show that Hareld had left his wife in 1912 and failed to return. The couple were married March 19, 1902. He is supposed to be living in Providence at the present time. Custody of a 12 year old daughter was given to the mother.

FORMER PROGRESSIVES TO VOTE FOR CALVIN COOLIDGE

Supporters of the Progressive Party in 1912 Have Issued a Statement Signed by 53 Prominent Men and Women—Call Upon Members of the Party to "Vote as They Know in Their Hearts Theodore Roosevelt Would Vote."

New York, Oct. 26.—A number of the supporters of the progressive party of 1912 tonight gave out a statement urging the election of President Coolidge "earnestly" appealing to progressives of 1912 to vote "as they know in their hearts Theodore Roosevelt would vote."

The statement with complete assurance, the statement said, "that we are not merely supporting Calvin Coolidge, who exemplifies the elemental principles of public and private morality which shaped the great career of Theodore Roosevelt in behalf of democratic civilization and human progress, in politics a convinced conservative, the president is as far from being a reactionary as LaFollette is from being a Roosevelt progressive. We believe that his devotion to American institutions and to the highest ideals of American life he upholds the faith of our former leader.

"Unless President Coolidge gains a clear majority in the electoral college the presidential choice will lie with the present congress, elected long before the existing issues arose, and in effect Senator LaFollette and other extremists in that body will be able to name the next president of the United States.

"We most earnestly appear to the progressives of 1912 to vote as they know in their hearts Theodore Roosevelt would vote—for the candidate whose election offers the only means of defeating the radical movement which threatens to subvert American institutions.

SHENANDOAH AND ZR-3 ARE BERTHED TOGETHER

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 26.—America's two great dirigibles, the Shenandoah and the ZR-3, were seen together in a hangar that accommodate a third big airship for more than 50,000 visitors today. They came to see the airship that blazed a path of over 9,000 miles across plains and mountains to the Pacific and returned to her hangar early today.

Commander Zachary Lanadowne, who piloted the airship on the transcontinental test, at his home this afternoon, said the continental cruise proved that it is unnecessary to spend large sums for hangars, declaring that they are no more to an airship than a dry dock sito a steamship, hangars being merely used to go for overhauling and repairs. The successful use of the mooring mast shows that a dirigible can be housed from home as long as she must, Commander Lansdowne expressing also his opinion that a second hangar on the Atlantic coast would be sufficient for needs.

Captain Anton Heinen, Zeppelin expert, who was employed by the navy during the first months of the operation of the American designed airships, Shenandoah, today inspected the returned airship and declared that Commander Lansdowne had proved himself to be one of the greatest airship pilots of today. Of the Shenandoah's 9,000-mile cruise, Captain Heinen emphatically declared it the most remarkable test of its kind.

The men, Philip C. Catcellis and Frederick Malun, both of New York, had been in the water three hours when they were rescued. Catcellis had gone down three times and was completely exhausted when pulled out of the water by a deckhand on the Mount Morris.

RECOMMEND EXPANSION OF ARMY RESERVE FORCES

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Expansion of the organized reserve forces to six complete field armies supplied with officers and non-commissioned officers and auxiliary organizations involving 183,000 men, was recommended to the war department by the Reserve Officers' association of the United States, in resolution adopted in the closing session of its national convention here today.

Development of esprit de corps by building up the permanent local units, opposition to the placing of any unit on inactive status and for funds for training officers and men of the reserve forces were included in recommendations in the resolutions designed to improve and expand the reserve under the national defense act.

Special attention was also given to individual officers of the reserve corps in an effort to have them placed on a more satisfactory basis. Among recommendations made in this regard was one asking "the same pay and allowances as officers of the regular army" during the existence of any disability either temporary or permanent, incurred by a reserve officer while on active duty.

Increase of mileage allowance, now "insufficient" to cover the actual expenses of travel," for reserve officers ordered to active duty, and granting of the Franklin privilege to reserve officers so that their official mail may be handled without charge.

GREECE CLAIMS TURKEY IS VIOLATING TREATY

Brussels, Oct. 26 (By the A. P.)—That statesmen who framed the Lausanne treaty frankly have termed one of the most cruel decisions in history threatens to create serious complications in the near east, according to league of nations spokesmen who assembled in Brussels tonight in preparation for the special meeting of the council of the league which will open tomorrow afternoon. That decision, arrived at as the most practicable means for avoiding further wars between Greece and Turkey, was that of arranging for the compulsory exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey—that is to say, sending the Greeks in Turkey back to Greece and the Turks in Greece back to the territory of Islam.

Greece now contends that Turkey is violating the terms of the treaty of Lausanne by making wholesale arrests of the Greeks of Constantinople, who were exempted from the exchange agreement, provided they had established themselves in Constantinople before 1916.

M. Politis, who has succeeded M. Venizelos as the master Hellenic statesman abroad, will arrive here tomorrow. Prepared to defend to the last Greece's charges against Turkey; and his friends asserted tonight that Greece looks upon the situation as extremely grave, unless Turkey should show signs of meeting Greece half way and affording some protection to Hellenic residents in Constantinople.

TOOK POLL OF SENATORS ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

New York, Oct. 26.—The League of Nations Non-Partisan association announced today that the results of a recently conducted canvass of United States senators indicated that "only eleven republican senators could be counted upon to support their party's platform favoring American membership in the world court."

They were listed as Senators McLean of Connecticut, Edge of New Jersey, McKinley of Illinois, Cummins of Iowa, Capper of Kansas, Hale of Maine, Couzens of Michigan, Willis of Ohio, Stanfield of Oregon, Elkins of West Virginia and Warren of Wyoming.

Senator Frazier of North Dakota was reported by the association to have replied that he "will not vote for it (American membership in the world court) as now advocated." Two indexed as supporters of the Pepper plan were Senators Pepper and Reed of Pennsylvania.

The replies of nine other republican senators were characterized as "noncommittal," while the remaining 25 "did not answer" the letter of inquiry through which means the association's canvass was conducted.

Contrasting the attitude of republican senators with that of demacrats, the report chronicles that "all the 19 democratic senators who replied to the inquiry answered in the affirmative," of the five who failed to reply, three were stated to have been seriously ill and two were in Europe.

LAFOLLETTE EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE OF VICTORY

Aiken, Md., Oct. 26.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, independent presidential candidate, resting here over the week end, declared today in a statement that he entered the final week of the campaign "confident of victory at the polls." "One week ago tomorrow," he said, "we turned back from Omaha after consultation with western state managers, to make a drive of eastern states with large electoral votes, confident that the west is already won for the progressive ticket.

"Every day since we began our eastern swing the evidence of a large trend toward the independent progressive ticket has been found at every point at which we have stopped.

"As the campaign draws to an end it is apparent to every close observer that the contest is between the republican ticket on the one hand and the independent progressive ticket on the other; the democratic ticket is beyond help. The result is a large swing to the independent ticket. This is demonstrated not only in the great meetings which the progressives are having but also in the registration in the large cities. The average of the registration increases shows a normal increase in the registration in the conservative wards and precincts, with the big increases in the progressive strongholds."

AN ELECTION PREDICTION BY CHARLES W. BRYAN

New York, Oct. 26.—Telegraphing from Terre Haute, Charles W. Bryan, democratic nominee for vice president, today informed Clem L. Shaver, democratic national committee chairman, that John W. Davis either would be selected November 4 or the election would be thrown into the house.

"There can be no question that either Davis will be elected or that the election will be thrown into the house with the resultant delay, uncertainty chaos and widespread unrest and disturbance to business," Mr. Bray said.

Chinese Smuggled In Packing Cases

Suffered From Starvation and Hardships During 30-Day Voyage—One Died.

New York, Oct. 26.—Seven Chinese who were smuggled into this country from Hong Kong in packing cases aboard a steamship suffered so seriously from starvation and hardships during the 30-day voyage that one of them died soon after being taken into custody by the police today and the six others were near death. Three Chinese of this city charged with smuggling their seven countrymen also were arrested by the police.

All of the prisoners are members of the Hip Sing Tong, according to the police, who declared that the seven men had been smuggled as recruits in the Tong war which so far has resulted in several fatalities. The police said they obtained information from the prisoners that the seven men were members of a band of between 60 and 70 Chinese smuggled aboard the same steamer, the name of which was withheld by the police.

The seven Chinese were placed in packing cases and hoisted aboard the ship at Hong Kong, the police learned through an interpreter. Two or three men were placed in each case, the prisoners said, and each man was given $200 with assurance that work would be found for them when they arrived in this country.

Although promised two meals of rice each day, the men said they were given food only infrequently during the voyage. Because of the rough voyage, the almost suffocating closeness of the packing cases and the lack of food, the men were unconscious during the latter part of the trip. The six surviving prisoners were taken to a hospital.

The ten prisoners were captured by the police after they had been removed from the steamship and were being taken to a hiding place in Pell street, New York's Chinatown. Shots were fired by the police during the chase from the pier front.

CONFERENCE ON STREET AND HIGHWAY SAFETY DEC. 15-16-17

Washington, Oct. 26. — Secretary Hoover today called a national conference on street and highway safety to meet in Washington Dec. 15, 16 and 17.

The purpose will be to obtain better organization and cooperation of activities in the reduction of traffic accidents and representatives of police departments, insurance companies, safety councils, chambers of commerce, labor unions, automobile associations and other organizations from all parts of the country. "The importance of the question," the secretary said, "needs no emphasis beyond the bold statement of the facts brought out by the statistical committee comprised of eminent authorities who, after canvassing local, municipal, state and national information, arrived at the conclusion that in 1923, not less than 22,600 persons were killed, 678,000 injured and $600,000,000 of property damage incurred in traffic accidents. This represents an increase of 80 per cent within the last seven years, of the accidents, about 85 per cent were due to automobile traffic.

"This is a national loss so appalling as to warrant the most complete consideration and effort at drastic remedy."

The secretary has had eight special committees at work gathering data and making other preparations that the conference might be successful.

CLAIM COOLIDGE EXACTED $250 FEE FOR AN ADDRESS

Washington, Oct. 26.—The democratic national committee in a formal statement issued here tonight, declared President Coolidge, while vice president, "exacted" a fee of $250 and expenses for delivering a memorial address under the auspices of the United Patriotic Societies at Bridgeport, Conn., May 27, 1923.

"President Coolidge's attitude toward service men, when money in his own pocket was involved," the statement said, "cannot but be contracted with the fine phrases he uttered when he vetoed the soldier bonus bill. In that veto message, he said: 'Patriotism which is bought and paid for is not patriotism. * * * Patriotism can neither be bought nor sold. It is not hire and salary.'

"Everybody lese donated his or her service for the meeting.

"Can the American people imagine Lincoln, Roosevelt or Wilson exacting a fee from soldiers or sailors for delivering a memorial address?"

He has left a notable record of achievement and of self-sacrificing devotion to public duty. His death is an irreparable loss."

Arsenal Threatened By a Forest Fire

One Hundred Soldiers Rushed to Help Marines Fight Fire at Dover, N. J.

Dover, N. J., Oct. 26.—To combat a forest fire which is threatening the Picatinny government arsenal here, 100 soldiers from Governor's Island were rushed here by truck tonight. Marines stationed at the arsenal had been fighting the fire all day but had been unable to stop its progress toward the buildings stored with explosives.

The forest comes close to the buildings which are scattered over a large area and officials at the arsenal expressed the belief that unless the fire was stopped the damage might be enormous. Employes and marines worked most of the day removing explosives from the buildings nearest to the fire.

The buildings were filled with navy projectives, torpedoes, shells and powder. Although the buildings themselves are of metal it was said that heat caused by the nearer approach of the fire would ignite the explosives.

CUTTER TAMPA HAS CAPTURED SEVEN RUM BOATS

Boston, Oct. 26.—The coast guard service has opened war against the rum fleet along the New England sector. The cutter Tampa, which with a squadron of 30-foot speed boats on Thursday captured a British schooner and seven American power boats, and 20 prisoners, arrived at this port early this morning with six of her prizes. Two of the small boats were taken to Gloucester and New London, Conn.

The schooner Marjorie E. Bachman, loaded with 850 cases of brandy, whiskey and champaigne, and motor boats D-177, C-214, E-981, C-2682 and K-13490 with cargoes totalling more than 100 cases were tied up at the army base here. The liquor captured was valued at more than $100,000, "bootleg valuation" the coast guard officials said. The master and the super-cargo of the schooner and the crews of all the captured boats were held aboard the Tampa, which is docked at the navy yard, under charges of going along-shore foreign vessels and illegal transportation of intoxicants, violations of liquor laws and navigation laws such as running without lights.

Waterbury, Oct. 26.—Charles Benedict Rodman, of 34 North Main street, wealthy local man, is being sued for $50,000 by Kathryn Murnane, divorcee, who charged breach of promise. Miss Murnane, together with Mary Lariviere, both of 9 Holmes avenue, and Charles Garland, Miss Murnane's brother, called on Rodman Friday night, according to his story, and compelled him to sign a paper promising to marry the girl.

Later that night, Rodman caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of the trio on a charge of breach of promise. The two women were arrested, arraigned in city court yesterday morning, and released under bonds. Garland has not been located. Meanwhile, the breach of promise suit has been instituted, the Murnane woman asserting that the paper signed by Rodman in which he promises to marry her was not secured through force.

COOLIDGE LAUDS BUSINESS METHODS IN CHARITY WORK

Delivered Address Over Radio to the Federation of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York City—Stated That "Community Chest" System of Financing Benevolences Eliminates Waste—Does Away With Ill-Directed Charity Which is Often the Cause of Encouraging Pauperism and Mendicancy.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Adoption of business methods in charity work was lauded tonight by President Coolidge in a talk over the radio to a meeting in New York of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropic societies.

Spread of the "community chest" system of financing benevolences, philanthropies and charities, Mr. Coolidge said, has not only eliminated the "waste of indiscriminate charity" but has accomplished much in the service of organizing "these works of human helpfulness."

"The best help that benevolence and philanthropy can give," the president declared, "is that which induces everybody to help himself. Nothing is finer than the open hand and the generous heart that prompt free and unselfish giving. But modern social science knows, also, that ill-directed charity is often directly responsible for encouragement of pauperism and mendicancy. The best service we can do for the needy and the unfortunate is to help them in such a manner that their self respect, their ability to help themselves, shall not be injured but augmented."

Mr. Coolidge referred to the budget as "among the noblest monuments of virtue" and the adoption of it as the bases of the federation's charity system he characterized as a "fine accomplishment." He lauded the federation for setting up an example of "successful, practical, helpful business administration" which he declared is a monument to the "independence and self-reliance" of the Jewish people.

"I want you to know," he said, "that I feel you are making good citizens, that you are strengthening the government, that you are demonstrating the supremacy of the spiritual life and helping establish the kingdom of God on earth."

SOVIET GOV'T DENIES THE BRITISH PROPAGANDA CHARGE

Moscow, Oct. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Responding to the note of protest from the British foreign office concerning the alleged letter of M. Zinovieff president of the executive communist international, urging propaganda for the overthrow of existing institions in Great Britain, the soviet government, in a sharp note dispatched late this afternoon, denies the authenticity of the latter.

The note seeks an apology for the subversive propaganda activities imputed to the soviet government and proposes the establishment of an arbitral commission to pass upon the merits of the so-called Zinovieff letter, dispatched through Christian Rakovsky, the russian charge d'affaires in London.

In repudiating the Zinovieff letter the soviet officials are indignant over the fact that the British, note of protest, transmitted through the soviet delegaion in London last Friday night, was signed by J. B. Gregory, who is described as an "under-official" of the British foreign office, instead of Premier Macdonald, which they regard as an affront to the soviet republic.

WRECK INJURIES FATAL TO ENGINEER AND FIREMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Oct. 26.—William S. Carpenter, 41, engineer, and Joseph Hopman, 33, fireman on the engine of passenger train No. 725, south bound from Worcester, which took a siding in the extreme north end of the Putnam railroad yard and crashed head-on into the engine of extra freight train No. 1315 standing just off the main line about 5:30 o'clock Friday evening as the passenger train was nearing the end of its run at the Putnam railroad station, died within six hours of each other at the Day Kimball hospital, at an early hour Sunday morning.

Carpenter, following the collision and injuries, while smoking a cigarette, asked for a drink of water saying that he expected to be taken out of the hospital "in a box." This premonition came true shortly after midnight Saturday night when he passed away after 36 hours of suffering from horrible burns about the right arm and face. His left leg was also severed below the knee.

Hopman, who was internally injured, died at 6 o'clock Sunday morning without regaining consciousness. No hope was held out for his recovery from the first.

Carpenter's grit and fortitude it was first thought might carry him through.

Charles W. Carpenter was born at Ledyard May 9 1883, son of Joseph E. and Mary Maynard Carpenter. Soon after he finished school he began his railroad career in Norwich. He had been in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for 23 years, 19 years being as a locomotive engineer. January 13, 1903, he was united in marriage with Miss Harriet Treadway of Norwich. Three children were born to them. Charles, Sheldon and Ruth, who, with his wife survive him. Mr. Carpenter's father, who was employed at the Norwich State Hospital, died three years ago. Other surviving relatives are his mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Carpenter of Jewett City, a sister Mrs. A. B. Hollister of Hartford and a brother Paul B. Carpenter of Woodcliff, N. J. Mr. Carpenter moved to Putnam with his family some three or four years ago. During his residence here he became a member of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows and the Arcanum club. He was also a member of the New London Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen. He was one of the most widely known engineers on the New London division.

Joseph Hoppman was born in Greenwold and spent his childhood days on a farm. He was born December 1891, son of Kasper and Louise Eberman Hoppman. At the age of 15 years he began railroading in New London and previous to coming to Putnam three months ago lived in Norwich. Mr. Hoppman was married in April 1920 to Miss Alice Mercer of Blackstone, Mass. They had three small children, two sons and a daughter, the oldest boy four years and the youngest but 14 months. Besides his wife and children he leaves his parents, living in Jewett City, a sister, Alice Hoppman, living at home a sister, Mrs. D. W. Gaffney of Norwich and a brother, John P. Hopman, of Jewett City.

Mr. Hoppman was a member of Cargill Council, K. of C. of Putnam and the New London Brotherhood of Engineers and Firemen. He and his family occupied a house on Woodstock avenue.

Of the other trainmen injured in the wreck, Roy Carpenter, who was baggagemaster and received a severe scalp wound and was weakened from loss of blood and was able to go to his home in New London Saturday afternoon, Stephen Stickney of Putnam, an engineer who was riding home on the passenger engine, remains at the hospital with both legs fractured, but resting as comfortable as possible under the circumstances.

The two hour parking limit standards have arrived at the police station and twelve of them will be put into place along Main street, from High street to the New Haven railroad crossing, this (Monday) morning. Automobile owners are privileged under the new regime, to park their cars only two hours between 12 midnight and noon and two hours between noon and 12 midnight, a total of four hours out of twenty-four. The ordinances requiring cars to park within six inches of the curb and parallel to it and "not less' than three feet from another car are still being enforced. Also the slow speed limit in the city is twenty miles an hour and the one way streets are North, Church, Temple and Center streets. Parking on the south side of Union street, two-way street, is allowed. The fifteen minute time limit signs designed to be placed on the north side of Main street, between North and Church streets, to eliminate the monopoly of that section of the main thoroughfare by jitneys have not arrived, but are expected within a few days. Recommended for parking purposes to automobilists wishing to remain parked over two hours are the one-way streets mentioned and Meadow and Valley streets, only one block away from the center of business activity. Four standards requiring motorists to pass St. Josephs' hospital quietly have been placed in the vicinity of the institution, on Jackson street.

Wilbert Jacobs of 104 Walnut street and Theodore Newell Whittier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Whittier of Springfield, Mass., were united in marriage at the home of the bride. Rev. Arthur S. This Monday morning's police court docket will include the cases of three Saturday night intoxicants, William Dempsey of Norwich, arrested at 5:45 p. m. on Union street by officer Arthur Hurley, Robert Orr and Joseph Carleon of Manchester, arrested at 9:30 p. m. by Officers William Hurley and Roderick Larivlere after creating a disturbance on Mansfield avenue.

In a family tangle, in which Judge Frank H. Foss of the police court played the role of the Wise Solomon, Saturday morning, sister was pitted against sister and their respective husbands, Frank Lis, charged with violation of the liquor law and a breach of the peace and his brother-in-law Martin Zoldeck, charged with breach of the peace. The cases had been continued, the liquor charge against Lis dating back to Saturday, October 18, and the breach of the peace charges to October 12. The liquor charge was threshed out first, Lis and his attorney, Richard J. Dudkowskiky of Jewett City, holding out against a conviction to the bitter end. The attorney asked for a quick dismissal of his client, on the grounds of shallow evidence and he placed Lis and other witnesses on the stand, but to no avail. The state witnesses, Mrs. Anna Zoldeck, and Chief McArthur, Lieutenant Frank McLean and Patrolman Grant Bombria, of the police department introduced evidence of satisfactory nature to the court. At the close of the two hour session Lis was fined $100 and costs, amounting $111.15 with a ten day suspended jail sentence. The suspension was granted because it was Lis' first appearance in court on a liquor violation charge. The arrest came during a raid by the officers mentioned at his home, 61 Brook street, when his wife threw a milk bottle filled with liquor out of a third story window and the bottle failed to break, being recovered by Officer Bombria with part of the contents of alcohol and water. No further evidence was found. Mrs. Zoldeck, sister of Mrs. Lis, testified that she had bought liquor from Frank Lis two weeks ago, at the rate of 75 cents a half pint. She had seen him sell on other occasions. Lis denied ownership of the milk bottle produced as evidence, and he was seconded in this by his wife. Peter Musial, a neighbor, also testified for the defense. Martin Zoldeck said that Lis got liquor from Ne wBritain in cans and he remembered the night his wife had purchased moonshine from the man. The attorney for the defense fought to prove that the officers did not show or read a search warrant upon entering the Lis home, to conduct a raid. He classed this as a direct violation of the rights of a householder and said that every man's home was his castle. The charges of breach of the peace were nolled.

The almost endless possibilities of which Willimantic could take advantage as a central highway and railroad city are brought to the minds of some who took notice of the hundreds of automobiles going through here, especially during the football traffic. It would appear that every road leads "through" Willimantic. The city is soon going to have a modern vaudeville and motion picture theatre but that is not all in the life of a traveler. A modern hotel, a well located comfort station and possibly a public park would soon prove paying investments.

The honor roll for the first marking period at Windham High school was made public Saturday by Principal Egbert A. Case. There are 109 names on the list, 66 girls and 43 boys. But nine of the pupils of the total reached an average of 90 per cent. in each four subjects.

June 6, 1882 Mr. Parker became a fireman for the New Haven railroad, under A. A. Kilbourne, engineer and Charles Moore, master mechanic, at Hartford. He was appointed engineer four years later. The pension was recently approved as becoming effective January 1, 1925.

BOY IMITATED SQUIRREL, HAS FRACTURED FOOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Oct. 26.—In a fall from the topmost branches of an old chestnut tree to the ground, 50 feet, Frank Pescosa, 13, of Chestnut Hill in the town of Columbia, escaped death by a narrow margin and sustained three fractures of his left foot. The boy had set out to capture a squirrel in his hands and he followed the little animal in its native haunts in the tree top. He had pulled himself out near the end of a limb and as he was about to reach out to take hold of his prey the branch snapped. While falling the urchin grabbed limbs which served to check the speed of his fall and probably saved his life. He landed full weight on his left foot. Young Pescosa crawled to his home where he was placed in a wagon and driven a half dozen miles or more to this city where a physician reduced the fractures.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At St. Joseph's church in Dayville at the mass at 10.15 Sunday morning a class numbering 147 was confirmed. The sacrament of confirmation was conferred by Rt. Rev. John G. Murray of Hartford. Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, was celebrant of the mass. In the sanctuary were Rev. Charles F. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's church at Putnam, Rev. Bernard M. Donnelly, pastor of St. Joseph's church at Grosvenordale, Rev. James McCarthy, assistant at St. James' church, Danielson, also Rev. Edward Marcoux of Hartford, who assisted Father Kost at the Sunday services at St. Joseph's. In the afternoon at 2.30 Bishop Murray confirmed a class of 72 at the Church of the Five Wounds in Ballouville, a mission of St. Joseph's parish.

Bishop Murray addressed both classes, speaking in turn in English and in French. Following a long established custom in this diocese, the members of the confirmation classes were pledged to temperance until they are at least 21 yeras of age. Experience has shown that thousands of members of confirmation classes who have taken this total abstinence pledge have continued to abstain from the use of any intoxicant throughout their lives. At both Dayville and Ballouville Sunday, the services closed with benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Funeral services for Franklin O. Hawkes of East Killingly were conducted Sunday at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood here by Rev. W. D. Hunters here were apprehensive Sunday that Governor Templeton may put a ban on hunting. Like many days that have preceded it, Sunday was clear and sunny and the drying-out process continued in all woodland territory that is not too swampy. Clouds of smoke hanging along the horizon west of Brooklyn seemed to indicate fires in that region, but although this territory there was immunity from forest fires. To the credit of the hunters, it must be said that they are taking unusual precautions against causing any fires afield. There would keenly feel the banning of hunting for an indefinite period, just at the time when the open season's best time is at hand. Scores of hunters were in the woods of Killingly on Saturday, but of course the hunters could not go out, legally, on Sunday.

Mr. Bigelow was coming down the fork on high school and the Nadeau boy down the fork on the opposite of the Methodist parsonage, their machines crashing as they made their way to the points where the forks join into one thoroughfare.

Sunday afternoon a Ford car driven by Paul Godreau of Goodyear crashed against a car driven by Frank Brown of Centerdale, R. I. Chief John McFarland took the facts pertaining to the affair. PUTNAM

Roy Hopkins, baggage master on the Worcester to Putnam passenger train that figured in the wreck at Mechanicsville, Friday evening, was able to leave the hospital Saturday and go to his home in New London. Hopkins was the only one of he four railroad men taken to the hospital following the wreck who had no broken bones. He had a serious scalp wound and suffered from loss of blood, but showed such improvement Saturday that he was allowed to go home.

William Carpenter, engineer, and Joseph Hoppman, fireman, died Sunday morning.

Steven Stickney, who was riding home on the passenger locomotive, is resting as comfortably as possible, with two fractured legs.

Putnam starts the new week after a week of developments that have been the most favorable since the depression which ended in the calamity of the failure of the First National bank. It is the passing of the black cloud and the appearance of the silver lining. The announcement that the Citizens National bank had been granted a charter following closely by the announcement that hundreds of depositors would have money released to them in time to use during the holidays that has renewed hope for the rehabilitation of the prosperous business conditions which this city believes its due. A twenty-five per cent. dividend paid before the Christmas season will mean the release of approximately half a million dollars. A generous portion of this money will be freely circulated in Putnam. People who have lived more economically than ever in their lives, who have only purchased bare necessities, will, with the feel of currency in their pockets, doubtless put such action into immediate circulation that the merchants will have a normal Christmas trade this year.

Manufacturing business is also looking brighter and after election it is predicted that the mills in this section will afford employment for all. The two new industries in Putnam now getting under way and the increased employment in mills that have run more or less regularly during the summer, will add greatly to the weekly pay rolls that find their way into the business life of the city.

By the first of the year Putnam will doubtless have a bank and a trust company to take care of the financing of its business. The city will before spring be back to normal and possibly will be experiencing better business than any time since the war. The hope of the future is already manifested among the citizens of Putnam in many ways and the feeling of depression is fast disappearing.

An automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams and Mr. and Mrs Julian Tattoon were returning from Providence about eleven o'clock Friday night, was sideswiped by a car owned and driven by a man from Woonsocket in which members of his family were passengers The accident happened this side of Chepatchet, R. I.

According to Williams, who was driving the Putnam car, he was over as far as possible on his right hand side of the road when the Woonsocket car hit his car, tearing off the mud guards and running board. None of the passengers in the Putnam car was injured but some of the occupants of the Woonsocket car sustained cuts and the car was damaged. A Putnam taxi driver came along and brought the Putnam women home, while the men remained with the wreck until assistance came from Putnam. The Woonsocket party abandoned their car, being taken to Chepatchet by a passing car with a Massachusetts registration. According to Mr. Williams the driver of the Woonsocket car stated that he was blinded by the headlights of the Putnam car. It was after midnight before the Putnam car was towed into a Putnam garage.

There are scarlet fever cases in Putnam. Eighteen cases have been reported and officials believe they have traced the origin of the malady to the home of a man who had the disease and whose children attended school Dr. George T. WOMAN'S WEDDING RING FOUND AFTER THREE YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Oct. 26.—A woman living in the Wheelock mill village, near the mill tailrace has recovered a wedding ring lost three years ago. While leaving her home three years ago she dropped the ring and it rolled into the water in the tailrace, which is about ten feet deep. At present the water in the Quinebaug river is so low that there was very little water in the mill trench. The woman asked an employ in the mill to see if he could locate the ring. The man went down in the trench at the spot where the woman thought the ring might be and his first look revealed the flash of gold. The ring was returned to the woman within a few minutes.

TRUCK LOAD OF WATER MEANT FOR SPLIT, COSTS $172

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Oct. 26.—Within the limits of the city and town of Putnam there is a man who recently paid $172 for a truckload of water. There is a certain ingredient that, mixed with aqua pura, makes a concoction called "split." This is a cup that cheers and also inebriates. As the story is told a man drove from a nearby Rhode Island city with a truck loaded with cans. He was here for the purpose of unloading the load and succeeded. If the cans had contained what was represented as their contents the liquid mixed with water would have made the aforesaid split and it was for this that the buyer parted with the one hundred and seventy-two. A few of the cans were distributed among trusted acquaintances with the expectation that a neat profit would result to the original purchased. Soon however, his troubles began and his anticipated profits disappeared. One after another the patrons tried to mix the contents with water to make the desired brew but found that the more they mixed the contents of the can with water the more water they had. After complaint had been made to the purchaser of the load investigation was made and it was found that every can sold by the agent from Little Rhody contained the same harmless beverage and of the kind that could be drawn from any city water tap in town. The wholesale buyer had to make good. What is he going to do about it?—what can he do about it?

Murphy was accused of the serious offense of assault with intent to rob in the night season, but when the prosecutor investigated and questioned police who presented the case at the time of the arrest, he modified the charge to simple assault. Of this there was no doubt of the guilt of Murphy, but that he attempted to rob Rooney there was no evidence. It was represented in court that Murphy's family is eminently respectable. So is he, when he does not drink liquor. Now he has under oath and has pledged that he will abstain from liquor in the future. With that understanding the fine was fixed at $200. JEWETT CITY

News of the death of Eugene W. Carpenter of Putnam, brother of L. M. Carpenter of this place and of Joseph Hoppman of Putnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kasper Hoppman of Jewett City, the result of injuries received in the accident in Putnam, has caused universal sorrow, among the friends of the families here. Joseph Hoppman was born in Griswold, on the Norman farm, 33 years ago, received his education here and married and buried his first wife here. His father and mother, a sister, Alice and brother John, all of Jewett City, and a sister, Mrs. Daniel Goff, of Norwich, survive him. His wife and three small children, the oldest 4and the youngest not yet a year, are left in Putnam.

Chief Thomas Wakely of the local fire department, received a letter last week from the Personal News Service, of Springfield, Ill. The letter informed Chief Wakely that they had in their possession a newspaper clipping that he would find much to his interest, which they would forward for the small sum of 25 cents. Springfield, Ill., is close to 1000 miles away. The chief wondering what the papers of so distant a city could have published concerning him, promptly forwarded the stamped coin. Saturday, he received a letter, containing his own fire prevention story, which he gave to the writers of this column, and which was published in The Bulletin, Oct. 2, 1924. The cat came back, happily illustrating the importance attached to Chief Wakely's sagacity as to fire prevention, and the far-flung distribution of the paper in which it was originally printed.

As early as 10 o'clock Sunday morning the odors of forest fires were noticeable in the borough, and people on the streets were remarking about the smoky appearance of the horizon. At noon, George A. Ross, from the high hill upon which he lives in Lisbon, was trying to locate the fires with his glass. The view he usually is able to get, off to the south and west, was narrowed to a few miles by the smoke.

It is pretty well agreed among the local hunting fraternity that the best place to start a little game, in these "hunted-to-death" days, is down in the big wooded districts below Wiley brook. Two men from the south part of the town, got a coon the other night, and treed another which they didn't get right within the eastern shadow of Mt. Misery.

A local man says that the pleasures of a visit to these wild localities is not altogether confined to game. Visiting that section one day, he came out into a back yard, where a man was seated astride a bench with a clamp jack in front, in which, by means of pressure exerted by the weight of his old boots, he held a partly finished axe handle, which he was laboriously shaving into form. These aborigines haven't forgotten the King's English, but they sometimes slip on the tender matter of arrangement. "Hello," said the hunter, "It's pretty dry!" "Ya," said the axe handle man, "but we could stand the drouth if there was any 'prosperity' of rain!"

Four big army airplanes passed over the borough Saturday noon. Mrs. F. H. Gillett saw them and notified others over in the town, who were also able to get a glimpse of their wings, as they disappeared off to the south. One of James H. Shea's boys, on the east main street highlands, reported seeing them. They were flying at such an altitude that the motor was could not be heard in the street, and they got over without the usual crane necked gallery.

Charlie Butts, was greatly depressed when he read in Saturday's Bulletin about the accident in which Engineer Carpenter was fatally injured. Mr. Butts told the story Saturday of how years ago, when he was in charge of construction work for the old Norwich and Worcester railroad, "Billy" Carpenter was his water boy. Mr. Butts added, here is a true story of "From Water Boy to Engineer."

Attend to cleaning your chimney. Harrington & Belisle will do it.—adv.

A big Russian, whose name instead of being Mike, might have been, and maybe is, Michaelovitch, was in the town court Saturday morning. The gentleman was arrested by his wife, on a charge which is not new to him. His testimony in court in which he told of ordering his wife here and there, "and she no go," savored of stories tlod of the Russian bear. Judge John T. Berry took occasion to lay him out proper and informed him that next time he would be given a sentence that would afford him opportunity to find out that he was in America, not Russia.

A Main street man put an adv. in these columns last week offering a used parlor stove for sale. He disposed of it the day the ady. appeared for his own price. He had five letters, one from Norwich, and a dozen calls in person and by telephone. He said he could have sold all the stoves in the state if he had let the adv. run a few days longer.

Sunday was the fourth in a string of perfect fall days, with the Sunday temperature the highest of them all. The state road was kept hot with automobile traffic, which in the early evening kept up at the rate of two cars every minute.

The annual meeting of the Jewett City chapter, A. R. C. to be held this (Monday) evening, should be of interest to everyone in town, for nearly everyone is a member.

The magnificent chrysanthemums in the Congregational church Sunday, came from Mrs. W. A. Richardson's gardens.

At noontime Sunday there was so much smoke all through the borough streets that many people felt it in their eyes. There were two brush pasture fires on Stone Hill during the forenoon, one on William Lord's property and one on George Lathrop's farm. Elmer Miller, with all the farmers in the vicinity, put up a stiff fight for two hours, and they were able to get the best of what would have been a bad blaze. No loss was reported except a few division fences. Chief Wakely was asked to send men. The fires were over three miles from the borough, and with no buildings threatened it was thought best to wait until the men at work made further reports of their success. Fire Warden Joseph Rood could not be reached at the time the fighters were being called out.

NO LOW FLYING ALLOWED OVER CITIES

Following a complaint by the state motor vehicle department to Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the United States army air service that an army aviator flew dangerously low over the Yale Bowl October 4 during the Yale-North Carolina game, Secretary of War Weeks has issued the following order.

"I. In connection with the operation of army aircraft the following will be observed:

"No flying will be done over cities or thickly populated areas at an altitude lower than that which will permit gliding to a landing beyond the limits of such city or area.

"No flying will be done at any altitude over or in the immediate vicinity of stadiums, ball parks, fair grounds or other localities where large assemblages of people are gathered."

Major General Patrick has also notified the Connecticut department that he is "very anxious to find out who was guilty of this very serious breach of regulations and good taste." A large crowd was watching the game when he incident occurred and it caused considerable uneasiness. The aviator flew around the Bowl several times and finally shut off his motor and coasted across it at a low elevation.

About a year ago the license of an aviator licensed by this state was suspended by the motor vehicle department for a similar offense, but as the department has no jurisdiction over United States fliers, it was necessary to appeal to the army authorities for relief from repetition of the experience of October 4. In writing Governor Templeton about the incident, Commissioner Stoeckel said: "While I recognize that the army fliers are unquestionably the best airmen in the world, yet we ough not to allow them to do anything which we would not allow our men to do. You can imagine crash into the crowd." The governor what would happen if a plane should also wired to war department authorities.

Amazon Spiders Eat Birds

Explorers in the wilds of the Amazon are nowadays as much on the alert against the giant spiders as against jaguars. Several types of spiders large and cunning enough to catch and devour birds have been encountered. These made "trap doors" in the ground, beautifully camouflaged. When birds alight on these doors they fall into pits or tunnels in which the spiders watch for their prey.

PLAINFIELD

Some malicious person in this town will be spending a few days in the county jail in Brooklyn if not careful about poisoning dogs in the village. Last week three dogs died by poison. Some of the dogs in this village who have met the same fate were valuable dogs. Somebody has taken a dislike for all dogs as the majority of those killed were not mean. The owners of some of the dogs might report this situation to the S. P. C. A. at Hartford.

THE BANKERS TRUST CO.

Like a thunderbolt from a clear sky was the distressing news concerning the defalcation by former Treasurer Finn of the Bankers Trust company. Invariably such revelations do come as a shock, but in this particular instance the effect has been greatly tempered, so far as the effect upon the institution is concerned, by the alertness of President Angus Park and the board of directors of the bank in immediately making good the depleted funds, a step that cannot be too strongly applauded.

There can be no overlooking of the act that has been committed, there can be no surprise over the anxiety which it creates and there can be no wonder at the criticism which such weakness causes, but in this instance there must not be overlooked the prompt manner in which the president and directors have responded for the full protection of the depositors.

At this particular time sight must not be lost of the fact that the Bankers Trust company is a solvent institution. That means that it can pay all its obligations, due to the fact that as soon as the president and directors became aware of the loss they promptly made it good. They acted in a manner to dispel all cause for alarm. This not only gives assurance to all the depositors but makes it possible for the bank to carry on its business uninterrupted. What must carry much weight in this particular is the statement of the state bank commissioner that the institution can pay dollar for dollar, and the revelation by the act of the president and directors that the depositors' interests have been safeguarded. Such features as must continue to be deplored do not affect the financial strength of the institution.

No small degree of confidence is found to be created by the naming of Martin E. Jensen as acting treasurer and secretary.

With the defalcation made good it is certainly a time for both clear thinking and rational acting.

PUBLISHING INCOME TAXES.

When there was an insistent demand on the part of a few for the passage of a law which would throw open the income tax returns for such use as the public desired to make of them, it was pointed out that it would result in widespread snooping. Curiosity seekers would be delving into the records for the purpose of finding out about their neighbors, to supply information to others and to make use of the facts for injurious comparisons.

Because of a recognition of this outcome it was impossible to put through the law as at first proposed. Under the modified act the collectors of internal revenue have been authorized to open the list of taxes paid for public inspection. Even though the law was modified the operation of it is in keeping with what was anticipated. There is a great desire to find out what the other fellow is paying, and not only to find out but to publish it broadcast.

There are those who have been disposed to respect the law and the early ruling regarding this publicity. There are others which have chosen to defy it. They do so because counsel has advised them to, and yet when one section says that the taxes paid are to be submitted for "inspection," and another says, "It shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income tax return or any part thereof" the ground for seeing where the law permits the publication of the taxes paid seems nebulous.

Perhaps there couldn't be any better method of driving taxpayers to invest in tax exempt securities than this very law and the use which is being made of it.

MAKE NAVY DAY A SUCCESS.

Today is Navy day, and concerning it Secretary Wilbur of the navy department says: "It is the inalienable right of the people of our country to know about their navy and I firmly believe that the degree of support which the navy receives from the people is in a direct ratio to their understanding of its problems. The navy stands for peace and the enforcement of peace. When unfortunately it is forced into action in the defense of our ideals it takes its place as the first line of our national defense, but the real measure of its efficiency is not the number of wars it wins, but rather the number of wars which it averts or makes impossible by its existence."

In this particular vicinity, and especially southeastern Connecticut, there is an admirable opportunity provided of getting in close touch and therefore becoming better acquainted with the submarine branch of the navy. The desire is to have the people do so, and for that reason the officers at the submarine base on the Thames have arranged for an open house this morning. It is not only an opportunity for those interested but a chance that should not be lost to get interested in what the naval station is really doing, what submarine activity and efficiency means and what the conditions are in this part of the navy.

Many have sought just such an opportunity as Navy day offers. It is a chance for them and all others to become satisfied and to get a closer knowledge of that defensive agency on which so much dependence is placed in time of trouble and from which so much is expected as a preventive against trouble.

General participation in Navy day would be most heartily appreciated at the submarine base. It has been arranged for that purpose and all that is needed is a big public response in order to make it a success.

LIPTON'S SPIRIT.

It has been said that a man may be down but he is never out. This may be applied in many senses. Just now it seems to fit the attitude which Sir Thomas Lipton is displaying concerning the international yacht race.

There hasn't been much glory obtained from the British yachtsman's victories, although he has professed to get much satisfaction out of the various contests for which he provided the visiting craft and out of witnessing a better boat win. But he displays a spirit of never say die even on his present visit to this country, he announces that he is not through yacht racing and contemplates providing another challenger in his endeavor to lift the cup.

Sir Thomas has always been a good sport and his latest statement shows that he has not changed. Losing hasn't broken his spirit. As long as he can afford it and get's good advertising out of it, he is certainly justified in continuing.

HENRY C. WALLACE.

When Henry C. Wallace, of Iowa, was added to the cabinet as secretary of the department of agriculture there was obtained a man who had a first hand knowledge of farming conditions and farming methods and who was sympathetic with the farmers. He was a farmer among the farmers, and he could distinguish between the real and the artificial when it came to the making of demands in their behalf.

His careful study and the efforts he had put forth in behalf of American farming have been displayed in many ways, but clearly he was the expert, the specialist, who knew how to farm sucessfully as well as to wrestle with the farm problems of others. This he did as a publisher of an influential farm journal for a long time before he became a member of the president's official family.

He came from that particular section of the country where so much unrest has been represented to exist, and where so much has been made of the position of the farmer without regard for the cause of the conditions set forth, or the practical methods of meeting them. He knew what the facts were and he was disposed to handle them accordingly.

Having been a valued member of the cabinet his untimely death means a distinct loss to the administration, and what is a loss there is for the same reason to be sincerely regretted by the country.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Grated cheese is good served on onion soup.

Onion juice will remove scorch marks.

Give all nails on which damp cloths are to be hung a coat of white enamel.

"Cool, clean and covered" is a good slogan for keeping foodstuffs.

Catsup is very useful for flavoring soups and stews and often adds interest to very ordinary foods.

Use old felt hats for making new soles for bedroom slippers. Thus you wear out old tops without buying new soles.

Try brushing the top of your pie with milk before putting in the oven. It will be greatly improved.

It is well to have wooden spoons to stir food with while cooking. They will not scratch the bottom of the utensils.

If a piece of roasting meat is not exactly sweet, place slices of onions over its surface when it is put into the oven. This will destroy any unpleasant flavors.

If you wish to keep butter for over a week, to keep it from getting rancid, work into it when freshly churned a teaspoonful of baking soda to each pound.

Chuck roast, which is cheap, will make an appetizing dish if the bone is removed, the meat rolled and tied with a string and then roasted.

Keep your beds out of alcoves and corners and just a little bit away from the wall. In this way they will keep free from dust and any chance of vermin.

When silver spoons become tarnished from use in boiled eggs, scour the tarnished parts with a little moist salt. The tarnish will directly disappear.

A teaspoonful of black pepper stirred into the first suds in which colored cottons are washed will prevent the colors from running.

To clean and polish furniture mix three parts linseed oil with one part of turpentine and apply with a woolen cloth. This not only cleans, but gives a fine lustre also.

Sour cream is good for a number of things. Good dressing for coldslaw can be made with it. No better soda biscuits are made than when sour cream is used. Gingerbread is delicious made with sour cream, and many other things too numerous to mention.

TO CLEAN PAINTED WALLS

It will aid greatly in cleaning the painted walls if they are gone over with thin uncooked starched water.

Painted walls and woodwork can be cleaned easily and well by using equal parts of vinegar and kerosene. Wash with a cloth and dry with a dry cloth.

BAKING SLOW PIES

When making pie of fresh fruit where the tenderness of the filling depends upon the length of the baking, take a strip of white cloth about an inch wide and long enough to encircle the pie, wet it in cold water and bind it around the edge of the pie and tin. This will prevent the crust around the edge before the fruit is cooked.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Walking a mile in the open air each day will add years to your life.

To keep the skin in good tone add just your diet so as to include a greater proportion of fresh fruits and vegetables daily. Drink five or six glasses of pure water every day. Do exercises in your room for ten minutes night and morning. Engage in outdoor sports as much as possible. Sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Steaming the face in itself is not a face treatment—it is only an introduction to a face treatment. Its only value is to open wide the pores of the skin which act like an infinite multitude of little mouths, and which close up upon the dust and grime of the atmosphere.

In the fall most of our fancies lightly turn to thoughts of feet. A splendid home cure for corns is to roll a lemon until soft, cut a thick slice and bind on corn when retiring. In the morning if corn is white and disintegrated it can be pulled out with the fingers. Several applications may be necessary for a complete cure.

AFTER-SCHOOL LUNCH

If a child is hungry after school let him have some bread and butter and a glass of milk, but not enough to dull his appetite for supper. If he is actually hungry, and growing children often are because their tissues and bones and muscles are being built up every moment of the day, he will eat bread and butter and be satisfied. If he must have sweets he is not hungry.

UNIQUE TYPE OF HAT

STILL IN DEMAND

Petticoats are still in demand in spite of costume slips and other devices. An autumn petticoat shown here today is of soft, fine crepe de chine, as straight, undecorated and closely plaited as a sports skirt.

GOOD CLEANING SUBSTANCE

Warm bran makes an excellent cleaning substance for the tapestry or cloth-covered furniture. It should be allowed to stand for some time before it is brushed off.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Gazelle fur is one of the very latest trimmings and is very much liked on wool frocks.

The new beige colored fox scarfs match the fashionable stockings in the popular nude shades. It is quite a fad to match one's hat to one's hosiery.

The wool jersey frock is still a favorite for early autumn wear. Some of the new wool jerseys in caramel brown and rust have while silk surplice collars, which give a new touch.

New blouses, sweaters and sport dresses are very often trimmed with embroidered monograms in oriental effect. Chinese characters are copied most extensively.

Very wide brimmed hats of coarse straw highly varnished are shown for midsummer wear, those of lacquer red being the most striking and the most popular.

Ornaments of tortoise shell are coming into vogue today. Tortoise shell earrings, large and long and unusually loop shaped, are often seen, particularly on blondes.

Dresses this season may be plain, but coats are most elaborate and trimmed. Fur is used lavishly on them and the linings are more goreous and more trimmed than ever before.

If you would have your tailored frock embody the last word in chic, be sure to trim it with many buttons and buttonholes. Moreover, be sure the buttonholes are bound with silk of a contrasting shade.

The tendency at present is toward the ensemble suit of a dull shade or of black. The costume depends for its great effect on the tunic blouse, which gives it great brilliance when the coat is removed.

NEW FROCKS

Shorter and narrower grow frocks and even in the formal costumes for street wear one sees this tendency to skirts of briefer length. Occasionally there is shown a dress that almost sweeps the floor and there are rumors of a much longer skirt length, but so far these rumors are not borne out by facts. The smartest women are appearing in skirts considerably shorter than those worn a few months ago.

So narrow and tight is the silhouette of the moment that movement is impeded. This no doubt, is the reason for the introduction of godet plaits inserted so that the straight slim line is not disturbed, but walking is made much easier.

Flounces both gathered and circular have once more dawned upon fashion's horizon and are rather extensively exploited in the new modes. During the week just past the silhouette that predominated in the collections of several of the best houses was the long tight sheath finished at the bottom with a deep flounce. Bands of fur added to the effect and supplied the note of contrast.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Two heaping tablespoons of borax to five quarts of water make a very good mixture in which to starch delicate white clothes.

Add a bit of bluing to the suds in which you wash your cut glass or crystal pieces. It will make them very clear and sparkling.

A little starch in the rinse water when washing rag rugs will prevent them curling on the ends. Try it the next time you wash them.

A lump of starch dissolved in the water with which windows are washed will make the glass bright and sparkling.

Rings left in clothing after it has been cleaned with gasoline may be avoided if a pad is put under the spot before gasoline is applied. Rub from the circumference of the circle toward the center. Rubbing around a spot is more necessary than rubbing a spot on it. Always rub dry.

CONCERNING MEAT

Salt meat should be put into cold water, while fresh meat should be put into boiling water. One exception, however, is when making soup. Then the fresh meat should be put into cold water and brought very slowly to a boil. Allow 20 minutes for boiling each pound of fresh meat and 25 minutes for each pound of salt.

FOR SPORTS WEAR

Topcoats for sports wear today frequently have an unstanding collar of leopard, fitch, or some other noticeable fur. Some of the coats, in black wool, are lined with gay plaid, and these are not likely to have the fur collar.

SUBSTITUTE FOR WHIPPED CREAM

Add one-third cup of boiling water to one cup of confectioners' sugar and stir over the fire until the sugar dissolves. Let it boil until it forms a soft ball in cold water. Pour slowly and whip into white of one egg, beaten stiff. Add four mashmallows. Continue whipping until cool. This looks almost like whipped cream and is of about the same consistency. It is delicious served on fruit or shortcake and will keep perfectly in the refrigerator several days.

SORT THEM FIRST

When cooking potatoes use those of uniform size and you will not have the trouble of the small potatoes falling to pieces while waiting for the larger ones to be done. Sort them into groups according to size before paring.

SHOULD STRETCH A BIT

Linoleum should be cut and laid on the floor without being nailed for at least a month. If nailed as soon as laid, the linoleum will bulge and crack very quickly.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Census statistics show that there are 252,836 women dairy farmers in this country.

It is estimated that less than half as many women were affiliated with labor unions in Great Britain in 1923 than in 1921.

The women of St. Croix County, Wis., operate a co-operative laundry which has just completed 10 years of successful operation.

Mrs. Anna Van Skike of Santa Monica, Cal., recently celebrated her 64th birthday by completing a 16-mile swim in the ocean.

So far as is known Miss Helen M. Kodet of Cleveland, Ohio, is the only woman railroad passenger agent in the United States.

WASTED SPACE

Much room is wasted in cupboards and refrigerators by not having small compact food cantainers for left-overs. Wide topped flaring bowls and plates represent a great waste of space.

TRY THIS

To prevent the gloss coming off of your white paint wash it with milk and a little soap. That will be much cheaper than repainting and is effective.

RECIPES

Norwegian Apple Pudding: Grate half loaf of stale bread, brown one tablespoon butter in the frying pan and fry the crumbs a little at a time, a nice brown. Have ready some sweetened apples, stewed until thick. Take a baking dish and put in alternate layers of crumbs and apples. Bake in oven for 15 or 20 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream.

Cheese and poached Eggs: Make a sauce of two tablespoons butter, two of flour, and one cup of milk. Cook for five minutes, then add one cup of grated cheese, a quarter teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper, a half teaspoon of mustard mixed with one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and one egg yolk beaten with two tablespoons of cream. Cook until the cheese is melted and smooth and pour over rounds of buttered toast. Serve with a poached egg on each round.

Stone Worked His Way Through College

After his expulsion from agricultural college, Harlan Fiske Stone had to decide between working on the farm or working his way through an educational institution.

It had been his life plan to follow agriculture. Born near Chesterfield, N. H., he was taken by his parents to Mill Valley, Mass., where he grew up on a farm. His older brother graduated from Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, and had made a success as an instructor. Harlan wanted to follow in his footsteps, but at the beginning of his sophomore year had a clash with a professor during a chapel rush and was expelled.

It was then that his father gave him the choice of the farm or the making of his way through Amherst College, and at 17 the lad chose to study. By doing clerical work for the professors, tutoring, and selling typewriters and insurance he was able to raise funds to complete his course. He was brilliant in his studies, was class orator and took a leading part in athletics and other college activities. Calvin Coolidge was in the class immediately following and the two became friends.

Graduated at 22, and having little funds, Stone taught school at Newburyport a year, then entered Columbia School of Law in New York, tutoring to pay his way. At 26 he was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law. At 27 he married and became a lecturer at Columbia Law School. Three years later he was made a professor of law of that institution and at 38 was chosen dean.

Tall and heavy-set, he was described as being "more like a lumber-jack than a lawyer," but his courage, energy were recognized.

As a member of a law firm, with offices in Wall Street, her had charge of the litigation branch of its large business. With an income of more than $100,000 a year, a happy home, his sons achieving splendidly, one as a student and the other as an educator, Stone, at 51, was leading a full and pleasant life, taking time, now and again, to indulge his passion for fishing. And then President Coolidge heaped new honors upon him by appointing him Attorney General of the United States.

THE "OLD WOMAN'S" DISCIPLINE
Helen L. Fisher

"There was an old woman who lived in a shoe.
She had so many children she didn't know what to do;
She gave them some broth without any bread,
And whipped them all soundly, and sent them to bed."

Can you picture the poor distracted mother? She deserves sympathy no doubt, but did you ever stop and consider the children? I often wonder what they though about it. Did they understand why they were put to bed? If you were to ask them why they were sent to bed they would quite likely say, "Mother couldn't stand the noise," Mother couldn't or wouldn't, which?

Such is often the state of affairs in our present day home. Father comes home from work tired and nervous. Bobby and Jane are busily engaged in a game of circus. In due time (and a very short time at that) father demands that the noise cease; he informs mother that the place is like a boiler factory, and the result is that two small children give up their game.

Father is not always the one to put a wet blanket on the game. I have in mind a friend of mine, a mother of three small, healthy, growing children. I can see her plainly, seated in a chair, one eye on her book and the other on the children. When the noise reaches a certain point, down goes the book, up rises Mother and three sulky little people are sent to bed.

Children will generally obey because they understand that it is expected of them but they often do so with resentment and anger. They "stop" because mother said they must stop, and, in the words of the children, they will "catch it" if they don't.

The parent who deals with the children in this way is so concerned over the peace and comfort of the household for the time being that he forgets to consider the effect of his tone and actions upon the children. He forgets that it is character that is hourly being built up, and that upon character depends conduct.

The result of such a type of discipline is disastrous. Instead of the children acquiring habits of consideration and truth they will develop habits of indifference and slyness. Habits, good or bad, are very easily formed. Every parent should strive to understand and guide his child and should refuse absolutely to have "nerves". Calmness is strength; excitement is weakness.

Stories That Recall Others

A Fair Exchange.

Mr. A. was painting his new garage. At supper time he remarked to his wife, "I'm just sick of this smell of paint. Everything I eat tastes of paint."

"Yes, dear," she agreed, "I believe that. For when I kiss you I taste paint."

"I've tasted that a good many times when I've kissed you," he retorted with a meaning look at her very scarlet lips.

Good; Everybody Laughed.

The barber shop was fairly crowded with customers, including a few women. Suddenly a man, aparently a stranger, dashed in and asked:

"Who can tell me where the LaFollette headquarters are?"

"Moscow," yelled back the proprietor.

Everybody laughed and the man disappeared.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Child Labor Amendment.

Mr. Editor: The Bulletin of October 15th carries a letter from "a mother" who is vigorously opposed to the ratification of the child labor amendment because of her belief that it is a law which says "John or Mary shall not work until 18 years of age."

We are sure that this mother would not willfully send her John or Mary, of 14 years, into a factory, to be worked eleven hours a day, or to be placed at some machine to run the danger of losing their hands or even their whole arms. Yet that is just what will happen to some mother's children.

May we not assure your readers as well as "a mother" that the amendment merely gives congress the power to pass a law regulating child labor? It fixes the age limit at 18 years in order to limit the hours of labor for older children and to keep them from entering certain dangerous occupations. Its purpose is not to prohibit all children under 18 from working.

The friends of the amendment believe that it is perfectly allowable for children under 18 to work. They believe that most children under 18 would be benefited by and therefore ought to work. They do not wish children to grow up in idleness and irresponsibility. We are sure no one really believes that all the senators and congressmen who voted for the amendment are so foolish as to seek to prevent the young people of our nation from learning some useful occupation before they are 18.

As to the legislation which will follow the ratification of the amendment, it is absolutely certain that congress will not pass any legislation which no one wants. It is highly probable that the standards set up in the first two federal acts will be followed; that is, the prohibition of the labor of all children under 14, in all industrial occupations, and the regulation of the labor of the older children in certain dangerous occupations. Congressmen, after all, are only the representatives of the constituencies, and there is not the slightest chance that their constituencies would agree to the passage of any law which prevents all children under 18 from working.

Yours truly,
THE NATIONAL CHILD LABOR COMMITTEE.

APPEAL TO DEMOCRATS BY CHAIRMAN SHAVER

Washington, Oct. 26. — Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the national democratic committee, in formal statements issued here today, declared that "Davis and Bryan will be elected in the electoral college," and proclaimed Saturday, November 1, as "Davis Victory Day." He called on all who "believe in honesty in government," to assemble themselves to renewed efforts in these few remaining hours.

A general analysis of reports from all over the states, Shaver said, showed that the Coolidge is defeated for re-election and that "in nearly all cases La Follette will draw more votes from republicans than from the democrats." The analysis," he declared, is based on the congressional and other elections of 1922 and reports from state and country chairmen from every state in which the result is in doubt.

States carried by the democratic party in the congressional elections of 1922 would alone be sufficient to elect a democratic president,' Shaver continued. "The states carried by democrats for members of the house in that year total 277 electoral votes, or 13 majority in the electoral college. If we add to these the states carried by democratic candidates for governor or United States senator, or both, they total 82 more, or 359 electors, a majority of 137 in the electoral college."

Why Lenin Died.

Dr. Otfried Foerster, professor of psychiatry and neurology at Breslau university, who attended Lenin in his last illness, writes of this in a recent issue of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, translated by the Living Age of April 5. "Lenin's illness," says Dr. Foerster, "is arterio sclerosis, probably due to an inherited tendency, for his father died relatively young of a similar arterial disease. Undoubtedly his abnormally heavy responsibilities and duties and the life of constant excitement he led decidedly encouraged the development of this predisposition. So insistent were the demands upon his time, as he himself told me, that for weeks and months he had scarcely two hours' sleep out of the 24."

Flies Without Fathers.

A certain tribe of flies investigated by Dr. A. D. Peacock of Armstrong college has managed to do away almost entirely with the male of the species. Good news for the rabid feminists! Children are born to the fly-women without the co-operation or assistance of the men. The males are almost without any value in this fly community. Inasmuch as the fatherless fly children are nearly all females, it may be that this tribe will eventually eliminate its useless males entirely.

NORWICH SCOUTS SEE BROWN—YALE GAME

Over 60 Norwich scouts and officials witnessed the spectacular playing of Yale in the fourth period of the Brown-Yale game in the Yale Bowl Saturday afternoon.

Seventy-five seats were reserved by the Yale athletic association for Norwich Scouts. Twelve automobiles loaned by good friends of the boys transported the party to the game.

Most of the scouts were interested in seeing Yale win, but were quite despondent during the first three quarters of the game when the score stood 3 0 in favor of Brown. But near the end of the fourth quarter the rally of the bulldogs led by Cottle and Lindley put them in good spirits with a score of 13 to 3.

GEORGE A. FINN

Upon a complaint alleging the embezzlement of $40,000 on Sept. 15 from the Bankers Trust Co., George A. Finn, who had been its secretary and treasurer up to last Thursday, was arrested about 8.30 o'clock at his home at East Great Plain by Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer Sharvan and was brought to police headquarters. Bonds were fixed at $80,000, twice the amount of the alleged embezzlement, and in default of these Mr. Finn is still in custody to appear before the city court this (Monday) morning.

At that time it is expected that he will be bound over to the January term of the superior court. Mr. Finn has secured as counsel Attorneys J. J. Desmond and Charles L. Stewart who were in consultation with him several times Sunday at police headquarters where he is confined in the special detention room outside of the cell room.

Bank is Solvent.

Immediate action has been taken by President Angus Park and the bank directors to cover the shortage in the bank in full and statements were issued Saturday night by President Park and by State Bank Commissioner John F. Byrne of Putnam, that the bank is sound and solvent. It will be open for business as usual this (Monday) morning.

Defalcation of $146,261.39.

Following the arrest of Mr. Finn, Bank Commissioner Byrne of Putnam, who had come here Friday afternoon, issued a statement in which he set the amount of defalcation at $146,261.39, and said further that the shortage had been fully made up by the bank directors, that the bank is in a perfectly solvent condition and that its depositors are fully protected.

Commissioner Byrne's Statement

The examination of the condition of the Bankers Trust company, Norwich, at the close of business October 24, 1924, discosed shortages in the assets of the bank to the amount of $91,620.34, also unauthorized loans and overdrafts amounting to $54,641.06. This condition was brought about through the operations during the past four months of George A. Finn, the former treasurer of the bank. Upon notification of the extent of the defalcation the directors at once placed in the bank cash to an amount which with the recovery on the surety bond of the Bankers Trust company's former treasurer and further recoveries on securities turned over by Mr. Finn will fully cover all losses sustained. As a result of this action on the part of the directors the bank is in a sound and solvent condition and its depositors are fully protected.

President Park's Statement.

Martin E. Jensen, a citizen of whom it may be said that the community has the fullest confidence, has been made acting secretary and treasurer of the bank, according to a statement given out Saturday night by President Park as follows:

As soon as any discrepancies or shortage in the accounts of Mr. Finn as treasurer of the Bankers Trust company were discovered by the officers of the bank, the resignation of Mr. Finn as the secretary and treasurer of the bank was secured by me and also his resignation as one of the directors. Mr. Martin E. Jensen was selected as the acting secretary and treasurer of the bank. In Mr. Jensen we have now a man in charge well known to every business man in this section of the state. Upon the arrival of the bank commissioner from Hartford who rescinded immediately a full and complete examination of the assets and liabilities of the bank was instituted by him and his staff. The shortage was immediately restorde to the bank in cash by me. Mr. Finn was responsible for the shortage and guilty of speculation on the stock market unbeknown to the officers and directors of the bank. It appears that he also had some dealings on his own acount with one Gabriel Berker who is utterly unknown to me or any officer of the bank. These dealings do not involve the bank in any way. My first concern is, has been and will be, the absolute protection of every single depositor of the bank. I am supported in this position by every director of the bank. The depositors are amply protected and need have no apprehension whatever.

Bank Officials Made Discovery.

Discovery that there had been embezzlement from the bank by Treasurer Finn was made last week by the officers of the bank, who at once compelled the resignation of Mr. Finn as treasurer and secretary and secured Mr. Jensen as acting treasurer and secretary. Bank Commissioner Byrne was then summoned here, arriving Friday afternoon and his examination confirmed the facts that had been discovered by the directors.

The next step was to make good the shortage, which was accomplished by President Park and the directors placing in the bank the lump sum of $100,000 in cash, which the recovery on the bond of Mr. Finn and the securities turned over by him fully covered the shortage.

Such action by the directors in supporting the bank with such a large sum of ready cash, Mr. Byrne declared to be very unusual and rarely equalled in such a situation and was deserving of the highest commendation.

In spite of the large sum embezzled the bank is not out a dollar and its financial condition is unimpaired, in fact is improved, as one of the directors pointed out through the elimination of a condition that carried the promise of disaster if it had not been discovered and stopped.

Made Complete Check-up.

All day Sunday a force of six or seven bank examiners were at work at the bank making a complete check-up of its condition. This had been completed so far by Sunday night that Commissioner Byrne stated that it had been definitely determined that all possible shortages had been determined and the check-up had verified the figures that he had given out Saturday. The whole amount of the embezzlement has now been disclosed. Lester E. Shippee, assistant to the bank examiner, was in charge of the check-up work.

The arrest of Mr. Finn was made on a warrant issued by City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins upon a complaint by Commissioner Byrne and the date and amount named in the writ represent the largest single day of embezzlement by Mr. Finn. The criminal prosecution is not sought by the bank officers, but is out of their hands entirely. In fact their sympathy for him and particularly for his family is so strong that there would have been no difficulty to secure bonds for him among the directors but they refrained from doing so upon the advice they received.

Playing Stock Market.

Playing the stock market through the brokerage house of Gabriel Berker & Co., which has an office upstairs in the Thayer building on the second floor above the bank.

Mr. Berker is out of the city and as far as the bank officials know is somewhere in the south. One of the heavy transactions in which Mr. Finn is concerned with him is the acceptance of overdrafts of $53,000 options on coal land in Kentucky which are held by one J. B. Allen. Who Mr. Allen is the bank officials do not know.

Mr. Berker lives at 17 Huntington place, has a cottage at Crescent beach, and is reported recently to have taken out a $100,000 life insurance policy and bought three automobiles. It seems to be a coincidence that his sudden apparent prosperity has been about parallel with the four months during which the embezzlements have been going on at the bank. The check-up made on Sunday showed that there had been no misuse of the bank funds before July and that all of Mr. Finn's operations had been since then.

Rally to Bank's Support.

Mingled with a universal expression of sympathy for Mr. Finn Sunday was the unanimity with which individuals and organizations sprang to the support of the bank with declarations of confidence in its management and the advice that this was not a time for criticism but for action that would be effective to prevent such an attitude.

Chamber of Commerce.

Sunday night, at a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce at which the resignation of Mr. Finn as treasurer and a director was presented and accepted the following statement was issued:

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, on Sunday evening, to consider the present condition of the Bankers Trust Company of Norwich, and after individual conference with officers of the bank, the board of directors of the chamber voted as follows:

1. To declare our positive belief that the Bankers Trust company is solvent.

2. To direct that the moneys of the chamber of commerce now deposited in the Bankers Trust company be continued on deposit without present interruptions.

3. To declare that the action of President Angus Park and the directors of the bank, in depositing personally with the bank cash to equalize the money missing from the bank, is a guarantee that the Bankers Trust company is safeguarding every deposit large or small

4. To declare that the action of the directors of the Bankers Trust company, in first seeing a possible irregularity, then immediately themselves investigating, and thereupon summoning the state bank examiners to investigate the suspicious actions, is surety of their past vigilance and their intention honorably to meet all obligations in full.

5. To record their belief in the honor and integrity of those now responsible for the Bankers Trust company, long trusted by the citizens of Norwich and meriting continued confidence.

For the Board of Directors Norwich Chamber of Commerce.
JOHN J. O'ROURKE.
Secretary.

Rev. A. H. Abott's Advice.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, who spoke briefly at the Sunday morning service at the United Congregational church in urging confidence in the management of the bank, gave the following statement to The Bulletin Sunday evening:

"We all need the sense of stability when confidence has received a shock. Today it would be well for us to remember certain facts, as follows:

"1. A suspicion came to certain directors of the Bankers Trust Company Wednesday of last week that there was something wrong in its operations. On Thursday the suspicion was verified as a fact. On Friday morning state bank examiners were summoned by the directors of the bank. On Saturday night the investigation was completed, and the treasurer of the bank was under arrest. The speed with which the directors of the bank moved speaks of their desire and intention to deal honorably and fearlessly with a bad situation.

"2. On Friday night the directors of the bank arrived at the conclusion that $146,000 was missing from the funds. On Saturday morning at nine o'clock the equivalent of that sum was personally deposited by President Park and the directors, to cover the maximum shortage. This act, one which the community recognizes as from men whom we have long respected, clearly speaks of their own moral intergrity, to meet honorably obligations regardless of effects upon themselves. Such an action is another reason for believing in the stability of the institution with which they have to do.

"3. We are informed by competent authorities, namely the state bank examiners and the directors of the bank that the Bankers Trust Company is absolutely solvent, and, under the direction of those at present responsible for it, thoroughly deserves the continued confidence of the community.

"I have been led to write this because in the last twenty-four hours I have been in close contact with many of the men in the community who are responsibly connected with the whole situation; and I feel in duty bound to add, in any way I can, to the merited confidence in which we hold those who are in the very center of this community sorrow and burden."

At Holy Name Meeting.

Rev. W. A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, who addressed a county meeting of the Holy Name society Sunday afternoon, prefaced his remarks with a few words in which he advised the men to show their confidence in the bank management and avoid doing anything that would tend to destroy the confidence at such a time.

Lions Vote Support.

The Norwich Lions club, of which Mr. Finn is president, held a special luncheon at noon at the Wauregan house at which they passed a vote of confidence in the bank and pledged not to make withdrawals of money, but to show their confidence by making deposits when the bank is open for business today (Monday).

Spoke to B'Nai Brith Auxiliary.

At a meeting of the B'Nai Brith Auxiliary held Sunday evening, Abner Schwartz, one of the bank directors, addressed them in the same general line and the members voted strong approval of the advice he gave.

Bank Officers Meet

Since Friday there have been almost constant meetings of the bank officers in which all phases of the situation have been under discussion.

The officers and trustees of Bankers' Trust Co., are: President, Angus Park; vice presidents, Timothy C. Murphy, Charles A. Saxton and Joseph C. Worth; acting secretary and treasurer, Martin E. Jensen; trustees, the officers and L. J. Fontaine, Edwin W. Higgins, David D. Disco, James Graham, Abner Schwartz, Charles D. Foster, H. M. Lerou, William H. Cruickshank, James J. Donohue and Martin Rozycki.

Mr. Finn, who came from Greenwich, was a former state bank examiner. He has been secretary and treasurer of the bank since its was organized three years ago and has been prominent and popular in many different civic activities. Besides being president of the Lions' club and treasurer of the chamber of commerce he has been president of the Men's Brotherhood and Trinity Episcopal church and treasurer of the Armistice day fund. He is married and has four children.

His brother and his brother-in-law from Greenwich were here to see him Sunday, members of the Lions' club also saw him and other citizens offered their sympathy and assurance of whatever aid they might be able to give.

DEATH OF REV. JOHN E. CLARK, PASTOR OF ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

Willimantic, Oct. 26.—Rev. John E. Clark, 59, pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic parish here since Nov. 1, 1918, died shortly before 9 o'clock Sunday evening following a shock sustained one hour earlier. Rev. Father Clark had been in ill health for several months, having sustained a severe shock some weeks ago, at which time he was taken to his bed and partly lost his power of speech. He had gradually regained strength, however, and there was hope of his recovery, the news of his death coming as a great surprise to his parishioners.

At 8.45 o'clock the bells in the tower of St. Joseph's church tolled in announcement of the passing of the beloved pastor. Sorrow overwhelmed not only the members of the parish which he had so successfully administered for six years past, but the entire population of the city, throughout which he was widely known and most highly esteemed.

Rev. John E. Clark was born in Jewett City Aug. 6, 1865, the son of Patrick and Mary Sullivan Clark. As a boy he moved with his family to Stafford Springs, where he received his elementary education. He later attended St. Michael's college at Toronto, graduating from that institution and entering Grand seminary, Montreal.

Dec. 19, 1891, at the age of 26, he was ordained to the priesthood, having reached the first step in his life's ambition. He was assigned to Rockville, this state, where he was curate for four years at St. Bernard's church, going from there to St. Francis Xavier church in Waterbury.

In 1901 he became a curate at St. Joseph's in Bristol. He was given his first pastorate Oct. 31, 1901, of St. John's, Montville, and in 1902 he became pastor of St. Patrick's church, Collinsville, remaining there eleven years. After five years as pastor of the Sacred Heart church in Suffield he succeeded the late Rev. T. F. Bannon as pastor of St. Joseph's church here, Nov. 1, 1918.

St. Joseph's church was organized in 1860.

Father Clark is survived by six sisters, Mary and Catherine Clark, who made their home at the rectory here, Jane Clark of Hartford, Mrs. Margaret Rafftery of Hartford, Mrs. Alice Dempsey of Salem, Mass., and Miss Teresa Clark of East Orange, N. J., and by one brother, James Clark, of Paris, Ill.

Rev. Father Clark's administration of the affairs of the local parish was very able. Alert for the spiritual and material welfare of his parishioners, he was beloved as the faithful leader of his congregation. His sermons were sound and practical, and he was credited with wide influence which made itself felt far beyond his parish bounds.

In the business enterprises of the parish he displayed judgment and ability and his annual reports showed the parish was in flourishing financial condition, with a clear margin of surplus funds. During his regime several notable improvements have been achieved, including the construction of an assembly hall in the basement of the church, redecorating the rectory, improving the grounds and miscellaneous alterations.

He was born in Hebron Dec. 5, 1834, and is survived by two daughters and by three sons, John of Hollister, William of Willimantic and Silas Griggs of Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Griggs was a veteran of the Civil war.

GENERAL INCREASE IN FACTORY EMPLOYMENT

Washington, Oct. 26.—A general increase of production of basic commodities, factory employment and distribution of merchandise was noted in September and there was a considerable increase in the volume of borrowing from commercial purposes in September and early October, the Federal Reserve Board said in a statement today.

The board's index of production on basis industries, adjusted for seasonal variations, rose nine per cent. in September, the first advance since January, it was said. Increased activities were noted in many lines of industry, including textiles, iron and steel, and coal. Building contracts awarded showed an increase over September a year ago.

"During the five weeks ending October 15," the statement said, "loans and investments of reporting member banks in leading cities increased by more than $600,000,000. Credit demand for financing the marketing of crops and the fall activity of trade was reflected in increased commercial loans throughout the country and the total volume of these loans rose to a level considerably above the peak of October 1923. Member bank investments in securities continued to increase and loans on stocks and bonds also advanced. A further growth of demand deposits carried theor total to the highest figure on record.

SEVERAL UPSETS MARK SATURDAY'S BATTLES ON COLLEGE GRIDIROUS

New York, Oct. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Pennsylvania, Lafayette and Syracuse, the only prominent eastern elevens neither beaten nor tied, stand out as the big three of eastern football during the current season.

Dartmouth, Yale, Rutgers and Lehigh have not been defeated but have tie games upon their record. Harvard, Williams, Princeton and Washington and Jefferson joined the battalion of the doomed after Saturday's games.

Syracuse had the hardest fight to remain immaculate and emerged as a 9 to 6 victor over Penn State by grace of a fumble in the first period that permitted a touchdown which superior play by the Nittany Lion throughout the rest of the game could not overcome. Penn State made eight first downs and held the Vaunted Syracuse backfield to two.

Lafayette continued to impress as one of the really great elevens of the season by completely outplaying W. and J and winning 20 to 6. The presidents' lone touchdown; made in the final minutes, was the first scored on Lafayette this season. Gebhardt and Berry starred for the eastern team.

Pennsylvania won its sixth straight game by beating Virginia 27 to 0, using an aerial attack to do it. Rutgers and Lehigh remained unbeaten by struggling through a 13-13 tie. Bennett and Hazel tallied all of the Rutgers points and quarter back Levin did the same for Lehigh.

Dartmouth played errorless ball and cleared by 6 to 0 a rugged but ragged Harvard squad. It was the second straight win for the green over the Crimson—a record in the series.

Notre Dame also made it two straight over Princeton with a 12 to 0 victory over the Tiger. Crowley made both touchdowns and Layden, the versatile fullback. Stuhldreher, quarterback genius of the Hoosier attack was here and will be out of the games with Georgia Tech and Wisconsin.

Yale prevented the big three from stepping into the eclipse by scoring two touchdowns in the final four minutes of play and turning an apparent 6 to 0 victory for Brown into a 13 to 6 triumph. Cottle's 60-yard run for a touchdown turned back the gloom which had settled over the bowl.

Columbia sounded a warning that the Houghton system may have bored its way to a firm foundation by overcoming Williams, conqueror of Cornell, 27 to 3 in the biggest surprise of the day. The Columbia line, supposedly weak, did its share in a performance which stamped Columbia as a machine bordering upon real power as well.

West Virginia scored an unimpressive 13 to 6, victory over center college at the Polo grounds. Farley and Murrin, substitute sophomore backs, humiliated the mountaineers at needed moments. Covington was the bright star among the almost colorless colleagues.

Carnegie Tech lived up its character as a tartar by winning the Smoky City test from Pitt 6 to 0. A 63-yard run by Captain Newman of the plaid in the first quarter settled the issue. Georgetown made four touchdowns in the second to 0 to 0 victory over Hobart. Cornell defeated Georgetown 14 to 6. The Navy, already beaten by Marquette and Princeton, was further humiliated 20 to 0 by torpedo fired West Virginia Wesleyan. Army won an easy 29 to 0 win over Boston University. Holy Cross beat Villanova 33 to 0 and Boston College beat Fordham, Allegheny by the same score.

BULKELEY BEATS CROSBY FIRST TIME IN 20 YEARS

New London, Oct. 26.—Four years ago on October 25 to be exact, a team and fighting Bulkeley football team met Crosby High at Waterbury, on the day after the Orange and Black game with Vocational High ... subsequently turned out to be victory for Bulkeley. Several first team players were absent from the squad which departed for Waterbury on the date mentioned above, and with this makeshift team, Bulkeley was forced to bow to a 34 to 0 defeat at the hands of Crosby. Four years later, that stinging defeat still in the minds of the Bulkeley team was wiped away and with it old scores were settled in a most satisfying manner. To avenge that defeat, Bulkeley gave all that was in her in forty-eight minutes of gruelling football, that not only brought out the Orange and Black the winner and that by a 34 to 0 score, but it gave the local institution its first football victory ever gained over Crosby High in some twenty odd years of football.

It was a crushing defeat, handed to the visitors by an aggressive, flashy fighting Bulkeley eleven which knew not when to stop but to continue to amass points, much to the delight of local fans—of which there were close to 3,000—and much to the chargin of the visitors. Crosby was outclassed, in all departments, and the fact that the Blue and White made but two first downs will in some way give enlightment upon the subject. Bulkeley was too smart for the visitors from the start and all the tricks and various shift plays were not needed to advance the ball. Diversified football, and excellent running, not of the spectacular kind but of the steady, plodding kind, which netted nearly all the gains, found the locals a team which gained their third victory of the year.

No one had the slightest thought that in a short space of two months that Bulkeley would produce a team that is at present sharing the honors of the elite of high school elevens in this state and out. Directly back of this success, stands a man who is responsible in many ways for the success of the present Bulkeley team. And that man is none other than Coach W. R. Canty. He has made Bulkeley's progress in the football world one of the greatest a team ever experienced. His methods are certainly bringing results.

RANGERS LOSE CLOSE GAME TO ANSONIA

New London, Oct. 26.—The New London Ranger soccer team came close to breaking through for a victory this afternoon in a regular contest of the Connecticut league. Due to some unfortunate breaks of the game, the Rangers lost to the strong Ansonia F. C. eleven in an exciting contest at Calkins field this afternoon. The final tally was 3 goals to 2 with the last year's state champions on top.

Ansonia by scoring three goals in the first half gained an early lead that was nearly cut to even terms by the ambitious Ranger outfit. But the locals fell one goal short of giving them a tie at least, for they deserved this if not a victory. Cleanly outplaying the visitors in the second half, only some unlooked for breaks prevented the Rangers of tieing the score after Fortune and Crawford had scored twice with excellent goals. Several other attempts at the Ansonia goal netted nothing but disappointment, the ball just going a trifle wide of the goal posts or being diverted from a true course by a wide awake goal keeper. To keep the ball out of the hands of the Rangers, Ansonia played a defensive game and kept the ball to themselves by short passes near the side lines.

The Ansonia victory was really a gift, for one of the Ranger backs in an exciting moment kicked the ball between the goal posts and gave Ansonia a score which they did not deserve. But the showing made by the Rangers shows this team has possibilities, and holding a team like Ansonia to a close score it did proves a good deal. For it must be explained that Ansonia last season's state champions, saw play in the final national championship.

BRADFORD WINS EASILY FROM NEW LONDON

New London, Oct. 26. — Bradford found the All New London football team an easy eleven and returned to Rhode Island on the top of a 13 to 7 score. Scoring all of their points in the first half, all the visitors had to do in the final half was hold and this they did to some extent successfully. However, an almost new combination opposed the Bradfords in the second half and by some steady line plunging, the All New Londons with Fulford on the scoring end received their only score of the afternoon.

The second combination entered under local colors showed more speed than the first team to oppose the Bradfords in the opening half. But the mistake was made and an attempt to remedy it by sending the strong eleven into the fray in the second half resulted in a defeat for the locals.

ACADEMY TEAM WINS EASY VICTORY OVER STONINGTON GRID WARRIORS

Living up to expectations, the Academy football eleven swamped Stonington High school to the tune of 15-0 Saturday afternoon. Playing a hard, snappy game, the Academy completely outplayed their opponents in every part of the contest.

On the defensive, the Academy line was a stone wall, the boys getting through and stopping plays of the visitors before they got going On the offensive the backfield men worked smoothly, going through continually for first downs.

In the first and second quarters there was much fumbling done by both teams that proved costly in the end. On two occasions the Academy boys were ploughing their way through for a score when fumbling prevented them from going over. However the locals rose up for this by holding their opponents.

Stonington although trying its best and fighting every minute was no match for the Academy boys. At times they were completely dazed by the attacks of the home teams. Duke was their only gainer. Coffey also played a good game for Stonington.

For the Academy, Hinrichs and MacGowan without doubt, were the shining fights. Hinrichs got through for gains that netted much ground. On the line Gilman, Hollander and Carlin starred.

The Academy team, as a whole, has shown marked improvement and the outlook for them in future contests is encouraging. The game by quarters was as follows:

AMERICAN COACH IS TERMED AS "SLAVE DRIVER"

Paris, Oct. 26.—American football training methods, as instilled into the usually placid early practice in France by Dick Hyland of California, star of the American Olympic rugby team, have proven anything but popular and Hyland is charged by his teammates with being a 'slave driver."

Hyland has just been granted an amateur license by the French Rugby Federation and will play with the Stade Francais club if Paris, one of the strongest teams in France. He has already had several weeks of practice. During the absence of Adolphe Jauregui, captain of the team, Hyland as acting captain put in players through their paces with such vim and energy that the Frenchmen went on strike.

BAKER PASSES GRANGE AS HIGH POINT MAN

Chicago, Oct. 26.—While the famous "Red" Grange of Illinios, took a day off, Captain Baker of Northwestern passed him by one point in the list of leading point scorers of the big ten, by kicking two field goals which gave him team victory over Michigan Aggies.

Gallivan, Grange's team mate, went into third behind "Red," scoring three touchdowns, a place kick and a point after touchdown against the helpless DePauw eleven.

Baker divided field goal honors with Hancock of Iowa, who also kicked his second one of the season against Chicago, and that game ended with only a field goal for each team.

Captain Herb Steger of Michigan, added the fifth touchdown to his string, equalling Lorber, of the Indiana team which did not play Saturday.

Britton of Illinois leads the point kickers, having had the greatest number of opportunities on Coach Zuppke's high scoring squad. He registered all five of his chances Saturday but missed three of the six against Michigan the week before.

Baker, Northwestern	43	4	7	4
Grange, Illinois	42	7	0	0
Gallivan, Illinois	24	5	1	1

ILLINOIS LEADS IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The half way point in the big ten conference championship race finds Illinois in undisputed possession of first place, due to the tie scores marring the record of the other three undefeated elevens. Chicago and Iowa ar close behind the Illinois with a victory and at tie score each, while Ohio has a victory and two tie scores.

The race still is so close that, with heavier part of the schedule yet to come, the tall-end Indiana and Northwestern teams are but a game apart from the leaders, because many of the games already played were with non-conference teams and are omitted from the conference standings. Three tie games have been played, Ohio state figuring in two of them, against Iowa and Chicago, and Minnesota tieing Wisconsin in the other ones.

Iowa's big ten opponents have so far failed to register a single point against the Hawkeyes, although Lawrence college made five points against them in a non-conference game.

The conference standing, including only big ten games, follows:

Team	Lost	Tied	Points	Opponent's Points
Illinois	0	0	39	14
Chicago	0	1	26	3
Iowa	0	1	13	0
Ohio	0	1	10	3
Michigan	1	0	35	39
Purdue	1	0	7	10
Minnesota	1	1	7	28
Wisconsin	1	1	7	23
Indiana	1	0	0	22
Northwestern	0	0	3	7

GAME AT SUB BASE FIELD THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 26. — Remaining idle over the week end, the Submarine Base will get into action on Monday afternoon at the Sub Base grounds against the U. S. S. Wyoming. This game will be one of the features of the Navy Day exercises which will be prevalent over the entire country.

If the Wyoming eleven can give as good account of itself on Monday as the U. S. S. Wright did in the opening game of the season for the Base, then it will be worth while seeing the contest. Little is known of the team which is to oppose the local gobs, and their campaigning upon the gridiron is not so extensive. But if the football game is one of the features of Navy Day, then it should be a good game.

MAY BE NO PRINCETON AND NOTRE DAME GAME IN 1925

New York, Oct. 26.—No arrangements for a Notre Dame-Princeton game in 1925 have been made, Director of Athletics Rockne said today before leaving with his squad for the west. Negotiations with Pennsylvania for a home-and-home series which would bring the Hoosiers to Philadelphia in 1925 and the Quakers to Chicago in 1926, which had been announced last week, had not been completed, Rockne said.

Western alumni of Notre Dame and football lovers in Chicago are said to be anxious to make the second eastern opponents of Notre Dame with a school willing to agree to the home-and-home arrangements. The Army classic is now played on neutral ground.

NOTRE DAME QUARTERBACK HURT IN PRINCETON GAME

New York, Oct. 26.—Quarterback Henry Stuhldreher of the Notre Dame football eleven sustained an injury to his shoulder at Princeton which will keep him out of the Georgia Tech and Wisconsin games, Coach Knute Rockne said today after and X-ray of the injury had been examined.

With Captain Adam Walsh out of the line-up with a broken hand the Indiana eleven will be without its two biggest cogs until the important clash with Nebraska.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

It is no vain boast when Marshal Neilan claims to have selected one of the most auspicious casts ever gathered together in one photoplay for his production of Tess of the D'Urbervilles, the Metro-Goldwyn picture to be shown at the Breed theater today, Tuesday and Wednesday. All of the players are extremely well known and their ability has been proven countless times.

Blanche Sweet and Conrad Nagel play the leading roles of the filmed Thomas Hardy novel, Stuart Holmes, one of the most convincing villains on the screen, plays an important part, George Fawcett judged by many to be the best character actor working before the camera, Courtenay Foote Joseph J. Dowling, who is remembered vividly for his marvelous performance in The Miracle Man, Victory Bateman, Jane Mercer and others portray the familiar Hardy characters to perfection.

Other pictures on the bill include the Spat family in Radio Mad and the Pathe news.

Open Y. M. C. A. Course This Evening

The unusually fine course of entertainments under Y. M. C. A. auspices will be opened to night at the local Y. M. C. A. building.

The popular concert company, The Radio Girls, will entertain with an attractive program. This company consists of five vivacious, enthusiastic American girls, whose unique program is based upon the latest modern miracle. To tell all the details regarding it would destroy the surprise features. May it suffice to say, that special stage settings and original electric effects create an atmosphere that marks this company as one of the most interesting and colorgul in years.

The Radio Girls feature the well-known Hearon Sisters, artists of international reputation. Anna and Charlotte Hearon have toured this country many seasons. Panama three years, and spent eighteen months with the American Expeditionary Forces in the Combat Division at the front.

Under their able production are produced delightful novelty numbers from the latest musical productions, humorous sketches, instrumental and vocal selections, readings and impersonations.

Tickets for the course are priced at $2.60. Tickets for this evenings concert 75 cents at Y. M. C. A. or Smiths Shoe Store.

Palace Theater

No two characters of fiction can equal the record of Montague Glass's famous partners, Potash and Perlmutter. These two gentlemen, purveyors of cloaks and suits, have made people laugh in fourteen different languages. Their quaint sayings and their whimsical adventures have brought forth many a hearty American roar, round German guffaw, polite French titter, sedate British chuckle.

In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter now playing at the Palace is the second of these stories to be brought to the screen by Samuel Goldwyn. It is an adaptation of the play Business Before Pleasure, but instead of leaving its heroes in the cloak and suit trade, it takes them to Hollywood here they try their hands at producing movies.

Added attractions, Ben Turpin in Mack Sennett's latest two reel comedy riot Three Foolish Weeks and Pathe News.

Broadway.

Jordan and Hayes open the programme. These two men offer singing, comedy and acrobatic dancing.

A fine routine of stories and songs is offered by Roger Williams, the boy from Dixie. A bit of novelty is thrown in as a surprise.

Le Roy and Lytton have a new comedy skit that is sure to get the laughs.

A real surprise is offered for the closing number by The Three Lordans in "Lights Out." A human "loop the loop" around the bar is just one of the many sensational feats that make you gasp.

There were times yesterday, as we sat watching Merbert Brenall's production, "The Side Show of Life" at the Broadway theatre, when we laughed right out loud. There were also times when we could not keep back the tears; and there were other times when we weren't at all sure whether we were laughing or crying. From this you will rather that it is a screenplay of fundamental human emotion and human suffering, sacrifice and love. Life itself is a mixture of laughter and tears.

"The Mountebank," by William J. Locke is the story from which the picture was adapted by Willis Goldbeck and Julie Herne. It deals with the adventurers of a circus clown who becomes a general during the war, falls in love with a titled English lady only to come to the bitter realization, when the war is over, that once a clown, always a clown! It a series of heart-tugging situations a powerful climax is reached, and from this point on the picture moseeds on to a happy and triumphant finish.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Minstrel Boy

The minstrel boy to the war is gone,
In the ranks of death you'll find him;
His father's sword he has girded on,
And his wild harp slung behind him.
"Land of song," said the warrior bard,
"Tho' all the world betrays thee,
One sword, at least, thy rights shall guard,
One faithful harp shall praise thee!"

The minstrel fell—but the foeman's chain
Could not bring his proud soul under;
The harp he loved ne'er spoke again,
For he tore its chords asunder;
And said, "No chains shall sully thee,
Thou soul of love and bravery!
Thy songs were made for the pure and free,
They shall never sound in slavery!"

—Thomas Moore.

The Flower

Once in a golden hour
I cast to earth a seed
Up there came a flower,
The people said, a weed.

To and fro they went
Thro' my garden bower,
And muttering discontent,
Curs'd me and my flower.

Then it grew so tall
It wore a crown of light,
But thieves from o'er the wall
Stole the seed by night.

Sow'ed it far and wide
By every town and tower,
Till all the people cried,
"Splendid is the flower."

Read my little fable:
He that runs may read
Most can raise the flowers now,
For all have got the seed.

And some are pretty enough,
And some are poor indeed;
And now again the people
Call it but a weed.

—Tennyson.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE AWAKES

The manufacture of paper is an interesting study. Paper is a highly important article today and it would be practically impossible to get along without it now. There was a time, in ancient days, when people did not have a great deal of use for paper money but today it is an absolute necessity in a great many lines of business.

To a Chinese by the name of Ts'ai-lun belongs the credit for the first paper. In the year A. D. 75 he made the first hand sheet of paper from the bark of a mulberry tree. Previous to this time leaves of various trees and various kinds of bark were used by the Egyptians, Romans and the people of other ancient nations.

However the Chinese people did not use the crude inner bark of trees as the material on which to make their records. Instead they used the bark as raw material from which they produced finished sheets of paper by a series of processes, primitive but effective. For about 800 years China monopolized the art of making paper. Then the secret was learned by the Arabs who improved on the Chinese processes by using cotton rags and linen instead of bark.

About the year 1800 it was discovered that good paper could be made from wood and since then the manufacture of wood pulp paper has increased by leaps and bounds until today over 400 varieties of woods and grasses are used in making paper. This has been due to the enormous demands of printing establishments and of commerce in general. Linen and cotton rags are still used in making paper but only for the finest kind of paper. Practically all of the paper in general use today is made from wood pulp.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Dream

Uncle Jed: One day I was going through the woods I met a fairy. She was all dressed in gold. What a pretty sight she made blickering among the sunbeams that shined through the tree tops.

When I first saw the fairy I didn't know what it was and was rather frightened but as I came nearer I saw that she was smiling at me. She came very near me and then sat down She told me that she lived in a lovely palace in the woods and when she went away from it, it all turned into woods but when she came to the door and said some words it all came back again.

She told me if I followed her she would take me to it. I followed her for about half a mile then she stopped and said something in a low tone and the door opened.

Inside I saw a beautiful room. The floor was made of marble. The door and walls of gold, the window shades were made of silk and all decorated with shining diamonds. The furniture was all made of white ivory. I saw all that in one glance. When I went inside. I saw about ten little men and women. They were only two or three feet high.

When they saw the fairy come in they all knelt down to her. She told one of them to show me a chamber. I went up stairs and when I reached my room, the funny little man was gone. I looked around. It was a very pretty room. I went to the window and looked out. All the trees were in bloom. After a while the fairy came up and she told me lots of stories. Before I knew it it was dark and I started to go home. She took hold of my hand to say good bye but it was not the fairy it was my mother telling me to get up and get ready for school.

Two Little Kittens

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my new kittens. My neighbors gave me two little kittens. One of the kittens has a black face. I am going to name him Nigger. The other has large black spots on his back. I am going to name him Snotey. I feed them milk. I like them very much.

LUCILLE AGNES HOLDEN, Age 9

My Puppy

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about my puppy. I have had my puppy for two months. When I come home from school he gives me his paw. He bites me. He goes every where my grandfather goes. He does not go in the state road. His bites the cat. I like him very much. His name is Captain.

ALBERT RUDOLPH, Age 9.
Yantic, Conn.

A Clever Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: While walking down a street I was suddenly attracted by the sight of a little girl about seven years old. She was about to cross the street and just got to the middle of the road when a bell rang and the fire engine came along. The little girl was paralyzed with fear. The firemen were frightened when they saw this little girl running in front of them. The tried to call to her but it was of no use. The firemen had a clever dog with them. This dog went in front of the girl and in front of the horses to save the girl. The people praised the dog for saving the girl's life.

ELIZABETH VALLIER, Age 12.

My Playhouse

Dear Uncle Jed: Early in the spring, my father got some old piano boxes. Half the summer passed away, and my father picked some string beans, but the rest he pulled up and spread over one piano box to dry, for making baked beans for winter. The piano box happened to be in the old strawberry bed, under an apple tree. I pulled up all the weeds and smoothed the ground. Of course I couldn't stand up in it, but I could stoop in it. I took my play-dishes up there and played. Later I made a stone table. I took one flat stone and put another smaller one on top of that. Then I took a still smoother and larger one and put it over the other two. This served as a table. For chairs, I took large stones and sat on them. Of course I could only sit on one of the others. Then I made a table cloth by sewing pieces of cloth together. Then I set my table and had crackers to eat.

One day my two cousins came up. They couldn't get enough crackers. Their names are Homer and Roland. They are both boys. Homer is two and one half and Roland is four and one half. Roland goes to kindergarten. They had great fun in my playhouse, but every time Homer went inside, he generally bumped his head.

LOUISE PECKHAM, Age 11.

My Most Interesting Neighbor

Dear Uncle Jed: My most interesting neighbor was an old lady. She did not have any children to do her work or to go on errands. I did this for her.

I used to go over to her house and she would amuse me by telling me stories about what she did when she was young. I was very interested in these stories.

Last month she moved to North Windham. This old lady was the most interesting neighbor I ever had. I miss her very much.

HELEN BROWN, Age 10.

A Narrow Escape

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing for the first time. My story will be about Escaping a Train.

It was a very dark night when my father and I were coming home from a visit. We had to cross a railroad. As we neared the tracks no train sound was heard. We crossed the tracks. When toot toot the engine was seen coming around the corner. It skinned our back wheel. I think that a very narrow escape.

An Early Caller

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time. So I hope you will enjoy my story. This morning as I was getting dressed, a girl friend, who was visiting us, saw a strange bird sitting on the roof of our ell. She called to mother and I. Then she showed us that funny bird, mother said that she thought it was a qual, but we finally discovered it was a partridge. We think it was either scared or resting near the apple tree looking for bugs. After watching it a few minutes it flew away in the direction of the tree. It was rather a strange place for a partridge, don't you think so?

GENEVA OLSSON, Age 9.

A Story About Japan

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you that we have stories about the Japanese. The Japanese belong to the yellow race. They have slanting eyes like the Chinese. The Japanese go to school and learn the same things that we do. They are very polite to their teachers and schoolmates. Many toys are made in Japan. Dolls and kites are their favorite toys. We get much tea and silk from Japan.

A Good Cow Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my dog. Prince is a very good cow dog. Nearly every day he goes with my brother for the cows. Sometimes he will go for the cows alone. He gets the cows and chases them in the barn. Sometimes we let the cows eat grass near the garden. He watches them and will not let them go in the garden.

Dog Likes to Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: I like the stories in your paper very much and I thought I would like to write you a letter. I am in the third grade in school. I have a little dog, his name is prince. He weighs 7 1-2 pounds and he is full grown. When we got him he only weighed two pounds. He is so cunning and walks on his hind legs and sits up. He loves to ride in our car. I love him very much.

EVELYN WELLMAN, Age 7.

Capt. John Smith

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a story and I hope you will be interested in it. Once there lived a boy by the name of John Smith.

He was a very poor boy and led a very miserable life. He started out to search for a place where he could make a settlement.

After much wandering he reached Virginia. He came at a good time. Some people were already to set out for a voyage to Jamestown. He got on the boat and joined them. Jamestown was reached and he became governor.

A Picture I Saw

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I wrote to you so I think I will write you a letter about a picture thatmy sister and I went to see. The picture was very interesting and there were a number of us children there to see it.

It was a picture of Abraham Lincoln and I am glad that I had the chance to see it.

THELMA NEUMAN, Age 6.

A Trip to the Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our trip to the beach. One day as I was lying in the hammock on the porch, my companion John came down and asked me if I wanted to go to the beach. As it was a hot day I consented. We prepared our lunch and were soon off. When we arrived there, we went in bathing. After we felt cooled off, we decided to leave the water and eat our lunch, which tasted very good. We then finished our lunch and went in to get dressed. We then walked around to see the pretty sights. After that we prepared for home. We arrived home safe and sound at exactly 5 o'clock.

The men are working init now, and painting the ceiling. There are eleven boys and five girls who go to my school. Your nephew,

The New Schoolhouse

Dear Uncle Jed: I go to school in the new schoolhouse in Preston. It is quite large. There are twenty desks in it and there is a large stove in the front of the room. We have a new white sink which the carpenters are going to put in soon. They are painting the inside of the school white. The teacher has a large desk in one corner of the room. There are sixteen scholars. Outside they have built a nice large woodshed for use to keep our wood in.

Gathering Nuts

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you a story about Nutting. I went nutting yesterday with Mary, my sister, and Vallie. My sister climbed up a tree and shook the nuts down while my friend and I picked about four quarts. After we picked all we wanted we started for home.

We brought a lunch with us so we would not feel too hungry. After we ate our lunch we started for home.

Our boat was by the pond while we went into the woods. Before we started to go we had some trouble with the boat. It stuck in the mud. After we reached to the other side my sister and I hurried home through the woods as fast as we could as it was getting dark. We both decided it was great fun to go nutting.

My Visit to Cape Cod

Dear Uncle Jed: Early one morning we started for Cape Cod. On our way we saw the forefathers monument which was in Plymouth. My father took a picture of it and then went down by the water. There we saw Plymouth Rock. We went up by the hotel and Massasoit's monument. We mailed some postcards then started for Cape Cod. On our way it began to get dark. So we stopped at three hotels but could not get a room. But finally we got one. So we stayed there until morning. Then we started for home.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet cat. She is gray with double paws. I take my cat everywhere I go. One Sunday I took her in the brush to play. She went in a little farther from where I stood. She saw a snake. Just as she was going in the snake put out his stinger to sting her. The cat pounced upon the snake and killed it.

Won First Prize

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about my school fair. It was a very interesting one. We had the fair at the Union hall in Voluntown on September nineteenth. The hall was full of people. The school boys and girls attended the school fair.

I exhibited some flowers, they were sweet peas and geranium blossoms and other flowers. I exhibited wild flowers and the one who got the greatest number of different kinds of wild flowers got the prize.

I got 45 kinds of wild flowers and won first prize on them. We are going to have another school fair next year, and hope to make it a successful one. I am going to raise a garden of my own. So I can exhibit some of my vegetables. I will close hoping that the Wide Awakes will attend our school fair next year if they can.

A Visit to New Haven

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a pupil in the fourth grade of school. One Sunday my brother and I went to New Haven to visit my aunt. We stayed a month. We had a very good time out there. One afternoon my aunt took us up to West Peak. Up there we saw the Judges' Cave.

We looked off and saw Long Island Sound.

Cheaters Never Gain

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you that cheaters never gain.

"Oh, look, Ethel," exclaimed Sadie, to her classmate as they walked home from school together.

"Aw pshaw, what's the difference You notice everything," Ethel saucily replied.

There is very much difference and quality, Ethel, hers is silk and yours is cotton.

"Well she won't know who took it, if you don't tell her."

"Oh, Ethel, surely you are not going to keep it?"

"Of course, I am, why not?"

"Your cheating and cheaters never gain."

"I don't see how I'm cheating, Joyce has mine, hasn't she?"

"Yes, but listen Ethel yours is of an inferior quality. Don't you understand that Joyce's umbrella will wear twice as long as yours?"

"That is just why I'm going to keep it."

"But that is equal to theft," Sadie protested.

You don't know what your talking about," Ethel cried angrily.

Then a strange thing happened. While the pair were still discussing the umbrella a gust of wind carried Ethel's umbrella directly in to the path of an approaching automobile. She dropped her books and ran to the rescue, with the point of the umbrella towards her, a most dangerous thing to do. Just then, however the car glided swiftly by tearing the umbrella from her grasp leaving her white and trembling with fear without hat or umbrella.

"Oh, Sadie, forgive me for my rudness Ethel sobbed. This has taught me a lesson, I will never try to cheat again." This is what we also should put into practice.

The Duke of Wellington

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes and I hope they will all like it. The name is The Duke of Wellington.

The Duke of Wellington was one day taking his usual country walk, when he heard a cry of distress. He walked to the spot and found a chubby, rosy-faced boy lying on the ground bending his head over a tame toad, and crying as if his little heart would break.

"What's the matter, my lad?" said the duke.

"Oh, sir, please, sir, my poor toad. I bring it something to eat every morning. But they are going to send me off ever so far away to school. Nobody will bring it anything to eat when I am gone, and I am afraid it will die."

"Never mind, don't cry, lad, I'll see that the toad is well fed, and you shall hear all about it when you are at school."

He then thanked the gentleman heartily, dried up his tears and went home. During the time he was at school he received five letters couched in the following terms:

Field Marshal, the Duke of Wellington is happy to inform William Harris that his toad is alive, and well.

At the Little Boy's Home

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a very hot day and a little boy was lying on his stomach under the big linden tree, reading.

Little boy, said the mother, will you please go to the garden and bring me a head of lettuce?

"Oh, I can't!" said the little boy, "I'm too hot!"

The little boy's father happened to be close by weeding the geranium bed and when he heard this, he lifted the little boy gently by the waistband, and dipped him into a great tub of water that stood ready for watering the plants. There, my son, said the father, now you are cool enough to go and get the lettuce, but remember next time that it will be easier to go at once when you are told, as then you will not have to change your clothes. The little boy went drip, drip, dripping out into the garden and brought the lettuce. Then he went drip, drip, dripping and changed his clothes, but he said never a word, for he knew there was nothing to say. That is the way they do things where the little boy lives, and he is learning the truth of the old saying:

"Come when you're called, do as you are bid.
Shut the door after you and you'll never be chid."

About My School

Dear Uncle Jed: I like to go to school. Hallowe'en is soon coming. I will have a pumpkin moonshine. Hallowe'en is the last of this month. I have a good teacher. I am in the fifth grade. I am eleven years of age. There are 35 children in our room. We have many pretty pictures in our room. We have the Best Attendance Banner for September. We have physical exercises in our yard every recess.

A Church Supper

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write about the M. E. church supper. They had baked beans, white bread, brown bread, pickles, cake, ice cream and coffee. One of the ladies made a guess cake and they sold it at auction. They also had a grab bag. We expect to have another supper and entertainment. I hope if any of the Wide Awakes were there they enjoyed the supper. I did very much.

MARGARET L. BITGOOD, Age 9.

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the time I had Sunday. I went over to my friends house and she played the piano for us and all of us sang.

Her two little cousins were there. They told about the poems they had at school. This is the end of my first story I hope you will like it because this is my first story.

RUTH BABBITT, Age 11.

The Visitor

Dear Uncle Jed: In our schoolroom we had a visitor. She came from Boston. It was yesterday afternoon she came. I think she is a teacher. This thought came to me because she seemed to be particularly interested in our language stories. She may have come to see if we could do better work than her pupils.

What Became of My Nickel

Dear Uncle Jed: While I was walking along Lawrence street I happened to see a nickel in the gutter. I picked it up and examined it and found that it was good. I did not know what to buy.

I determined to toss up the nickel and if it came down on heads I would buy candy and if it came down on tails I would buy ice cream. I tossed it up to the street and it rolled down the sewer.

Hilda Robedoux, Age 10.

A Picture in My School

Dear Uncle Jed: There is a picture in our school room, a hand drawing. It is of a little branch and a great big apple, and by the looks in the picture and the leaves it is the last part of summer, coming on fall. As you go in our school room if you look at the right hand side you will see it.

Take notice when you go in. I suppose that you will notice it. I hope so. It is the Gilbert school I go to.

KATHERINE GOLMAN, Age 8.

Fire Prevention Day

Dear Uncle Jed: Every year we set aside a day called Fire Prevention day. This day comes on the ninth of October. On this day the governor makes out a proclamation telling us how we can prevent fires.

This day comes during the hunting season because there are more fires during hunting time than any other time of the year. The men light a fire and they leave it without putting it out. This fire spreads through the forest and the forest is burned. This is caused by carelessness. We should also put matches on a high shelf away from the small children. Clear out the cellar for the winter so that no rubbish may get a fire. If we would all follow these instructions we would not have any fires during the year.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

The Big Horse Fly

Stamp, stamp, stamp!
Went Betsy, the Old Gray Mare.
The Big Horse Fly who is bothering her
Had better have a care.

"Botheration," she exclaimed, swishing her long tail to and fro, "if that disagreeable fly doesn't leave me alone I'll call the Kind Farmer."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the Big Horse Fly to himself, settling on Betsy's flank, almost out of reach of her long tail. Then thrusting his long sharp bill, which points upward from the underside of his head, into her glossy shin, he commenced to suck blood through it.

Swish, swish, swish,
Went Betsey's silky tail
Till it brushed the fly from off her side into the water pail.

"There, now will you behave yourself?" asked the old horse, turning her head around. "If I'm bothered again, I shall ask the Kind Farmer for a fly net. I can't be worried all day with such pesky creatures as you."

Just then the Kind Farmer himself opened the kitchen door and walked towards the Big Red Barn.

"Bow, wow, wow,
Where are you going now?"

barked Old Sic'em, the faithful watch dog, peeking out of his nice wooden bungalow by the fence. But the Kind Farmer paid no attention to him, thinking, perhaps, that only a tramp was coming down the road. Tramps never worried him, for none ever dared to come into the Farmyard while Old Sic'em stood near the gate. No, indeedy, tramps don't like dogs, and dogs don't like tramps. So, there you are.

As the Kind Farmer buckled the leather collar around Betsy's neck, he watched the Big Horse Fly dry himself. After passing his fore legs over his head as a cat washes her face, he rubbed his wings with his hind legs to dry them. If the Kind Farmer had looked through a magnifying glass he would have seen that the big fly's body and legs were covered with hair, and that the lower joint of each leg was like a stiff brush.

"Come, let's get out of here," laughed the Kind Farmer. "We must get to town before that Big Fly gets in shape to sting us," and leading the old horse out to the buggy, he harnessed her between the shafts.

"Bow, wow, wow!
Please take me along.
I'd like to run through the Shady Wood
And hear a birdie's song," barked Old Sic'em.

"Guess I'll take the old fellow," muttered the Kind Farmer, and undoing the clasp on the rusty chain, he climbed into the buggy and drove down the road, followed by Old Sic'em, the good dog's tail wagging with happiness at the thought of a trip to Rabbitville.

at the farm at Pomfret St., Conn., will contain a Ross fodder cutter and a 2 1-2 horsepower gas engine, a late model improved U. S. separator and two units for a Universal milking machine. The livestock will include cattle, horses and pigs.

STATEMENT: I wish to state that I have recently visited the Grosvenor farm, and after inspecting their cattle I feel greatly instilled in speaking an extra word in behalf of their beautiful herd of Guernseys, which are under Federal supervision, and in fit physical condition to be sold. Many of them are 7-8 pure blood and the herd sire is by Mixters Chieftain. There are quite a number of young cows in the calving pens and should be fresh by date of sale. The beef oxen are first class. These animals will be sold at 12.30 o'clock p. m., sharp, rain or shine.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

New York, Oct. 26.—Heavy weekend profit taking, accelerated by bear attacks against a few vulnerable issues, turned the course of prices downward in yesterday's brief session of the market after an early advance, which was particularly brisk in the low-priced rails. Net losses in the active industrial issues ranged from small fractions to nearly 3 points.

Bear pressure centered on American Woolen, which was driven down to within a small fraction of the year's low at 51 1-2, but it rallied later to 53 1-4, off 7-8 on the day. The preferred touch a new minimum price at 90.

New 1924 peak prices in the railroad group were established by Frisco common, Chicago and eastern Illinois, Kansas City Southern and Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred. St. Paul preferred was heavily bought just before the close, rising about 2 points. Heaviness cropped out, however, in Atchison, Lackawanna and Union Pacific.

Merchandising issues continued in good demand with buying influenced by reports of increased sales. Manhatan Shirt, one of the most active issues in this group, sold 1 1-4 points higher at 38. Brown Shoe broke through its previous high and S. S. Kresge scored 15 points advance at 431. Woolworth fell back on realizing sales.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was run up to a new year's high at 117 1-2, but reacted 2 points on profit taking and closed at a small loss. Fleischmann and Simmons company also sold at their best prices of the year.

Motor issues came under the range of professional fire. Mack Trucks yielded 1 3-8 points to 99; Maxwell "A" 1 1-8 points to 66 1-4, and Nash Motors 1 1-2 to 152.

General Electric was one of the conspicuously heavy spots in the industrial list, which was given a decidedly irregular appearance by the pressure exerted against special issues. That stock was forced down almost 3 points to 250 1-2, while the losses of 1 to 3 points also were registered by General American Tank Car, General Baking, International Harvester and St. Joseph's Lead.

The weekly clearing house statement revealed mixed changes in the principal items. The aggregate reserve totaled $619,742,000; A deficit in reserve of $5,816,210 represented a decrease of $42,208,590 from the preceding week. Loans, discounts and investments increased $57,754,000 to $5,516,950,000; cash in vaults was swelled $848,000 to $49,826,000 while reserve of member banks declined $49,903,000 to $600,891,000fl.

A decrease of $1,647,000 in net demand deposits to $4,656,026,000 contrasted with an increase of $48,348,000 in time deposits to a total of $611,897,000.

Grading in the foreign exchanges was without particular feature. Sterling was fractionally higher at $4.49 and French francs slightly lower at 5.21 cents. Other European currencies were irregular.

FATHER KEEFE ADDRESSES 700 AT COUNTY HOLY NAME MEETING

"Preach everywhere, by act and by word, the Holy Name sermon." "Blessed be Jesus Christ, true God and true man," said Rev. W. A. Keefe, state director for Connecticut of Holy Name societies, in the stirring climax of his eloquent sermon, which he delivered to a congregation that numbered 700 men and practically filled St. Mary's Memorial church, Sunday afternoon.

The occasion was the county meeting of the Holy Name societies of New London county, and comprised representatives of every parish in the county, all of whom came to hear a message from their state director, inspired by the great Holy Name demonstration, recently held in Washington, D. C., and which the speaker attended as a representative from Connecticut.

With his characteristic ability and eloquence, Father Keefe held the close attention of his hearers as he told of the enthusiasm that marked the progress of this wonderful demonstration, which will said he, "be an inspiration to hundreds of thousands of members of the order, in every section of America, in their efforts to promote the growth and influence of their organization."

Occupying seats in the sanctuary were the following priests: Revs. J. O'Brien, Stonington; J. Kane, Westerly; William G. Fox, Groton; Rev. J. A. O'Meara, Montville; R. Guerriero and F. Coholan, Norwich. The programme of exercises was as follows: Hymn, Mother, Dear, O Pray For Me; beads and litany; hymn, Come, Holy Ghost; sermon, Rev. W. A. Keefe; pledge of Holy Name society; benediction. O Salutaris, Tantum Ergo; hymn, Holy God, We Praise Thy Name.

The musical part of the exercises were under the direction of Prof. Henry LaFontaine, assisted by a male choir selected from all sections of New London county.

Father Keefe spoke of the great demonstration recently held at Washington, D. C., under auspices of the National Holy Name societies, of which he is Connecticut state director. That great assembly was the largest ever held in Washington. Every state in the Union and every walk of American life was represented. Its purpose was to commemorate the 650th anniversary of the founding, and to study and teach the ideals, and renew the pledges of the Society of the Holy Name of Jesus Christ. This great society was founded in 1274 when Pope Gregory X named the master general of the Dominican order, John of Vercello, first Holy Name director. What striking facts of history the wonderful characters and marvelous deeds of that thirteenth century bring home to us. Recall that 1274 was two hundred eighteen years before Columbus discovered America and two hundred fifty years before Martin Luther led his revolt against the Catholic church. It was the year of the great council of Lyons when, despite the fact that there were no railroads or autos or steamboats, over 500 bishops and an illustrious group of great laymen came from every part of the Christian world to participate in the deliberations of that historic council of the Catholic church.

That was the century when popes of Rome founded the great universities of Oxford (1249); Cambridge (1257); Paris (1250), and many others whose educational influence has been all powerful ever since.

In the thirteenth century Dante sang his immortal verse and, with contemporary authors of The Cid and Idyls of King Arthur, became the inspiration of all our best modern literature. That was the century when Catholic Archbishop Langton signed Magna Charta, the cornerstone of our civil liberties. Brocton made his classical digest of English common law and Edward I. won the title of English Justinian, the greatest single force in framing English rights and liberties.

That was the century when St. Thomas Aquinas and St. Dominic and St. Francis of Assisi wrote and preached and lived sublime standards of Christian life which have been models for the greatest saints and theologians of all succeeding generations. It was the century when Catholic craftsmen erected those wonderful sermons in stone, "the cathedrals of Salisbury, 1220; York, 1227; Ely, 1235; Westminster, 1247; Amiens, 1228; Rheims, 1232, and countless others whose artistic details cannot be duplicated by the most skilled architects and craftsmen of our day.

The national celebration of the 650th birthday of our Holy Name society certainly recalls facts of history which convince us that our church and our ideals are the inspiration and hope of all that is best in education and human progress.

What a wonderful review of Catholic American history the Holy Name convention called to our minds.

Bishop Barry was there from the oldest city of the United States, St. Augustine, named for a Catholic saint. Archbishop Curley was there from historic Maryland where Catholic Lord Baltimore proclaimed for the first time our great American doctrine of equal rights before the law for men of every creed. Cardinal Dougherty was there from historic Philadelphia, where Catholic Charles Carroll of Carrollton signed America's Declaration of Independence. Bishops and priests and armies of laymen were there from the Great Lake regions, the rich valleys of the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio and the Rocky Mountain country, where Jesuits and Franciscans made deeds of Father Marquette, Lallemound and Breboef and Menard and de Smedt glories of pioneer America. History has covered the map of the U. S. A. with Holy Name monuments when they dedicated the hills and valleys and rivers and mountains to St. Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul, St. John, St. Anthony, St. Mary and countless other Catholic saints.

The personal of the great convention was a striking object lesson in Catholic American democracy. There were men from every state and every department of American life, black and white and Red men—sons of every national stock and strain—republicans and democrats and independents—rich and poor—employers and employed, priests and bishops and archbishops and cardinals, laymen of national, state and local prominence and men of humble station all united under the same standards of God and country, all singing the same hymns, all taking the same pledges of allegiance to Jesus Christ and the U. S. A. When you know that 99 trains averaging 10 cars each or in other words 17 miles of railroad cars besides thousands of automobiles were needed to transport the delegates to Washington you realize what a mighty army of Holy Name men were there assembled.

The three days' programme was most inspiring. At Mt. Vernon, Cardinal O'Connell, the Papal legate laid a wreath on the tomb of Washington as a token of Catholic affection for the immortal Washington and an everlasting pledge of Catholic loyalty to Washington's ideals of American liberty and justice.

At the unveiling of the monument to the Nuns of the Battlefield, Bishop Hickey of Providence renewed the nation's tribute of love and gratitude to the heroic Catholic nuns who nursed and inspired the heroic Civil war defenders of our National Union and renewed the Holy Name pledge of loyalty to the American ideals of Abraham Lincoln.

On the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington the legate of the Pope of Rome proudly placed the Catholic Roll of Honor containing the names of almost 700,000 Catholic Americans who in the trying days of the recent World war answered the call of Woodrow Wilson and fought and sacrificed and in many cases died for the preservation of American ideals of democracy and justice. What wonder that we prayed a sincere prayer that bigotry and ignorance and base ingratitude may never lead America or Americans to ever doubt the patriotism or impose unjustly on the civil, religious, or educational rights of Catholic Americans who gave those 700,000 and possibly the Unknown Soldier to make possible the wonderful victories of the army and navy of Woodrow Wilson.

One of the greatest sermons ever preached to the nation on the Divinity of Jesus Christ—one of the greatest American protests ever made against blasphemy and foul speech—one of the most impressive pledges of loyalty to God and country were made in America was that made by the 138,000 Holy Name men, who, after long and fatiguing all night journies, pelting rain and over muddy streets, marched down historic Pennsylvania avenue, like Crusaders, to the monument of the Father of our Country and in the presence of the president of the U. S. A., and the Papal legate and the Papal delegate and another throng of 100,000 inspired witnesses sent ringing through all America the Holy Name pledge, "Blessed be Jesus Christ, True God and True Man."

It was the answer of representatives of 20,000,000 American Catholics to those who say "there is no God." It was a national rebuke to those who in press and pulpit and professor's chair dare to attack the doctrine of Christ's Divinity. It was a marvelous appeal for clean language and clean living.

Men of the Connecticut Holy Name societies let such reflections on the lessons and ceremonies of our recent national convention be an inspiration to us all. Let us put the Holy Name piety and devotion of John of Vercello, our first director and all the wonderful Catholic men of his, the thirteenth century, into our modern labor and politics and education. Let us put the spirit of America's Catholic pioneers and patriots into our daily lives. Let us put the Holy name spirit of reverence and clean speech and respect for all legitimate authority into all our thoughts and words and actions. By frequent holy communion, by rallies and meetings and enthusiastic promotion of Holy Name society influence in your parish, your home and your work shop preach every where by act and by word the Holy Name sermon, "Blessed be Jesus Christ True God and True Man."

CATHOLIC BISHOP CONFIRMS AND PLEDGES CLASS OF 423

Saturday afternoon, at St. Patrick's church, the sacrament of confirmation was conferred upon a class of 423, 200 boys and 223 girls, which included about 25 adults, by Rt. Rev. John G. Murray, auxiliary bishop of the Hartford diocese. The church held a congregation which filled the auditory, and overflowed into the galleries.

Assisting Bishop Murray were Rev. Charles W. Brennan, of Norwich Town and Rev. William A. Keefe, of St. Mary's Memorial church. The master of ceremonies was Rev. Myles P. Galvin, assisted by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero. The rector, Rev. M. H. May, was general master of ceremonies. There was inspiring singing by the choir, directed by Organist Frank L. Farrell. The sponsor for the girls was Miss Anna McGrory and for the boys John P. Corcoran.

The class gave evidence of the splendid training which they had received from their instructors, the Sisters of Mercy. The ranks moved with military precision. Daintily frocked in white and wearing veils, the girls of the class were very attractive.

Bishop Murray gave the candidates an earnest talk on the importance of the sacrament they were receiving, in these days when it is the mission of the Roman Catholic church to preserve the Sixth. As is the custom, he pledged all, girls as well as boys, to total abstinence until they should have reached the age of twenty-one, the theory being that having formed the habit of temperance, it will most likely continue after that age.

MOTION PICTURES WITH ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A.

At the Sunday afternoon meeting at the local Y. M. C. A., interesting moving pictures were shown. The opening exercises included the singing of hymns, vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, scripture reading and prayer. The moving pictures consisted of two reels entitled The Island of Mist and a reel on Peru. The first showed very interesting scenes in Hong Kong, the life in the English quarter and the life and habits of the coolies; also the beautiful harbor and other attractive scenery. The picture on Peru was enjoyed, as it showed scenes of real interest in that country.

Between the reels, a brief talk was given by Secretary Hill who spoke in part as follows:

"It is interesting to all of us to learn the kind of life lived by people of another race and to know of their customs and habits. The question often arises in our minds, what should be our attitude toward other races than ours, even though some of them are not attractive to us. In a famous chapter in the Bible we read of the three great graces—Faith, Hope and Love, and the chapter closes with these words, 'The greatest of these is love.' Faith is a needed element in our world; without it we could have no business, for all know that men of business place a lot of faith in each other. We could not have happy homes were it not that the husband and wife have confidence in each other; in many realms faith or confidence is an important factor. Hope is also greatly needed; were it not for hope this life would be dark and dreary. When the experiences come to us hope holds us up and leads us to take courage for the future; 'every cloud has a silver lining' is a proverb that suggests hope to us when the clouds hang close around us. But great as are faith and hope, there is something greater, and that is love. What would we do without love; what marvelous things have been wrought by love. We expect love to be prominent in the home life, and among men of the fraternity; we expect to find love ruling among those who are attractive to each other, but what about love to those who are not attractive to each other. Take the Chinaman, or the Japanese, or the colored man; what is our attitude toward these races. The test of love is not when it is easy to love, but when it is hard to love. What will help us to love the unlovely; I think these things will help us; recall the words of scripture, 'God hath made of one blood all races,' and no one would question that he loves them all. If we claim to be His followers, should we not love those whom He loves? Then let us remember that even the most unlikely man in the world has feelings, and he has a heart that can be hurt and that can be helped. I have seen colored men with white hearts and I have also seen white men who evidently had black hearts. God expects us to be charitable and kind and loving to all men, even the most unlikely. A good rule for our lives is to deal with others as kindly as God deals with us. Shall we not let our love go out to others, and especially to those who are unlikely and unlovable."

James Lenox, 35, and Otis Furth, 28, both of Providence, were arrested early Saturday evening at a garage in Plainfield by Officer Charles Perry and were brought to this city on a complaint that they had broken into the garage of Earl Young, a motorman, living at 42 Fourteenth street, and taken from it a Gray coupe, which they had towed away.

Capt. D. J. Twomey received the complaint that the car had been stolen from the garage by men who were seen breaking the lock off the door and he at once started an investigation. The men towing the car had stopped at the Lambert garage, corner of Boswell avenue and North Main street, where they had tried to buy a rotary as Mr. Young had taken this part off his car when he left it in the garage. The circumstances aroused his suspicion and he came to police headquarters with the information. Capt. Twomey at once secured Mr. Lambert to take Officer Perry in a machine to look for the car and they caught up with it at Plainfield, where the men were making a stop at a garage.

The car in question is one that was disposed of through the Used Car Exchange in Providence, with which Lenox is connected and which is still making a claim on the car, which, it is understood has passed through several hands before Mr. Young bought it.

FAITH WORKS.

Faith is the title deed to things unseen
The certain hope of things beyond today
Faith tunnels through hills to fertile fields,
And has no need to take the hills away

Faith is believing, since the Lord hath said,
And is not founded on a wish or whim;
For false belief creates no certitudes,
But faith believes His word, since knowing him.

And when He says, "I give," faith gladly takes,
And when He aught withholds, faith does not fear,
For having Him, faith has no other need
And does not grope to feel if He is near.
—Carl W. Hiser, in Sunday School Times.

WHILE THE DAYS GO BY.

I shall not say, our life is all in vain,
For peace may cheer the desolated hearth;
But well I know that, on this weary earth,
Round each joy-island is a sea of pain—
And the days go by.

We watch our hopes, far flickering in the night,
Once radiant torches, lighted in our youth,
To guide, through years, to some broad morn of truth;
But these go out and leave us with no light—
And the days go by.

We see the clouds of summer go and come,
And thirsty verdure praying them to give;
We cry, "O Nature, tell us why we live!"
She smiles with beauty, but her lips are dumb—
And the days go by.

Yet what are we? We breathe, we love, we cease;
Too soon our little orbits change and fall;
We are fate's children, very tired and all
Are homeless strangers, craving rest and peace—
And the days go by.

I only ask to drink experience deep;
And, in the sad, sweet goblet of my years,
To find love poured with all its smiles and tears,
And, quaffing this, I, too, shall sweetly sleep—
While the days go by.
—Henry Abbey.

SO-CALLED "RUSSIAN PLOT" MAIN TOPIC IN BRITAIN

Matter Will Figure Largely in the Election Contests to Be Decided Wednesday—Premier Macdonald Puzzled as to How a London Daily Paper Reserved Copies of the Alleged Soviet Communication Simultaneously With the Foreign Office.

London, Oct. 27 (By the A. P.)—The so-called "Russian plot" had produced a complete revolution in British campaign oratory, little else now being talked of in election speeches and newspaper comment. From the present indication, the Russian question will loom much greater in the contests to be decided Wednesday than seemed likely a week ago.

Premier MacDonald's anxiously awaited speech at Cardiff today still leaves the affair of the Zinovieff letter in a certain air of mystery, with many questions unanswered. The premier promised, said he wasdetermined to thoroughly investigate the matter, especially to unravel the circumstance that a London paper and conservative leaders got copies of the alleged soviet communication simultaneously with the foreign office.

Mr. MacDonald referred to the whole affair as another "Guy Fawkes and gunpowder plot."

The premier also characterized as "lies" reports that the Vinovieff letter had been intercepted in the post and photographed or that it came before the cabinet. By inference, he indicated that the foreign office had never had the original of the letter. In his speech today he was inviting the Daily Mail to inform him how it came into possession of the letter when a voice interjected

"They have the original."

The premier thereupon observed:

"Well, they have had more than we have had."

He gave minute details of all dates with the intention of countering the suggestion that he was aware of the Zinovieff document in September before parliament dissolved. He said the letter was not received until October 10, and not officially put into the department of the foreign office until October 14. Owing to delays in communication with London, while he was moving about the country, Mr. MacDonald said that the trial draft of the note to Christian Rakovsky, the soviet representative, was despatched from London October 21 but did not reach him until Oct. 23.

Then, describing how the draft of the foreign office note was sent to Rakovsky without his further perusal, the premier said the whole foreign office knew he would not stand for propaganda. He added:

"On account of my known determination to stand by agreements and treat them as holy writ, once my signature had been attached, they (the foreign office) assumed they were carrying out my wishes in taking immediate steps to publish the whole affair. They honestly believed the document was authentic, and upon that belief they acted. If they acted too precipitately, what is the accusation against us?"

He contended that the whole thing had been dealt with in the spirit of promptitude quite foreign to the diplomacy of older parties and reiterated that he would handle with fairness and determination every attempt by an outside power to interfere in Great Britain's internal affairs.

Mr. MacDonald declared that he would make it his first business on returning to London "to probe this thing right down to the roots." It would be his first job, he said, to discover how it originated and who was behind it.

The premier concluded his Cardiff address with a reference to the government's foreign policy. He said it had stabilized European currency, cleared out the worst features of reparations economies which the other two parties had bungled, over since 1919, had put Europe on a straight keel and was now carefully watching every move to protect the country's interests.

DAWES RECALLS ARBOR DAY SPEECH BY LAFOLLETTE

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 27 (By the A. P.)—Calvin Coolidge was recommended to the voters of upstate New York today by his running mate, Charles G. Dawes, as a man willing to take the gaff when the crowd is against him, knowing that eventually the judgment of the mass of the people would be with him and vindicate him."

Swinging across the state from Albany to Rochester, Mr. Dawes flayed Senator LaFollette and his independent candidacy, dismissed the democratic party as one "fortunate if in No Man's Land' they escape with their political existence," and appealed for a full vote from this normally republican section of the state.

Thank God that we get a chance, once in a while, to vote for such a man as Coolidge," he declared amid applause at Albany. "Thereby we can give the lie to those cowardly persons who go around preaching doctrines to all men, and whose creed and purpose is 'please everybody, believe they are right or wrong, and let the government take care of it-self.'"

Speaking at Syracuse late in the day, the republican nominee assailed the address made there last Friday by Senator LaFollette as "violent affirmation unsupported by reason—Wall street, the international trouble-trodden condition of Europe and all of us crushed under the heel of monopoly.'

"I repeat affirmation again as to the beneficial effects which we will have if we put these gentlemen in power, principally Mr. LaFollette—in our form of government. Industrially wages will go up, the purchasing power of farm products will go up, labor will be hurt, and the millennium will be here."

Describing President Coolidge as one who stands for what he thinks is right and trusts to the eventual vindication of the people," Mr. Dawes in his Albany speech added:

"The mistakes that our demagogic leaders are making in their estimate of the temper and fiber of American citizenship is in thinking that the average man does not respect the political leader who he believes is devoted to his interests and who at times it is necessary to differ with is the very kind of man the people want."

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—Three unidentified bodies were found tonight in the ruins of the five-story building of the Scotten-Kratz, Inc., a store fixture concern, which was destroyed by fire late today. Five persons were rescued from window ledges by firemen, and a search is being conducted for other victims.

LAFOLLETTE NOW FACES "SLUSH FUND" CHARGE

Washington, Oct. 27—Through counsel, the republican national committee laid before the senate campaign investigating committee today a counter charge of the expenditure of "enormous sums" on behalf of the LaFollette-Wheeler independent ticket and not accounted for through the independent national political organizations.

Frank P. Walsh, counsel for Senator LaFollette, author of the charge of the use of republican "slush" fund in this campaign, said he would be glad to have this matter aired, but he interposed an objection to the interruption to the present inquiry into the LaFollette charges, saying that his witnesses already had been summoned and should have "priority" on the witness stand.

The committee did not rule formally on the issue which was the subject of an interchange between counsel, but it did decide to conduct two inquiries simultaneously, one here and the other in Chicago, beginning Wednesday. Chairman Borah and Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, will leave for Chicago, while Senators Caraway, Arkansas, and Hayward, Delaware, democrats, will conduct the Washington end of the investigation.

Samuel Untermyer of New York, a democrat, who has been associated with Mr. Walsh in the hearings here, will accompany Senators Borah and Shipstead to cross-question witnesses, who will include William M. Butler, chairman, and William V. Hodges, treasurer of the republican national committee, and probably the republican state chairman of Illinois and Ohio. Mr. Walsh will remain here to prosecute the case before the other section of the committee.

CLIFFORD M. HOLLAND DIED IN BATTLE CREEK

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 27.—The death of Clifford M. Holland, chief engineer of the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel, was reported today in a telephone message from Battle Creek.

Mr. Holland's death, which came as a shock to members of the New Jersey bridge and tunnel commission, of which he was the chief engineer, caused immediate postponement of the elaborate ceremonies marking the opening of the tunnel which had been arranged for Wednesday evening.

The construction work is said to have reached such a stage that only one more blast is necessary before the tunnel will be opened between Jersey City and New York.

ALBERT LOEB, CHICAGO MILLIONAIRE, IS DEAD

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Albert Loeb, vice president of Sears Roebuck & Co., and father of Richard Loeb, who with Nathan Leopold, Jr., kidnapped and killed Robert Franks, died shortly after 9 o'clock tonight at the family's home here. Mr. Loeb had been ill for many months. His doctors had feared that the shock of his son's confession in the Franks case and the subsequent court proceedings which resulted in life sentences for the two youths would prove more than Mr. Loeb's weakened constitution could stand and he was taken to the family's summer home at Charlevoix, Mich.

He had returned from Charlevoix about two weeks ago.

The order is from a merchant in Tyrone, Pa., a regular customer of the company, and is for delivery immediately after election. The word "cancel" is in capital letters and underlined.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Studying the Dawes Plan.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Seymour Parker Gilbert, new agent general of reparations, succeeding Owen D. Young, has progressed so far with his study of the operation of the Dawes plan here that he plans to take up the Berlin angle this week. He expects to start for Berlin probably Wednesday evening with Mr. Young. He intends to remain some time in the German capital, familiarizing himself with the German branches of the Dawes organization.

HELD FOR HARBORING SMUGGLED CHINESE

New York, Oct. 27.—Three Chinese charged with having harbored seven of their countrymen alleged by the police to have been smuggled into this country as recruits for the Leong-Hip Sing feud, today were held for the grand jury in $5,000 bail each. Seven Hip-Sings have died in the present outbreak.

Police captured the so-termed Hip-Sing recruits as they arrived in Chinatown by taxicab yesterday. The three arranged today were greeting the newcomers when detectives lurking about Mott and Pell streets became suspicious and descended upon the gathering. Information gleaned from the men indicated that they had been without food for the greater part of their journey from the Orient. Infrequent light meals were served, they admitted, but claimed they were unconscious for several days at the end of the voyage. One of them died in a hospital immediately after arrival and an autopsy blamed starvation together with a complication of diseases. The police declare that the dead man was a drug addict.

Today's developments shot several holes through the smuggling theory. The only ship that arrived from Hong Kong yesterday docked in Brooklyn with a Chinese crew, and inspectors went over every inch of it. They failed to find a single packing box which could house a stowaway and all seven of the Chinese now recuperating at a hospital insisted that they had occupied such cramped quarters on the way from the Far East. Officials of the line owning the ship in question declared that a Chinese would say "yes" to anything, especially when the police were asking questions. They attributed the Orientals' published explanations to nods with which they replied to queries yesterday.

COOLIDGE IN NO HASTE TO FILL VACANCY IN CABINET

Washington, Oct. 27.—The attention of President Coolidge was turned today to the vacancy in his cabinet caused by the death of Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture by receipt of several messages asking consideration of various persons for the office. It was made plain at the White House, however, that he would give little consideration to the new appointment, at least until after Wednesday, when burial services are to be held for Mr. Wallace at Des Moines, Iowa.

While an early selection is expected to be made by the president in view of his proposal to get under way in the near future an investigation of agricultural conditions, it is not considered likely the choice will be made before election day, a week from tomorrow.

The name of Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, was among the first suggested to Mr. Coolidge today. John Lee Coulter, president of North Dakota Agricultural and Mechanics college, and Samuel Adams, editor and former president of the American Agricultural Editors' association, are other names mentioned.

NOMINEE DAVIS NOW CAMPAIGNING IN NEW JERSEY

Jersey City, Oct. 27.—Speaking late tonight in the crowded Fourth regiment armory, John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president, informed his audience that he had been unable to get any reply from the White House regarding President Coolidge's attitude on the Ku Klux Klan question.

"No reply has been made to me," Mr. Davis said, in answer to a question asked from the floor. "If the gentleman has been fortunate enough to receive it from any other quarter he has more information than I. That is one of the taboo topics in Washington, but there are some other topics about which the American people ought to have some information and the first of those topics is where the republican nominee stands on the great question of corruption in government."

Police were investigating the report that a watchman had been trapped and burned to death in one of the buildings.

Navy Day Address By Sec'y Wilbur

Anticipates That in Future Naval Wars Nations Will Stake Everything Upon a Single Battle.

Washingtno, Oct. 27.—Naval strength in the last analysis must be measured by "the blow a ship's guns can deliver at long ranges," Secretary Wilbur declared tonight on a radio Navy day addrses. Efforts to acquire a "homegeneous fleet" for the United States will be unavailing, he asserted, unless the gun elevating machinery of American battleships be improved to permit all main batteries to reach an average maximum elevation.

"Subject to the construction of the treaty for the limitation of armaments, we are asking congress to authorize the necessary changes to permit this elevation," the secretary said, "so that our fleet may have a maximum efficiency at long ranges. We anticipate that future naval wars will be fought in great fleet actions where a nation will stake everything upon the issue of a single battle."

Denying that the navy had overlooked the importance of aviation in modern naval strategy, Secretary Wilbur called attention that the horsepower of airplanes' engines in commission today in the navy is "almost equal to the total horsepower of the navy with which we defeated Spain," while there was on hand or being built airplanes engines which would more than double this power.

"The navy department recently reported to congress that our navy as a whole was only 80 per cent. as powerful as that of Great Britain," he said. "This ratio was partly due to the fact that four of our battleships needed boiler repairs. Three of these have since been repaired."

The secretary quoted data to show that England now possessed superior tonnage to the United States in aircraft carriers and cruisers, having constructed extensively in both classes since the limitation treaty was adopted. He reviewed the proceedings in the last congress which had resulted in the failure of the pending naval construction bill to become a law and declared that "it does not lie in the mouth of the nominee of the democratic party to charge the administration with dereliction concerning the navy when needed legislation proposed by the administration was defeated by two democratic senators."

"We are going ahead with our navy plans," Secretary Wilbur declared. "If we and the other powers conform to the agreed ratio not only in battleships but also in other surface and sub-surface and aircraft, successful aggressive warfare between the signatory powers across the oceans which border our shores will be an impossibility."

He closed with a prediction that it would be possible to outlaw war, just as civilization had outlawed yellow fever, typhoid and other plagues.

FINANCIAL REPORTS OF POLITICAL PARTIES

The democratic national committee declared the democratic congressional committee did not function as an independent organization and all funds were handled through the national committee. Treasurer James W. Gerard submitted a report which showed that on Oct. 18 the commttee had received in contributions $402,545.81 and had spent $403,517.78.

The socialist party congressional organization reported that on Oct. 20 it spent $4,315.72 and had received in contributions $5,537.72. The Anti-Saloon League of America reported that on Oct. 25 it has spent $1,052.09 and had received in contributions $2,-515.

The Anti-Saloon league report named the following candidates for the house as having received aid from the league: Guy U. Hardy, republican, Colorado; Patrick B. O'Sullivan, democrat, Connecticut; Frank Clague, August H. Anderson and William L. Carss, republican, Minnesota; J. Scott Wolff, democrat, Missouri; Fred N. Zihiman, republican, Maryland; Roy G. Fitzgerald, republican, Ohio; Anna Van Skite, prohobitionist, Pennsylvania; W. W. Griest, Louis T. McFadden, Fred W. MacGrady, Anderson Walters and Milton W. Shreve, republicans, Pennsylvania.

CONGRESSMAN O'SULLIVAN DENIES ANTI-SALOON AID

Derby, Oct. 27.—Congressman Patrick B. O'Sullivan, democrat, of the Fifth district, was thoroughly aroused when informed by The Associated Press of the citing of his name, in a report to the clerk of the house by the Anti-Saloon league, as one of the candidates who had received aid from the organization. He would make no statement, however, but said he would at once communicate with Wayne B. Wheeler, agent of the Anti-Saloon league at Washington, to inquire how his name came to appear on the list.

He said not only had he not received any contributions from the Anti-Saloon league but he had not received any contributions from anyone. Elected as an avowed opponent of the Volstead act, and committed to work for a modification in favor of light wines and beer, O'Sullivan has a "liberalizing" bill for prohibition modification pending in congress now.

BODY OF POPE LEO XIII. IN FINAL RESTING PLACE

Rome, Oct. 27 (By the A. P.)—The body of Pope Leo XIII, tonight reposed in its final resting place. The ceremonies of entombment took place this morning in the Basilica of St. John Lateran and were carried out with solemnity but with the utmost simplicity.

The entire diplomatic corps of the vatican attended dressed in full uniform. The service was performed for the first time outside the vatican since 1870. Other units of the papal guard also served, but they were dressed in civilian clothes. Cardinal Pompili, acting both in the capacity of an archpriest of St. John and papal vicar-general, officiated.

After the requiem mass, which was attended by most of the members of the Sacred College of Rome, workmen placed Pope Leo's casket into a niche in the wall of the nave which had already been prepared. The coffin bore only a simple inscription in Latin, giving the name and the dates of the birth and death. The marble slab covering the aperture to the tomb was inscribed simply with "Leo XIII."

The body of Leo XIII was recently moved from its provisional tomb in St. Peter's to the basilica of St. John Lateran. Pope Leo died in 1903. Since then the body had remained in St. Peter's. The present pontiff, Pius XI., desired that the body should be in the tomb at St. John Lateran upon the celebration of the sixteenth centenary of the dedication of the great basilica in November.

REV. FOSDICK TO ACCEPT INVITATION OF CONGREGATION

New York, Oct. 27.—The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick announced today that when his resignation as associate minister of the First Presbyterian church was accepted he would accede to the invitation of the congregation to occupy the pulpit as a casual preacher each Sunday morning until late next March, when the church year expires.

His announcement was contained in a letter addressed to the church clerk of sessions in reply to the congregation's decision to accept his resignation but to invite him to "make it your custom when not otherwise engaged to preach in our pulpit on Sunday mornings."

Because Rev. Dr. Fosdick was a Baptist, although he has preached in the local Presbyterian church for five years, and because of his "modernist" teachings, the Presbyterian general assembly at Grand Rapids last summer voted to ask him to join the church or resign his association with the local institution. He resigned. He made it plain today that his offer to continue to occupy the pulpit at First Presbyterian church on Sunday mornings for the remainder of the church year was made on condition that the church accept his resignation, in order to comply with the spirit of the general assembly's request.

FOREST FIRE IS REACHING DISCARDED ARMY SHELLS

Dover, N. J., Oct. 27.—The task of fighting the forest fire that has been raging unceasingly for practically two days this evening became dangerous when flames at frequent intervals reached discarded army shells scattered in the Pocatinny government arsenal reservation, causing explosions of varying degrees of intensity.

Although a shift of wind during the early hours of this morning proved a great aid in reducing the possibility of serious damage at the arsenal itself, where large quantities of army munitions are stored, the battle continued through the day uninterrupted.

Dynamite was used today at the point where the fire has reached nearest the arsenal buildings.

The fire still burns ruthlessly and has thus far devastated more than three square miles of woodland. The arsenal is believed to be out of immediate danger, although it is pointed out that a wind of renewed vigor blowing in the direction of the building would quickly sweep the flames to the explosives.

SENATOR PEPPER ADDRESSES REPUBLICAN RALLY AT YALE

Gives Comprehensive Digest of Attitude of the Republican Party on Leading Issues—Mentions Among the Personal Qualifications of Calvin Coolidge For the Presidency These Characteristics: Quick to Hear, Slow to Speak, Slow to Wrath—Warns Against Allowing Lafollette to Bore Holes in the Bottom of the Good Ship Constitution—Declares That the Senate is Greatly Weakened by the Passing of Senator Brandegee—Congressman Tilson Spoke on National Issues.

New Haven, Oct 27.—George Wharton Pepper, United States senator from Pennsylvania, and John Q. Tilson, United States representative from Connecticut were the speakers tonight at the republican rally held in Woolsey hall under the auspices of the Yale Republican club.

Senator Pepper reviewed all of the issues of the campaign in an endeavor to show that the republican party "was right" on all of them. In this connection he mentioned tax reduction, the tariff, the railroad issue, the constitution of the United States and foreign relations.

In an attack on Senator LaFollette he said that "for twenty-one years the people of Wisconsin have been in political slavery" and that "those who will not follow LaFollette have been terrorized politically and those who do follow him have completely surrendered themselves to him."

Attacking John W. Davis, the democratic nominee for president, Senator Pepper said that when he "was given a chance to demonstrate his ideas of fitness for high office he responded by choosing Bryan, naming a man whose views do not square with the democratic platform and with whose expressed convictions on great issues Davis cannot agree."

Congressman Tilson confined his address to national issues, including the reduction of taxes and the lowering of the national debt. Referring to the issue raised by the democrats and LaFollette as to honesty in government, he said that while "individuals have proved dishonest, it does not prove that the party to which they belong or the people of the community in which they live are dishonest."

In his opening remarks Senator Pepper paid a high tribute to Senator Brandegee, stating that the senate is gravely weakened by his passing. In getting down to campaign issues Senator Pepper began by explaining that republicans have a three-fold task. "We must commend our candidates" he said, "to the enormous group of voters who, by temperament and training, look for safety first. We must satisfy the more daring voters that under Coolidge leadership we shall have as much liberal legislation as any sane progressive is today willing to propose. We must try to make it clear to those who have suffered paralyzing economic losses that they have more to hope from intelligent insight into their problem than from plausible promises put forth to catch their votes. In other words, we have educational work to do; we have a message for the country. Our campaign is a campaign neither of abuse nor of rainbow-chasing! Mr. Davis may continue to use discredited evidence to support unjustifiable

OWEN D. YOUNG PLEDGES SUPPORT TO JOHN W. DAVIS

New York, Oct. 27.—Democratic headquarters today made public a radiogram from Owen D. Young, who is now in Europe supervising the organization of the machinery of the reparations plan, regarding his support of John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate.

The radiogram, addressed to Norman H. Davis, former assistant secretary of the treasury and a volunteer member of the candidate's advisory staff, follows:

"I should be glad to do anything that would help John W. Davis for whom I have the greatest admiration. I have no objection to your publishing as news that I am a democrat and that in my opinion with such a candidate as John W. Davis every democrat should be proud to support the ticket."

In announcing the text of Mr. Young's message, Mr. Davis said:

"I regard it as specifically significant that Mr. Young comes out with this strong endorsement of our candidate, as you will recall, General Dawes described Mr. Young as 'the constructive brains' of the expert committee, which drew up the reparations plan now being put into operation. No one has had a better opportunity than Owen Young to study the present conditions of Europe or the foreign policy of America under the republican administration. In spite of this intimate knowledge of the problem, or perhaps because of it, Mr. Young comes out emphatically for John W. Davis."

In a spectacular accident at the junction of Windham road and Pleasant street, after 4:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon, in which two large fence rails were driven into the front of a Studebaker sedan, Deputy Sheriff Addison J. Greenslit and his daughter, Mrs. Edwin Hall, of this city, miraculously escaped serious injury as one of the rails entered through the windshield and came to rest between Mrs. Hall, who was driving and her father who was riding in the front seat with her. The other fifteen foot rail plowed through the radiator of the car and jammed against the engine. Mrs. Hall was driving westerly on the Windham road at the top of Jillson Hill, where Park and Pleasant streets and Windham road intersect, she apparently became confused at the sight of a Buick touring car owned and operated by Joseph Roux of this city, which had come to a stop on the cross walk on Park street. The Studebaker veered to the extreme right of Pleasant street, where it ripped up a fence, coming to a stop directly across the road some fifty feet west of the point of collision. Spectators marveled that the machine did not topple down the steep bank which flanks that part of Pleasant street and from the edge of which the fence was torn. Mrs. Hall sustained a painful laceration of the right cheek and Sheriff Greenslit suffered slight bruises. Both were taken to St. Joseph's hospital, the former in a semi-conscious condition and physicians gave them treatment. Officers Grant Bemis and Edward Leahy investigated the accident.

Hoxie of Lebanon was notified and he took Maggiore to the local police station to await a hearing in the Lebanon town court. Maggiore said that he was in hard circumstances since October 15 when the old Frink place in Columbia, which he occupied as his home, burned down. Again Monday the weather man handed out a fall day whose perfection admitted of no criticism. Old Cluey Watson is to the fore again; for just one week ago he predicted warm and pleasant weather for the balance of October. Old Cluey isn't much of an "Off the Island of Saba" prophet, nor is he heavy on astronomical predictions. He is a pupil in the great school of the woods and understands the voices of the trees and the language of the forest. He says that in all his experience, and that is close to 60 years as a trapper and hunter, he never saw a winter "shut down" for good, with brooks and streams at the low stage he finds them today. A great deal of stress is placed this fall, on the way muskrats are building their nests, by those who foretell a severe winter. Old Cluey says "I used to think that the muskrats could foretell an early and severe winter, but they cannot! They know as little about it as I do!

"Sometimes on an early and severe frost they seem to get alarmed, but they build early or late, high or low as the whim takes them. As a general thing an observing man much out of doors, can tell very nearly what the weather will be a couple of days ahead.

A man called at a local insurance office the other day, and wished to be informed if his insurance policy covered his wearing implements.

With very few exceptions the presidential election night, falls on the regular evening of the stated communication of Mt. Vernon lodge in November.

Eight years ago a private wire was run into the lodge rooms in the Rioux block, and William Bentley acted as operator. Four years ago, the committee again installed a special line, with two operators from Norwich, one of whom was Mr. Hanna. This year there is talk among the fraternity, that a wireless outfit may be put into the lodge room next Tuesday, as there are several capital sets owned by different members of the craft.

Maxcey Seymour, first selectman of the town of Griswold, was 74 Sunday. In his honor a grand dinner was given to which 24 guests were invited, hailing from Providence, Cranston, New London and Norwich. The feast proved one of rare enoyment, which was brought to a climax when the great birthday cake was brought forth, with one tall candle in the center, in lieu of the usual 74 little ones.

Second to no other of the interesting parts of the affairs, was the two different four generation lines, there to enjoy the festivities.

Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Pigeon, Mrs. Portelance and her son Hebert were in another line, Theodore Pigeon and his wife, who was Miss Ruth Miner, and their daughter Muriel reported as never better.

Speaking favorably of Maxcey Seymour is but rendering credit where credit is due. As a public servant careful and conservative as a business man of integrity, as a citizen of honesty and as a Christian man with a character to be admired, his record is clean and open, and stands for itself. This town will be benefitted by each recurring birthday, which Mr Seymour is privileged to enjoy.

Saturday afternoon, a Hallowe'en party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Viegard to celebrate the birthdays of two of their children—Mildred, ten years old, and Monica, five, their birthdays coming on the same date, Oct. 25. Sandwiches, cake, oranges, bananas, candy, peanuts, fancy cookies and cocoa were served by Mrs. Viegard, assisted by Mrs. Lester Blanchard, Mrs. Damas Gobeil, Mrs. John Oakes of Jewett City and Mrs. Adelard Gobeil of Plainfield. Determining Altitudes

Although nearly 300 years old, the boiling water test to determine altitudes is still the most accurate method known, despite the fact that barometers and delicate measuring instruments have been developed. For measuring heights by this method, a special instrument, called a hypsometer, has been invented. So compact that it can be carried easily on mountain climbing expeditions, it has only one breakable part, the thermometer used for recording the temperature of the water, and is constructed so that it may be set up in snow or when high winds are blowing. Water boils at 212 degrees above zero at sea level, but, as the altitude increases, the boiling point drops. On very high mountains, the liquid boils at temperatures so low that it is impossible to prepare a hot drink. Scientists found that on one of the world's loftiest summits when water comes to a boil it was possible to put their hand into it without scalding them.—Popular Mechanics.

DANIELSON

On Monday, Coroner Arthur G. Bill was awaiting a transcript of the evidence taken at New London at the week end from members of the crew of special freight train No. 1314, which was run into at Putnam early Friday evening by a south-bound passenger train, the accident resulting in the death of Engineer W. S. Carpenter and Fireman Joseph Hoppman, as well as the serious injury of Fireman Stephen Stickney of Putnam, who was riding in the locomotive of the passenger train. Railroad officials have promised Coroner Bill all the information that an inquiry, held at New London Saturday yielded. In view of the fact that he had no knowledge Monday as to what the evidence will show, Coroner Bill declined to make any comment on the subject and his future action in the premises will depend entirely on what a complete investigation of the accident will disclose.

Coroner Bill said Monday afternoon that he will not fix a date for the inquest until he has received a copy of the evidence taken at New London and determined on the witnesses to be summoned to testify. It is likely that the information that Coroner Bill is awaiting from New London will be received here today (Tuesday.)

A strange story comes out of Chaplin, from which town a man has disappeared, just as he was about to be arrested and held for Florida officers. Some time since a county official received a request from Florida to be on the lookout for the man later located at Chaplin. It was explained that he was wanted as a man who had made his way out of a prison, where he had been sent in 1916 after being involved in a murder case.

Information that the man had been located was forwarded to Florida officials with a request for the necessary papers to accomplish his arrest and detention. While awaiting this authority, the officials have learned, the fugitive in some mysterious way, probably by mail, received notice that he had been located and he forthwith disappeared. He is said to have left Chaplin at night and to have made his way out of the territory for parts unknown.

While in this territory the man was a steady worker and sober. He avoided close companionships, nevertheless was friendly with the men he met in the course of his daily work.

At Central Village, the plant of the Central Worsted company is doing a splendid business. So pressing are the demands for its product that overtime work is now the rule, with the promise of good business for several months to come, although the outcome of the election is a factor.

Monday was counted as another day when the extreme danger of forest fires passed away without any such disaster developing in this section of the state. A constant watch is being kept on large areas of woodland territory hereabouts with a view to checking any fire, if possible, as soon as it may develop.

The break at the south Killingly store of Stephen Douglas the past week is generally regarded as the work of boys or youths. Cigarettes in cartons and cigars were taken away, but other stocks of goods were not molested.

The changes will include putting modern fronts on his stores, enlarging the building now occupied by the A. and P. store and providing in that structure four apartments. When they started their work Monday morning assessors of the town of Killingly found plenty to do in receiving lists of taxable property. Many property owners have delayed until this, the final week, in filing their tax returns.

PUTNAM

At a hearing in the Putnam probate court, Monday, Judge David Flagg presiding, the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company took over the trust estate created by the late Joseph Cutler for his daughter, Miss Annie C[illegible] of this city, in place of G. Harold Gilpatric, former trustee and former cashier of the First National bank.

The account rendered by Gilpatric as trustee showed, according to Judge Flagg, that the trust fund is approximately $34,000 short, leaving a balance on hand of $6,000. It is understood that Gilpatric's bond is large enough to cover the shortage.

When Mr. Cutler died he created the trust fund and appointed Gilpatric trustee with a further provision that if Gilpatric should die or become incapacitated to act that the trust should be administered by the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company. The taking over of the trust was therefore in accordance with the terms of the will.

The last heard of David Favreau of Putnam, who was fined $200 in the district court at Webster, Saturday, was that he was still in custody, being unable to raise the money to secure his liberty.

Favreau, driving a hired car belonging to Mrs. Eli Vangel, of Putnam, while in Webster at an early morning hour Saturday, drove the machine through the iron gate at the A. J. Bates shoe shop. Officers appeared and placed Favreau under arrest on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, to which charge he later pleaded guilty.

William Raymond, an occupant of the car, was fined $15 for intoxication. The third passenger of the wrecked car was a Putnam woman. She was allowed to go and returned to Putnam in a taxi.

The damage to the iron gate is estimated to be $250. The car was wrecked and overturned near the boiler house, 30 feet inside the shoe shop yard.

When the officers arrived the occupants of the machine were crawling from under the overturned car. On the way to the station house Favreau suddenly wrenched himself free from the officer and escaped. On the first car arriving from Webster from the north, Saturday morning, Favreau was a passenger. While transferring from the Worcester car to the Putnam car he was seen by an officer and captured.

Favreau has lived in Putnam all his life and works as a truckman's helper.

George L. Trudeau, 23, a chauffeur of Worcester, and Miss Madeline E. McCann, 24, also of Worcester, were married in Putnam, Monday, by Charles L. Torrey, justice of the peace. Mrs. Minnie Lucier has purchased from Herbert Morse and Irving Roberts two houses east of School street.

County Game Warden Charles H. Letters of Putnam, was giving notice, Monday, that a proclamation would be issued by the governor today (Tuesday) forbidding hunting until further notice. The edict from the governor's office comes on account of the draught and danger from forest fires until there is a rain. Two forest fires have recently swept a portion of Windham county, one near Moosup and the other in East Thompson. Last year it was necessary to place a ban on hunting during the open season on account of a dry spell. Sportsmen, realizing the wisdom of the act did not demur.

The Quinebaug river is at its lowest and mills along the stream are experiencing difficulty in keeping their plants in operation. In the outlying sections brooks, wells and springs are dried up and in a number of localities farmers are obliged to haul water by wagon or truck for considerable distances.

Rev. Boynton S. Merrill, assistant pastor of the New Old South church, Boston, former pastor of the Putnam Congregational church, was the guest of friends in Putnam, Monday. He was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wheelock on Church street.

On account of next Tuesday being election day the meeting of the common council, held the first Tuesday of every month, will be adjourned to a later date.

As noted briefly in The Bulletin Monday, at an early hour Saturday morning Charles O. Thompson, 75 died in his sleep at his home in Pomfret. He made a trip to Putnam Friday afternoon. He retired Friday apparently in his usual health.

Charles Otis Thompson was the second son of Charles S. and Sarah Thompson and was born in Pomfret, June 19, 1849. Mr. Thompson lived his life at the Thompson homestead which has been in the family for more than 100 years. He was a great grandson of General Israel Putnam of Revolutionary fame. His grandfather was one of the founders of Christ Episcopal church, Pomfret.

February 14, 1889, he married Caroline Wadsworth of New York and they were the parents of two children, Dorothy Otis Thompson and Elizabeth Wadsworth Thompson who survive him.

In politics Mr. Thompson was a republican. In 1887 he was elected to serve in the house of the general assembly and in 1911 he was again elected representative. In 1915 he was elected to represent the 29th district in the senate and served as chairman of the committee on labor and was a member of the committee on woman suffrage.

In Thompson he had served as public health and safety officer, was grand juror for more than thirty years and in 1906 was elected judge of probate, continuing in this latter office until June, 1919, when he was automatically retired on account of having reached the age limit of 70.

A GUN IN THE HOUSE MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Putnam, Oct. 27.—The case against Louis Denie, charged with possessing firearms, not being an American citizen, down to be heard before Justice Thomas Ryan of Thompson, Monday, was nolled. Had the case come to trial it would have been the first in Windham county in which an alien has been charged with possessing a gun.

Denie lives in the Quadic section of the town of Thompson and has not been naturalized, although he is about to be. When County Game Warden Charles H. Letters, found that there was a shotgun in Denie's home he caused his arrest. Later an investigation convinced the officer that the gun did not belong to Denie but was left at his home by a hunter who expected to return later to hunt some more. Denie bears an excellent reputation as a law-abiding citizen and his story that the gun was not his was believed and was later corroborated by the owner of the gun, a Putnam man.

The legislature during the session of 1923 passed an act making it unlawful for aliens in the United States to hunt or trap in Connecticut or to own or possess any shotgun or rifle. The law makes the presence of a shot gun or rifle on the premises of an alien prima facie evidence of ownership. Any such gun owned by an alien convicted under the statute is to be sold by the state fish and game commissioner and the money turned over to the state treasurer, to be credited to the fund for the propagation and protection of game.

HOW TO AVOID A DEADLOCK.

Much has been said in the present campaign about the possibility of a deadlock in the electoral college throwing the election into congress. The possibility of this resulting in the choice of Charles W. Bryan as president has been pointed out, and there has been a nationwide feeling that such an outcome would be highly unpopular.

It is known of course that a deadlock in the electoral college would result in a delay over the election outcome. Speaking in Indiana, Charles W. Bryan laid emphasis upon the fact that such a failure to elect would create "indefinite delay, widespread uneasiness, untold complications, chaos, business disturbance and possible lawsuits."

The fact of the matter is that there should be no chance of the next president being determined otherwise than in the electoral college as the result of the vote by the people. That is the proper place for making the selection and it should be realized by the voters themselves.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that the voters should give due weight to the exercise of their right of suffrage.

The election can be kept out of congress if the voters so decree. If the country does not want Bryan as the result of congressional action it cannot want him as the result of direct balloting. The assurance of getting the man whose character and conduct of the office insures the best administration lies in the election of Calvin Coolidge. Votes cast for him will guard against the Bryan possibility. Votes cast for any other than Coolidge will mean votes thrown away or votes to take the election out of the hands of the people and leave it to congress to determine who shall serve.

FIGHTING THE MOSQUITO.

This isn't the season of the year when many are bothered with mosquitoes. It is that period, however, when preparations can well be made for the war upon the pest in the days to come, and it must be thoroughly understood that the most effective results are gained through the efforts put forth in behalf of preventive measures.

Thus there are reasons for anticipating good results from the first anti-mosquito institute ever held in Connecticut which is scheduled this week. With the various health organizations interested and lending their influence and assistance in the cause of eliminating the mosquito something should be accomplished. It is a matter which calls for just such united activity in perfecting plans, determining where the work should be centered for best results and getting the support of all those who are concerned in such relief.

Whatever has been undertaken by the state in connection with the eradication of the mosquito has its benefits so far as it has gone. Naturally it is governed by the amount of effort put forth and the means at hand to carry on the work. It is the elimination of the breeding places that is necessary. That means direct application of the efforts to the removal of the stagnant pools, the swamps and marshes by draining, or the coating of the surfaces with oil. Excellent results have been obtained in the fight against the mosquito. Connecticut has its problems in this direction but a getting together of the forces which recognize the danger of such a pest is one of the best signs of a sincere and widespread desire to change the situation.

STREET AND HIGHWAY SAFETY.

Not many problems are arousing the states much more than that of increasing the safety of the highways. Wherever there are automobiles in considerable numbers there are many accidents, many violations of the highway rules and the traffic regulations. It is becoming more and more important to increase the restrictions on the use of the highways in order that greater safety may surround those who do use them.

In the facing of this problem there is no wiser course to pursue than the effort in behalf of uniformity among the various states. Communities may have their individual conditions to meet concerning the handling of traffic, but when it comes to markers, lights, licenses, horns, speed and general highway regulations the problem is a common one and if dealt with as such much confusion will be overcome and better respect and enforcement can be expected.

Several states have already joined hands in this respect. Their example is worthy of emulation on the part of others. As the result of the national conference which has been called by Secretary Hoover on street and highway safety greater advance than ever is to be anticipated in the establishment of uniform conditions. When the time comes that it isn't necessary to get down a new book of rules every time a state boundary is crossed there will not only be simplification but there will be ended a lot of needless confusion and uncertainty. The fact is that there is good reason why general requirements in all states should be the same and there is no danger that the day will come any too soon.

When it is realized that 22,600 were killed, 678,000 injured and $600,000,000 worth of property was damaged in traffic accidents in 1923 it is time to bend all efforts to correct known conditions.

A WORD FOR ELLIS ISLAND.

Ellis island and the regulations which it is necessary to enforce there do not please everyone. It is easy to get peeved at the restrictions, and finding the enforcement authorities are standing in the way of carrying out certain schemes which are against the laws of this country there is frequently encountered the disposition to rant over imaginary wrongs.

Probably it is more often that Ellis island rulings are criticised than that they are praised, or that there is unjustified condemnation than praise. There have been occasions when it was shown that unwarranted, derogatory statements have been made concerning treatment there, and that exaggerations have been permitted to eclipse the actual facts. Claims of mistreatment are easy to make when it isn't possible to circumvent the laws.

It is so seldom that those who are deported have anything good to say of the treatment they have received that attention cannot fail to be halted by the praise which a one-legged Austrian general, who was held up and ordered deported because it was considered he might become a public charge if admitted to conduct a lecture course. He was disappointed but he was nevertheless grateful for the kindness with which he was treated. There was gratitude instead of resentment, and it is no surprise that Ellis island officials express astonishment at this unusual expression. Likewise does it indicate that Ellis island isn't always as black as it is painted.

A FINE PERFORMANCE.

When the Shenandoah returned to Lakehurst and was warped into its hangar it completed another important test concerning its efficiency as a craft for war purpose or for peace time use.

This big airship performed well some months ago in the face of a terrific storm. It has now been sent across country and return during which trip it was obliged to encounter certain conditions which gave it the much desired test. Reaching altitude to cross the mountains and fighting the storms along the Pacific coast it came through unscathed.

What may become of the abandoned effort to send it to the north pole no one knows. Certainly more is known about what it can do and what can be expected from it as the result of this recent trip, and perhaps there is no better manner of judging the accomplishments on this trip than through the high praise accorded it by those who brought the ZR-3 here from Germany.

END OF THE LINE

"End of the line," remarked Bill, the motorman, cheerfully to a young woman who was huddled up in the corner of her seat in the street car, staring dismally into the black night outside. "Fur's we go!"

"Jumpin' off place, final stop—and dest-ee-nation!" shouted Bill again.

At last she seemed roused. "I—I'm going back with the car," she said timidly, at last, raising her eyes to Bill's friendly countenance.

"I gotta daughter 'bout your age," said Bill awkwardly, "and, gosh, she likes the night life, too. This here street car ridin's excitin', ain't it?"

The girl attempted a smile at this humorous effort, but the tears came instead and Bill continued, "That's right, sister, that's right, just cheer up and if you're in any trouble just tell Old Bill about it and he'll see what he kin do in the matter."

"There's nothing," hesitated the girl, and then as if Bill's kindness was too much for her she began to sob: "I have no place to go and it's the middle of the night, and so I'm just going to ride around on the cars until morning."

"Well, you could do worse," said Bill, thoughtfully, adding philosophically, "and you could do better. The question is now, why not go home?"

"I have no home."

"No home! Now that's hard to believe. If you ain't got no home the question is where's your home gone to for the night?"

"It's gone to smash," said the young woman through her tears. "We were so happy together—until tonight."

Bill straightened up, nodding wisely as if a great light had just broken on him. "Now, missus," said Bill, "I tell you frank that I ain't got no supernatural powers, but I'd just be willing to bet that you are what the funny papers call a newlywed!"

Solemnly the girl nodded. "Two months," she said. "Only two months and then disillusionment." But her feelings overcame her at this point and she turned away from Bill to the window while her body shook with long sobs.

"Just because I went downtown and bought some things for the living room that we absolutely needed. And he said himself that the lamp improved the room! well you'd think he'd know that I couldn't buy things for nothing. And today the bills came. He was wild, simply wild. And I hadn't been a bit extravagant."

"Poor fellah, poor fellah, and you went off and left him for that!" said Bill. "The poor boy's probably gone off his nut completely by now." He shook his head at the girl as she indignantly tried to interrupt. "You know that reminds me of something that happened to me when I was first married.

"One night after we'd been out to a swell dinner over to my brother Jim's place I sez to my wife, 'Why is it we don't never have nothin' like that to eat over to our house?' I sez. Well my Molly she gives me poe look—a dirty look as they say, and she ses nothin'. But the next day we has everything in the world on the table to eat. It was the most elegant feed I ever threw my lip over, in fact. 'You're some cook, I ses to the little woman, and begins to congratulate myself on what a few harsh words at the right time will do. 'By the way,' says my wife, 'slip me some dough for tomorrow's groceries, will veh?'

"That was a surprise. I'd give her all the money for the week that morning and seems like she'd had to spend it all to give me that swell feed.

"It's the kind of dinner we had at Jim's,' said Molly.

"'But Jim he earns twice as much at I do,' I yells. And then it come over me all of a sudden that you could not pull fancy grub outa the air. We was livin' close to the margin in those days that the money she had spent—well, I didn't want to go a week without eatin'!"

The motorman chuckled. "That week I shoveled snow every night after work until I'd increased my income to cover the deficit.

"Them's pretty big words for a little girl like you to understand," went on Bill, patronizingly, "but you got to know that that boy of yours will have to do the same thing. He's either got to figure out a way to earn more money or else he's gotta cut hard on expenses. And he don't want to do that, cause if he does you'll go out and leave him to ride up and down on street cars!"

"I will not!" said the girl. "I wouldn't leave him for worlds. I don't see how you can think I'd be so mercenary!"—Exchange.

Swope Given the Meanest Job

Precocious son of a well-to-do merchant, Gerard Swope early made a brilliant record and completed a course in an institution of higher learning, then had to start at the bottom and suffer disappointments as he climbed toward his goal.

While attending public school in his native St. Louis he enjoyed working with tools and machinery, in which he was encouraged by his father, and before he was graduated from high school he had made an electric motor.

At 19 he entered Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston, working during vacation as electrical helper for the General Electric Company at the World's Fair in Chicago, at $1 a day of 11 hours, and holding other jobs.

Graduated at 23, he went to the Western Electric in Chicago with a letter of introduction and was passed down from one official to another until the foreman grudgingly gave him the hardest and grimiest work in the shop, the pay being $7 a week of 56 hours.

Showing clerical ability while helping in inventory, he was offered a clerical position, but declined because he wanted to be an engineer. Placed in the laboratory, he asked to be transferred back to the engineering department. At 24 he was a designing engineer at $75 a month.

On a vaction at home he obtained a large order for electrical supplies, and enthusiastically recommended that the firm open a branch office in his home city. His advice was followed, but the position was given to another. Three years later he was placed in charge of the St. Louis office, just a few months after his father's death.

As a salesman he proved a success, and soon had a big force covering a territory that included Cincinnati and other important cities. Later he was general manager of the company's power apparatus business and at 37 became general sales manager with headquarters in New York.

One of his customers was the General Electric Company, and at 46 he was chosen president of the International General Electric Company. And last year, at 51, he was made president of the General Electric Company.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The Wahabis and Mecca

The reported fall of Mecca, holy city of the Mohammedan faith, into the hands of the Mahabis, champions of Moslem "Puritanism," has a direct precedent, for the same sect took over the city in 1803 and kept control for ten years. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society tells something of the situation in Mecca while it remained in the hands of these reformers.

"Practically a century and a quarter have passed since the first capture of Mecca by the Wahabis," says the bulletin, "but time has passed over western Arabia without leaving any great physical changes. True, news dispatches today speak of messages by telephone from the captured city and the plight of a hospital; but save for a few such modern touches the Wahabis of today would enter much the same Mecca as did their ancestors in 1803. And the sect is itself little different; still uncompromisingly for simplicity and against all that smacks of luxury in daily life or superstition in faith.

"That, at least, is the official platform; but because the sect has so many illiterate and fanatical followers, the practice is often somewhat different. Much the same situation, can be expected in Mecca if the Wahabis administer affairs there, that developed from 1803 to 1813.

"The Meccans still remember with gratitude,' writes an English traveler who visited the country a few years later, 'the excellent discipline observed by these wild Wahabis on their entering the town. Not the slightest excess was committed. On the next day all the shops were opened by order of Saoud, and every article which his troops required was purchased with ready money.

"The people of Mecca now became Wahabis; that is, they were obliged to pray more punctually than usual, to lay aside and conceal their fine silk dresses, and to desist from smoking in public. Heaps of Persian pipes, collected from all the houses were burnt before Saoud's headquarters, and the sale of tobacco was forbidden. So upright was the Bedouin judge appointed by Saoud that his sentences have become almost proverbial. At this time the prayers for the Sultan, usually recited in the grand mosque, were abolished.'

"The Wahabi leader did not prohibit pilgrimages to Mecca, but the huge yearly caravans from Egypt and Damascus no longer made the trip because they were not permitted to go armed. Thousands of Pilgrims in small groups and by ship-load continued, however, to journey to Mecca. All were compelled to observe Wahabi strictness in faith and in daily life. It was practically against the excesses that accompanied the pilgrimages that the Wahabis had leveled their reform measures.

"In Medina, burial place of Mohammed where Turkish sympathy and the Turkish mode of life were marked, the Wahabis were more strict even than in Mecca. A list was prepared of all the adult males, and a regular roll was called in the mosque after morning, mid-day and evening prayers. Those absent were punished. Mohammed's tomb was stripped of offerings that had been made there. The Wahabis regarded as idolatrous any visits, prayers or exclamations addressed to it, and prohibited them.

"The Turks made several attempts to oust the Wahabis from the Moslem Holy Land but failed, chiefly because of the protection afforded by the deserts. An expedition by sea from Egypt finally drove the Wahabis back into the desert in 1813 and their power was broken in 1818. Since about 1824 however, they have been steadily regaining power in the interior of Arabia."

Enterprising Caddies.

Two women who occasionally seek recreation on the golf course started out the other day to test their skill. They picked up two youngsters who looked to be eager for the job of caddying and hired them. All went well until they had made their first drive. The balls had no sooner left the tee than the two boys started at breakneck speed in pursuit.

Just as the two golfers reached the crest of the hill they met the caddies running breathlessly toward them.

"We found 'em," chorused the youths and they promptly handed the two driven balls back to the women. The first drive was made over again and the two caddies accompanied the women over the course.

Poor Connections Here.

The telephone jingled sharply. So he answered it.

"Hello, is this Helen?" asked the voice at the other end.

"Yes, this is Helen. Who is this Bill?"

"Yeah, this is Bill," replied the other party.

"Well, how are you, Bill?" asked Helen.

"Why, you did not; I haven't seen you for some time," replied Helen.

"Say, you are crazy; just left your house a few hours ago," insisted Bill.

"Well, who is this? Is this Bill so-and-so?" asked Helen.

"Good night, no, Isn't this Helen so-and-so?" asked Bill.

"Good night, no!"

"Well, I'll be ——" Click.

A man was asked to leave a fashionable restaurant in London the other evening because he was dressed partly in the garb of a woman and attracted too much attention. But "he" turned out to be a woman who was dressed too much like a man with close-cut hair, collar and tie waistcoat, lounge coat, felt hat and masculine shoes, her only article of feminine attire being an apology for a skirt.

Mr. Chas. Patterson Tells How Cuticura Healed Eczema

"My body was affected with eczema that broke out in a rash and then formed blisters. Later it broke out on my feet and limbs and I could hardly walk or get my shoes on. It itched and burned so badly that I could not get any sleep at night. The trouble lasted about three months.

"I tried different remedies but the trouble kept getting worse. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped me. I purchased more and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Chas. Patterson, R. F. D. 5, Hornell, N. Y., March 10, 1924.

By DAVID CORY

Fearing Danny Fox

The golden-rod glows by the road.
With plumes of drooping yellow:
While just beyond the old Rail Fence
There stands a flat-head fellow.

"Gid-ap," cried the Kind Farmer, clicking his tongue against his teeth and away trotted Betsy, the Old Gray Mare, with Old Sic'em running close behind the creaking buggy.

"There they go to Rabbitville," sighed Little Jack Rabbit, peeking through the Old Rail Fence. All of a sudden, he saw an insect about an inch in length, with hard black wings crossed with yellow bands. The next inute, away it flew toward a clump of locust trees nearby.

The Bunny Boy shivered and shook.

"Maybe I'll learn something," thought the curious little bunny boy, and off he hopped to follow the insect who presently settled on the trunk of a tree and commenced to bore a tunel right into the hard wood.

Just then, 'way off down the road sounded Old Sic'em's bark. "Maybe he has seen Danny Fox," thought the little bunny boy and, quick as a wink, anw maybe faster, he hopped into a big cluster of asters, white and blue and purple, that nodded into the sunny meadow, twenty-two hops to the right of the dusty road. Mr. Merry Sun was shining brightly down upon their pretty heads this mild October day, so the bunny boy hid himself as best he could. Some of the pretty flowers grew on tall branching stalks ever so much higher than his head, while others stood only a few inches above the ground.

"Dear me," sighed he, with a little shiver. "I hope Danny Fox won't gather a nosegay for Mrs. Fox. "what shall I do if he decides to take home a bouquet."

"He's too busy looking for a stray chicken," answered a buzzy wuzzy voice as Mrs. Bee on her four wings sailed off to another flower. "He'd never think of looking for you among the asters."

"Sniff the wind, maybe you'll find He's nearly half a mile behind." she added as the bunny boy shivered and shook.

Sitting up on his hind legs, the little rabbit carefully smelt the wind that ruffled the tall, withered grasses.

"I can't find a single trace.

Perhaps he's in some other place." answered the timid little bunny boy "But dearest me, if he happens to be hiding in a place toward which Billy Breeze is blowing, I couldn't smell him, not even if he had cologne sprinkled all over his pocket handkerchief."

"Then don't worry little rabbit.

Just maintain a careful habit." advised Mrs. Bee and away she flew on her four wings. And in the next story you shall hear, if you are kind and good, and help your mother all you can, and split the kindling wood, and never say an angry word, or throw a stone at any bird—how fast the bunny boy can hop to Rabbitville for a lollypop.

Her Wonderful Teeth

Remove the dingy film that's clouding yours and you'll be surprised that your teeth are just as white and charming as any one's—make this unique test.

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth that most of us have pretty teeth without ever knowing we have, or ever revealing it.

This is the reason:

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is charged too with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, film is a serious danger to healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

Now modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to curdle film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube at any druggist's today. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

A number of social affairs are being planned for All Hallows' (Saints') eve, Friday night of this week. The store windows display a great line of novelties and favors which appeal to shoppers.

At Moosup Baptist church Sunday, Mrs. Howard Byles of Sterling Hill sang the Parable of the Prodigal Son at the morning service. Her sister, Miss Florence Douglass was her accompanist.

Day after day now there is much quiet buying in advance of the holidays going on in local stores. About the first gifts called for are handkerchiefs, and these come in ususual novelties this season.

High-grade prints form a leading portion of the spring lines of silks which dealers here are selecting. There are 118 different designs in these printed crepes, with twenty to sixty-five color combinations.

John W. Lord and Thomas P. Wilcox are now husking the Lord's Hill corn, compelled thus early to hasten the work because of the destruction wrought by crows, whorf rats and squirrels, which are very numerous this fall.

FINN'S ATTORNEYS FAIL TO SECURE REDUCTION IN BONDS; CASE CONTINUED

George A. Finn, former secretary and treasurer of the Bankers Trust Co., where he is accused of having embezzled $146,261.39 since the first of July, was presented in the city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby after his arrest Saturday night upon a warrant charging the embezzlement of $40,000 on Sept. 15. The bond after his arrest was placed at $80,000.

Mr. Finn's attorneys, J. J. Desmond and C. L. Stewart, entered a demurrer and argued for a reduction in the amount of the bond. They stated to the court that the federal courts and state courts do not exact excessive bonds, which he claimed the amount of $80,000 was in this case. The attorneys mentioned the Gilpatric case, in which the embezzlement was nearly a million dollars but the bond was $50,000. They also said that the bank officials and Mr. Finn's friends would be glad to have the bail reduced so that his release could be effected.

City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins opposed a reduction by the court in the amount of the bond, stating that while he knew Mr. Finn personally and liked him and had great sympathy for him he felt that the regular course ought to be followed in this case.

While a recess of the court was declared while Judge Libby was answering a telephone call, the attorneys for Mr. Finn were in conference and it is understood that an attempt was made to have a bench warrant issued on which he could have been brought at once to the superior court, which would take the question of bail out of the hands of the city court, but in this they were not successful.

When court convened again attorneys for the accused asked for a continuance until Saturday, which was opposed by City Attorney Robbins. Mr. Finn's attorneys said they had good reasons for the continuance, as they had not had sufficient time to consult their client, and Judge Libby granted the continuance without bonds.

After the court session Mr. Finn was taken by Officer Charles Smith to the county jail to remain until Saturday. They rode in an automobile furnished by one of Mr. Finn's friends. The attempt of a photographer to get a picture was frustrated by friends of Mr. Finn who shielded him from view as he walked from the court house. The court room was crowded by interested friends of the former bank man, who looked haggard and worn.

Warrant for Berker.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Gabriel C. Berker of this city, head of the brokerage house through which Mr. Finn dealt in the stock market. Berker is charged with the theft of $53,000, which is the amount of overdrafts allowed by Mr. Finn.

Attorney Earl Mathewson, who is counsel for Berker, has been notified of the issuance of the warrant and has been directed to produce Berker as soon as possible.

Mr. Mathewson said Monday night that he had reason to believe Berker would be back here in a day or two. He said that he personally did not know where Berker is at present, but he was in touch with those who did know. He could say, however, that Berker was out of the state and it would be simpler for the authorities to serve the warrant upon his return than to arrest him where extradition papers would have to be secured.

The offices of the brokerage firm in the Thayer building were open Monday in charge of the office manager, Ernest Conlon, whose home is in Providence.

Bank Had Successful Day.

The Bankers Trust Co. opened as usual for business Monday morning and it was reported that the public confidence in the soundness and solvency of the institution was apparent as there was nothing in the nature of a run. Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne and his assistant, Lester E. Shippee, were here until the latter part of the afternoon.

While there were a number of accounts closed out during the day, the proportion was very small, it was stated by Commissioner Byrne, and the deposits had exceeded the withdrawals by a very comfortable margin.

It was learned Monday morning that assistance in any way they could give it had been offered to the Bankers Trust Co. by the Thames National bank, the Merchants National bank, the Uncas National bank, the Dime Savings bank, the Norwich Savings society and the Chelsea Savings bank, all of which was very gratifying and reassuring to the Trust company officers, but their assistance was not needed, as the prompt action of the directors in meeting the emergency had established a feeling of confidence in the community in the financial soundness of the Trust company.

HARVEY HOUSE BURNED AT ALLYN'S POINT

A fire of unknown origin Saturday night destroyed an unoccupied house at Allyns Point, the former home of Mrs. Maud Bullock Harvey, who is now an inmate of the Norwich State hospital. The fire, which is reported as apparently starting from the inside, was discovered between 8 and 9 o'clock, and neighbors telephoned to Gales Ferry for assistance. Walter M. Buckingham responded with the fire fighting apparatus of the Gales Ferry Village Improvement association, and Nelson Parker, with R. I. Hurlbutt, J. Edmund Norman and Stanley Faford, motored to the scene. The Pioneer Hose company of Groton also responded to a call for help, but as its hose to the pumping outfit was too short to bring a supply of water from the river and the fire being then beyond control, its efforts were directed in keeping the flames from spreading to the adjoining place, occupied by Mrs. Charles W. Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Duffy. The house which has been for sale for several months, was built 78 years ago and has had several owners.

Edgell of Boston was the speaker Monday evening at the assessors' office at the court house before the tax equalization committee, explaining the plan would be followed by the company he represents in making a revaluation of the grand list of the town. Chairman James L. Case of the tax equalization committee presided and there was a large attendance of the members.

Members of the committee questioned Mr. Edgell, receiving helpful answers and explanations. He is to see the tax maps that have been prepared and consult with the assessors in preparation for submitting an estimate of the time and expense of the work.

Another meeting of the committee is to be held next Monday evening.

The fire department answered two calls Monday, one for a small blaze and the other for a supposed fire. The first call came in at noon for a small blaze on the dock in the rear of the old C. B. Rogers Co. property on Thames street. The damage was slight.

At 1.57 o'clock a telephone call was received for a supposed fire in the building on Thames street owned by Charles and David Gordon. Tenants on the second floor had started a fire in a stove and a backdraft blew the smoke down the chimney and out of a stovepipe hole in Meyer Antekol's store.

GILPATRIC WILL PLEAD GUILTY TO MORE COUNTS

G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, and until three months ago treasurer of the state of Connecticut, will plead guilty to several of the remaining 25 counts of embezzlement against him when he is arraigned in the United States court in New Haven, Thursday. This was revealed in a statement made to The New Haven Journal-Courier by William A. King of Willimantic, counsel for the defense.

Gilpatric has already pleaded guilty to 14 charges of embezzlement, involving a shortage of $300,000 in the First National bank of Putnam, of which he was cashier.

When arraigned three weeks ago, his head still tightly wrapped in bandages, and his face showing freshly healed scars from his attempt upon his life, the up-state politician was granted a continuance of three weeks to permit his attorney time for a view of the bank's books.

Mr. Gilpatric's delicate condition, and the complete loss of his sight has made it impossible for him to aid us in the examination of the bank's books.

Not only has his trying experience left him weak in body, but the heavy strain seems even to have affected his mind. It is only with great difficulty that I can draw from him coherent replies to questions affecting the shortages shown in the bank's books.

We obtained the papers from the federal receiver immediately after the arraignment in New Haven three weeks ago, to determine how many of the remaining 25 counts we should accept with pleas of guilty.

The books, however, are very complicated, and we are trying to wade through the accounts with the receiver, who is giving us his sincere cooperation.

"As yet it is impossible to say as to whether we shall plead guilty to each of the remaining 25 counts or just a few. I believe, however, that Mr. Gilpatric will plead guilty to a number of the remaining charges in an effort to have the case settled as quickly as possible.

The whole matter is very distasteful to my client and to his family. Their only wish now is to have it settled as soon as possible. I have no intention of dragging it out any longer than is necessary and expect to have it settled Thursday.

From this it is assumed that sentence will be passed upon the up-state politician by Judge Thomas Thursday.

By his pleas of guilty to 14 major charges of embezzlement, Gilpatric has thrown himself completely upon the mercy of the court.

PERCY HAUGHTON, FAMOUS FOOTBALL COACH AT COLUMBIA, DIES SUDDENLY

New York, Oct. 25.—Percy D. Haughton, head football coach at Columbia University, founder of the famous "Haughton System" at Harvard and generally regarded as one of the foremost exponents of the gridiron sport, died this afternoon at St. Luke's hospital at five o'clock, one hour after he was stricken with acute indigestion at Baker field while directing the work of his squad.

His sudden death came two days after the Columbia eleven had administered a crushing defeat to Williams college, which was taken as proof by critics that Haughton had had installed a football system at Columbia destined to rival his former success at Harvard where his teams from 1908 to 1916 ranked with the best in gridiron history.

The fatal attack interrupted the first practice which was to prepare his squad for its real test next Saturday at Ithaca against Cornell. Army and Dartmouth were also on the most ambitious schedule which Columbia had attempted since football had been revived at Columbia in 1914.

The possible effect of his death upon the future games, particularly that with Cornell, could not be determined tonight.

Haughton came to Columbia in April, 1923, taking charge of the spring training of that season, his contract was said to have been for $15,000 a year, thought to be a record price for a football coach. He was secured by a special committee appointed by the University to get a coach capable of producing a real football team. Previously, the Blue and White teams had been of mediocre calibre.

The new coach worked slowly to install the fundamentals. His success last lear was fair and his 1924 squad was only promising. The early games this year, particularly the 10 to 7 defeat at Pennsylvania tow weeks ago, showed some improvement but in the Williams game the Columbia eleven displayed a powerful attack which proved to be the big surprise of the present season and heavy with possibilities.

Reputation Made at Harvard

Haughton's reputation as a football coach was established at Harvard University where he took charge of another failing football situation in 1908 and built up the most remarkable system known to the game up to that period. From the time that his teachings took hold until 1916 when he left the Harvard elevens were among the most formidable in the east. His 1914 and 1915 teams administered to Yale the most crushing defeats ever received at the hands of her Cambridge rival.

Haughton-coached teams were famous for their mastery of the intricate details of the game. The modern scouting system which has been so generally adopted as to become an accepted phase of the sport, was first introduced on a broad scale by Haughton. On the field his methods resembled the efficiency of business. He maintained a general supervision of the work and acted upon reports brought from a staff of assistants who were entrusted with the detailed instruction.

Dropped Football For Baseball

When he left Harvard in 1916 to become president of the Boston National league baseball club, he was generally regarded as the most successful football coach of the decade. He resigned the presidency of the Braves in 1918 to enter the service as a major in the chemical corps. After the war re-became associated with banking interests in Boston, where his home is located. These were still maintained at the time of his death as Haughton spent only the spring and fall with the Columbia team.

Haughton was a fooball end and captain of the 1899 baseball nine at Harvard. He was also head coach at Cornell University for two years.

Goes To Columbia

Haughton succeeded "Buck" O'Neill who had failed to develop a winning team at Columbia in three seasons after a successful record at Syracuse. O'Neill followed Fred Dawson, now coach at Nebraska University. Dawson had been preceded by T. Nelson Metcalf. None of the three had been able to overcome the handicaps with which the football coach of a university located in the heart of New York faced Haughton had been advised not to risk his reputation on an apparently impossible task.

William H. "Big Bill" Edwards, former collector of internal revenue, and Princeton football star who umpired many games in which Haughton's Harvard teams played, was deeply moved when informed of the death of his friend.

"I can't say anything too fine about Percy Haughton," Mr. Edwards said. "He had a wonderful football brain. He was a powerful leader. Men who knew him, loved him because he always gave all there was in him.

"As one of the leading coaches of the country, Haughton was willing to tackle the Columbia job when football at that school was at its lowest ebb. To has put the sport at Columbia on a higher plane, morally and physically. Nor it has ever been under a coach who himself was not a Columbia man."

Having established his system, which had won 71 games and tied five out of 82 played, he retired to enter business. His successor, Robert T. Fisher, was one of his first pupils and captain of the 1911 team.

During his regime Haughton developed a scientific scouting organization. He emphasized the principle of using the punt as an offensive weapon as well as a defensive shield, and he never failed to develop a god kicker. Another of his doctrines was that the quarterback was the team's strategist and should be protected from punishment which might in a hard game impede his clear thinking. Conservation of a team's energy with the ball in its own territory and a hard drive behind smashing interference with the ball in the enemy's half of the field was another of his fundamental precepts.

Was Punter of Ability

Haughton as a member of the class of 1899 at Harvard won for himself an enviable reputation as a punter. In 1879 he first won recognition by outkicking the University of Pennsylvania kicker, Minds, who had been rated the best booter among the College stars of that season. The next year, Harvard defeated Yale 17-0 with Haughton's great booming kicks, sent now for distance and now for placement, giving the Crimson an overwhelming advantage. Haughton also played baseball at Harvard and captained the nine his senior year.

YALE TEAM SURVIVES BROWN GAME WITH FEW INJURIES

New Haven, Oct. 27.—The Yale varisty football squad today started its week's practice preparatory to the Yale- Army game next Saturday with Captain Lovejoy, center, and Eddie Bench, quarterback, on the sidelines owing to muscle bruises sustained in the game with Brown Saturday. It is believed that both of them will be in the scrimmage tomorrow or Wednesday. Burt took Lovejoy's place at center and Bunnell played at quarterback during the practice today. Failing, one of the best kickers on the Yale squad, who has been out of the game with bronchitis for several days, was back in uniform today and took part in the dummy scrimmage. The injury to Scott in the Brown game proved to be slight and he was back in the scrimmage today.

NAVY TEAM HARD HIT BY SCHOLARSHIP RULING

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 27.—The number of Navy varsity gridders disqualified from participation in athletics for one month because of unsatisfactory scholastic standing, learned eight tonight, when it was learned that besides the four regulars whose ineligibility was announced earlier in the day, four first-team substitutes have also been disqualified.

The latter are Query, Hubert-Jones and Manloney, backfield men, and Horner, a lineman. The regulars are Lentz, guard; Flippen, halfback; Shapley, quarterback, and Osborne, center, all star performers.

With the examinations of November 22 the men's next opportunity to regain their places on the eleven, the suspensions have cast a cloud over the Middies' game of games, that with Army, to be played in Baltimore, November 29.

Meanwhile, Coach Folwell must develop a virtually new organization for the games with Penn State, Vermont and Bucknell, the first of which is but five days away.

Folwell today threw Hamilton and Banks into the backfield breach in a practice session, and Caldwell and Wellings filled the other two positions. It cannot be said however, whether this alignment will be permanent.

The chief concern of the sailors is the Army-Navy tilt. The suspended players, it is said, may take part in workouts if they wish, but whether they can do this and at the same time recoup their classroom standing, is a question.

The team includes a number of league ball players who are Jack Sank of the Blue Ridge league, Tony West and Joe Faber of the Baltimore Orioles, Artie Couillard, formerly of the Blue Ridge league, Eddine Burns and a number of others Sank is doing the pitching and Les Manchester is his battery mate

Spalla says that in as much as every year he must spend a few months in Rome he is seeking to purchase an apartment. He wants to get quarters in the most expensive and most aristocratic quarters in the city.

New York, Oct. 27.—Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, announced today plans for the formation of the professional golfer's league of Florida. This is the first league of its kind ever ogranized and is being tried out as an experiment with the idea of making it a permanent feature of Florida's winter season if it proves successful.

Hagen and Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick-shot golfer, will represent Pasadena-on-the-gulf; Bobby Cruichshank and Johnny Farrell will play for Tampa; Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegal will represent Hollywood, while Mike Brady and Tommy Armour will play for Miami. One other team in the Jacksonville-St. Augustine district is planned to bring the total number of teams to five.

SUB BASE SWAMPS TEAM FROM U. S. WYOMING

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 27.—Abandoning its heavy line plunging for this game at least, and in its prace substituting a well functioning forward pass game, the Submarine Base soundly trounced a sturdy but incompetent eleven from the U. S. S. Wyoming at the base grounds this afternoon by a 32 to 6 score. It is estimated that nearly 4,000 people, guests of the navy department, looked upon the contest at times in a frenzy over the various plays that netted the Base or the visiting sailors a gain. It was a typical navy day gathering, and it afforded many fans their first chance to see the heavy gobs eleven in action for the first time.

Taking the lead in the first quarter when O'Hare romped over the goal line from the 24 yard line for the first touchdown of the game, the Base did not stop at this score but continued to pile up their large total. The next quarter was the most fruitful of the four and netted the gobs 20 points. Neither team scored in the third quarter but in the final fifteen minute struggle, both teams scored and each on a long pass.

Anticipating a running attack, the Wyoming had a fine defense built against whatever the gobs from the Base would hurl at them. And it must be frankly admitted that the visitors beat the gobs at their own game. The stopped the Base thrusts at the guard or center possmos, but failed to strengthen the wings. It was ability to skirt the wings, and once free of the pack the Base back with the ball most generally made good gain before he was brought to earth. But the Base found difficulty in finding any openings in the Wyoming line for the first quarter at least. The first team players began to make their appearance with the beginning of the second quarter. But still the stalwart Wyoming line held. The overhead game for which the visitors had no conceivable defense, brought about their down fall in a manner which was both rapid and gratifying to Base supporters

The lineup:

PIRATES AND CUBS NEGOTIATE FIRST BIG BASEBALL DEAL OF THE SEASON

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The Chicago National league club today acquired Walter Maranville, second baseman; Charley Grimm, first baseman and Wilbur Cooper, left hand pitcher, all of the Pittsburgh National, in exchange for Vic Aldridge, right hand pitcher; George Grantham, second baseman, and Albert Niehaus, first baseman, the latter recently purchased by the Cubs from Chatianooga. No money was involved in the deal.

The trade is the biggest of the winter season and according to President William Veeck, of the Cubs, one of the largest ever put through in the National league.

Aldridge had been a member of the Cubs for three years. Coming from the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League obtained by the Cubs from the Indianapolis club of the American association.

George Grantham came to the Cubs two years ago from the Omaha Western League club, and was field captain during 1923.

Niehaus was one of the leading first basemen of the Southern association and was to have reported to the Cubs next spring. He is a right hand hitter.

In Cooper, the Cubs have obtained one of the best lefthand pitchers in baseball. Cooper last season was one of four pitchers credited with winning 20 games. Vance and Grimes, of the Dodgers, and Carl Mays of the Reds being the others.

Charley Grimm is rated as one of the best first basemal in the National league. During the past season, his unofficial batting average for 151 games was .289.

DREYFUSS MADE TRADE TO IN CREASE HITTING POWER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 27.—More hitting strength to carry the Pirates through tight places in late season pennant drives, was the chief consideration of the Pittsburgh Nationals in trading Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, Charlie Grimm and Wilbur Cooper, for Vic Aldridge, George Grantham, and Albert Niehaus, of the Chicago Nationals, Sam Dreyfus, treasurer of the club announced tonight.

"For years now we have been in the pennant race right up to the last ditch," said Mr. Dreyfus, "and each year we have failed to pull trough in a pinch Lack of hitting power, it seems, has been the chief cause of our failure, and it was to overcome this weakness that we have made the changes just announced."

Mr. Dreyful said that Eddie Moore, Atlanta infielder who joined the Pirates last season would replace Maranville at second base while Grantham a heavy hitter would appear in right field. Near the end of the last season Moore played in right field having geen kept in the lineup on account of his hitting ability.

Niehus will take care of the initial bag with Barnes, a rookie, in reserve.

No money was involved in the trade, Mr. Dreyfus said. He also declared emphatically that there was no connection between this deal and the recent baseball scandal and the demand of Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburg club, for a thorough sifting of the affair.

M'TIGUE TO SUE NEW YORK COMMISSION FOR $250,000

New York, Oct. 27.—Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, announced today through his attorney that he would start suit against the New York state athletic commission, claiming $250,000 damages on the charge that he has been prevented from obtaining a license and boxing in this state.

McTigue's action followed the recommendation of the commission, made last week, that its license committee refused him a license in this state for a year for failure to accept the challenge of Gene Tunney, American 175 pound champion, for a title match. This recommendation, however, has not yet been acted upon by the license committee.

McTigue charges, according to his attorney, that he applied for a license last week but was turned down. According to Dan Skillingzen secretary of the commission, however, no application was filed by the fighter.

McTigue's counsel said the suit would be filed in supreme court within a few days.

FLEET ELEVEN BEATS QUANTICO MARINES, 7 TO 6

New York, Oct. 27.—The scouting fleet eleven, made up of players from the eighteen naval service teams along the Atlantic seaboard, defeated the marines at the Yankee stadium today, 7 to 6.

A crowd of 8,000 including Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur attended the game.

The Marines were handicapped because of an agreement made prior to the game, allowing only one officer to play at a time. This necessitated an almost complete change in the team's lineup.

The Marines scored their touchdown in the opening period when Stock blocked a punt and fell on the ball behind the Navy's goal line. The Navy team scored in the second period when Leak picked up a fumbled ball on his own two yard line and ran 98 yards for a touchdown. Ensign Rooney booted a drop kick for the extra point, which proved the winning margin.

GRANGE'S ABILITY TO THINK QUICKLY, HIS GREAT ASSET

Chicago, Oct. 27.—While the football fans in the grandstand thinks that "Red" Grange is merely out running his opponents for the long string of touchdowns which have made the Illinois player famous, Coach A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, believes that Grange succeeds by outguessing his would-be tacklers.

Stagg, who has coached football teams for 30 years said today that Grange's judgment of the situation impressed him in an early season game last year.

"I knew then that here was a most remarkable football player," the 62 year old dean of the "big ten" said.

"Grange is not tearing along at a breackneck speed all the time. Quite the contrary. He changes his pace to suit the conditions. When he is to outrun somebody, he is able to do so. He always has something left for that big effort, and invariably he knows when it is time to make that big effort.

"That judgment, that knowledge of just what to do, and just when to do it, is, in my opinion, Grange's greatest asset."

BIG GOLF MATCH AT NEW ROCHELLE ON SUNDAY

New York, Oct. 27.—Bobby Jones, National amateur golf champion, paired with Cyrill Torry, the long driving british star, will meet Cyril Walker, American open golf champion, and Jim Barnes, former champion, at the Wykagyl Country club in New Rochelle on Sunday, Nov. 2, in the final big golf match of the season in the north. The proceeds of this match will be given to the crippled children.

SPORTING NOTES

Thirty years ago there were 30,000 miles of bicycle racing circuits in America.

The new stadium of the University of Illinois has a maximum seating capacity of 66,000.

A big advance sale is reported for the Champion Mickey Walker-Jack Malone fight to take place at Newark on October 29.

William T. Tilden, the famous lawn tennis player, has for a mascot a four-leaf clover that once belonged to Abraham Lincoln.

In the spring of 1869 a four-oarded Harvard crew went to England and rowed an Oxford four. The English crew won after an exciting race.

The winter racing season at New Orleans will close on March 17 with the Louisiana Derby, which this year will have an added value of $17,500.

Modern football is played at such a terrific speed that it takes four or five days for the body to recover completely from the strain of a single game.

The Woman's Western Gold Association will hold its annual meeting in Chicago, October 30, for the election of officers and the transaction of other business.

England boasts of a woman professional billiard expert in a Miss Collins, who has made a break of 115. She was once opposed to six men in a relay billiard match—and beat them.

Now nearing his sixtieth year, Bobby Dobbs, who was "some" pugilist before most of the top-nitchers of today were born, is still teaching boxing and covers five miles on the road each day.

Interest in football is sweeping the south this fall. Everyhere there are independent teams being organized and their games add to the interest created by schools, colleges and universities.

Fox-hunting, that is the chase of the fox with horse and hounds as a creation, arose in England with the restoration, when changes in customs and agricultural conditions caused the disappearance of falconry.

Lord D'Aberon, a noted figure on the English turf, has a curious racing superstitution. Whenever one of his horses wins a big race he has a brooch made, with the horses name in diamonds. This he gives to a lady to wear, in the belief that the luck will continue.

One of the most successful seasons in the history of the metropolitan tracks will end with the close of the Empire City meeting on October 30. Interest of the Eastern race followers will then shift to Maryland, where the sport will be continued until the end of November with some of the best horses in the country contending for the numerous large purses.

LEGHORNS AT STORRS LEADING BY ONE EGG

Last week the two leading pens in the Storrs laying contest were separated by only three eggs. This week the margin is one egg and meanwhile the tables have been turned. C. T. Darby's pen of White Leghorns from North Branch, N. J., have finally overtaken Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., that have been leading the contest for the last thirty-one weeks. It is interesting to note that in the middle of the week the Leghorns were leading by two eggs but before the week closed the Reds regained half the ground they had lost. Apparently no one will be able to pick the winner in the thirteenth contest until after the last egg is laid next Wednesday night. There are three possibilities either one of which is as apt to happen as either of the others. The Rhode Island Reds may win, the White Leghorns may twin or like so many college football results these two teams may be tied when time is called on the 29th of October. In addition to the Agricultural college pen of Barred Rocks from Guelph, Ont., and D. O. Witmer's pen of White Wyandottes from Joplin, Mo., Pinecrest Orchard's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Groton, Mass., will without doubt cross the 2,000 egg mark before the close of the contest.

In the fifty-first week H. F. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., came through with 49 eggs, the best score of any pen. This apparently assures this pen of first place in the Plymouth Rock class. White Leghorns entered by George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Mich., was second best pen for the week with a yield of 39 egs. Another pen of the same breed owned by Meadowedge Farm at Cedarhurst, L. I., was a close third with a record of 38 eggs. White Wyandottes entered by Harvey V. Byerly of Sharpsville, Pa., and Rhode Island Reds owned by Pincrest Orchards, of Groton, Mass., tied for fourth place with 36 eggs each. The total production for all pens was 2,070 or a yield of nearly thirty per cent. A production of only about sixteen per cent. in the last week will assure a grand total for the year of 167,0 0 eggs.

Plymouth Rocks.

Broadway Theatre Revue.

A delighted audience praised the big double show at the Broadway theatre, that is being presented for the first half of this week. All proclaimed it to be the best show of the year. There remains no question but what the Broadway management is serving and giving the theatregoers much more than their money's worth and deserves the crowded houses that have been the rule.

The programme for the first half of this week opened with Jordan and Hayes in a variety offering. These two men sing, have good comedy and top off their act with some clever acrobatic dancing.

Ernest Torrence plays the clown, and Anna Q. Nilsson is Lady Aurio Dayne. Both are featured. There's a big cast playing in support.

Palace Theatre

Many a man has spent good money to see a fight, but few are willing to put themselves to any trouble in order to hear an argument. However, when In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter, which is the current First National picture at the Palace the three hundred people spent a good part of the morning listening to the first motion picture disagreement between famous partners. And the sight proved well worth it, for Montague Glass's famous characters are past masaters in the art of amusing while they argue. Moreover, it is not only they say it, that provides the humort.

In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter is an adaption of the stage play. Business Before Pleasure. The story takes the partners to the movie capital and traces their many adventures as they embark upon the career of motion picture producers. Alexander Carr, the original Abe Perlmutter, play the same role in the picture, and George Sidney is seen as Potash. Others in the cast are Vera Gordon, Belle Bennett and Betty Blythe. The picture was directed by Alfred Green from Frances Marion's scenario.

POLICE LIEUT. BENJ. A. BEEBE
RETIRED BY NEW LONDON COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct 27.—Benamin A. Beebe, who has been the lieutenant of police in this city for nearly forty years, tonight requested the council to retire him from active duty to the veteran reserve force. His request was complied with and he was placed on the reserve force at a salary of $1080 a year. His retirement becomes effective at the first of December. Lieut. Beebe is the veteran of the force in point of service as well as of age. He was a halibut fisherman previous to his appointment. His service has been of the most efficient sort and every member of the force will regret that he leave the active duty in which he has so long been engaged. Lieut. Beebe will now be enabled to live in leisure and enjoy the years still in store for him. He goes with the respect of citizens generally and with the best wishes of the men with whom he has been associated so long and so pleasantly.

The city council instructed the city manager to purchase 1,500 seven years old white pine trees for reforestation of the water shed of the Konomoc lake, from which the city gets its water supply. The trees are to be purchased from W. J. Schoonman who has a conservatory near the lake. The trees are to be paid for when transplanted at the rate of 50 cents each.

The council voted to divide the fire alarm circuit No. 1 and to make another circuit, No. 6, because the circuit at present is overloaded with fire alarm boxes.

The city manager explained that where possible the fire alarm boxes were to be placed underground and said that with this purpose in view he had arranged with the S. N. E. T. company to provide for them at Bank and Cutler streets and at one other point on the same streets—Bank street.

The building applications submitted to the council this evening were almost wholly for garages, seven of the ten. The other applications were for porches or verandas with one exception, that being for increasing a story on the Hollandersky building on Bank street.

The crew of the rum-runner Anna, seized Sunday morning southeast of Block Island by the destroyer Cassin and brought into port, were before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich at the customs house, this afternoon. The master of the craft, Max Zion was held in bonds of $1500 for trial before the next term of the United States district court at New Haven. The remainder of the crew were allowed their liberty. Zion who declared that he was not the legitimate master of the boat, asserted that he was forced to take command of the sloop when the master deserted the boat, boarding a speed launch when the destroyer was sighted approaching the rum runner. Zion furnished a surety on his bond, a New Haven man furnishing $1500. The liquor found aboard the Anna, 1500 cases of Scotch, is still in the hold of the boat and which is moored at the United States coast guard pier, but will be transferred to the storage rooms of the customs house tomorrow Wednesday.

Parker is know to have been in New Haven within a few days and it is possible that he will come to New London. Parker's scheme is to deposit counterfeit checks of the represented issue of the railroad and drawn on the Equitable Trust & Savings bank, Baltimore, and then check from the deposit. He is described as being about 45, five feet, six inches in height, weighs about 145 pounds and is dark copper color and wears a close cropped moustache.

William Terry, ex-service man, has brought suit against the city for $3,000 damages as a result of injuries Terry alleges he sustained at Ocean Beach the past summer. The case is returnable before the superior court the first Tuesday in November and papers were served on City Clerk Julian D. Moran today.

Terry was bathing in front of the beach last July and in diving his head came in contact with a submerged object. The swimmer's scalp and face were lacerated and he was removed from the water in a partially unconscious condition. The services of a diver were obtained by the city, a few days after the accident, for the purpose of ascertaining what menace to bathers existed beneath the water's surface, but none was found, the bed being free from stone, timber or other obstructions. It is the general belief, however, that Terry entered the water at a time when a submerged section of timber was floating near the raft and it was this object that the swimmer struck.

The two family house at 210 Huntington street, owned and occupied by Mrs. Marion Dean, was threatened with destruction this morning when flames enveloped a part of the roof. An alarm was rung in from Box 26, corner of Huntington street and Bulkeley place, summoning the major portion of the city's fire fighting equipment. The flames were attacked with chemicals and were subdued after a half hour's work by the department, but not until the roof and upper part of the structure had been damaged. The fire is believed to have originated from sparks from the chimney lighting on the shingled roof.

Alexander B. Murass, 222 South Main street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was arrested Sunday afternoon in Waterford, charged with reckless driving. He was presented later before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton and pleaded not guilty, but probable cause was found and Murass was fined $25 and costs, the latter amounting to $14. Murass refused to pay the fine and costs, asserting that he was a member of Tammany Hall and his membership made him immune from penalization. Murass was informed that Waterford also was connected with another Tammany hall and that its headquarters were on Franklin street, New London, and that the institution was familiarly known as the county jail. Murass was given his alternative of paying the fine and costs, or pulling onions at the local "Tammany hall." He finally deemed it advisable to pay the costs.

Murass was operating his machine near Jordan cemetery at a speed of 44 miles an hour when overtaken by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright, of Groton barracks and arrested. Murass admitted he was driving at a rate of 35 miles an hour.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Robert A. Small and Miss Mary Richards, both of Norwich, and by a brother, Stanley Richards of New Haven. Mr. Richards was for many years employed as a hotel clerk, having been for several years by the Crocker house and by many of the leading New York hotels. A large number of New Londoners and residents of Waterford, who are identified with the Ku Klux Klan attended a meeting of the hooded band in Higganum Saturday night. The meeting was attended by about 1,000 members and a class of 172 was initiated.

Fisher Butler, a sailor from the submarine base, indulged in alcohol pretty freely yesterday and as a result he became intoxicated and made things so hot at the rooming place of his wife that he was arrested. He did some damage to the house by smashing things and his landlord, named Brax, demanded that he should settle. When Butler came to his senses this morning in the police court he was heartily ashamed of himself and arranged to pay for the damage he had occasioned. So he avoided prosecution.

A couple of automobilists were taken into custody for violations of the parking and state automobile laws, but they were not prosecuted as their offenses were of a technical nature.

The oldest voter cannot recall an election campaign which has been as devoid of interest by political addresses and parades as has been the campaign now within a week of closing. There has not been a political address delivered here except that of Sunday evening and the supporters of LaFollette hired the Empire theatre and expounded the policy of the senator from Wisconsin and incidentally abused those who did not agree with them. The colored voters were addressed by local speakers and a colored woman from abroad last week. To date there has been no enthusiasm manifested in the election. It is queried if a big majority of the voters have not made up their minds what the result of the balloting is to be.

She was very successful as a teacher in the Main street school hee and has been equally successful in San Juan.

Lee & Osgood Co. will supply you and guarantee money refunded if you are not entirely satisfied.

GIRL AND EX-SAILOR FIGURE AT BRATTLEBORO

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 27.—Helen Ruth Kelley, a young girl, who is under arrest in Burlington, Vt., charged with theft, is a much wanted young lady in New London and Groton, but because of the nature of the crime she is charged with, it is probable that the New London police will not have the girl in their tolls for some time to come. The girl and a companion, posing as Charles Kelley and her husband, have made a practice for several months of thieving and passing worthless checks. Kelley is believed to be an ex-sailor stationed at the submarine base. The couple were taken into custody at Burlington Sunday following the girl's theft of a Hudson seal coat and cloth coat from guests at a hotel where the girl and Kelley stopped. This morning Kelley and two male companions broke jail and got away. The Kelley girl formerly resided at 61 Golden street, this city and about two months ago she secured a Star touring car from the Sullivan garage, Jay street. The girl tendered a fraudulent check in payment of the car and although she was about the city several days following getting possession of the machine, she managed to keep her movements unknown to the police. Kelley and the girl also are wanted by the Groton police for about the time that the fraudulent check was passed whereby the automobile was obtained by the couple, they secured lodging in Groton and then ransacked the rooms of lodgers.

CLERK, CAR AND $255 DISAPPEAR MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct 27.—The police tonight are seeking William Taylor of Hill street, employed as clerk by Richard Bridgeman, proprietor of a grocery store, 705 Broad street, for Taylor absconded this noon with $255 entrusted to him, also stole a Ford delivery car. Bridgeman did not report the loss of his money and automobile until about five hours after Taylor left so that the thief had an exceptionally good start before his theft was made known to the authorities.

Taylor, who was formerly employed by the Salvation Army as a truck driver, had been employed by Bridgeman several weeks. Shortly before noon, Bridgeman gave Taylor a deposit on the Union Bank & Trust Co., amounting to $255, the deposit being in cash, excepting about $5, which was checks. Taylor presumably started for the bank in Bridgeman's delivery car, but he never reached the bank, as Bridgeman learned about 3 o'clock, when he communicated with the bank when Taylor failed to return to the store. Even then Bridgemon failed to notify the police of Taylor's act, the former waiting till shortly after 6 o'clock before he lodged a complaint against Taylor. The efforts of the police to locate Taylor from the fact lice were further hampered in an effort that Bridgeman did not even know the registration of the automobile. Bridgeman explained his failure to inform the police of the disappearance of Taylor by declaring that he believed his clerk would return as Taylor had been entrusted with bank deposits on previous occasions.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Bank of England sovereigns are often tested and found to have lost much of the original weight. Of the immense quantities of the precious metal that have been buried away in the earth, it is believed comparatively little has ever been recovered. The priests of Peru are said to have buried approximately $10,000,000 worth of treasure to preserve it from the clutches of their persecutors. None of this has been found. The tombs of the old kings of Egypt were treasure houses, immense quantities of gold and jewels being interred with them. It has been estimated by historians that Alexander the Great became the master of great hoards of gold, all of which so far as is known, has vanished.

How Skinny Kids Can Grow Robust

Weak, undernourished, underweight boys and girls who are peevish, fretful and sickly need McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

Cod Liver Oil would do just as well, but what parent would be so cruel as to give them the horrible nasty tasting, ill smelling stuff, when sugar coated cod liver oil tablets made by McCoy's Laboratories of New York are as easy to take as candy and won't upset their delicate stomachs.

There's more vitamines of the first class in cod liver oil than in anything else and for that reason thin, scraggly, sickly children commence to liven up and take on good healthy flesh after McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets have been taken for just a few days.

"The listless, backward boy needs McCoy's"

Be sure and ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any good druggist for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet, if you want your delicate children to become strong, robust and active.

For grown-ups they are just as wonderful—one woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks. 60 tablets 60 cents and if they don't put 5 pounds of good firm flesh on any thin man or woman in 30 days, get your money back.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Oct. 27.—Stock prices displayed a reactionary trend in today's relatively quiet market. While bear traders succeeded in uncovering a few weak spots, notably the Yellow Cab issues, and pool operations were continued in a few specialties, trading in the general list was characterized by a backing and filling movement, regarded as typical of pre-election markets.

American Can was the weakest of the so-called pivotal issues, dropping nearly 3 points to 122 1-2 and then rallying to 122 3-8. The preferred touched a new 1924 high at 119. Baldwin closed about a point lower at 117 3-8. United States Steel common, dividend action on which will be taken of less than 1-2 points and closed only 1-8 lower at 107 3-8, apparently indicating that the regular dividend of $1.25 and an extra of 50 cents, which had been paid in the last three-quarters, was expected.

A break of more than 8 points in Yellow Cab manufacturing, which established a new low for the year at 61 1-2, followed the publication of a financial statement showing only 88 cents a share earned on the common stock in the third quarter as against dividend requirements of $1.25. Chicago Yellow Cab dropped 4 1-2 points to 43.

Railroad shares yielded with the industrials despite the publication of some surprisingly favorable September earnings statements. St. Paul's September net increase from $2,664,107 in 1923 to $3,024,945; Lackawanna's from $666,344 to $1,513,927 and Frisco's from $1,607,208 to $3,313,167.

Frisco common attained new peak prices at 39 1-2 and then reacted to 36 1-4 off 3 1-4. Net losses of a point or more were registered by Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred, Chicago & Great Western preferred and Erie second preferred.

Oil shares declined in the face of the publication of the statistics showing a tremendous increase in gasoline exports and a further reduction in crude production in the Los Angeles basin. Net losses in the popular issues, however, were held to small fractions.

American Woolen duplicated its recent low of 51 1-2 and then rallied to 53 3-4, up 1 1-2 on the announcement of an advance in prices of men's wear wool fabrics for the spring 1925 season. Other strong spots included the Commercial Solvents issues, the United States Distributing issues, Wells Fargo Express, Allied Chemical and Maxwell "A." Fleischmann touched a new high at 80 3-4 and then slipped back to 79 1-2 for a net gain of about a point on the day.

Call money opened at 2 per cent., advanced to 2 1-2 and thence to 3, the increase being associated with the deficit in reserve shown in the weekly clearing house statement last Saturday. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Strength of sterling, which advanced more than a cent to around $4.50 was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Buying of British bills was attributed in some quarters to more hopeful feeling in London regarding the parliamentary elections this week.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 27.—Bond prices turned reactionary today with a tightening of the money situation. While the market for time funds remained virtually unchanged, the rise in call money to 3 per cent was reflected in withdrawal of buying support by institutions which last week were seeking employment of their surplus funds.

Over-subscription of the $30,000,000 Swedish loan offered today, caused the market's capacity for absorbing new investments. Estimates that allotments would be cut down to about 20 per cent, indicating that the issue had been received almost as well as the recent German loan. The Swedish government's present sizes, however, were heavy in reflection of the additional financing.

Many standard investment and semi-speculative railroad liens, accumulated on a rising scale last week were unloaded today, causing a fractional recession in prices. Among the issues which worked lower in New York Central 6s, St. Paul refunding and convertible 4 1-2s, Rock Island General 4s, Erie General 4s and Great Northern 7s.

Selling of Sugar company bonds was resumed today on further reports from Cuba of unsettled conditions in the industry while oil, copper and packing company issues followed the downward trend of stock prices. United States government obligations drifted irregularly lower and the new German bonds dropped below 94.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $5,000,000 commercial company of Baltimore ten year 6 per cent notes at 99 1-2 to yield over 6.05 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Unexpected sharp upturns in price at Buenos Aires and Liverpool, together with active export demand in the United States, gave a decided lift today to the wheat market here. Wheat in Chicago closed firm, 2 7-8 to 3 3-8c net higher, December 1.44 3-8 to 1.44 1-2 and May 1.49 1-4 to 1.49 3-8. Corn finished 1 3-8c to 1 7-8c up and oats at 1 1-4 to 1 5-8c gain. In provisions, the outcome varied from 27 cents decline to 15 cents advance.

New export business today, estimated at 2,500,000 bushels of wheat and a half million bushels of rye, was an effective help to the maintenance of strength which the wheat market displayed as soon as trading began. There was a rush to buy at the opening and there was also an evident broadening of demand later whenever the market underwent a sag. Meanwhile, advances from Buenos Aires told of further need of rain, and also pointed to an additional reduction in estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus.

Fresh figures on world supplies and world import requirements were likewise construed as being in favor of traders friendly to higher prices. According to these figures, an excess of only 28,000,000 bushels over world needs was apparent. On the other hand, there was an increase of 6,464,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage, compared with a week ago. Besides, the domestic crop movement, both southwest and northwest, remained of liberal volume, and the United States' visible supply total gained 2,409,000 bushels.

Strength which developed in prices of corn and oats appeared to be due mostly to the action of wheat. Husking returns were disappointing. There was export business both in United States and Canadian oats responsive to a downturn in hog values. The provision market averaged lower.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 27.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower in today's curb market with trading almost entirely of a professional character.

Oil shares lost ground despite the publication of favorable trade. Prairie Oil and Gas dropped 6 points and then recovered two while net losses of a point or so were recorded by Gulf of Pennsylvania, Red Bank and Standard Oils of Indiana and Kentucky.

Most of the public utilities moved within narrow and irregular limits. Strength of Hazeltine, which advanced nearly two points to 31 1-2, featured the radio shares. Trading is expected to start next week in the common stock of the Thermodyne Radio corporation, 70,000 shares of which will be offered to the public on Friday at $12 a share. Rova Radio dropped 1 1-2 points, the other active radio shares showing only fractional changes.

United Bakeries and Gillette Safety Razor each lost two points on the day, the turnover in each being relatively small. Coal shares yielded slightly on profit-taking.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week in Norwich and vicinity there has been much progress made on local building projects. The weather has been very favorable to the contractors who are rushing work along in an effort to clean up the work now in hand before the extreme weather starts in.

The largest building project in the city is the new garage for Alexander M. Pasnik on Shetucket street at the site of the old American House. There work is going on rapidly in an attempt to complete the building before December 1st. The concrete work, the floors and approaches, is practically completed and the walls on three sides have been erected and are nearly ready for the steel work for the roof. The walls for the offices and accessory room are all up and nearly ready for the interior work. Gasoline pumps and tanks have already been installed.

Another garage on North Main street is well along toward completion the walls have been erected and week. The contractors are now engaged in setting up the steel work.

The nurses' home at the W. W. Backus hospital is another project that is being pushed along by the contractors and it will not be long before the building will be ready for occupation.

Building shows no signs of falling off in Norwich as the month of October, a month that always shows a decline, is holding up the average for the month and is far ahead of the record for last year according to the number of permits granted at the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton. During the first two weeks in October 19 permits were granted and several have been granted for small buildings since that time. This healthy condition in building lines is true not only of Norwich but throughout the state and country.

Building operations in the United States will this year exceed the record for any previous year, according to figures made public by the United States Department of Commerce. Based on the record of $3,863,000,000 in the value of contracts awarded during the first nine months, it is estimated that the total contracts for the year will approximate $4,600,000,000. April was the banner month this year in point of building activity, when the contract total was $568,000,000. The peak of activity last year occurred in May, when the value of contracts awarded amounted to $496,000,000.

New London

Plans and specifications are being prepared for a new store front for the building on Bank street, opposite Golden street, to be occupied by the New London Lighting and Fixtures Co. There will be a plate glass and copper show window, metal ceilings, tile vestibule and floor and other interior improvements. A new heating system will be installed. The plans will be completed next week, when bids will be invited.

Construction has been started on the new building to replace the laundry building at 71 Pequot avenue, owned by the Pequot Steam Laundry, which was recently destroyed by fire. The building will be 25x90 feet, of steel, concrete and wood construction. A sprinkler system will be installed.

Three houses are being erected by the Sharaf Furniture Co., 125 Bank street, on Sharaf street. The dwellings are of cottage type, frame construction, 26x24 feet, arranged for seven rooms each. They will be equipped with hot air heaters and other conveniences.

The excavating has been started for the store and factory building on Bank street for Charles H. Klinck estate.

Danielson

The Larkin Reed Co., has plans for the erection of four cottages on East Franklin street. They will be single houses of frame construction.

Sprague

Architects have been commissioned to prepare plans for a schoolhouse in Sprague, Conn. The proposed building will be 63x23 feet, with an ell, 27x42 feet, of brick construction, one story high. The exterior will be of face brick. There will be galvanized iron cornices and asphalt roof. The plans will call for three classrooms and a teachers' room. Steam heat and other improvements will be provided.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week were 4 sales of real estate as compared to 14 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $39,375 and $24,535.

There were 13 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 17 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,140 and $122,878.

State Building Situation

Building continues to hold its own in the state, although it is noticeable that many propects reported as to be started this fall have not as yet been commenced. Permits issued this past week in the several cities of the state reported in The Commercial Record numbered 359, for new construction work amounting to $984,506. A year ago 403 permits for new buildings amounting to $1,803,656 were issued while in 1922, 267 permits were issued, with the new work amounting to $637,766.

Towns Reforest Big Tracts

Athol and Framingham, Mass., are doing a large job of reforestation on town property. In Athol, 10,000 white pine trees have been planted on the town farm or will be before the task is finished and a following in two years of an equal number of spruce and other trees will be planted until 30,000 have been put in in all. In Framingham, 57 acres will be reforested until the entire tract capable of taking many thousands of trees will be covered.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

People of Norwich and vicinity seventy-five years ago waited anxiously for news of loved ones who had left for the California gold field in search of fortune. The trip by boat around Cape Horn took 162 days and upon arrival there had had a time of it unless plentifully supplied with money as prices were exorbitant. Items of interest appearing in The Norwich Courier of 1849 are as follows:

Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1849—With many relatives and friends in the gold fields of California in search of fortune every bit of news that drifts eastward is eagerly snatched up by people in Norwich. We print the following from a letter by Bayard Taylor of the New York Tribune who is in California and who writes to the Tribune.

"Lodgings here are $12 per week with board at $24 additional. Newspapers are at a premium and are selling as high as $1 to $5 per copy so anxious are people for news from home. I have known people to pay as high as $10 for a copy of the home paper even though it be a month or more old. Gamblers fairly sam the city and I have seen as high as 100 ounces of gold bet on a single cast of the dice. One of the common soldiers at the battle of Pasquale, is now among the millionaire class with an income of $50,000 monthly. The population of San Francisco is now 6000 and steadily increasing and from 25 to 30 houses are going up every day."

Now that the corn husking season is here it is the best time to secure the best and most durable sort of underbeds. A bed made of these is a bed for life and is the lightest and softest thing of the kind that any one could desire. The writer of the article concludes his or her discourse on corn husks by saying, "We had all of our beds filled fifteen years ago and they are this day as good as new."

Three schooners arrived in the harbor this week laden with railroad iron for the new railroad between Willimantic and Palmer. Many workmen are engaged in the construction work and there is a demand for more men.

A telegraphic despatch from New Haven announces the death of Charles B. Whittlesey, partner in the firm of Hotchkis and Whittlesey.

Hon. S. A. Douglas, senator from Illinois was recently elected president of the proposed railroad from some point in the United States to the Pacific coast.

Thursday, Oct. 25, 1849—The bark McLellan, recently arrived at New London from Baffin's Bay is, it is said, the only vessel ever employed in the Greenland whale fishery from the United States. This is the fourth year she has been employed in this fishery, making a profitable voyage every year, being absent only six or seven months. This year she narrowly escaped destruction by being jammed in the ice.

We are glad to learn that the keeper of the light boat at Bartlett's reef off New London has been removed and Capt. James Delanoy appointed in his place. Everybody interested in the navigation of Long Island sound will hail this as a most desirable change. It was a disgrace to the late administration to have him retained in a place here sobriety and fidelity are so indispensible.

Father Mathew was at Worcester last Saturday, Sunday and Monday but so unwell as to be unable to meet the crowd of people who assembled to meet him at the city hall. We regret to see it stated that he was laboring under a partial paralysis of one side of his body and of his tongue.

The Courier prints a long article regarding the birthplace and early life of the Hon. Daniel Webster, and also notes that the two fellows who recently robbed the mansion of Mr. Daniel Weester in Franklin, N. H., have been sentenced to eight years in state prison.

The dam at Springfield was closed on Tuesday and the water gradually filled the enclosure, those who expected to see the dam burst were very disappointed as it held and is a complete success so far.

Major Littlefinger and the Oldfield family are to appear in Norwich in the near future. Major Littlefinger (Thomas John Oldfield) is a noted dwarf and has played in many of the big theaters in London and New York and Norwich is fortunate in being so honored.

Advertised in the columns of the Courier is the 300 acre farm of the Sherwood Raymond estate in Montville. Also is advertised the land in Bozrah known as the Tadmer farm.

Saturday, Oct. 29, 1849—From California comes two letters from a Griswold boy to his father describing the 162 day trip around Cape Horn to the gold fields. In his letter from the gold fields he writes that lots 25x30 feet sell for $10,000 to $20,000. Salt beef, salt pork and flour are cheap but vegetables are high and eggs sell for $1 each.

The rise in the Connecticut river above the new dam which is above Springfield has undermined the track of the Connecticut River railroad which runs along the banks for several miles. About noon on the 24th nearly one thousand feet gave way and sunk into the river. A man who was walking on the track at the moment went down with it and was drowned.

A young English gentleman named Frederick Strickland who has been traveling in the United States started to make the ascent on Mt. Washington, N. H., and lost his way. He was found several days later dead. He was the son of Thomas Strickland, baronet, of England.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lavigne and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lavigne, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Houle and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lavigne attended a reception tendered Mr. and Mrs. Ledger Goyette who were recently married in Woonsocket, R. I. Mr. Goyette was a former resident of Plainfield, and well known in this town.

Many local fans attended the Anthony-Natick game in Anthony, R. I., Sunday.

Valmore Guertin of this town has brought home five coons in the short space of a week. The largest he killed weighed 25 pounds and the smallest 20 pounds.

Mrs. Minerva Howard and Mrs. Irene Bressett were callers in Danielson Monday.

The Parent Teachers association of this town is to hold a regular meeting and social Wednesday evening.

Freak Lightning

A freak bolt of lightning struck the upraised shovel of a workman at Salem, Ohio, split into three parts and jumped to three different houses. In one house it stunned six-months-old twins. Weather boarding and plaster were torn from the second house. The third house was a bungalow, just completed, which was damaged slightly. The workman was uninjured.

A fool praises himself, but a wise man turns the job over to some one else.

A RELIABLE COUGH REMEDY
Why experiment with unknown remedies for that cough or cold when you can secure FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND? It is a safe and reliable remedy for the relief of coughs, colds, hoarseness. Equally beneficial for young and old. Mrs. Anna Cornell, Bridgeton, N. J., states: "I bought FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for my cold and find it great." Insist upon the genuine. NUMBER FOUR charges. Mr. Wheeler may continue to liberate gas attacks of such chemical content as he pleases. But we are not going to allow Robert La Follette to bore holes in the bottom of the good ship Constitution; and we do not propose that La Follette, Bryan, Davis or Wheeler, or any one, two, three or four of them, shall ever set foot in the White House except to congratulate President Coolidge on his victory."

Senator Pepper devoted considerable time to a description is of the peculiar qualifications of Calvin Coolidge for the presidency. "The high lights" he declared "are the official acts of his administration, his messages, his courageous advocacy of measures in which he believes and his vetoes of bills of which he could not approve. Quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath, he loses many opportunities for spectacular action by his determination to be right rather than showy. In simplicity, in shrewdness, in reserve, in homely humor and in quiet force he is American manhood at its best. Those who do not admire the type have read American history in vain. He has done well when the odds were against him. Why not give him a supporting majority in both houses and see what he can do when the odds are in his favor?

"Have you ever seen anything more laughable than poor John Davis getting angrier and angrier because he can't catch Calvin Coolidge's attention? This southerner has no capacity to understand the New England way. He has equipped himself with a cod line and a clam and with this clumsy tackle he's trying to get a rise out of a wary New England trout. Watch him lash himself into a fury and disturb the water with his awkward casts—while Calvin the Canny goes about his business deep down in the cool caverns of thought.

"We, as a party, are on the right side of each great issue. Tax reduction in the interest of all the people was a republican proposal. It was made possible by republican economy. It was made difficult by democratic obstruction. But in spite of obstruction, and through our measure was weakened by forced compromise, we got results and we mean to get yet better ones."

"We are on the right side of the tariff question. Even the democratic platform concedes this. The republican party stands for a policy which places no heavier per capita tariff tax than in England; but to compensate for the burden gives protection to the industrial worker and the farmer as well as to the manufacturer. When Mr. Davis tried to make it appear that the republican tariff is an act to increase the price of what the farmer buys and to reduce the price of what he sells, he is either ignorantly or wilfully misstating the facts."

"We are on the right side of the railroad issue. We believe in regulating the railroads and all public utilities, with balanced regard for the three great interests involved: the public who use the railroads; the people who work upon them, and the owners whose property is dedicated to public use. The La Follette platform calls for government ownership. Government ownership means the building up of a bureaucracy compared to which even the things that went on under the democratic administration would seem like trifles. More than this, it means, as President Coolidge has demonstrated, the expenditure of the people's money for the purchase of the railroads in figures so high as to stagger the imagination."

"We are on the right side of every question respecting the Constitution of the United States. I wish you all could have heard the clear calm and powerful statement which President Coolidge made the other night in Philadelphia, where we were celebrating the 150th anniversary of the First Continental Congress. Nobody who heard him or who reads his words can doubt that under republican rule and his leadership the foundations of our government will stand secure.

"I see that Mr. Davis tries to excuse or palliate Senator La Follette's proposal to change our form of government by saying that La Follette does not want to lead us to Moscow but only to London. We are not going to London or anywhere else to get a new form of government. We do not propose to convert our federal congress into a national parliament. We do not intend to put into the hands of congressmen and senators the power to centre all government in Washington. The supreme court is a wise device to apply the test of the Constitution to all laws, federal and state and so to prevent the federal government from swallowing the states and the states from strangling the federal government. England has no sovereign states to preserve. We have. Connecticut is one of the greatest of them. Do not let La Follette lead you to destroy our only safeguard of local self government unless you want to take away warning signs at the cross-roads, remove the emergency brakes from motor cars and play the world's series games without an umpire. Senator La Follette is dismayed by the opposition which his proposal has aroused. He is now pretending that it is a more tentative suggestion for popular consideration. He even suggests that if elected president he will have less freedom to agitate his plan than if he is left in his seat in the senate. This is a strange argument from a serious contender for the presidency. It is equivalent to a proposal to convert the White House into an isolation ward for dangerous cases. But this is not the use to which we propose to put the executive mansion. Calvin Coolidge has been a mighty good tenant. We are in favor of renewing the lease."

"We are on the right side of every question which has to do with our foreign relations. We republicans believe in international cooperation, but we are opposed to international partnership. We are for peace and against war. We believe that the surest way to maintain peace is to offer our services and our resources, whether officially or non-officially, in each emergency as it arises and in the light of the facts of each case as it is presented. We are for such conferences as the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments. We are for such intelligent and effective work as that put forth by the Dawes commission. We can look with sympathetic interest at the efforts of old-world nations to work out a peace pact at Geneva."

"I address myself now directly to those of you who are inclined to vote for La Follette and Wheeler. One thought which I wish to suggest in this connection is that in the present state of things you cannot really make any effective protest by such a vote. If Coolidge is elected in spite of your vote you have merely cut yourself off from the exercise of your influence within the party. If Coolidge is defeated by your vote, your protest is merged in the affirmative result which you will have accomplished which would probably be the election of Bryan. In other words, you may want to vote against the republican party but the best you can by any reasonable possibility do is to elect somebody whom you do not really believe in or trust. A protest vote this year may relieve your feelings when you cast it but it is not an intelligent discharge of civic duty.

"But suppose you are right and there ought to be a new party; is La Follette's party the one you would be happy in? What are you? An educated man or woman, prizing your academic freedom and your heritage of intense individualism? If so, do you realize that if you follow La Follette you must surrender your independent judgment and think and act as he approves—or quit? For 21 years the people of Wisconsin have been in political slavery. Those who will not follow La Follette have been terrorized politically. Those who do follow him have completely surrendered themselves to him. Remember that it was he himself who selected himself for the presidency and asked for proposals of support from pliable groups. He selected his followers. He named his running mate. He chose the central committee with power of political life and death over his local representatives in every state. You cannot today force people to think or talk of the third party as the progressive party. Next to nobody will vote for the party of for Wheeler. They will vote for La Follette and he will interpret that vote as a general power of attorney to make your decisions for you."

"I am not a Yale man although I have been honored by a degree from this great university. I have no right to give you advice but maybe you'll permit a suggestion. You have a song in which you declare yourselves for God, your country and for Yale. My suggestion is that you let it go at that. La Follette's name does not belong in your tuneful ostrich alleglance. You are free men. Keep your freedom."

"There is another angle from which you should take a look at La Follette and Davis.

"Immediately upon nomination John Davis was given a chance to demonstrate his ideas of fitness for high office. He responded by choosing Bryan. In so doing he named a man whose views do not square with the democratic platform and with whose expressed convictions on great issues Davis cannot agree. In other words, his first important act was to violate his own convictions in the interest of political expediency. Since then he has been busy making unjustifiable attacks and insinuations against better men than he. He has lost the support of most of his old friends and he has made no new ones.

"La Follette likewise was tried and found wanting as a wicker of men. His idea of a potential president of the United States is Senator Wheeler. Senator Wheeler is my colleague and I wish to speak of him with consideration. I may do this and yet assert that nothing in his record as personal equipment qualifies him to be even thought of for the office of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt. I suspect that he was not chosen with any thought of his fitness for the office, but rather as an efficient instrument in the process of discrediting other people."

"The truth is that if voters will apply to the choice of public servants the tests that they apply in their own business this campaign will end in the well-nigh unanimous choice of Coolidge and Dawes. Voters may be willing to take chances with government and the people's money which they will not think of taking with their own. If stockholders whose all was embarked in a business corporation were choosing executive officers, it would never occur to them to put their fortunes in the hands of La Follette and Wheeler or of Davis and Bryan, if they were fortunate enough to be able to secure Coolidge and Dawes. Davis and Bryan will disagree and fall out. La Follette and Wheeler would take a speculative chance and blow up. Coolidge and Dawes would carry the enterprise through to honorable prosperity.

"The democrats have no measure for the country. The message of La Follette's party will in Connecticut and Pennsylvania affect only those who are willing to surrender intellectual freedom or who are strangers to the spirit and common tradition of our two great commonwealths. Republicans and many democrats in these great states, as elsewhere in the country, will rally to the support of the republican ticket. They know that a vote for Davis is at most half a vote for Bryan. They know that a vote for La Follette is a vote to entrench in America political life the kind of party that is not a people's party, but the organization of class against class. They know that a vote for Coolidge and Dawes is the only effective protest against political, economic and social chaos."

TAFTVILLE

The Onowasin Camp Fire Girls held a party Friday evening in the [illegible] of the Taftville Congregational church. The members wore childrens' costumes. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and daughter Ruth have returned to their home on Nash street after spending several days in Ballouville with relatives.

People who wander in the woods this season the townsmen of young chestnut trees springing up. Many old stumps are surrounded entirely with new shoots and some have grown to a good height and look like young trees. Chestnut trees have been absent from this part of the state for several years following the blight that was introduced into the United States from China and Japan on some ornamental trees. If the blight has completely disappeared, and no reason why readers, if they are in the neighborhood, sixty or seventy years, may not be enjoying the chestnuts that were plentiful only a few years ago.

The esquires of Castle Perilous, No. 1867, K. O. K. A., held a conclave Saturday afternoon in the vesary of the Taftville Congregational church, after which they made a pilgrimage to Fort Griswold, in Groton. Twelve members took the trip, which was made in automobile. The museum which is maintained by the state of Connecticut was visited and a trip to the top of the monument was made. Following this the party visited the old fort where they were shown about and an account of the battle told them by the officer in charge.

Cards received Monday from the Meyer-Kendall party which is touring California by automobile locate them at San Diego en route for Mexico, after spending a few days with Mrs. John Dunne and family of Bakersfield, formerly of Taftville.

A new barn is being erected at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dydo of the Jewett City road. The building is of good size and will be equipped to house about twenty cattle.

The Community Sewing class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Theresa Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adams of Merchants' avenue, was severely burned Saturday afternoon when her clothing caught fire while burning leaves near her home. She was taken to the William W. Backus hospital in the ambulance and is resting comfortably. She was attended by Dr. Louis I. Pratte.

Following up their Sunday evening service in Ponemah hall a few weeks ago, the International Bible Students' association have been busy distributing tracts and literature about town bearing such gloomy headlines as "Ecclesiastics Indicted" and "Civilization Doomed." The indictment is an attack upon the clergy in general, stating that they are the authors of the false and unreasonable doctrines of the Trinity. The service in Ponemah hall was conducted in the French language and although the French people had been well circularized only about a dozen attended the session to learn that "millions now living will never die."

Joseph D. Aiken of the Ponemah house and Harry E. Prentice of Norwich have returned from a motor trip through the White mountains.

Work has been started on a new bakery located on Bolduc lane for Joseph MarcAurele.

One of the most dangerous spots on the Newent road in the town of Lisbon has been eliminated by the thoughtfulness and courtesy of Richard Thoma. This dangerous place is located at the corner where Mr. Thoma's residence stands, and in the past several bad accidents have almost resulted there. Mr. Thoma has kindly trimmed his hedge quite low and cut off the lower limbs of the trees on his grounds, so that it is now possible for an automobilist or pedestrian approaching the corner to see what he is going to meet before he turns it. As it is necessary for all the school children of the village of Blissville to use this road on their way to school, it was felt that it could not be made too safe. The residents of Blissville, especially the parents of school children, have expressed themselves as being very grateful to Mr. Thoma for his thoughtfulness.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor are to give a Hallowe'en party Friday evening for the members of the church school in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church.

There is local interest in the suit of the Novick family against John Pisarko and others for the foreclosure of a mortgage on some of the tracts of land included in the large farm owned by Pisarko on the Canterbury turnpike and on School street. The Novicks are the former owners of the farm, having purchased it from Victor MarcAurele, who now resides on Providence street. It is one of the largest farms in this vicinity and has a well equipped dairy with a large milk route in the village, which is operated by Mr. Pisarko. It is understood that the suit is brought about by the disagreement of the parties concerned as to the amount of the principal to be paid on the mortgage and not through any inability of Mr. Pisarko and his partners to meet their obligations.

NAVY DAY AT SUBMARINE BASE

BRINGS CROWDS FOR INSPECTION

The U. S. submarine base at the navy yard held open house Monday in observance of Navy Day and hundreds of persons from New London, Norwich and the surrounding towns took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the base. Among public officials who visited the base during the day were Mayor Milo B. Waters and members of the city and town governments of Norwich, U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson of this city, City Manager William A. Holt of New London, Secretary James G. Hammond of the New London Chamber of Commerce, Brig. General Morris B. Payne, Connecticut National Guard, of New London, and town officials from Groton, Montville, Ledyard, Waterford and other nearby towns. From 8.30 in the morning until late in the afternoon two government tugs, attached to the base, ran on hourly trips between the sub base and New London, carrying visitors.

The base was thrown open throughout the day to the public and the day, created by the Navy League and approved by the president and secretary of the navy, was very successfully carried out by the officers and enlisted men. Chief petty officers and sailors detailed as guides were most courteous and attentive to the hundreds of visitors. Among the ships open to public inspection were eight submarines, the station ship U. S. S. Chewink and the U. S. S. Antares. Some of the submarines with public officials on board made exhibition dives in the Thames river while scores of interested persons watched from the wharves at the base. These exhibitions were continued throughout the morning at half hour intervals.

There was also a diver on hand to demonstrate the use of the deep sea diving outfit. He made a number of visits to the bottom of the river. The battery department, torpedo building, power station, laboratories, sick bay, mess halls, galleys, etc., were all open to visitors.

During the afternoon there was a football game between the sub base team and the team from the U. S. S. Wyoming. The band from the U. S. S. Antares gave a concert at the athletic field before the game.

In the evening the officers and crew of the U. S. S. Antares were entertained by the officers and enlisted men of the sub base, at the sub base theatre. Several good boxing bouts were on the evening's programme in addition to other attractions.

HOME CHURCH SERVICE HELD AT PRESTON CITY

Preston City Baptist church Sunday morning held a "Home Church" service, many of the non-resident members having been invited home for the special service.

A pleasing feature of the service was the music by the choir that sang there ten years ago.

The choir included Mrs. Sarah Starkweather, Mrs. Hattie Edmund, Mrs. Elsie Main, Miss Hattie Bennett, sopranos, Mrs. Ruth Woodmansee, Mrs. Sophia Burdick, altos, Allen Burdick, tenor, John Peckham, Chas. C. Zabriskie, bass, the singers coming from Hartford, Danielson, Voluntown, Griswold and Preston.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph C. Harrison used as his text the 23rd Psalm, asking the congregation to repeat it with him. Rev. Mr. Harrison in pleasing eloquence gave a very helpful exposition of the Psalm, making many present day applications of its wonderful truths.

The service was largely attended.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. Otis Browning on Thursday afternoon more than fifty attending. Supper was served.

Serenaded Hebron Bride.

Following the old fashioned custom of serenading the bride, a company of forty young people visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Dingwell in Hebron on a recent evening. Equipped with gongs, bells, whistles, horns, tin pans, combs, conch shells and a horse saw, they surrounded the house and its unsuspecting occupants and made merry until the appearance of the bride, formerly Miss Helen Covle, of Norwich. The music, a house dance was held and a mock marriage followed by dancing and a supper. Mr. and Mrs. Dingwell received a number of wedding gifts.

Kitemaug Apples Were Presented.

The 16 bushels of apples recently given to the Norwich state hospital for the benefit of the patients were grown by F. W. Browning at Kitemaug Orchards and were of the McIntosh variety. Each apple was carefully selected as to size and color and when packed were a beautiful sight.

SPEAKS ON HUMANE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. addressed the men of the Richmond Radiator Co. Monday at noon on the subject. The Humane Treatment of Prisoners. The following is an outline of the speakers thought:

The 54th annual congress of the American Prison Association at Salt Lake City in August, passed the following resolution: 'Whereas, in 1884 ministers of a large number of denominations in New York united in the recommendation of the adoption of one Sunday in the year as Prison Sunday and requested each of the churches throughout the country to consider the relation of Christian people to the reformation of criminals.

Therefore: Be it resolved, that the American Prison association at its 54th meeting, hereby reaffirms its action and designates the fourth Sunday in October of each year to be known as Prison Sunday.

The churches that have followed this program year after year, generally devote the last Sunday in October to the discussion of these points: The subject of crime, its causes, its prevention and the reformation of criminals.

In dealing with this subject the speaker thought we ought to avoid two dangerous extremes. First, in going too far in the line of cruelty, "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." Until the coming of John Howard, prison management was barbarous. Many convicts used to come out of old Newgate prison in London, so scarred as not to be recognized by relatives. Secondly, we must not pass over to the other extreme of mushy sentimentalism that would banish punishment altogether. The speaker then considered:

First, a careful study of the causes of crime. Among these were cited heredity, bad home environment, street associations, idleness, little schooling and poor diet.

Secondly, Strong effort must be put forth to prevent the commission of crime.

The best thing done yet was the putting of prohibition into the federal constitution as rum has put more men and women into jail than anything else. Gambling is another for to our people that was scorched by the speaker.

Thirdly, encouragement should be given to every effort to improve prison methods. We should keep in mind that the end of punishment is not retribution but reformation.

Fourthly, encouragement ought to be given to discharged criminals. They should have a chance to reinstate their manhood. We should not shun them like lepers. Help them to rise for a nation's greatest asset is not its wealth, but its men. Given men of the right caliber and the wealth will be forthcoming.

NORWICH MOOSE BUY $400 MOOSEHEART BONDS

At a special meeting of Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., it was voted to buy $400 of the cancelled Mooseheart bonds, which represent the paying off of the half million in mortgage debt on Mooseheart, the modern home-school-city where the dependent children of deceased members of the order are educated.

Eleven years ago the Illinois farm upon which Mooseheart has been builded, was dedicated to the cause of childhood. At that time our leaders resolved that this undertaking would differ from the "orphan asylum" and that the children coming under our care would be surrounded with the genuine home atmosphere. They determined that our children were to be given a high school education and taught a practical trade in school rooms and workshops; that they were to live in small family groups, in modern fire-proof dwellings; that they were to be given every opportunity for mental and physical development; and that their mothers were to be kept with them at Mooseheart until the children were able to re-establish the home which had been destroyed by the death of the breadwinner.

The state of Mooseheart now consists of 1,023 acres. More than $10,000,000 have been expended there. Half of this amount represents the cost of grounds and buildings. The balance has been expended in feeding, clothing, training and educating more than 1,800 children, 1,200 of whom are there now. All of the buildings are of modern, fireproof construction. There are no large dormitories or sleeping halls. The children are divided into small family groups, and each cotage is fully equipped to provide the necessities and comforts of a modern home. The children are not uniformed. When they arrive at the proper age they are allowed to choose their own clothing at the general department store.

ROSARY PROCESSION AND RECEPTION SUNDAY

The Rosary Society of St. Patrick's parish received fifteen new members, Sunday afternoon, at largely attended services at 3:30. There were October devotions, Rev. Myles P. Galvin leading in the recitation of the Rosary, and there was a procession led by thirty little girls of the Immaculate Conception Sodality, designating the different mysteries of the Rosary by ten having white hair ribbons, ten red and ten blue. In all, there were one hundred children in the procession, again indicating their matchless training by the Sisters of Mercy, and preceding the Children of Mary, Miss Annie Edwards president and the two hundred members of the Rosary Society, president Miss Annie G. Stanton.

The assemblage sang the hymn to the Virgin, Mother Dear, Oh, Pray For Me, also Holy God. We Praise Thy Name. Mr. Farrell was at the organ, and the chorus choir sang with volume and harmony. The rector, Rev. M. H. May enrolled the new members, speaking to them of the aims and purposes of the society which honors the Virgin Mother of the Redeemer. In closing Father May gave Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The altar decorations of great white chrysanthemums, the gift of friends, were arranged by members of the Altar society, Miss Annie Edwards, Miss Annie Sheehan and Miss Annie G. Stanton.

The Rosary society had received Holy Communion in a body at the 7:30 mass, from Fathers May and Galvin, Father May preaching from the day's gospel, John IV, 46-53, the miracle of the curing of the son of the ruler of Capharnaum.

Investigated Cruelty to Child

A case of cruel treatment of a child was brought to the attention of the Connecticut Humane society by E. V. Ross of this city and County Agent F. H. Wyant went immediately to investigate. In company with Mr. Ross he went to 90 Chestnut street where Mr. Ross identified a woman who gave her name as Rose Oissine, age 22, as the person he saw earlier in the day beat a girl about 4 years old on the body and once on the head with a stick. He saw the woman take the girl by the arm and lifting it free from its feet, set it with such force on the top of a six-step stoop, that it lost its balance, striking its head against the side of a building and raising a large lump.

Agent Wyant, in examining the child, discovered the swelling and when Mrs. Oissine was asked how it came to be there said the child had fallen, but later acknowledged she had lost her temper. Thre case was brought before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court, who after reprimanding the woman, sentenced her to 10 days in jail with suspended sentence for six months advising her that a reoccurance of her cruelty to the child, would mean a jail sentence of a long time.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

PARADED TO CEMETERY AT BALTIC SUNDAY

Following a custom that was adopted a number of years ago by the parishioners of St. Mary's church, Baltic, the members of the congregation and the members of the different Catholic societies at the request of the pastor, assembled at Sodality hall in Baltic on Sunday and formed a line headed by St. Jean's band and proceeded to St. Mary's cemetery where prayers were offered. The procession which moved through upper Railroad street was one of the largest of its kind since the custom was started. In line were 400 parochial school children, followed by 250 members of the Children of Mary Sodality and followed by 100 students of the Academy of the Holy Family. Next in line were 50 members of the Rosary society, 100 members of the Ladies of St. Anne, followed by 100 Knights of Columbus, and 200 members of the St. Jean society. Next came 28 altar boys with their cross bearers, followed by the members of St. Mary's and other out of town people who came to Baltic to be present at the services. Upon reaching the cemetery Rev. Fr. Bissonette, O. P., of Fall River, Mass., and Rev. Adelard Jalbart of Baltic delivered two eloquent sermons on "Death." During the time that the procession was moving through the street, the rosary was recited. The band, which was exceptionally good on Sunday, rendered sacred music. Scores of people lined the streets to watch the procession which was directed by the pastor, Rev. W. T. O'Brien.

GALES FERRY PASTOR GOING TO STAFFORDVILLE

Bath, of Norwich, district superintendent, had transferred him to the Federated church at Staffordville, the transfer to take place after the first Sunday in November.

Rev. Mr. Bath had not fully determined who will be sent to the Gales Ferry church.

POETRY

LOVE AND BEAUTY.

I.

There is a waste of sundown flags, and through
Their lonelihess a stream that moves like grief.
And there are hearts that listen to the brief
Quick aria of the lark that wakes to woo
The star dawn, sinking to a bowl of blue
Over a dunne as golden as a sheaf
Of summer wheat. And there is Teneriffe,
And sea girt foresta, caves that hide from view,
Air garmented, rapt presences that thrill
To stand revealed. And there are windless vales
Of apparitions; bluebells, wintergreen;
And meadow moons, and planets on a hill.
There is this world of wonder, but it fails
Where Love is not, or vanished Love has been!

II.

There are two deaths, if they be not the same;
One is to look on God, on Beauty one.
No soul has perished seeing God, for none
Has ever gazed in that Face of Flame.
But Beauty may be known of us. Her name
Is also Death, but not Oblivion
Through lightning. She is Memory begun,
Who lives to seal our souls up, and to maim
With gradual wounds, and make of ever wound
An eye which looks on Aprils through the light
Of Aprils gone. She is the Face whose sight
Changes the soul to crystal, ere the ground
The body takes, and hearses it in bright
Translucency of pain that makes no sound!
—Edgar Lee Masters, in Scribner's.

LABOR AND LOVE.

Labor and love! there are no other laws
To rule the liberal action of that soul
Which fate hath set beneath thy brief control.
Or lull the empty fear that racks and gnaws;
Labor! then like a rising moon, the cause
Of life shall light thine hour from pole to pole,
Thou shalt taste health of purpose, and the roll
Of simple joys unwind without a pause.
Love! and thy heart shall cease to question why
Its beating pulse was set to rock and rave;
Find but another heart this side the grave
To soothe and cling to,—thou hast life's reply.
Labor and love then fade without a sigh,
Submerged beneath the inexorable wave.
— —Edmund Gosse.

TO TEST PUBLICITY PHASE OF INCOME TAX PAYMENTS

Case to Be Presented in Court by Department of Justice to Determine the Legality of Publication by Newspapers of Facts Relating to Payments—Attorney General Stone Rules That Publication of the Information in Newspapers Was Nowhere Specifically Provided in the Law.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Without determining finally the legality of publication by newspapers of facts relating to income tax payments, Attorney General Stone announced today that the department of jjustice will have an appropriate case presented in the courts "to secure a judicial construction of the law."

The attorney general declined to indicate what procedure would be followed in the test case, or what newspaper, editor or publisher would be selected as defendant.

In a long statement, Mr. Stone pointed out that the effect of one section of the law was to allow general inspection of income tax returns while on the contrary side stood a section specifically prohibiting their "publication." He said publication of this information, "in newspapers" was nowhere specifically provided for by the law and he was not clear what purpose congress had in mind.

The attorney general's statement follows:

"Section 257, sub-division (A) of the revenue act of 1924 provides, among other things, that income tax returns shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the president and under rules and regulations prescribed by the secretary and approved by the president.' Sub-division (B) of the same section makes it the duty of the commissioner of internal revenue 'as soon as practicable in each year,' to cause to be prepared and 'made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine, in the office of the collector in each internal revenue district and in such other places as he may determine, lists containing the name and the postoffice address of each person making an income tax return in such district, together with the amount of the income tax paid by such person.'

"Section 1018 of the same act reenacts section 3167 of the revised statutes as amended, which provides among other things 'it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by la wany income return or any part thereof or source of income, profits, losses or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.'

"The effect of these provisions is to allow general inspection of income tax returns only under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury with the approval of the president. Sub-division (B) above referred to, however, make it the duty of the commissioner of internal revenue to make available to inspection in such manner as he shall determine in the office of the collector and such other places as he may determine, lists containing only the postoffice address of the person making a return and 'the amount' of income tax paid by such person.'

"We are informed that the commissioner of internal revenue has authorized the inspection of such lists only in the office of the collector in each internal revenue district. He has authorized no publication of such lists in the newspapers or otherwise. Publication of this information in newspapers is nowwhere specifically provided for by the laws and appears not to have been authorized under the provision of section 257 (B).

"Section 3167 of the revised statute re-enacted in the revenue act of 1924 makes it a criminal offense to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law, 'any part' of an income tax return. Just what purpose congress had in mind in re-enacting this provision after it had made it make available for public inspection the duty of the commissioner to the amount of income tax paid by each taxpayer can only be surmised. The provision however, is expressly made a part of the present tax law, and it appears clearly to be the duty of the department of justice to have an appropriate case presented in the courts so that the full force and effect of this provision may be judicially determined. This will be done at an early convenient date."

FINNEY TESTIFIES IN THE NAVAL OIL LEASE CASE

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—That Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior, acted alone and without the customary advice of Edward C. Finney, first assistant secretary of the interior department, in the making of the Teapot Dome Sinclair naval oil lease and the Elk Hills Pan-American navau oil lease, which the government charges were issued in a conspiracy to defraud, was testified to today by Finney. Resumption of the trial of the government suit to cancel the $100,000,000 leases and contracts to the Edward L. Doheny concern, in negotiations for which Doheny is accused by the government of giving $100,000 to Fall, today led to the work in the interior department concerning the cases.

Owen J. Roberts, government counsel, questioned Finney in an effort to show that Fall acted, usually, independently and alone in negotiation of these leases. He asked Finney whether or not he knew generally of and participated in preparation of contracts previous to Dec. 11, 192, when the Pan-American supplemental contract on Elk Hills and Pearl Harbor development work was let.

"The only lease I know of which I did not participate in was the Sinclair lease in Wyoming," Finney testified, referring to the Teapot Dome lease, which is subject of another government suit for cancellation.

Did you have anything to do with the lease of Dec. 11, 1922?" Roberts questioned, referring to the Pan-American lease.

"None whatever," the witness replied.

Finney then underwent a stiff cross-examination by Frank J. Hogan, of the defense, the tendency of cross-questioning apparently being directed at an attempt to show that Finney and not Fall was the active figure in the lease negotiations.

INDICTMENTS OF COTTON EXCHANGE DISMISSED

New York, Oct. 28.—Indictments charging the American Cotton Exchange and seven of its officers and directors with bucketing orders of its customers were dismissed today by General Sessions Judge Nott on recommendations of the district attorney's office.

Assistant District Attorney Wittner based his recommendation on the contention that prosecution would cost the state more than the cases warranted, inasmuch as all the defendants had forsaken the brokerage business since their indictment on March 20, 1923. The American Cotton Exchange, he pointed out, had been dissolved after it, as an organization, had been declared guilty of maintaining a bucket shop and fined $5,000.

The seven defendants—Randolph Rose, vice president; George W. Pratt, secretary, and John S. Olivers, Raymond Palmer, Martin Gulko, Angelo T. Jennings and Edward L. Hatton, directors—were to have been tried at the time the exchange hearing was held, but they petitioned for and obtained separate trials. These were to have been held this winter.

MRS. HOYT WEDS FATHER-IN-LAW OF HER DAUGHTER

Norwalk, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Julia Stratton Hoyt and Thomas Leaman, Sr., father-in-law of Mrs. Hoyt's daughter, were married in New York city, it was announced here today.

The younger Mrs. Leaman and her husband learned of the marriage of their mother and father when they returned home last night and were told that the new Mrs. Leaman had telephoned the news.

The former Mrs. Hoyt and her husband, who is reported to be very wealthy, first met about three months ago, shortly after the marriage of 16-year-old Julita and young Tommy Leaman, a Harstrom school student. The young couple had met two weeks before at a dance. They announced their marriage at the Saturday night dance at the Norwalk Country club, when Julita is said to have rushed into the ballroom, followed by Tommy, and cried out, "Folks, meet my husband." At the time the elder Mr. Leaman was cruising on his yacht. When he came back he said he was pleased with his daughter-in-law.

Since then he had been a frequent visitor at the home of his son's mother-in-law, and the marriage was the culmination of this acquaintance. He is a retired naval archatect.

Mrs. Leaman, Sr., was Miss Julita Stratton of New York before her marriage in 1906 to Ira Mortimer Hoyt, theatrical man of Norwalk. Mr. Hoyt, died about two years ago. He was at one time owner of the Rialto theatre here.

To Ask Extradition On Piracy Charge

Boston, Oct. 28.—Counsel for Captain Harry Ritchey of the British schooner Marjorie E. Bachman, seized by the Coast Guard cutter Tampa off Cape Cod last Friday as a rum runner, declared today in federal court that they would ask for the extradition to Canada on charges of piracy of a prize crew placed on board the schooner by the Tampa unless 300 cases of liquor taken from the Bachman are returned, together with money and personal effects alleged to have been taken from the schooner's crew.

According to statements of counsel the prize crew sold overside from the Bachman 150 cases of champaign, sent another 150 cases to the cutter, and took nearly $1,000 in money from members of the crew of the schooner. In a statement today Lieut. Commander S. S. Yeandle, aides to the chief of the coast guard service, admitted that the prize crew had sold two cases of champagne in the manner described, but did so for the purpose of obtaining evidence against the purchasers.

Indictments charging conspiracy to violate provisions of the tariff act of 1922 relating to transportation and importation of liquor were reported by the federal grand jury today against Captain Ritchey and Supercargo Harold Young of the Bachman, both of Lunenburg, N. S.; Philip S. Keating and David R. Keating of Gloucester, and Joseph Tarry and Peter Kostan of Salem. One four Americans were captured in motorboats said by coast guardsmen to have been plying between the rum row and the shore when the Tampa bore down on the rum fleet last Friday. The Bachman and five motorboats were captured and brought to Boston. Wheldon Bowman, mate of Bachman, also was arrested, but no indictment was found against him.

In a consultation of counsel with Judge Morton today the judge ordered the return of $300 taken by the coast guardsmen from the pockets of two members of the Bachman's crew who were not placed under arrest. A further amount of $650, also taken from members of the crew, also was sought by counsel for the defendants. Judge Morton said that this should be returned unless the United States attorney could prove it was a part of the ship's money.'

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF THE PALESTINE ADMINISTRATION

Geneva, Oct. 28 (By the A. P.).—The permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations today reached what is perhaps the most interesting problem of the fifth session when it listened to an announcement of the Palestine administration from Sir Herbert Samuel, the British high commissioner.

After hearing Sir Herbert, the commission discussed such difficult points as a reconciliation of the Jewish and Arabian elements of the Palestine population and the development of self-governing institutions there.

Commissioner Samuel's report attributed the difficulties met with in Palestine to the insistence of the Arab organizationon dominating the administration of the entire territory. He said that members of the organization were mostly young and that many had received a secondary education and all spoke Hebrew.

The British government, Sir Herbert explained, did its unmost to limit the number of immigrants to the country's capacity for absorption. Consequently, having noted during the last year an increase in the number of unemployed, the immigration of laborers was stopped.

The government had granted Palestine no subvention, Commissioner Samuel added, but its budget had always been balanced. The Jewish National homes, as provided by the mandate, was also discussed.

Anti-Saloon League Opposed O'Sullivan

Correction of Report Erroreously Made That League Had Aided Connecticut Congressman.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The report of the Anti-Saloon League to the clerk of the house of representatives covering expenditures in the congressional campaign shows that 100 was spent in opposition to Representative Patrick B. O'Sullivan of Connecticut, and $200 was spent in opposition to Representative J. Scott Wolff of Missouri.

It was erroneously reported in these dispatches yesterday that the Anti-Saloon league had spent sums in support of the candidacies of these two men. This error was due to the fact that the expenditures against O'Sullivan and Wolff were recorded in the body of a report showing expenditures in favor of the candidacies of 12 other candidates.

In the case of O'Sullivan and Wolff the expenditures were reported as having been made for postage, literature and organization work. In the cases of candidates supported by the Anti-Saloon League, no contributions of money were reported. Expenditures were reported, however, for postage, printing and organization work and in some cases for the pay and traveling expenses of personal workers sent into the districts.

The report is described as an account of expenditures "to aid in the election of congressmen opposed to, and to defeat candidates favorable to the beer and wine nullification amendment to the national prohibition act."

Campaign contributions totalling $2,515 to the league were recorded in the same report of which $2,400 was in sums of $100 or more.

PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN TOMORROW

London, Oct. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The people of Great Britain will provide themselves tomorrow with their third parliament within two years. What kind of a parliament it will be, no prominent politician or political observer has been audacious enough to predict publicly. That the labor government will go the way of all governments seems, however, to be the opinion held almost everywhere; but some of the laborites still appear confident that their party will be given a mandate to remain in office.

Whether the conservatives can recoup their losses of a year ago and return to the house of commons with a majority over all other parties, and thereby put themselves into office without the assistance of the others, is a question no one has any means of determining until the returns come in.

The whole pre-election political situation has been made utterly uncertain by the eleventh hour bursting of the "Russian bombshell" with an effect on the country that cannot be gauged at all. Until this "red letter" gave the campaign orators a real live wire topic to talk about, the electorate wore an apathetic air and it was rather the general expectation that the three parties would return to Westminster in the same relative positions they held numerically when the last parliament's life end—the conservatives first, labor second, and the Liberals third—with the conservatives lacking a clear majority.

Straw votes have been taken throughout the country, and most of them indicate a slight increase in the strength of both conservatives and laborites, with the liberals losing.

IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE IN SECOND DISTRICT

New York, Oct. 28.—Substantial improvement in trade throughout the second federal reserve district during September was reported today by the federal reserve agent at New York in his monthly review of credit and business conditions.

"September sales of sixty-three reporting department stores in this district," he stated, "were 12 per cent. larger than a year ago, partly because of more selling days than in September, 1923, and partly because of an unusual number of special sales in the month.

"Average daily sales for the district were 4 per cent. larger than a year ago, and for Newark and New York city stores were 5 to 7 per cent. larger than in 1923. Stores in Buffalo, Syracuse and various other selected cities reported small increases in aggregate sales, over last year, while stores in Bridgeport and Rochester reported decreases."

Wholesale trade, based on the sales of representative dealers, expanded 4 per cent. in September. The chief increase in sales over a yea rago were in diamonds, wearing apparel, stationery, drugs and silk goods, with trade in groceries and shoes also exceeding that of 1923.

Sales of reporting chain stores were larger in the cases of dry goods, grocery, ten-cent and candy chain systems, but lower for tobacco, shoe and drug lines.

WALL STREET THE MARK OF LAFOLLETTE ATTACK

New York, Oct. 28.—Appealing to the voters of New York to support his candidacy for the presidency, Senator Robert M. LaFollette devoted an address tonight in Brooklyn almost entirely to an attack on "Wall Street," which he declared controls the economic and political life of the nation.

"I shall speak tonight of Wall street," he said at the outset of his prepared address. "I shall speak of two groups—one, J. P. Morgan, which rules through gold. The other, the Standard Oil company, which rules through oil.

"These two groups are Wall street. Their will rules industry and finance. It rules banks, great railroad systems and insurance companies. It rules other monopolies."

BANDITS MAKE $10,000 HAUL IN HARTFORD JEWELRY STORE

Two Well Dressed Men Tied the Proprietor, Philip A. Rosen, Hand and Foot—Second Floor Store Was Looted in the Early Evening—One of the Bandits Had Been in the Store Several Times.

Hartford, Oct. 28.—Two well dressed men held up Philip A. Rosen, wholesale jeweler with store and display rooms on the second floor of 288 Trumbull street tonight, bound and gagged him, and looted the place of $10,000 worth of unset diamonds and jewelry, according to his story to the police. According to Rosen, one of the men had been in the store several times of late on one pretense or another. Tonight this man asked Rosen to step into his office, intimating according to Rosen that he had something important to say in private. A moment later Rosen said the man placed a revolver to his head and forced him to be quiet while he was bound. The articles said to have been stolen include a bag of unset diamonds valued at about $7,000, gold and platinum watches and gold and platinum settings.

FOREIGNERS IN PEKING BECOMING ANXIOUS

Tientsin, Oct. 28.—(By The A. P.)—The Kin-Han (Peking-Hankow) railroad has been at both north and south of Paoting and traffic suspended in both directions, it was asserted in private telegrams tonight from Paoting.

Numerous troop trains from Chinwangtao arrive today, and tonight were awaiting orders here from Wu Pei-Fu. General Wu's men were entrenched today near Yangsun, 17 miles from Tientsin, while digging in at Langfang, 23 miles further along the railway toward Peking.

The military governor of Shansi province is reported holding up General Wu's hopes of getting reinforcements over the In-Han railway.

Foreigners from Peking report considerable anxiety there as a result of the news of the recurn of General Su from the north to attempt to wrest control of the seat of government from Feng Yu-Hsiang, "the Christian General," who took possession of Peking during General Wu's absence at the front.

A detachment of United States marines left for Peking yesterday from Tientsin on a special train. The marines will reinforce the legation guard at Peking. An allied military train reached Peking on Monday night and returned here on Tuesday morning without incident.

DECISION RESERVED BY JUDGE ALLYN L. BROWN

New Haven, Oct. 28.—Decision was reserved today by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the civil superior court in connection with the application for a recount of the votes cast in the recent election in Madison. Clarkson H. Meigs contended that he and not Clinton H. Theis was legally elected as first selectman. William W. Miner advanced a similar contention against R. Darwell Conklin, and Austin Ackerman had a like complaint against Vincent Stevens, although the two latter controversies revolved around lesser offices.

The whole matter was submitted to the court on statements of facts by attorneys. Each claimant held that several of his votes had been thrown out without cause.

Judge Brown said he would hand down a decision as soon as possible.

MAN WANTED IN NEW HAVEN ARRESTED IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 28.—John W. Long of this city, wanted in New Haven, Conn., as a member of a gang of automobile thieves that has been operating there for some time, was taken from State Detective D. J. Manning on a writ of habeas corpus today while being conveyed to the Connecticut state line as a fugitive from justice on extradition papers. Long will be brought before the supreme court in Boston next Tuesday. The writ was sworn out by his counsel.

KLAN WILL OPPOSE THE ELECTION OF JOHN W. DAVIS

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 28.—"Officials directing the presidential campaign in behalf of Davis and Bryan Tuesday were considerably exercises at what appears to be an organized movement of the Ku Klux Klan to lead the vote away from the democratic party nominees." the Atlanta Constitution says in a story that will appear in its issue tomorrow morning.

"It has been rumored for some time," The Constitution will say, "that 'word had been sent to klan leaders of various counties to 'cut' the democratic presidential nominees, and that there is some basis for the report appears to be substantiated by receipt this week of clippings from last Saturday's Searchlight, official organ of the Ku Klux Klan, being sent from all parts of the state indicating that the paper has been broadcast on the eve of the election with a view of injuring the democratic nominee.

"This issue of the paper contains conspiracy on the front page a heavy headline article charging that in a recent address at Indianapolis John W. Davis, in appealing to the negro vote of that state, declared for 'complete equality regardless of race or creed.'"

"The Searchlight makes prominent displays of the action of the J. E. Donaldson Klan of Bainbridge, in which, in denouncing the above alleged utterance, it declared:

"'The white democracy of the south have read with some astonishment the speech of John W. Davis, the party's nominee for president, made before the Negro Voters' League of Indianapolis, last Monday wherein he appealed for 'complete' equality, regardless of race or creed. Mr. Davis may believe in placing the negroes on an absolute equality with the white race but he will find a few people who hold different views, especially in the south. When he puts in the word 'complete' we take it to mean just that, and that he would advocate a policy to the whites wining, dining and intermarrying with all races regardless of color. We believe in white supremacy. Distinction among the races is not accidental, but designed. Neither is it incidental, but is of vast importance and indicates the wisdom of the divine mind. It is not temporary, but abiding as the ages. The supremacy of the white race will be maintained, notwithstanding the whims and appeals of cheap politicians to the contrary.'"

"This copy of the Searchlight is being sent all over the state this week.

"Democracy officials do not believe it will have the slightest effect, as they are confident the people of the state will not be misled by utterances falsely attributed to Mr. Davis.

"Mr. Lawis, in the address referred to, indicated that he in common with all the declarations of the democratic party, favored legal equality and equal justice, and no mention, of course, was made in any of social equality."

HUNDREDS AT FUNERAL OF MINSTREL DOCKSTADER

New York, Oct. 28.—Several hundred men and women who had known Lew Dockstader only as a professional funny man, and who had laughed at his quips in the state minstrel generation that is past, paid simple tribute to him today at a simple funeral service.

The strangers gathered silently in front of the Riverside Drive apartment where Dockstader had lived with his daughter and son-in-law, and patiently awaited the start of the funeral cortege. They followed the hearse to All Angels Protestant-Episcopal church, and stood with bared heads as the bier was taken inside. Then they crowded the little church to listen to the simple funeral service and joined in singing "Lead, Kindly Light."

Several hundred of the actor's old friends were there, too, men and women of the stage, mainly. George M. Cohan was one of the mourners, as was Joe Norcross, fellow minstrel of Dockstader. Norcross now is 54 years old. There were representatives from the Lambs, Friars and Elks clubs, as well.

DAVIS IS CAMPAIGNING IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Oct. 28.—Carrying his campaign into the populous section of New York's East Side and Bronx districts for three speeches tonight, John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president, again predicted a democratic victory for the national, congressional and New York state ticket headed by Governor Alfred E. Smith. He assailed "scandals and corruption" in government, and emphasized his declaration that "the time has come for the American people to face about and get back on sound principles of democracy instead of the quagmire of privilege."

NICARAGUAN FORCES SENT TO THE FRONTIER

Nicaraguan forces have been sent to the frontier and voluntary recruiting started. Several leaders and generals in Managua opposed to the present government are under strict surveillance as it is believed that the recent Honduran incursions may have been incited by enemies of the administration.

Rev. Morris E. Alling, pastor of the Storrs community church, delivered an inspiring address on "Fellowship" at Tuesday's meeting of Willimantic Rotary club. An excellent luncheon was served. Owing to the fact that the attendance contest has begun, there was a fine attendance of members. A committee was appointed by President Harry W. Standish to draft suitable resolutions on the death of Rev. John E. Clark, pastor of St. Joseph's church. The committee comprises Valentine L. Murphy, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey and Herbert W. Huber. The publicity committee was instructed to take any action that it may deem advisable in order to increase the interest in voting on Nov. 4, the date of the national and state elections. In his address, which occupied a half hour, Rev. Mr. Alling urged religious co-operation, believing that men can accomplish this objective without affecting their individualities. Rev. Mr. Alling has been secretary of the state federation of churches. Following adjournment, the directors convened. A communication concerning an appeal for funds from the Salvation Army was re-referred to the directorate for consideration by the meeting.

About eighty delegates are expected to be in attendance. Sessions will be held at the town hall and the Al-Pierre Tabarin. The local committee of arrangements comprises: Joseph F. Gaudreau, chairman; Alphonse Chagnon, secretary; Alexis Caisse, Joseph Lefebvre, Mrs. George Bailliegeon, Mrs. Isaac Brindamour and Mrs. Roderick Rousseau. federation extended a vote of thanks for the reception of its members by the choir boys, at their camp at Columbia lake, last year.

With the keen interest evidenced in the "overcoat meet" which is to be held at the Recreation park speedway the coming Saturday, indications are that there will be a big attendance to ring down the curtain on the matinee horse racing season locally. At present there are fifteen race horses in this city and vicinity and most of these have already been entered in the various events.

Windham High school's unbeaten football eleven faces it most difficult assignment in Bristol Saturday afternoon. The Bristol High aggregation has piled up an impressive record so far this season, the local lads are in excellent condition and Coach T. A. Callaghan is in high hopes that his proteges will return victorious.

The edict of Governor Templeton has dashed cold water on the aspirations of local huntsmen who were meeting with little success before the drought season was declared. Raymond L. Sullivan was in charge of a party of young men who invaded the precincts of Ashford several times before the ban was placed on hunting and twice were unlucky enough to become separated.

Several days ago, the local police and the Windham county authorities received a notification that a man named Freeman who used several other names had escaped from the Florida state prison where he had been sent in 1916 for being involved in a murder case. The notification stated that it was believed that he was residing in this city or in some adjoining town with a woman other than his wife. The request of the Florida officials was that Freeman be arrested and held until he could be extradited. An investigation disclosed that a man answering the description of the one wanted had been living and working in Willimantic but had left for parts unknown. Later it was learned when the case was brought to the attention of the Windham county authorities that the man was in Chaplin but at the time was away. The information was forwarded to the Florida authorities, with a request for the necessary papers to secure the man's arrest and detention. While awaiting this authority the officials of the county have learned that the fugitive in some way received notice that he had been located and disappeared. He returned to the place where he was living in Chaplin in the middle of the night packed his clothing and left. While in Chaplin the man was a steady worker.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, democratic candidate for congress in the second congressional district, was in Middlesex county Tuesday, conferring with party leader in the interests of his candidacy. He had no money and he said that all he had eaten for the last four days was apples. Several local men provided transportation for the youngster and he was placed on a Boston train Tuesday morning.

Dr. Owen O'Neill who recently returned from a month's vacation has with him Dr. Edward Ottenheimer. Mrs. Laura Wedling and Mrs. Francis B. Geegan, sisters and former local residents, but for some time past living in Waterbury, were arrested in this city late Monday night at the request of George M. Beach, superintendent of the Waterbury police department, on a charge of violation of the conditional sale law. Tuesday morning, a lieutenant in the Waterbury department arrived here and took the women back to the Brass city for their appearance in police court. The women told the police that they had done no wrong, that they purchased furniture and intended to pay for it. When the Waterbury officer arrived here he said that in addition to the furniture the women had purchased diamonds and had disposed of them without settling with the dealer.

Evidently there are some persons who view the new traffic ordinances as a joke. Recently the one way signs at the corners of Valley and North and Valley and Temple street were carried away Tuesday morning, the police officers were incensed when they discovered that one of the new metal two-hour limit parking signs, placed in position Monday night in front of the Martineau-Bacon Co. store on Union street, was missing. During the day it was learned that the missing sign was occupying a prominent position on the campus at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

Make your cake with Snowdrift—grease the pans with Snowdrift—and make the icing with Snowdrift.

Make doughnuts with Snowdrift—and then fry the doughnuts in Snowdrift.

Every use for a shortening or frying-fat is an opportunity to find out how good Snowdrift is. And using Snowdrift in your own favorite recipes is the best way of all to find out how much better it is than any fat you ever used before.

The Wesson Oil people make Snowdrift out of oil as good as fine salad oil—hardened and whipped into a creamy white fat—and packed in an airtight can to keep it as sweet and fresh as the day it was made.

Try it in your favorite cake.

It is much easier to cream because it is already so creamy itself. It is so delicate that it makes your cake very rich without changing the flavor. It is 100% pure fat, without salt or water, so add a pinch of salt if you have been using butter in your recipe.

Try Snowdrift in your favorite biscuit recipe and see how good biscuit can be.

Try Snowdrift in pie-crust—rich, tender, flaky. Snowdrift may not make you a better cook, but the family are likely to think so.

Fry in Snowdrift and see how delicious and wholesome fried food can be. A crispy brown crust forms so quickly that the food does not absorb too much fat and, inside this thin crust, cooks to a tempting lightness and daintiness.

Snowdrift is very economical as a frying fat—especially in deep frying. Strain it, to remove any crumbs of food, and you can use it over and over again for frying different things.

This is true to some extent of any fat. But here is one advantage of Snowdrift. It will not absorb the odor or flavor of any food cooked in it—not even fish nor onions. You may use it over and over again.

And Snowdrift is not altered much by heating to cooking temperature. Much cooking fat has to be thrown out after you have used it a few times. But Snowdrift is altered so little by heating that you can use it up and not waste it. It is almost as good the last time you use it as the first.

Snowdrift—for making cake, biscuit and pastry, and for frying

JEWETT CITY

The annual meeting of Jewett City Chapter, American Red Cross, was held in the chapter room Monday evening, 17 being present. The chairman, Miss A. C. Burdick, presided. The secretary, Mrs. J. H. Tracy read the annual report which shows that this chapter has never lost interest in the work. Five regular meetings and two special meetings have been held. There are four committees: home service, Junior Red Cross, nursing service and production committee. The home service is at all times at the service of the veterans for information and help, if necessary. The Junior Red Cross is doing the work assigned it under a capable chairman. The production committee has been asked by the Veterans Hospital, No. 14, at New Haven, to provide knitted caps and sweaters with sleeves, and property bags for soldiers in that hospital. Thirty caps have been knitted, and the yarn will be distributed for the sweaters. The chapter had an assignment of twenty-five Christmas bags for soldiers in the Canal Zone, which quota was filled. The chapter gave $25 for materials for layettes, to be sent to the Virgin Islands. In May, Miss Schuman from the National chapter and Miss Clock, a field worker, from New York visited the executive board, and gave an interesting talk on Nutrition, thinking perhaps the chapter might furnish a nutrition nurse for the town. When the speaker found that the chapter was not financially able to contribute towards the support of a district nurse and a nutrition nurse, too, she advised lending the support towards a district nurse. The chapter was presented a copy of the late Henry P. Davison's book on Reviewing the Late War, and it was voted to place the book in Slater Library.

In response to a suggestion from the national chapter that Defense Day Test be recognized in conjunction with Orville La Flamme Post, Woman's Auxiliary and Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R., a telegram was sent to President Calvin Coloidge, stating approval of the action being taken. A gracious response came in reply to the telegram. Last year, five hundred dollars was contributed to the support of the district nurse. Also one hundred dollars was voted toward a school nurse for the town of Lisbon, but as plans there did not materialize, the money was not called for. Two delegates attended the state convention in Hartford, but no one attended the national convention in Washington.

Miss Rosanna Des Jardine, the treasurer, presented her report from June 1923 to 1924 which is the national fiscal year. She reported that $13.25 had been spent from June to October by the Junior Red Cross and for Christmas bags. The balance on June 1923 was $707.32, contributions $8.62, Japanese Relief $711.94, memberships $6.99, interest $14.80, a total of $2141.68. Cash paid out for layettes $32.92, home service $81.22, district nurse $500, cleaning chapter room $5, membership dues to headquarters $349.50, expense to Washington $22.30; renewal of bond $3.75, printing, express, etc $10.55. Total paid out $1717.18.

Miss May Driscoll's report as Junior Red Cross superintendent stated that the children filled twenty bags for the soldiers in the Canal Zone for Christmas in 1923. Each bag contained handkerchiefs, face cloths, soap, pocket knives, memorandum book, mechanical pencils, key rings, cards, tobacco, cigarettes, pipe, chewing gum, puzzles and novelties, all given by the children. In September 1924, they began bringing articles for the soldiers' bags again for Christmas, and with help from the treasury, these bags have been sent.

The home service committee, Miss Katherine Barnett, secretary, whose statement was read by Dr. G. H. Jennings, chairman, reported five letters written for ex-service men in regard to insurance and compensation, $46.14 was paid out for home service work from October 1923 to October 1924. It was voted to appropriate five hundred dollars toward the support of the district nurse. An executive committee appointed which will meet and elect officers, comprises Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, chairman, Dr. G. H. Jennings, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Miss Ida I Foster, Margaret Driscoll, Katherine Barnett, Bertha E. Lewis, Mrs. Alice Anthony, Margery Lyden and Mrs. R. F. Cheney.

A report of the state meeting at Hartford was given by Dr Jennings and Miss Burdick. The chairman stated that the state officials compliment this chapter very highly for the work it does and its continued interest in all Red Cross activities.

ALDEBARAN.

Like a fire in the field of night
I saw the Red Star shine;
The Red Star, the gypsy star,
And I claimed its light for mine;
The watcher by the flame,
The guide o'er moor and fen,
That beckoning waves his rosy torch
For wild and wandering men.

Like a disk of the ruddy gold
I saw the Red Star gleam;
The Red Star, the gypsy star,
That roves in the roads of dream;
Across the empty years
He flung his spendthrift store,
As a Romany plays with handfuls bright
In the shade of the low tent door.

Like a horseshoe on the forge
I saw the Red Star glow,
The Red Star, the gypsy star,
Whose trail the vagabonds know;
Beating the bounds of earth,
Beneath the alien skies,
They wend with joy in their homeless hearts
Who have seen the Red Star rise.

The dishwater was thrown out into the yard, and although a diligent search was made, the ring could not be found.

What is said to be a desirable immigrant from southern Europe has arrived at the United States bureau of foreign seed and plant introduction from Nice on the Mediterranean shore of France. It is a member of the cactus family, Cereus validus by name, and produces edible fruits of an excellent quality. The fruits are the size of a goose egg, in color magenta red, and entirely without spines or prickles. This plant is really a returning American emigrant, for all cacti were originally American, and were not known in Europe until after the voyages of Columbus.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

When the republicans hold their own rally of the campaign here on Thursday evening, Congressman Richard P. Freeman from New London, of this district, and Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of Willimantic will be among the speakers. Attorney Gaucher is to make an address in French. Aside from a short parade and a concert by a band there will be no special preliminaries to the rally.

In a group of pictures of members of the Connecticut Agricultural College football team, published in a Boston paper is a good likeness of Paul Bitgood, regular left guard of the team, described as the best in the history of the college. The team has been going great guns all season and has made a remarkably good record. Bitgood, a former Killingly High school player and whose home is here, is described as one of the outstanding linemen of the team, a versatile athlete who has won letters in basketball, track and football. Other members of the team are Antonio Longo and Theodore Reeves, also both of Danielson and former stars on K. H. S. teams.

At her home in Cranston, R. I., on Tuesday afternoon, funeral services were conducted for Mrs. Emma C. Burgess by Rev. R. L. Kimball, pastor of the Phillips Memorial Baptist church. Burial was in Pocasset cemetery. The bearers were James Dowe, Clarence Adams, John Godell and James Field. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A night force operating 228 plain looms is now at work, in addition to the day force, at the Main street plant of the Pace Manufacturing company. The concern continues to do a splendid business and is a fine industrial asset to Danielson in a period when such assets are needed. The new bleachery of the concern here is now handling upwards of 200,000 yards of curtain material each week, this when finished being forwarded to the curtain manufacturing department of the concern in Boston.

Disrespect for law! Or for official proclamations? Not all confined to repudiating a certain modern amendment to the federal constitution, it would seem. Hunters could be heard banging away in the fields and woods within a few miles from Danielson Tuesday afternoon, in spite of the fact that Governor Templeton had ordered cessation of hunting until further notice and proclaimed that all protected game shall be as unmolested as in the closed season.

There was every evidence that this order was being defied by hunters Tuesday. Not by all the hunters, but by a small percentage of them—the ones, probably, that hunt before the opening of the season or any other old time that suits their fancy. The bootleggers of the hunting fraternity, it might be suggested.

These law violating hunters must be aware that they are subject now, under the governor's suspension of the open season, to all the penalties that apply for hunting and taking game in the closed season. If they are aware, are they probably betting against the ability of any game official catching them cheating against the laws of the state and against the hunters who are good sports enough to obey an official mandate in the interest of protecting the property of people over whose lands they hunt. Would that it would rain a deluge in the interest of the hunters who do obey the law! Then the open season would be open again.

The funeral of Thomas Govan, who died Sunday, was held Tuesday morning from his home in Attawaugan with funeral services at St. Joseph's church at Dayville at 9 o'clock, Rev. At St. James' rectory Monday morning at 7 o'clock, Miss Florence Corriveau and John Marland, both of this place, were united in marriage by Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Adams. Following the marriage ceremony a breakfast for the bridal party was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney P. Marland, on Riverview. Mr. and Mrs. Marland are now on a wedding trip that will take them on a tour of Cape Cod and to other interesting points in New England. Both are well known in Danielson, Mr. Marland being in charge of the winding room of the Connecticut Mills, with which corporation the bride also has been employed in a clerical capacity.

There are other things than heavy seas and mal de mer off Point Judith. That has been conclusively established by a group of local fishermen, who returned here with upwards of 200 pounds of cod, black fish and other varieties of finny specimens. S. P. Marland, Venerand Chartier, Edward Bennett, Frank McGorty and Armand Heneault, the latter three of Dayville, made up the party. The big fish of the entire catch was an 18-pound cod hauled aboard by Mr. Marland. Friends of the fishermen were generously remembered out of the catch, when the party returned.

Like a page out of the stories of the days of the Covered Wagon did a pair of runaway horses owned by Delor Rainville of the Borough farm on Dyer street recall old time happenings, about 5 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon. Frightened by a freight train while they were standing near the Snow property on Mechanic street when they started their run. They came down past the Danielson garage and over the Main street crossing in a fine burst of speed, missing machines and people by inches. Clearing the crossing, they crashed the wagon against a big pole conveniently set near a crosswalk, bounced off that to race on and smash into another pole opposite Farron's store. That crash freed to some extent one of the horses, but they came going with the wagon caroming on behind until it hooked into a new Ford sedan owned by Leroy LePiace and parked near the Cyr building. As is usual in arguments with Fords, the arguer got the worst of it. The horses were brought up short and swung around and were prancing up on the sidewalk when men rushed up and held them.

The big lumber wagon was considerably damaged. The Ford had a crumpled left forward fender and several dents in the body—that's all.

INCOME TAX FIGURES OF LOCAL INTEREST

Danielson, Oct. 28.—Trading on the fact that printing income tax returns is a popular stunt just now and that those who pay them are irate over such publication, it seems a good joke to make a few figures concerning Danielson. Here they are:—(list of 1924)

Davis Park Public Concerts Co., $0000.00; La Follette town committee, 0000.0 1-2; Shirt-tail Raiders, Inc., $000.11; October Rainfall Co., $0000; Sidewalk Legal Corporation, 01; Danielson Baseball Association, $0000.00; "Have You Heard Associated Gossip Mongers?", .03; Society for Propagation of Love Your Neighbor Gospel, .08. No huge profits there—and not much news!

FRED LONGLEY GORED BY INFURIATED BULL

Daniel, Oct. 28.—A bull owned on the farm of Charles Ennis, in the town of Brooklyn, has lived up to reputation of its kind for being vicious and always a potent menace to humans having any intimate dealings with such animals.

At the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Tuesday, Fred Longley, about 45, a farm hand employed on the Ennis farm the past three years, was lying dangerously injured as a result of being attacked by the bull.

Longley was bringing in the cows from pasture Monday evening, when the bull, without warning, attacked him. Longley was twice tossed in the air by the infuriated animal. And then as he lay helpless on the ground the bull gored and trampled him. Longley, who comes from the vicinity of Worcester and has been employed at the Ennis farm for the past three years, Longley is suffering from internal injuries that may result in his death. His condition was so serious Tuesday afternoon as to raise doubts as to the possibility of his recovering.

PUTNAM

Judge William M. Maltbie has handed down two decisions in cases tried before him in Putnam at the September term of the superior court. No decision has as yet been rendered in the case of Keegan vs. E. H. Cortis and other members of the Thompson school committee against whom an injunction issued from taking further pay for services and a request that they be made to return the money paid them. Nor has a decision been rendered in the case of Lea Smith vs. Captain Jarvis and members of the Putnam police force. In both of these cases there is much interest.

In the case of Maurice Foster, formerly a fruit dealer in Putnam, now of Moosup, vs. Irving W. Foote, a potato grower, judgment is for the plaintiff to recover $44.65 and for the defendant to recover $126 on his counter-claim. This is in reality a victory for the plaintiff for the $126 was admittedly due the defendant. The case grew out of the sale of a large quantity of potatoes. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant refused to deliver about a thousand bushels that he had contracted for or to pay over the profit made when he, the defendant, sold the potatoes. The defendant claimed that he was told to sell the potatoes for what he could get and sold them at a loss. The court did not find this to be the case.

LeRoy Fiek was given a verdict of $207.20 against John Weaver, Jr. This was a Danielson case in which the motorcycle of the plaintiff and the automobile of the defendant collided. The plaintiff claimed that as he was about to pass the automobile of the defendant the driver suddenly turned to his left and right in the pathway of the plaintiff. The defendant claimed that he heard a noise behind him and believing it was a trolley car approaching, and being near the trolley track, he turned to the left. The court found that the driver of the automobile was negligent in not ascertaining what was coming from behind before turning and also in turning as far to the left.

Putnam now has a total voting list of 2,872. A few more may be made before election day but only those reaching their majority before that time can now be made. Of 230 women so far made voters 189 registered to vote in republican caucus. Of the total list there are 1,185 women voters and 1,687 men. From outward appearances Putnam will continue to be a republican stronghold.

State Bank Examiner John B. Byrne spent Tuesday at the home of his mother on Seward street. Mr. Byrne has been employed in Norwich on the case involving an alleged defalcation of Treasurer George A. Finn.

A French republican rally was held in St. John's hall, Tuesday evening with Joseph Plessis as chairman. The principal speaker of the evening was Attorney Jalbert of Woonsocket. The hall was well filled. A sale followed the rally.

There is much interest in poultry in the town of Ashford where a poultry club of twenty members has just been formed. Frank L. Davis, county agricultural agent of Putnam, and Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist of Storrs college, spoke at the meeting before the club was organized. It is the hope of the Windham County Farmers' association, through the club, to help the poultrymen in the town. The officers of the club are: Edwin A. Buck, president; George Lowry, vice president; Rudolph Supina, secretary and treasurer.

Alexander Varbedian, who has been visiting relatives in Syria, is expected home by the first of the month.

DEAD RAILROAD MEN ARE PAID FINAL HONORS

Putnam, Oct. 28.—Funeral services for William S. Carpenter, engineer, and Joseph Hoppman, fireman, who died at the Day Kimball hospital within six hours of each other, at an early hour, Sunday morning, from injuries sustained when their engine, pulling passenger train No. 727 from Worcester, due in Putnam at 5.25 o'clock Friday evening, crashed head-on into the large freight engine of extra freight No. 1314 standing on a siding in the extreme north end of the Putnam railroad yard, were held in Putnam, Tuesday. There was a large gathering of railroad men in the city during the day and there was a large attendance at both funerals.

The funeral service for the dead fireman was at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock Tuesday morning. The solemn requiem mass was sung by Rev. Charles F. Bedard, pastor, with Rev. Adrian Dykeman, deacon and Rev. Arthur Routhier sub-deacon. There were beautiful floral pieces, including those from the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen and the K. of C., of which Mr. Hoppman was a member. The body was taken to Jewett City for burial in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Edmund Kane, Bernard J. McGarry and L. Hector Lucier of Cargill council, K. of C., Putnam, and Earl Bevis, Walter Brown and Ernest Partridge of the Brotherhood.

The funeral services for Engineer Carpenter were held at his home on South Main street, at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The attendance was so large that all could not get into the home. There were beautiful flowers including set pieces from the Odd Fellows and Brotherhood.

The service was conducted by Rev. F. B. Richards of Putnam Congregational church. The bearers were Timothy Robinson and A. I. Tourtellotte, representing the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen, and Robert Chadwick, Charles Franklin, Chas. Tourtellotte and George Metcalf representing the Odd Fellows. The body was taken to Fort Point cemetery, below Norwich, for burial in the family lot. The committal service was in charge of the Odd Felows and there was singing by the Odd Fellows' quartette.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED AGAINST GILPATRIC

Putnam, Oct. 28.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States district court at New Haven against G. Harold Gilpatric former cashier of the First National bank of Putnam. The petition was filed by Attorney J. S. Carpenter of Putnam, acting as attorney for the estate of Mary L. Gardner. Indebtedness to the estate in an amount exceeding $10,000 in liquidated claims and further unliquidated claims are alleged in the petition. The petition was filed after consultation with George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank and attorneys for the larger creditors.

The will of the late Mary Gardner named Gilpatric as executor to serve without band, and he was also given a bequest by the testator. Only a nominal bond of $500 was required by the probate court. Now practically the whole estate of approximately $85,000 has disappeared.

In the Gardner estate was the homestead on South Main street which was left to the town for library purposes. The sole heir, Miss Mary Barber of Willington agreed that the town might sell the property and it did so for $8,500 to the Arcanum club. The money the town received from the sale was invested in bonds and these also were taken by Gilpatric.

The bankruptcy proceedings had been rumored and were not wholly unexpected, but from what source the petition would come had been problematical. Gilpatric had made a complete assignment of his personal estate to the receiver of the bank. This was done very soon after his condition was such that he could sign the necessary papers.

U.S. STEEL CORP. MAINTAINS COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND

New York, Oct. 28.—The United States States Steel Corporation today maintained its policy of paying an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly common and preferred disbursement of $1.25 and $1.75 a share, respectively, despite the fact that the third quarter's earnings failed fully to cover dividend requirements.

Total earnings of $30,718,415 for the period ended Sept. 30, represented a decline of $10,662,624 from the preceding quarter's earnings. With the deduction of all charges and dividends, there was a deficit of $122,102 for the quarter although the surplus for the first three months of the year totaled $25,171,601.

Lower selling prices on the products of the Steel Corporation accounted for the reduction in earnings, according to Chairman E. H. Gary. Bookings up to Oct. 24, he said, were larger per day than in the corresponding period of September.

"At the present time, less than a week before election," Mr. Gary stated, "there si in the minds of business men generally a feeling of anxiety concerning possible election results. As a result purchases which are being made in the iron and steel industry are made only by those who are pretty certain in regard to the results or by those who are buying to supply actual every-day necessities."

General conditions, the steel official asserted, demonstrated that the purchasing power and disposition of the public were strong and vigorous and would in the near future materially increase. Conditions in the iron and steel industry, he added, were in line with predictions made last spring and the outlook was fully as good as could be expected.

NORWICH AND THE LEGISLATURE.

At the election next Tuesday there are state as well as national conditions to be considered. Too much importance cannot be attached to the retention of those policies which have characterized the conduct of the state affairs under the republicans for the past decade. And it must not be overlooked that that very matter lies in the hands of the voters.

Along with sound and stable national government it is of importance that we should have equally efficient state government. Provision has been made for that. The republican administrations have demonstrated what can be expected in that direction if the republican ticket from Hiram Bingham down is elected.

Sight must not be lost at this time of the makeup of the next general assembly. Connecticut has a reputation for electing a republican legislature. There is every reason to believe that such will be the result, and in order to get the best results and the most effective representation the voters of Norwich should give thoughtful consideration to having its representatives numbered among the majority.

For the 19th senatorial district, in which Norwich is included, the republican nominee, Lee Roy Robbins, is in every way qualified to ably represent and carefully look after the interests of this section. Norwich, along with Preston and Ledyard, needs a senator who not only is in sympathy with but is able to obtain results from the legislature. The advantages of republican representation in a republican senate speak for themselves, and the voters should see that it is obtained for their own good.

What is true of the state senate is likewise true of the house. Messrs. Engler and Cassidy are equipped and disposed to actively represent Norwich as it should be represented. The voters should show sufficient interest in getting their services by giving them a rousing majority next Tuesday. To get the best results Norwich needs representation sympathetic with the republican legislature, not representation in the minority which is on the outside looking in.

"DIRTY POLITICS."

What must be regarded as a political move to poison the mind is that charge which has been made to the effect that Calvin Coolidge while vice president exacted $250 for making an address in Bridgeport before patriotic organizations.

The permanent chairman of the organization before whom the former vice president spoke terms it "dirty politics" and there are all the earmarks to indicate that he is entirely right. He points out that the organizations pay all their speakers, that men of character are wanted, are obtained and are paid. It was no exception when Mr. Coolidge, as vice president, spoke. Of course the charge was drawn in such a way as to give the impression that Mr. Coolidge's case differed from all others.

While Rev. J. W. Davis, chairman of the Bridgeport United Patriotic societies, was explaining the circumstances and calling the charge "dirty politics" none less than former Vice President Marshall, democrat, was likewise administering a body blow to the charge. He declared that Mr. Coolidge as vice president did no different than he did himself when vice president and insisted that it was necessary to go out on the lecturing platform because the salary of a vice president is inadequate to maintain him in the position he occupies. Mr. Marshall bluntly declares that it was necessary to "lecture, steal or resign," the salary being such that money must be earned "on the side." Mr. Marshall and Mr. Coolidge were not men of wealth as some vice presidents have been.

This of course brings up the inadequacy of the vice president's salary, but it likewise knocks into a cocked hat that underhanded piece of political gossip which was intended to create a wrong impression of President Coolidge. Like many another effort in that direction it will do more harm to those responsible for it than to the one it was intended to hurt. Like the recent democratic demonstration of snobbery by Miss Elizabeth Marbury it becomes a boomerang.

HUNTING SEASON SUSPENSION.

Governor Templeton has acted none too soon in declaring a season of drought and suspending the hunting season for the protection that will come from the absence of hunters from the fields and woodlands.

One doesn't have to go into the woods to understand the conditions that exist. The dry period has made leaves and underbrush the best kind of food for flames. It can be seen in the streets and yards where there are many trees, and no better illustration could be given of the danger that it creates than that furnished by two men conversing in a yard of a recent date. The leaves had fallen quite generously. During the talk one of them lighted a cigarette, and as he did so threw the match to one side. Supposedly the match was out but in no time the flames were licking up the leaves and spreading. It required no effort to put it out, but had that been done by a person passing along he would never have known the cause of the fire that had been unintentionally kindled, and which might have caused much destruction before it was checked.

Carelessness figures in too many cases of woodland fires. Hunters are not the only smokers and the suspension of the hunting season will not prevent all forest fires. It will do much nevertheless for the decrease in the frequenters of the woods means just that much added prevention. The human agent cannot be held responsible if he isn't there.

Considering the large sums that are lost every season through forest fires the governor has taken measures which are fully warranted for providing additional protection. He has acted in time to forestall serious consequences, and it is to be expected that the suspension will not only meet with general respect but that it will be carefully enforced.

INCOME TAX PUBLICITY.

When Attorney General Stone, after announcing that a test case would be brought to determine the question of publication of income tax payments, indicates it to be his opinion that such publication is illegal and that it was not contemplated when the law was made it is no more than was expected.

It cannot fail to be noted, as the attorney general points out, that while the income taxes paid were to be listed and opened for inspection there was no authority given for publication of such amounts, while the revenue act of 1924 makes it a criminal offense to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any part of an income tax return.

In other words after authorizing the placing of the tax returns at certain points for inspection congress has specifically forbidden the publication of any part of the returns. Thus even if the opening of the returns to inspection makes them public records, these particular public records are protected against publication by a section of the statutes approved at the same time and in the revenue act.

That the publication of the amounts has caused much resentment is evident. The feeling is no different than what was expected when full publicity was sought for the income tax returns. It simply gives emphasis to the undesirable and obnoxious features which were pointed out when such legislature was under consideration. It is another instance of the bad legislation for which the last session of congress, under bloc control, was responsible.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

These are the days when the cider mills are working over time and under pressure.

Sir Thomas Lipton knows ere this that challenging for the cup doesn't mean lifting it.

There's nothing in the marriage record to indicate that full advantage is being taken of leap year.

Keeping prosperity is the desire of the people of this country and that means, of course, keep Coolidge.

Is the pumpkin supply sufficient to withstand the demands of Hallowe'en without skimping the pie demands?

The influence of the icebergs is being felt, but it is useless to resign to Jack Frost until after Indian summer.

The man on the corner says: Those crying "slush fund" are going down for the last time, and no help in sight.

Now that he is on his way home that competition of trying to keep up with the prince can be considered ended.

It is taking some time to clean up rum row, but some big hauls of liquor are being made by the coast guard.

Such pressure as can be brought in the next week on the stay at home voter to make him get out to the polls will be well applied.

Even though the weatherman lends encouragement to forest fires, it should only encourage the preventive efforts of the human agent.

There seems to be a marked similarity about the names on the campaign buttons as well as the political tags carried on the autos. Another sign of how the people feel.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

"Lucile," said mother last Thursday morning, "your Cousin Fannie and I are going to the guild picnic today, and we shall not be back until evening. With your father away from home I think you can manage a little dinner for your grandmother and yourself, so I shall not ask Tilly to give up her day out."

"Very well, mother dear," I replied with great cheerfulness, for a pleasant plan immediately flashed into my mind.

I called up Polly Gray and asked her whether she would come over and pass the day.

"I'm going downtown," she answered, "but I can come up after my errands are finished. Perhaps right after lunch."

"That will do famously," I said, and I at once called up Dexter Haines and John Fenwyck, asking them to dinner. Then I ordered spring chickens and other delectable food, which I knew that Polly could cook cleverly.

"Heavens, I'm hot and tired!" she groaned the moment she entered the house. "I had a fearful hunt for the kind of dancing slippers I wished. Let's put on negligees and lounge around this afternoon."

"You poor darling! Of course you shall put on a negligee and rest some, but not the whole afternoon, young lady, for we are giving a small dinner party, and I'm relying on your supreme ability to make it a success."

"Indeed?" remarked Polly in a tone quite different from my playful air. "Dexter Haines and John Fenwyck are coming. Won't that be fun?"

"I suppose so, but I call this rather hot weather for kitchen exercise."

"Oh well, the dinner will be quite simple, Polly. It won't take us long to get it," I said reassuringly, and I did help her a lot.

I set the table, and fixed a tray for granny, for I knew our party would bore her. I ordered ice cream, when I discovered that Polly did not seem to wish to make the date torte for which I had provided materials. She said if I would beat the eggs and whip the cream, she would do it, but of course I did not have time for that, with everything else I had to look after.

"What a delicious dinner," said Dexter as we were enjoying our coffee on the side porch. "I had no idea you were such an accomplished chef, Lucille."

"Oh, you must give some of the credit to Polly," I said generously, as I smiled into her still flushed face. She kept strangely silent, but when John suggested that we all go out for a cooling drive she grew a little more vivacious.

When I got home I found mother there, and she was absurdly annoyed because I had left granny for an hour or so. I told her now it vexed granny to be treated as if she were not able to take care of herself, but she insisted that it was not right for me to leave her alone in the house. I can see readily why I am granny's favorite. "It is because I treat her as if we were of equal age. Mother fusses over her entirely too much.

This morning Polly ran in to get the slippers she had left here on Thursday night. She appeared surprised to find the box had been opened.

"Oh," I said, "you see I need some dancing s lippers ... and I just through I'd take a peep at yours, and see whether some like them would be right for me."

"Why, Lucile, they're grass stained! You don't mean to say that you wore them?"

"Why yes, Polly, I didn't think you'd care. You're always so generous, and last night George Requier came along and wanted me to go out to the Wayfarers' to dance a little, and they went so well with the white voile I was wearing, and—"

"And you walked in the grass with them on! I had to search the whole city for these, to take with me to a house party I'm going to, and now look at them!"

"But, Polly dear, if you are going to wear them to a house party in the country they would soon be grass stained." I said consolingly, but she refused to be comforted, and left the house with an injured air which I think rather ill-bred.—Chicago News.

Hough Groped for Many Years

Financial success did not come to Emerson Hough until he was 45. He had a college education and worked hard, but for years he accomplished nothing because he could not find his vocation.

Born in Newton, Iowa, he attended the public schools, then went to the University of Iowa, from which he was graduated at 23. He studied to be a lawyer, was admitted to the bar and went to a mining and cattle town in New Mexico to practice.

Opportunities for a lawyer were few, especially after the mines were tide up by litigation, and he spent his time in the out-of-doors and in writing. Few of his articles were printed and he soon felt that he was neither a lawyer nor a writer, and he did not know what to do.

The failure of his father's business made it imperative that he help the family, and at 29 he obtained the management of the Chicago office of a New York out-of-door journal, where he had to handle the editorial work and teach himself how to handle the business end.

To earn extra money, he wrote humorous and dialect stories for dialect stories for Sunday nespapers and magazines, receiving $5 a column—when he was paid at all. He enjoyed writing but received no encouragement and no recognition, and manuscripts sent to publishers were not noticed. Most of his writings were done between midnight, when he returned home from work and 4 o'clock in the morning. Although he tried to keep himself in physical trim by regular exercises and by out-of-door trips, he overworked and injured his health permanently.

At 38 his book, The Singing Mouse Stories, was published, but won scant recognition. Other books received like reception. At 40 he married and soon after wrote The Mississippi Bubble. It was published five years later and won success, but cost him his newspaper position. At 52 he wrote 54-40 or Fight in three weeks of record July weather, never going to bed for three nights of one week.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Navy Day and the Flag.

Mr. Editor: President Coolidge endorsed the observance of Oct. 27, 1924, as Navy day, particularly Oct. 27th as it is the anniversary of the late President Theodore Roosevelt's birth. This day has been most fittingly observed throughout the United States.

On Oct. 22d our mayor, Milo R. Waters, issued through The Norwich Bulletin a proclamation concerning the observance of Navy day and requesting the people of Norwich to display the national colors on this day.

At 10 a. m. this morning there were no signs of displaying the national colors around our city hall. I called the mayor's office on the phone and the colors were finally raised between 10.30 and 10.45 a. m. It would seem to me that the "town fathers" are like our school board, as put forth in the recent town meeting—no matter how the people want matters, the "politicians" are in no way bound to carry out the people's wishes. I don't like to think that the mayor's proclamation was pretended patriotism or insincere, but it would seem that the colors should have been raised today, at least, as soon as the city hall opened, without outsiders having to bring this matter to the mayor's attention.

I wish to call attention to the fact that certain fundamental rules call for display of colors only between sunrise and sunset except on special occasions and as I write this (9 p. m.) the flag is still flying from the city hall staff. I have noted that the flag has heretofore flown from the city hall staff, night and day, for considerable periods.

I would like to see this disrespect of our own Old Glory, though probably not intentional, corrected.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Ramsay MacDonald, whose premiership is at stake in today's parliamentary elections in Great Britain, took office in the early part of this year, following the victory of the labor party in the last elections. Mr. MacDonald has had a varied career. He is the child of poor fisher folk in Scotland, but, like so many Scotchmen, he got a good education, and his first occupation was as a school teacher. He soon showed that he had political gifts, and before he was 40 he became prominent as secretary of the labor paarty. He wrote many books and articles on Socialism, and in 1911, having been defeated as M. P. five years before, he became leader of his party. He has suffered two defeats in his career in Parliament—one in 1918 at Leicester, which he had represented for twelve years, and the other at Woolwich, in 1921. Though his opinions are opposed by a large section of the British public, he has won the respect of all classes by his outstanding ability and his evident sincerity of purpose.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE SHENANDOAH

Already America's best-known vehicle is the Shenandoah, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters.

"Hundreds of thousands have seen some of the country's "crack" trains and giant ocean liners; literally millions have watched the silvery Shenandoah steal silently across the sky," says a communication to the society.

"Incidentally, the Shenandoah and the ZR-3, are not, strictly speaking, dirigibles. They are technically called rigid airships.

"The Shenandoah comprises many wonder stories of modern science. Its length, 680 feet, is two-thirds that of the Leviathan, yet its weight of only 37 tons is a tiny fraction of the Leviathan's 50,000 tons.

"To house it and a bigger sister ship, a hangar was built in a clearing of the New Jersey woods, which building is 201 feet longer than the U. S. capitol building, just two feet less than the capitol's widest part, and more than two-thirds as high. The sliding doors at one end weigh 1,300 tons!

"As the airship floats mysteriously overhead, it looks like a magnified cigar, wrapped in tin foil, with six tiny baskets suspended from it. Inside the covering are 20 great gas bags, with a total gas capacity equal of 700 feet freight cars. These are interspersed with from 40 to 78 gasoline tanks and a camplement of one ton water tanks.

"This equipment is supported by a metal framework which is a veritable maze of girders struts and beams; there are 3,000 struts alone in the intricate design.

"It is for this metal framework that duralumin is used—an alloy so light and strong that a girder 16 feet long can be balanced on one's little finger, yet if the tips are placed on blocks it will bear the load of eight men sitting upon it.

"In one of its six cars is a photographic laboratory, so that motion-picture reels and photographs may be developed on board and the pictorial story of a flight be ready when the ship lands, or even thrown overboard by parachutes at designated places. Another car has a soundproof radio compartment with a powerful sending apparatus and telegraphic instruments.

"The most astonishing mechanical contrivance on the Shenandoah is the newly installed water-recovery apparatus, which replaces the gasoline burned with an equivalent weight of water, and thus saves the valving of precious helium.

"You will recall, from your chemistry courses, that gasoline consists of hydrogen and carbon. When gasoline is burned, the carbon combines with some of the oxygen from the air to form carbon dioxide, and the hydrogen, with other oxggen, forms water.

"Automobilists notice in cold weather that their exhaust pipes steam. Occasionally the moisture freezes and forms a frostlike ring on the vent. The apparatus for recovering water on the Shenandoah consists of several tiers of long, light pipes, exposed to the cooling air, so that the super-heated steam condenses and fills water tanks. This manufactured water compensates for the weight of the gasoline consumed.

"Formerly, as fuel was burned, the ship grew lighter and tended to rise. Thereupon the gas expanded, and it was necessary to release enough helium to equalize the lift of the gas to the weight of the ship.

"Even though helium cost has been brought from a radiumlike luxury price of $81 for a thousand feet, the Shenandoah had to valve on long trips was an expensive operating item. On its St. Louis visit, for example, 200,000 cubic feet of helium had to be valved. The water-recovery device means a saving on one such trip of $16,200—enough to pay for the experimentation and installation of the mechanism."

Stories That Recall Others

Betty Knew.

Betty is a little girl who recently overheard her parents discussing and disposing of an estate. "I suppose they'll have trouble finding the heir," said her father.

"I know where it is," interrupted Betty. "I'll bet those children tore it up."

Another Viewpoint.

They were racing down the road trying to beat the train to the crossing. The driver was giving the car all the gas he had. His companion uneasy, finally protested.

"Say, John, better slow up a little We'll get to the crossing the same time the train does."

"Well, what of it?" the driver replied. "The engineer has rules which tell him to watch closely for crossings and to be careful."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

On the Way to Rabbitville

Now let me place my Memory Cap
Upon my tired head.
I'm trying to think where we left off
Last night before going to bed.

Oh, yes, I remember how, although
It's taken me twenty-four hours,
The bunny boy was hiding among
The pretty Aster flowers.

Of course, he was. Out there in the field where these lovely blue, white and purple flowers were nodding their heads at Mr. Merry Sun. Mrs. Bee had just told him not to worry about Danny Fox. Yes, that's what she had advised him to do. Not worry. Maybe I'd better take her advice and be less anxious to remember just how I ended the last story. Even should I make a mistake. I'm sure some kind little boy or girl would write me a letter, telling me how to commence; or perhaps what to write about, should I come to such a pass as to be unable to learn the daily doing of our little rabbit boy.

Well sir, after kind Mrs. Bee had flown away, the little bunny made up his mind to hop to Rabbitville for a lollypop. You see, the Lollypop tree near the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave had been stripped of all its lovely fruit. That big furry animal had packed all the lollypops in boxes and barrels and shipped them to the Three-in-One-Cent Store. No use in hopping up to see him. No, indeedy. The Big Brown Bear had all he could do to put things in order for the cold winter time. He needs must hang up the great wooden shutters at the windows, pile up logs near the back door, make a warm bed of leaves in one corner of the Cosy Cave, mend his old woolen night cap, get out his fur mittens and overshoes, and, and,—dear me, so many other things too numerous to mention, that he had no time to talk to little rabbits and squirrels, beavers and chipmunks. Mr. Bear knew that pretty soon Mr. North Wind would be hurrying down from the Cold Country and Jack Frost nipping fingers and toes. Yes, sir, that Big Brown Bear knew he must get ready for the long winter months. He had picked off all the lollypops and shipped them to Rabbitville, and now he must bestir himself to make ready for cold weather.

"I wonder if I have a Carrot Cent?" all of a sudden thought the little rabbit, as he hurried on, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. "If I haven't a cent or two, I can't buy candy for me and you," he sighed, thinking all of a sudden of his pretty bunny mother, Lady Love, who had stayed at home to iron his pink pajamas and polkadot socks.

Just then he came in sight of the clock on the tall church steeple and the bell in the tower that called all the people. "I'll make sure before I hop another mile," and with another mile," and with another sigh, he sat down by a bush to open his knapsack. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

MOVE TO HAVE NORWICH HOLIDAY DECLARED FOR ARMISTICE DAY

After hearing a report from Arthur E. Story, chairman of the Armistice Day parade committee, the general committee in charge of the plans for the day at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the rooms of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, was so much impressed with the proportions which the parade is assuming that they came to the conclusion that a whole holiday ought to be granted by the manufacturers and merchants of Norwich. According to Mr. Story's report some 6,000 individuals have accepted invitations through their organizations to march in the parade and so far a total of 14 bands have been secured for the line. The committee pointed out that unless the local industrial plants and stores close for Armistice Day it will be impossible for a great many of those who have signified a desire to parade to appear in line. On the co-operation of the manufacturers and merchants depends the success of the parade and celebration, it was pointed out by Mr. Story. Reference was made to the fact that some of the manufacturers and merchants might feel that a half holiday would suffice but as the parade hour has been set for 2 o'clock, owing to the fact that darkness begins to fall at 5 o'clock, a half holiday with the plants and stores closing at noon would not allow sufficient time for the members of the more than half hundred organizations to have their dinner and prepare for the parade.

With an attendance of 17 the general committee was called to order at 5 o'clock by General Chairman Herbert M. Lerou. After hearing the minutes of the last meeting as read by Secretary John J. O'Rourke, Mr. Story gave his report which has been outlined above. Mr. Story stated that in addition to the 6,000 persons and 14 bands which will appear in the parade there will be one float, this for the 18 or 20 gold star mothers. The parade committee has had a number of offers from organizations to put floats in the parade but the committee had to decline these generous and patriotic offers owing to the length of the parade.

The matter of making the day a holiday was then discussed and it was decided immediately to take up the matter of closing for the day with the manufacturers and merchants. Max Hanoxer moved that the sentiment of the committee be that the day should be a whole holiday and that letters be sent at once to the manufacturers and merchants asking their co-operation. The motion was accepted.

Chairman Lerou announced that the executive committee at a meeting on Monday had elected Martin Jensen as treasurer of the parade and celebration as successor to George A. Finn. So far a little less than $500 has been raised by public subscription, this of course being in addition to the appropriations already granted by the city and town. Mr. Lerou said that a fund of at least $3,000 will be needed and that he feels that the remainder of the money needed can be raised by a general canvass. So far 2,000 letters have been sent out asking for public subscription.

Will L. Stearns, chairman of the decorating committee, reported that arrangements have been completed for the decoration of the fronts of business houses and stores, etc., and that the new white way light poles will be included in the decorations, this part of the work to be done by the decorating concern without charge. A total of 200 letters have been sent to residents of Broadway and Washington street asking them to assist by decorating their premises. Mr. Stearns stated that he is making arrangements for the creation of the speakers' stand which will probably located a little to the east of the memorial tablet, this location affording an unobstructed view down Broadway and Washington street and of Chelsea Parade.

Max Hanover, chairman of the entertainment committee, stated that the armory has been secured for the supper to be served the men in uniform, the menu has been ordered and that he has secured the services of 125 girls and women to assist in the serving. Mr. Hanover was empowered to secure 1,000 folding chairs.

The meeting adjourned shortly after 6 o'clock.

WILL MODERNIZE OLD FRANKLIN SQUARE BUILDING

The so-called Chapman building on Franklin square at the corner of Main street and Rose place, the history of which runs back to the earliest structures on the square, is to be reconstructed and modernized by Peter Sellas, who bought the property some time ago from the heirs of the Chapman estate. The changes in the building will be one more of the important improvements in business property in this section during the past few years.

The building is to be raised about six feet, enlarging it to a full three story brick building, with tapestry brick and cast stone trim. This will provide for raising present ceilings about two feet and the interior of the second and third floors will be entirely remodeled. The third floor, which is now occupied by a large hall, will be converted into three large rooms, and the second floor, which is now occupied by several small rooms, will be changed into four large rooms, two of which will run along each end and the other two will be at the either side of the main stairway, which will be in the center of the building. A hallway will run along the back of the second floor from which the stairs will lead to the floor above.

The corner store at Rose place, now occupied by the Sellas restaurant will be made into a store for the Schulte Cigar Co., which has taken a lease on this store. The restaurant will occupy a store adjoining the cigar store and the Sellas Spa will occupy the rest of the main floor with provision for space for the trolley car office, if this is desired.

On each of the two upper floors there will be two 12 foot plate glass windows with copper frames and the main floor will have plate glass windows with copper frames.

The whole building will have a steel frame placed in it to carry the extra weight that the changes will involve.

The work of alteration will require the tenants on the second floor to vacate, but it is possible that the work will be carried on so as not to close the stores on the street level, except for a short time.

P. F. Sweeney, who has the contract for the alterations, began the work Tuesday, building a fence in Rose place to protect pedestrians passing along the street while that end of the building is being rebuilt in tapestry brick.

REPORTED STATE CONVENTION TO CITY UNION, K. D.

The City Union, King's Daughters, held the semi-annual meeting Tuesday evening at the Central Baptist church, with the president, Mrs. Luther K. Packer, in the chair, and with a good sized attendance. The meeting opened at 7.45 o'clock with prayer and a devotional service led by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. Then followed the roll call, responses being made by the quoting of Circle texts. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the report of the secretary was given by Mrs. Charles D. Foster, acting secretary for the evening. Miss Harriet Carter gave her report as treasurer after which the following were appointed as a resolutions committee: Mrs. John Burns, Mrs. George E. Zimmerman and Mrs. William H. Bailey. Mrs. William Crowe entertained with a solo, My Task, accompanied by Miss Annie L. Taft and graciously responded to an encore. Mrs. Grace Manning gave a report of the recent state convention of the King's Daughters and this was followed by the report of the resolutions committee. The committee presented resolutions thanking the church for the use of Bushnell chapel for the meeting, Rev. Dr. Pitt for his assistance, Mrs. Crowe for her vocal selections, Miss Taft, the accompanist, Mrs. Manning for her report of the state convention, and Loyal circle for serving refreshments. The collection was then taken and after the singing of a hymn, the meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah benediction. Refreshments were served by Loyal Circle and a social hour was enjoyed.

THE WORLD REMADE BY PROTOCOL SIGNING

Lecturing here this week at Slater hall annex in the last number of a course of four which she has been giving, Mrs. Morrill Hamlin of Greenwich, spoke upon The World Remade, devoting special attention to the effects of the protocol signed on Oct. 1st, by fifty-five nations, which she declared spells just three words, security, disarmament and arbitration, and puts the world on a peace basis that shall last. This protocol was written for Europe, for it is Europe that needs disarmament and the statesmen of Europe know it. Before the protocol any nation could be an aggressor in starting war. After the protocol no nation could be an aggressor without first submitting to arbitration. Now the nations are to meet in Geneva in a disarmament conference that is to apply not only to the armies, but to the output of all war material and is to demilitarize industry as well. The world peace is to be kept. The peoples of Europe are determined that war shall cease. The Hague court was never a real court of justice, but the world court is, and the protocol gives it the power it never had before.

The sad part, Mrs. Hamlin said, is the indifference, ignorance and apathy of the American people to this great international work, that is not a political but a humanitarian work. Goodwill is growing in Europe and the big nations of the earth are coming into a brotherhood such as the world has never known before, while the little nations will no longer be exploited by the great ones.

COMPENSATION CLAIM FOR DAMAGED FALSE TEETH

Are false teeth component parts of the body for which damages can be claimed under the workmen's compensation act or are they merely property for which no claim can be made if they are damaged?

This is the interesting question which Commissioner J. J. Donohue has been called upon to decide in the workmen's compensation claim of John J. Murphy of 264 Broad street against the Wauregan hotel where he was employed. He was injured Dec. 17, 1923, when an iron bar slipped, striking him the mouth, lacerating his gums and damaging his false teeth so that they had to be repaired. The insuring company accepted the bill of Dr. T. A. Crowley for $10 for treatment for the lacerated gums but disputed the item of $15 for repairs to the teeth. The insuring company raised the point that artificial teeth are "property" and not component parts of the body and as such cannot be considered in the light of personal injury. There is no place in the act where dental work is specifically named under either medical or surgical services, and the point has never been taken to the courts for a ruling.

Commissioner Donohue has made a pro forma ruling that the innurer-respondent shall assume the full bill, in order that some higher ruling may be rendered on the question involved, as it is found that there is a doubtful point of law which the public interest requires should be finally and definitely determined.

TUBER'S RECKLESS DRIVING CAUSE OF FATALITY

Danielson, Oct. 28.—Samuel Tuber of Norwich, a poultry dealer, died by his own negligence. That was the conviction of Coroner Arthur G. Bill Tuesday after he had concluded his inquest at which Engineer F. E. Webb, Worcester, and Fireman Philip Tarbell, Oxford, crew of the passenger train locomotive that figured in Tuber's death at Bishop's crossing in the town of Plainfield, a few weeks ago, testified as to their knowledge of the facts preceding the fatal accident.

Coroner Bill quoted Engineer Webb as stating that from his position in the cab of the locomotive he saw three motor vehicles racing toward the crossing when his train was as far back as the whistling post, a long distance down the track. In addition to sounding the usual crossing approach whistle, Engineer Webb held the whistle wide open in one long, sustained shriek in effort to warn the trio of reckless drivers who were racing with death, but in vain, insofar as Tuber was concerned.

All the automobile drivers kept their machines rolling into the face of death. The first car in the string cleared the crossing by inches, Fireman Tarbell, in frenzied anxiety, leaning out of the locobotive cab to shake a fist at the reckless huamn sitting back of the steering wheel. In the meantime Tuber, in his motor truck, came rolling on, to be caught on the pilot of the locomotive and tossed into eternity. The driver of the third car brought his machine to a standstill almost on the railroad track, while the train flashed over the crossing, rolling Tuber and his machine in the death scene.

In view of Coroner Bill's investigation of the case and the testimony, it developed the railroad company is relieved from responsibility for Tuber's death and the victim's end is charged to his own carelessness.

NEEDING $7,000 MORE FOR NORTH ST. SEWER

The $9,000 appropriated for building a sewer in North street to East Baltic street has proved insufficient to complete the work and the citizens are to be asked to vote in a special meeting tonight (Wednesday) in the town hall to vote a further appropriation of $7,000.

The reason given for the added cost is that it has been necessary to dig the sewer deeper than had been planned and there has been much expensive work through 15 feet of solid rock.

COLUMBIA PLANS TO COMPLETE ITS SCHEDULE DESPITE COACH'S DEATH

New York, Oct. 28.—(By the A. P.) Columbia's football team will play Cornell at Ithaca next Saturday and complete the rest of its scehdule, despite the sudden death of Head Coach Percy D. Haughton. The Creator of the famous "Harvard System" will be succeeded by Dr. Paul C. Withington, his first assistant, for the balance of the 1924 season.

These announcements were made this afternoon by Charles Halstead Mapes, chairman of the Columbia University committee on athletics, after conferences with Mrs. Haughton and friends and associations of the late coach had developed the feeling that completion of the gridiron campaign Haughton had started so well would be the best tribute possible to his memory.

Dr. Withington, selected to take the Columbia football helm, is a former pupil of Haughton. He has been in close touch with development of Columbia's play under Haughton for the last two years and will carry out his former chief's plans.

The statement issued by Mr. Mapes followed:

"Percy D. Haughton's death was so sudden, his loss so crushing, that it left us numb, almost incapable of logical thought. Our first impulse was that everything must now stop. Calmer judgment says that this must not be. His family and those closest to him tell us that he would have wanted and they want us to play on. We ourselves believe absolutely that this would have been his desire.

"The team is a unit in wanting to play. They feel that the mark of deepest respect is to show that their loved coach taught them to carry out what they knew would have been his wish.

"The Cornell game and the balance of the schedule will be played as arranged. The athletic association announces that Dr. Paul Withington is appointed head coach for the rest of the season."

Then entire University today was plunged into mourning by the loss of Haughton just as it seemed that the Blue and White, reaching heights it has not known in years by crushing Williams last Saturday, was about to lead Columbia out of the gridiron wilderness.

Although the team, accompanied by a large delegation of students, will go to Ithaca Saturday, all demonstrations planned in connection with the trip have been abandoned out of respect to Haughton's memory. The special train chartered for the occasion and a rally planned tomorrow night have been cancelled.

While thousands of messages of condolence reached the University today, plans were made for fitting memorial tribute to the man who transplanted the famous "Harvard system" to Morningside Heights. A memorial mass meeting will be held tomorrow noon under student auspices.

The casket bearing Haughton's body was sent to Boston by train tonight at 9 o'clock and arrangements have been made for funeral services in St. Paul's chapel, Boston, on Thursday. Simultaneously services will be held in the Columbia University chapel.

The University named six representatives for the funeral. They are James R. Knapp, chairman of the football committee; Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics; Walter Koppisch, three-times captain and backfield star of the team; Dr. Paul C. Withington, the new head coach, and Assistant Coaches Charles Crowley and William L. Murray, all products of Haughton's Harvard school.

Tribute to Haughton's personality, successful coaching ability and influence on the gridiron game was paid today by football men throughout the east. The famous "Harvard System" which he created at Cambridge and which lifted the Crimson to its greatest height marked a new era in football. It was built upon sound principles, fine attention to details and constant hammering at fundamentals.

In the opinion of coaches, Haughton's method reduced the game to a more scientific basis than ever before. Something of mystery surrounding Haughton's gridiron work in the popular mind but in his own words, his "system" merely "hard work, discipline and hard work."

During his eight years at Harvard, from 1908 to 1916, Haughton developed not only some of the greatest teams in the country but individual stars whose names are by-words in gridiron annals. Members of his elevens were selected on all-American teams annually while he was at the helm. Two of them, Pennock, a guard, and Eddie Mahan, fullback, were named three times on these mythical teams, the former in 1912, 1913 and 1914 and the latter in 1913, 1914 and 1915. Others were Robert T. Fisher, star guard in 1911, now head coach at Cambridge; Charley Brickley, backfield star and famous drop-kicker in 1912 and 1913; and Percy Wendell, All-American halfback in 1910 and 1911. Now Williams heald coach, who bowed to the strategy of his former teacher last Saturday.

Dr. Withington, who will succeed Haughton in charge of the Columbia squad, is a product of the Harvard school, as are also most of the assistant members of the coaching staff. He played guard and center on the 1908 and 1909 Crimson elevens. He coached the University of Wisconsin in 1916; had a varied war career and after the Armistice coached the championship 89th division team. He was selected as medical director and assistant coach when Haughton took the helm at Columbia early in 1933.

Haughton's health, it was learned today, had been a source of concern to his friends and associates for some time, although he continued a varied interest and activity in many branches of athletics. He had appeared particularly high strung at practice recently, it was said, and this condition prompted the speedy action taken by Dr. Withington yesterday afternoon when Haughton first complained of illness and was rushed to a hospital. He died of a heart attack shortly after arriving there and without warning of any critical condition.

"He had made his post as coach of the fotball team one of genuine educational influence," the statement said. "He cooperated to the full with the Dean of Columbia College and with our academic administration to see to it that participation in sports and in intercollegiate contests was not at the expense of work in the class room and in the laboratory."

ACADEMY PREPARING FOR THE WESTERLY GAME

With the first half of the schedule completed the Academy football machine is getting into trim for its second game with Westerly, to be played at Norwich this Friday. The record of the team up to point is the season is only fair, but it is encouraging to note that the playing of the home school eleven is becoming better in every game. On the whole, the aggregation is showing up as well as could be expected.

Saturday's game with Stonington revealed the fact that there is altogether too much fumbling done by the backfield. To cure of this fault Coach Aitkens is putting his charges through some hard practice. The players rested Monday, but Tuesday preparations were taken up in earnest. The team will go through the regular routine of practice. This will consist of, as usual, in hard scrimmage and also intensive signal drills.

Westerly will bring to Norwich no easy opposition for the locals to solve. In their first encounter both teams fought to a scoreless tie with the Academy eleven showing a slight advantage. Both teams have improved since their last struggle and a hard, well fought contest will without doubt, be witnessed.

COGGSWELL TO HEAD NATIONAL BOXING BODY

Cincinnati, Ohio., Oct. 28.—The National boxing association today elected Latrobe Coggswell, Baltimore, president to succeed Richard T. Burke, New Orleans. The convention, after a two-day session, selected Atlanta, Ga., for the next meeting place.

It was voted to tax each promoter $5 and the boxers $1 annually for protection more than anything else under the rules of this association and while it will be optional in cities outside of Ohio, it will be compulsory in Ohio.

An amendment to the rules was made when the committee voted to give the referee the use of better judgment to determine whether a boxer could be counted out while being knocked out of a ring.

HEART TROUBLE CAUSES DEATH OF BOXER IN RING

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 28.—An autopsy performed today indicated that acute dilation of the heart had caused the death last night of Ralph Thomas, a New York middleweight boxer, who expired in the second round of a fight with Alberto Ycoche, middleweight champion of South America.

Ycochea, arrested on a technical charge of homicide, was released on $1,000 bail to await the inquest, for which no date has been set. The referees and judges, held after the fight, also were released after they had explained that neither fighter had delivered a hard blow up to the time Thomas fell to the floor of the ring. He was dead when the referee picked him up.

AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION LOOKING FOR MORE POWER

New York, Oct. 28.—The amateur Athletic Union will consider proposals to make National jurisdiction over two more branches of competition at its annual convention in Atlantic City next month.

The southern Pacific association has asked that squash tennis be controlled by the parent A. A. U. while the southern association has filed a request that indoor baseball be governed.

Since squash tennis already has a national governing organization, it is likely that the A. A. U. will act only to cooperate with this body in the development of the game.

Indoor baseball, however, may be made the eleventh branch of sport under A. A. U. control, the others are track and field, swimming, wrestling, boxing, gymnastics, basketball, handball, volleyball, weight-lifting and tug-of-war.

KAPLAN WILL BE IN FIRST ROUND FOR TITLE

New York, Oct. 28.—The opening round of an elimination tournament to determine a successor to Johnny Dundee as world's featherweight champion will be held at Madison Square Garden November 21, with six contenders appearing in three 10-round bouts, the state athletic commission announced today.

The six contenders are Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn; Bobby Garcia, of Camp Holabird, Md; Lou Paluso, of Salt Lake City; Mike Dundee, of Rock Island, Ills; Danny Kramer, of Philadelphia, and Jose Lombardo, of Panama.

Managers of these boxers will be given until next Friday to accept or reject the commission's proposal, at which time drawings probably will be made for the bouts. Subsequent eliminations will determine the fighter entitled to recognition as world's champion by the New York ring body.

Plans for other matches will prevent the staging of the lightweight elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden, the commission announced but this competition will be started as soon as a promoter is obtained to stage it.

The six boxers named to compete in this division will be announced by the commission as soon as a promoter is obtained.

HAUGHTON SELDOM TALKED FOR PUBLICATION

New York, Oct. 28.—The last recorded newspaper interview with Percy D. Haughton is characteristic of his taciturnity in relations with the press. He repeatedly said he never gave interviews. Statements published and credited to him usually were merely remarks obtained on the run.

One day last week Haughton was approached by a student correspondent asisgened to get the Columbia coach's idea of what football would be 10 years from now. The young profounded his question to Haughton on the practice field.

"Ten years from now," Haughton said, "football will be played in airplanes."

And the interview was ended.

PRINCETON WILL FOREGO SCRIMMAGE FOR SEASON

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Rather than run the risk of team injuries, Coach "Bill" Roper of Princeton, today announced that the Tigers' practice for the balance of the season will consist of signal drills and dummy scrimmages rather than actual scrimmages against an opposing line.

From now on, the Tigers mentor said work be concentrated on new plays and an improved attack from the Swarthmore, Yale and Harvard games on successive Saturday.

HAGEN FALSELY ACCUSED OF KIDNAPPING CADDY

New York, Oct. 28.—A warrant charging Walter Hagen, noted golfer, with kidnapping Robert Burns Boughan of Chicago, a caddy, was withdrawn today, Hagens attorney, W. G. Marvin, said this afternoon. The lawyer added that he had obtained a confession from Boughan in Kansas City that the kidnapping story which resulted in the warrant was a fabrication to cover up the fact that the youth had run away from home.

Boughan, Mr. Marvin added, read in the Kansas City papers that Hagen was in that city and thought he would tell his parents that the golfer had taken him on a tour. Hagen, the lawyer said, had never seen Boughan.

Following the boy's confession, the attorney said, the warrant, which was issued in Chicago, was withdrawn.

Before the warrant was withdrawn, Hagen, issued a denial of the charge and said that he would bring suit against the instigators.

The warrant, Hagen said, was issued last Saturday on complaint of the parents of the boy, who, Hagen said, informed the district attorney of Cook county that Hagan had taken their son to carry for him on a tour.

Mr. Hagen made an affidavit "denying any and all accusations" in connection with the Boughan charges. His affidavit added:

"I hereby certify that I do not know said Robert Burns Boughan and that he has not caddied for me at any time or any place whatsoever."

Mr. Hagen said that his caddy on his last tour, which included French Tick, Ind., St. Louis, Kansas City and Wichita, was Jimmy Ahearn of New York, who is older than Hagen himself.

Mr. Marvin announced tonight that he will have his associates in Chicago enter suit tomorrow against the Boughan family for defamation of Hagen's character.

INTERNATIONAL TROPHY GIVEN FOR COLLEGE TENNIS

New York, Oct. 28. — International intercollegiate tennis competition has been stimulated by the addition of a perpetual trophy donated by Bernon W. Prentice, preisdent of the Seabright, N. J., Tennis & Cricket club. It bears the title "International intercollegiate Tennis Trophy," and will be played for at least once every two years between undergraduate teams of Oxford and Cambridge Universities of England and Yale and Harvard Universities of the United States.

Four matches have been played between the combined Oxford-Cambridge end Yale-Harvard teams, the American Collegians having won three of them. It is proposed that the matches in the future be held alternately in the United States and England regardless of which group holds the trophy.

It is expected that the English collegians will invade the United States for the fifth of the series of matches next summer in what will mark initial play for the new Prentice cup, which may eventually take its place along side of the Davis cup, Wighmtman cup and other famous tennis trophies.

The donor of the trophy was graduated from Harvard University in 1905, in which year he was president of the inter - collegiate tennis association champion and captain of the college team. He is chairman of the international intercollegiate committee of the United States lawn tennis association and a member of the Davis cup and selection committees.

SEVERAL YALE PLAYERS OUT OF GAME

New Haven, Oct. 28.—The Yale varsity football squad practiced without several of its regulars today, the coaches deciding to give some of the players a rest and others being out of the game because of injuries. When the tw oteams lined up for scrimmage there were missing from the lineup the two ends, Bingham and Luman; Bench, the quarterback; Captain Lovejoy, center and Pond and Cottle from the backfield. All of the men were at the field but took no part in the practice.

During the scrimmage Eckart took Wortham's place for a time, Gill went in for Hart and McGunigle for Kline. It took the varsity some time to get started and before it was able to score it was held for downs within the scrubs' five yard line.

In the absence of Cottle and Failing, Noble did the punting for the varsity.

BULKELEY ONE OF FIVE UNDEFEATED HIGH SCHOOL ELEVENS IN THE STATE

New London, Oct. 28.—Five high school teams in this state still remain with their season record thus far unblemished. Among these five teams, and placing first for the time being is Bulkeley High of this city. Having gone through five games so far this season without being scored on, gives Bulkeley the distinction of topping the other high school teams which are pressing the Orange and Black even hard for the Nutmeg state honors. Torrington High, Bridgeport High, New Britain High and Stamford High, are the remaining four teams which have records that are immaculate in the games played to date.

Beginning the last month of Connecticut high school football competition, the list will be lessened in the next three weeks to a select group of two or possibly three. The most important game on for this week is Bulkeley and New Britain at the latter city. It is very likely that one of these teams will be eliminated from the state honors. Waging through the remainder of the season, Bulkeley will find some stiff opposition that will not be so easy to put down. Following the game with New Britain comes an insignificant contest with Norwich Free Academy. But the remaining two weeks directly following the contest with the Academy, Bulkeley will once again assume the offensive drive for the coveted pinnacle position of the high school standing standing in the state.

Two teams of the calibre of Torrington and Stamford will test Bulkeley's eleven to the utmost. Torrington and Stamford both loom up as a menace to Bulkeley's chances for the highest honors obtainable in football warfare in this state. But of course New Britain will have to be disposed of first before the games with both Torrington and Stamford will be played. And from all outward appearances, New Britain will give the Orange and Black plenty of fight. The game will not end up in a draw for both elevens are determined to win.

Bridgeport High is finding it difficult to book teams in Connecticut and will oppose several teams from New York state. This custom is also true of Stamford, and while the Lock city eleven will play Hartford High and Bridgeport High next month, the game with Bridgeport will be the only contest to have any bearing on the state title, for Hartford has long been eliminated by Crosby High. Torrington is also scheduled to meet Bridgeport next month, and it will present an opportunity to see which team will be eliminated.

So in the course of about three weeks time, the Connecticut High school championship which is very much in the doubt at present due to the number of undefeated teams in the field, will be decided without a doubt in that short space of time. Ansonia High, last year's state champions, encountered a stumbling block in Torrington on Saturday, being defeated by a score that goes into two figures. It put the Ansonia eleven which was fortunate to gain an even break with Bulkeley out of the race forever.

The race for honors which is tightening with every week, will declare the ultimate winner, a team that can stand the pace that is being set at present. No temporary slumps will be considered in the final reckoning, and a team in order to finish first must keep its top speed pace throughout the season. Further developments will be made pending the outcome of the games scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 1.

"laundry and dishpan hands"

Women who do their own work find this method keeps the skin soft and white

How often have you asked yourself this question:

"Oh, isn't there some way I can do my washing and dishes, and yet keep my hands looking nice?"

Millions of other women have answered "Yes." Let them tell you how they do it:

One of them says:

"I never use anything but Ivory either in the laundry or for kitchen work and for a very good reason. People have often said to me, 'Why do you always use Ivory Soap—do you not think it extravagant?' And my answer is, 'I find it most beneficial for my skin.'"

"All these years," says another letter, "I've been using Ivory, not having it used, and my hands are a constant source of envy from my friends. They've said to me, 'How on earth do you keep your hands so white and so soft?' My answer is, 'Ivory.'"

Is it safe for my skin?

Is it safe for my fabrics?

Does it make rich suds?

A grateful son says, "This winter has been the first in many years that my mother's hands have not become painfully chapped from housework, and she attributes her good fortune to the fact that she used Ivory Soap for everything—even for scrubbing."

If you are a little surprised at the suggestion to use for heavier tasks the soap which you may have thought of only as suitable for toilet, bath and fine laundry, consider this fact: Ivory is pure, a thorough cleanser, yet costs so little more than harsher soaps and powders that it quickly pays this extra cost in terms of protection for hands and clothes.

Try it and see for yourself.

For FINE laundry, of course!

Delicate silk and woolens need as careful treatment, really, as your skin. They can be injured by the slightest harshness in the soap. That is the best reason in the world for washing them with Ivory Flakes. Is there any other flaked soap offered for delicate garments that you would think of using on your face?

Here is a fine, simple treatment for your complexion

Wash your face once or twice daily with warm water and Ivory Soap. Rinse in warm water and follow with a dash of cold. Dry thoroughly by patting with a soft towel. If your skin needs it, rub in a little cold cream. Guest Ivory, the dainty new cake of Ivory made especially for hands and face, costs but 5 cents.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A real surprise vaudeville offering is the feature attraction at the Broadway theatre the last half of this week. It is a Keith vaudeville unit, which means that a company of artists travel together always, and present several distinct acts and in the last act they all take part as a sort of masterpiece. To say that this unit will make a hit is putting it mildly.

The title of the new Paramount picture, "Sinners in Heaven," which is coming to the Broadway theatre for a three day run beginning Thursday has a distinctly paradoxical sound. It is safe to assume that the picture satisfactorily explains and justifies the title.

"Sinners in Heaven" tells the story of a man and a girl who are through fate wrecked on a tropical island off the coast of Africa. Try to imagine what would happen if you found yourself stranded in some remote corner of the earth, apparently a million miles from any sign of civilization, and your only companion was a person whom your cordially disliked. This is the situation that confronts Barbara Stockley, the heroine.

With a combination of such box office favorites as Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix who portray the two leading roles, surrounded by such likeable and well-known players as Holmes Herbert, Montague Love, Florence Billings, Effie Shannon, Betty Hilburn and Marcia Harris, the only fair thing to do is designate it as an all-star cast.

Palace Theater

Last times today In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter and an all star cast including the Talmadge sisters and Hope Hampton. Also Ben Turpin in his latest two reel comedy Three Foolish Weeks and Pathe News.

Lois Rich, who portrays the leading feminine role in Behold This Woman which will be shown at Palace theater for three days beginning Thursday declares this to be one of the most difficult roles she has ever had.

The character is complex and unusual for a dramatic production. It is one of a famous motion picture [illegible] over the action Miss [illegible] has enacted many scenes before the camera in the studio. She [illegible] a range of the most [illegible] and gets comedy with [illegible] and numerous bizarre gowns [illegible] comes a dozen different women. [illegible] all there is the role of Louise [illegible] with those like the photo- [illegible] dress.

Breed Theater

Marshall Neilan exerted his unusual ability for selecting just the right people for the particular characters in his production of Tess of the D'Urbervilles, the Metro-Goldwyn production, which will be shown at the Breed theater today. In selecting Joseph J. Dowling, who is remembered vividly for his marvelous work in The Miracle Man, to play the spiritual advisor to Angel Clare, Tess' deserting husband, Neilan gives the screen a new kind of priest.

The director considers his combination of asceticism and kindly manner to be convincing as the man who could influence the life of a youth with the peculiar beliefs of Angel Clare. Blanche Sweet and Conrad Nagel play the leading roles in Tess of the D'Urbervilles, which is a Louis B. Mayer presentation.

The Spat family in a comedy titled Radio Mad and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Coming tomorrow, Friday and Saturday Edwin Carewe's production of A Son of the Sahara with Bert Lytell, Claire Windsor, Montague Love, Walter McGrail, Rosemary Theby and Paul Jauzer.

From 1917 to 1922, Every State in the Union Showed Increases In Tax Collections.
The Average Rate of Increase In the United States Was 101 Per Cent.
Connecticut's Rate of Increase Was The Lowest In The Union — 15.8%

AND—Since 1922, No New Taxes Have Been Laid, and the Republican Legislature of 1923 Reduced the STATE TAX ON TOWNS a Half Million Dollars a Year!

The last Democratic state administration (1911-1914) bequeathed the state $11,000,000.00 of indebtedness. Since then, Republican administrations (1915-1924) have paid off this indebtedness and have done business on a "pay as you go" basis. TODAY THERE IS NO INDEBTEDNESS!

THIS HAS BEEN DONE WHILE HOLDING THE INCREASE IN TAX COLLECTIONS DOWN FAR BELOW ANY OTHER STATE IN THE UNION.

SCH. LEONARD, CAUGHT OFF RUM ROW, IS BROUGHT INTO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 29.—Revenue cutter Jouett in scouring the sound for rum-runners today brought into port the two masted schooner John Leonard, Capt. Iver Carlberg, North Wildwood, N. J., the master of the schooners being charged with proceeding upon a foreign voyage without obtaining clearance papers and filing manifest. The other members of the crew were Axel Carlberg, same address and A. Voolman, Atlantic City. The captain was presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at the customs house at 4 o'clock this afternoon and was held for a hearing. The schooner is tied up at the United States coast guard pier, light, as no liquor was found aboard the craft as it was expected would be the case.

The Leonard was alongside one of the supply ships at Rum Row when she was sighted by the crew of the Jouett. Upon the approach of the Jouett the schooner was started in motion, but a warning shot caused Capt. Carlberg to bring the craft to a stop.

No liquor was found aboard the John Leonard when she was seized, but she was leaving the New Cappello of Antwerp anchored in Rum Row. The men were charged with leaving port without clearance paper.

Capt. Carlberg at the hearing said that he had been fishing and that when he had lost his bearings, he had gone to the New Cappello to obtain directions. It was soon after he had left the Antwerp boat that his ship was stopped by the Jouett.

No trace of Allen was found here. He is described as being about 33, six feet two inches in height, medium build dark complexion, black hair and wore a brown and gray suit and gray shirt.

Two Polish youths, one of them 15, residing on Potter street and the other 16 residing on Main street, have been away from home it developed tonight when parents of the boys appeared at the station and requested the aid of the police in locating the runaways. It is believed that the youths have started for New York as they had been heard to speak recently of an anticipated visit to that city.

There is an ugly break in the sidewalk on the west side of Bank street where cement walks have been laid on either side of No. 65. The city and the property owners along that street from Howard street to Truman have relaid the walks so that there is no better stretch in the city. At No. 635 and for a distance south some 125 feet the old walk has been allowed to remain. The property is owned by Joseph McNamara and it is said that he has had trouble with the lessee of a blacksmith shop on the premises because the lessee has subleased the premises, and that Mr. McNamara will not improve the walk. The situation is unfortunate, as during wet weather there will be a low and uneven walk there that will be overflowed during wet weather and when snow is on the ground.

He is survived by his wife. Mr. Shiels, whose health had been impaired some time and which resulted in his being confined to his home, contracted pneumonia recently and a day or two ago his condition became such as to cause grave concern. Early this morning when a relative went to the room of the patient it was discovered that Mr. Shiels had expired. The cause of death is attributed to a weakened condition of the heart, caused by pneumonia.

Mr. Shields is the fourth of the department heads of the store to die suddenly. John Heald, who was with the house a number of years, suffered a shock. Supernumerary Patrolman Thomas Lyden today was appointed a member of the regular force by City Manager William A. Holt. The appointment is made to fill the vacancy caused by the recent dismissal of Patrolman Charles P. Hammond, who was tried of charges of reporting for duty while under the influence of liquor. Lyden has been a member of the supernumerary force for a number of years and throughout the summer was assigned to patrol duty on Montauk avenue and intersecting streets.

The police have been unable to find any trace of William Taylor, Bill street, employed as a clerk at the grocery story of Richard Bridgeman, 705 Broad street, who absconded yesterday with $255 entrusted to Taylor to deposit at the Union Bank & Trust company, and who made his escape from the city in an automobile delivery truck belonging to his employer. It is known that Taylor has acquaintances in Springfield, Mass., and Portland, Me., and it is believed that the fugitive is headed for the latter city. Anticipating Taylor's going to Portland the police of that city have been requested to apprehend him should he put in an appearance there. Had Bridgeman reported Taylor's failure to make the bank deposit to the police within a reasonable time after Taylor left there is a strong possibility that Taylor would have been apprehended for he was seen passing over the Thames river bridge in Bridgeman's automobile by Patrolman Howard Sloan, shortly after 12 o'clock. Not only did Sloan recognize Bridgeman, but he spoke to the man.

The condition of William H. Morris, former grocery store proprietor, who has been critically ill several days at the residence of his son, George R. Morris, 116 Ocean avenue, remains unchanged today. Mr. Morris is in an unconscious condition.

Naka came to New London by automobile and as he operated his car through Bank street he attracted the attention of Traffic Officer Clarence Martin on duty at the corner of Bank and Howard streets. The officer held Naka up and when it was revealed that the driver did not possess an operator's license, Naka was arrested. At the police station Naka requested that Mr. Peterson be communicated with that the latter might become surety on the bond of Naka for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Mr. Peterson had never seen Naka when the former visited the police station Mr. Peterson was not pleased with the attire of his prospective valet and refused to become surety on the bond of the Japanese. Naka declared that he had ample clothing of finer texture in his suit case and that he was not particular about his attire because of making the trip from New York to New London in an open machine.

Much sympathy is expressed here in her misfortune for Mrs. Maud Bullock Harvey, whose house at Allyn's Point was destroyed by fire. As Maud Bullock she conducted a hair store in New London and was apparently quite successful. She was also employed during a number of years in stores in New London. She has since then suffered mental trouble and is in the Norwich state hospital.

If interest in Navy Day increases during the next year as it did from Oct. 27, 1923 to yesterday it seems likely that the day may be made a general holiday. The throng that visited the base on the Thames Monday was much larger than was expected.

A week's time will elapse and perhaps longer before the cement has been laid down on Town Hill and the street is opened to traffic. But the improvement there will be such as will compensate for all the time consumed in the work on the highway.

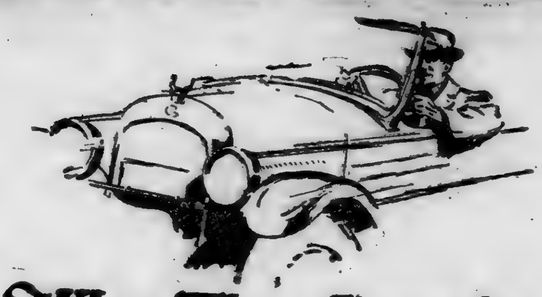
CHRYSLER



Why The Country Is Chrysler-Wild Today

It is a revelation to sit in a Chrysler and look up at other cars you pass. The contrast is so marked that it recalls the days when the safety bicycle obsoleted the old high wheel over night. Viewed from the snug, low-hung comfort of the Chrysler, the others look awkwardly high and unwieldy. Not only do they appear unnecessarily high, but unnecessarily heavy and cumbersome. The delight which this contrast arouses is stimulated when the Chrysler gets under way. It has a flashing acceleration which is literally a new experience. Just as it is smartly unusual in appearance and conservation of space and height and weight, so it is strikingly unusual in performance. It romps away from its unwieldier brethren with ease, on level, or grade, or hill—negotiating traffic with an alertness that must arouse chagrin in those driving heavier and more sluggish cars. It rides as no car even of its own high-quality type ever rode before. It does all of the things it is called upon to do as no other car has ever done them before. The Chrysler has blazed a new way and ushered in a new day in motoring—that is why the whole country is Chrysler-wild today.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS CAUTIOUS

New York, Oct. 28.—Stock prices displayed an improved tone in today's market despite the recurrent weakness in some of the sugar and motor shares. Buying, however, was of a selective and cautious character. The day's sales only slightly exceeding 700,000 shares.

U. S. Steel common closed 7-8 higher, at 108 1-4. Total earnings of 30,715,415 for the third quarter, made public and failed, by a small margin, to cover the full dividend requirements for that period, although the surplus for the first nine months, is in excess of $25,000,000. A regular dividend of $1.25 and an extra of fifty cent on the common were declared for the fourth consecutive time.

Revival of speculative interest in the railroad shares followed the publication of another series of unusually favorably September earnings statements and the announcement that freight car loadings for the week ended October 18, had established a new high record for all time. Rock Island, which had the best September in its history, advanced about a point to 34 7-8 but was unable to maintain all of its gain. Lehigh Valley, Atchison, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Hudson and Manhattan preferred, advanced 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Merchandising issues continued to give a good demonstration of group strength. Sears Roebuck common crossed 116 to the highest price in four years on the announcement that the directors would retire the preferred stock which also advanced 4 1-2 points to a new top at 125 1-2. Woolworth climbed more than two points to 109 3-8. An explanation for the recent strength in Manhattan Shirts was found in the report that a very profitable business was being built up in its side lines, particularly piece goods and drapery material.

Higher prices for non-ferrous metals were reflected in the strength of American Smelting & Refining, which sold above 80 for the first time since 1919. New 1924 highs were established by the commercial solvents issues, Simmons Company, Maxwell Motors A and All-America Cables.

Despite the announcement that Moon Motors had earned its full dividend requirements in the first nine months, the stock broke to a new low for the year at 17 1-2 but rallied later to 19 1-4 where it was off 3-4 on the day. Further liquidation of Yellow Cab Manufacturing sent that stock down more than 3 points to a new low at 38 1-4, while Chicago Yellow Cab sold as 39 1-4. Both made partial recovery.

Weakness of American Sugar Refining, which established a new minimum price at 36 1-4, was attributed to the omission of the common dividend on Federal Sugar Refining. Heaviness also was noted in Cuban-Dominican Sugar, Detroit Edison, Fleischmann, Union Tank Car and West Penn Power.

Call money renewed at 2 1-2 per cent and then advanced to 3. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged. The American Acceptance Council advanced the rate on call loans secured by acceptances from 2 to 2 1-4 per cent. Foreign exchanges held relatively steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.50 and French francs around 5.22 cents. Danish kroner, which has been heavy lately, rebounded 15 points to 17.20 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 28.—Bond prices drifted aimlessly in today's dull trading, with early strength of the railroad issues being counteracted later by another run-up in the call money rate.

Banks were again cautious in placing funds for investment and speculative activity continued to dwindle.

The report of record breaking car loading for the week ended Oct. 18 and the encouraging display of September earnings statements stimulated buying of rail liens during the forenoon but the improvement in prices appeared to bring out larger offerings in the later dealings.

New York Central's convertible 6's were in demand, advancing at one time to 108, while buying orders also were effective in St. Paul 6's of 1934, New Haven 7's and Seaboard adjustment 5's. Public utility mortgages generally were higher.

Magma Copper 7's rose 1 3-4 points and other copper company bonds displayed a firm tone in reflection of higher prices for the red metal. Other industrial liens were irregular, although price changes were confined to fractions. Liberty bonds were firm.

An issue of Birmingham Water works 5 1-2 per cent. bonds offered yesterday was reported heavily over-sub-scribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Wheat underwent a material setback in price today after an early advance. Demand which at first had been active was inadequate to absorb the offering later, despite estimates that new export business totalled 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bushels. The wheat market finished weak, 5-8 to 2 1-4 net lower. December 1.42 1-4 to 1.42 1-2 and May 1.47 3-8 to 1.47 5-8, with corn at 1-2 to 1 cent advance, oats 1-8 to 3-8 off and provisions varying from 25 cents decline to a rise of 27 cents.

Dwindling of speculative demand for wheat became apparent chiefly during the last hour of the board of trade session Buying on the part of houses with seaboard connections was of sufficient volume earlier to give the market an upward tendency a good share of the time and it was said that continental Europe was purchasing on a good scale both for nearby and deferred shipment. When, however, the fact grew evident that for at least the time being a sustained demand was missing the market quickly receded.

Corn owed its strength mainly to widespread poor returns from husking and to price upturns in foreign markets. Oats were relatively easy on account of the large available supply.

In the provisions market the effect of lower prices on hogs was more or less counterbalanced by the ascent of corn.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 28.—The beginning of trading in the new Fred-Eisemann radio stock, nearly 30,000 shares of which changed hands during the day, overshadowed all other developments in today's irregular curb market. The stock opened with one sale of 10,000 shares at the "spread price" of 31 1-2 to 32, as against the recent offering price of 30 and then advenced to 33 1-4 closing at the top. Other radio stocks also showed an improved tone, Dubilier closing a point higher and Hazeltime advancing 3-4.

Active oil shares were inclined to heaviness. Prairie Oil and Gas fell back 1 1-2 points to 212 1-2 and Standard Oil of Indiana, Vacuum, Mutual, Lago and Creole Syndicate yielded fractionally.

Outside of the radio shares there was little of interest in the industrial group. United Bakeries advanced a point to 120 and National Tea broke 4 points on a few odd lot sales, bup most of the other issues showed only narrow and irregular changes.

Public Utilieis also lost ground, American Light and Traction sanding out with a loss of 1 3-4

NORWICH TOWN

For some time the members of Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters have been making preparations for the sale of articles, food and ice cream, which is to take place in the First Congregational chapel.

Captain Edward R. Geer, former captain of the Commonwealth (Palace Steamer) of Long Island sound, now resigned, was a caller Monday morning at the home of his sons, Mrs. Charles F. Geer, of West Town street. Mr. Geer, who at one time was captain of the yacht Kanawha, owned by H. H. Rogers, oil magnate, is one of the owners of the Colchester-Hartford line of busses.

Mrs. Geer has had as her guest for the past week or more Mrs. Edwin Olcott, formerly of Norwich, who is passing the winter in Hartford.

At the First Congregational Sunday morning, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached from the I Epistle of John 5:4. For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. "A victory of Faith," was the theme. The Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms was in charge of Rev. M. Bailey, who is an interesting vein conveyed his message of the morning, A Victory of Faith, to the members of the household and friends. Regarding the heroes of the faith, the scriptures referred to, was the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. The basis of Rev. Mr. Baileys talk was the historical adventures, perseverence and sacrifices, of Livingston in Africa. He especially commented on the loyalty and faith of the twenty-seven black men whom Livingston chose with himself to open up the way and explore the western coast of Africa, which took more than a year; also how to the end they stood firmly by him and after his death carried him several hundred miles to a location where his body could be conveyed to his native land for burial.

The singing was provided by members of the church and Sunday school. Clyde M. Beebe, Miss Louise P. Bailey, Miss Rose Durr, Miss Esther Durr, Miss Ruth Sterry and Dr. Charles H. Lamb; Mr. Lamb sang the tenor solo, A Perfect Day, by Bond. The church organist Herbert L. Yerrington accompanied at the piano for the singing. The hymns included, God Will Take Care of You, Anywhere With Jesus, and Blessed Assurance. Rev. Mr. Bailey offered prayer and pronounced the benediction.

At the midweek prayer service of the Congregational church, Thursday evening, there are to be two topics for discussion, Intercessory Prayer and Conditions of Prayer, with scripture references in I Timothy and Mark.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. James B. Aldrich used for his sermon text Acts 9-6. And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from Isaiah 41-10. Fear thou not, for I ar with thee; be not dismanyed, for I am thy God. I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the t he right hand of my righeousness.

Le Roy Miner was the leared of the Young Peopde's Christion Endeavor service, which had for its topic—Why Is Law Enforcement Vital to Our Nation.

Miss Alice M. Dean and Miss Helen B. Moore have returned home after spending their vacation at Charlemont, Mass.

Mrs. Susan M. Dean of 98 Cliff St., spent last week with relatives at Clark's Corners, Conn.

BETTER WIVES AND MOTHERS

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty-inch waist and the long, street-sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise, a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. If, however, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness and irritability, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. Thousands of women testify to its success.

AUTO ACCIDENTS AND ALIENATION IN NEW SUPERIOR COURT SUITS

Two suits for damages in automobile accidents and one for alienation of affection are among those filed on Tuesday at the office of Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the superior court. They include the following:

Boy Struck by Machine.

Damages of $6,000 are claimed in a suit against James Matassi of Montville by Alexander Majewski of Norwich, brought on behalf of Joseph Majewski, seven years old, who was struck and injured by the automobile driven by Matassi. The accident happened on Oct. 1, 1923, on Thames street, this city, in which, it is claimed the child's face was disfigured, bones of his face put out of place and the sight of left eye reduced 50 per cent, besides other injuries.

Collision at Intersection.

Frank H. Crooker of Norwich sues the Eastern Connecticut Power company for $7,500 damages for injuries he received Sept. 3, 1924, when the automobile he was driving was hit by a motor truck belonging to the power company. The plaintiff sustained a broken shoulder and other injuries and claims that his automobile was demolished. The accident happened at the intersection of North Main street and Central avenue.

Divorce For Cruelty.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since Sept. 3, 1923, Josephine Trasfacond Parisi seeks divorce from Anthony Parisi of New London, whom she married Sept. 3, 1923.

Hit Submerged Pile Diving.

Damages of $3,000 for injuries he received in diving from the raft at Ocean Beach on July 20, 1924, sought by William J. Tracey of New London in a suit brought against the city of New London. He struck a submerged pile, sustaining two broken ribs, cuts on head and face, tore the gums away from his teeth and received other injuries.

Alienation of Affections.

Mrs. Clara Occhialini of New London sues Mrs. Adriana Percy of that city for $5,000 damages for alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's husband. It is alleged that since Feb. 1, 1920, the defendant has won the affections of the plaintiff's husband, destroying the happiness of their home and causing him to neglect her.

Divorce From East Lyme Woman.

On the ground of a statutory offense since Sept. 1, 1921, and desertion since Sept. 10, 1921, Raymond F. Crandall of New London sues for divorce from Gertrude Harvey Crandall of East Lyme. They were married Oct. 25, 1915. The husband asks the custody of three minor children.

Suit Over Property Sale.

C. Hadlai Hull, administrator of the estate of the late Frank W. Dart of New London, sues Benjamin R. Larrabee of that city for $7,000 damages and for a court order for the defendant to pay $6,799, with interest, and to accept an administrator's deed for the property, 138 Vauxhall street. It is alleged that the administrator sold the property to Larrabee on July 26, 1924, under a written agreement for $6,800, accepting $1.00 on account, but that Larrabee now says he is unable to pay the balance and refuses to do so.

Mortgage Foreclosure.

A foreclosure suit for a $1,000 mortgage dated July 25, 1919 has been brought against Clarence B. Mitchell of Mystic by Louis H. Rowe trustee in bankruptcy of Carl Walsl. Hayden Dudley and William D. Breaker, constituting the firm of U. H. Dudley & Co. The property is on Pequot Hill, Mystic.

Joseph E. Joffe of Worcester doing business as the American Specialty Co., brings suit on the common counts for $6,000 against the S. & W Self Service Stores, Inc. of Norwich and Plainfield.

On Breach of Contract.

Suit for $2,000 damages has been brought against Sarah E. Moran by Stanislaw Borsa, both of Norwich, on the claim that the defendant has failed to keep the agreements with the plaintiff which were made in a contract of March 7, 1924, to buy a piece of real estate on Spring street. The purchase price named in the agreement was $2,900, of which $500 was paid in cash and the balance to be paid at the rate of $50 every three months, with interest quarterly in advance on unpaid balances, and navment of taxes and other charges on the property. The buyer is meanwhile to occupy the property as lessee without paying anything except as already provided.

INVITED TO CONFERENCE WITH PROMINENT HEBREWS

Herman Alofsin, Samuel Goldberg, and Max Hanover of this city are among prominent Hebrews from all parts of the United States who have been invited to attend a national conference Sunday afternoon, November 9, at the home of Adolph Lewisohn, 881 Fifth avenue, New York, the copper magnate and distinguished philanthropist, to discuss the critical condition of the Jew in Europe.

The Jewish problem in Europe, it is reported, is rapidly developing into a crisis. Hundreds of thousands of Jews because of the new economic policy of Russia and other countries are left without means of making a livelihood. They are literally starving amid plenty. By reason of the social upheaval due to the bolshevist regime the very foundation of existence has been torn from under their feet. Unless some gigantic effort is made to save these people, their complete ruin is imminent.

MISS MARIAN KIMBALL SECRETARY IN NEW YORK

The friends of Miss Marian J. Kimball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Kimball of Laurel Hill avenue, will be interested to know of her recent acceptance of the position of private secretary to Frank Alvalo Parsons, president of the New York School of Fine and Applied Art. Much of this has been derived from his books as well as lectures. The New York School of Fine and Applied Art has a present enrollment of 699 students besides the special Saturday classes. Every state in our Union is represented excepting five. Miss Louise Norton and Miss Beulah Carpenter of this city are attending this school.

WAIT FOR RETURN OF GABRIEL BERKER

Where Babriel C. Berker may be found still remained a mystery Tuesday for the Norwich police authorities who have a warrant for his arrest on the charge of theft of $53,000 in connection with the embezzlement from the Bankers Trust Co. As far as could be learned they were confined to a policy of watchful waiting in the expectation that Berker would soon return here, according to a statement made by his counsel. It has been intimated that his return might be today (Wednesday) or at any rate some time this week.

Bank Commissioner John F. Byrne of Putnam and his assistant, Lester E. Shippe of East Killingly, were still here Tuesday at the bank, completing some of the details in the case against the former treasurer, George A. Finn.

BRITISH ELECTION RETURNS INDICATE RETURN TO POWER OF CONSERVATIVES

With Less Than Half of the Constituencies Reporting the Conservative Party Has Regained More Than Half the 90 Seats Lost Last Year—154 Seats Against 101 Combined Seats of All Other Parties—Lady Astor Was Re-elected by an Increased Majority — Former Premier Asquith Was Defeated by a Laborite.

London, Oct. 30 (By the A. P.)—The conservative party appeared headed toward early return to power, with a promising majority over all others, when at 2:30 o'clock this morning almost half the constituencies in Great Britain had reported their votes cast in yesterday's election for the new parliament.

At that hour the conservatives had 304 seats, as against 101 combined seats of all other parties. Of these the laborites had won 71 and the liberals only 21. The various other groups accounted for the remaining 8.

With less than half the constituencies accounted for, the conservatives had already regained more than half of the 90 seats they lost last year their net gain being 46, representing 53 gains and 7 losses.

Labor lost 32 seats and won 16, a net decrease of 16, while the liberals had only 6 gains to show against a loss of 39 seats.

The heaviest swing to conservatism in the early returns came from the industrial north and the midlands. The conservatives captured seven of the ten Manchester seats, only one of which they occupied in the last parliament. They scored further triumphs in Newcastle, Northampton, Nottingham and other great manufacturing centers in London and its suburbs.

The party made still further gains in many places, and where the laborites held seats in some constituencies they did so with decreased majorities while the trend back to conservatism was marked with heavier majorities than heretofore in constituencies that almost always elect conservatives.

The liberals lost all along the line. Manchester and Liverpool turned strongly from them to the conservative fold, while laborites ousted other liberals, Herbert H. Asquith included.

The defeat of Miss Margaret Bondfield removes from parliament a notable figure. She was the first woman to be appointed to a ministerial position in the British government, acting as parliamentary secretary for the ministry of labor since her election in 1923. She was chairman of the trades union congress and also had the distinction of being the first woman to hold that important position in the British industrial world.

As the hours passed the labor gains became more frequent. The party seemed to be holding its ground well in many places and working up a seat here and there in others. But the general belief is that it will have to do much better in the later returns Thursday than it did during the night to prevent an outright conservative majority.

The luck of elections seemed to be running generally and definitely in favor of the conservatives, just as a year ago it went against them in favor of the laborites in three-sided fights where the top man can win with a minority vote.

At this hour, when almost 7,000,000 votes had been counted, labor had polled only about 750,000 less ballots than the conservatives, while the liberals, who last year polled almost as many as the laborites were far behind. The tabulation of 6,887,161 votes gave the conservatives 3,112,-206; labor 2,486,785; liberals 1,086,-647; the constitutionalists 39,109, the independents 53,036; the cooperatives 44,292 and the communists 65,785.

Although the conservatives apparently will have a majority in the next house of commons, it is not the purpose of the labor government to resign in consequence of yesterday's balloting in the elections. J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary in the MacDonald cabinet, is authority for this statement:

"We will face parliament with a king's speech, and in that we will set forth our policy and then you will see what kind of political game is being played," declared Mr. Thomas in a speech at Derby on Tuesday.

Lady Astor Re-elected.

Plymouth, England, Oct. 29 (By the A. P.)—Lady Astor, the American-born "commoner," today retained her seat in the house of commons in the ranks of the conservatives by a majority of 5,679 over the labor candidate, Captain G. W. Bren.

The victory of Lady Astor was greeted with the utmost enthusiasm by her followers, who made the streets of Plymouth lively with a demonstration of satisfaction tonight.

Lady Astor in an interview tonight attributed her success at the polls to the fact that Great Britain prefers the Union Jack just as good Americans prefer the Stars and Stripes, and steady progress rather than revolution and socialism."

During a chat with the correspondent reference was made by him to the house of lords, whereupon Lady Astor quickly replied, "I would rather be in the morgue than in the house of lords."

Asquith Defeated.

London, Oct. 29.—(By The A. P.)—Former Premier H. H. Asquith was defeated in Paisley.

Mr. Asquith was opposed by the laborite, E. R. Mitchell, the figures were: Labor, 17,057; Asquith, liberal, 14,629.

In the previous election Mr. Asquith had a majority of 1,748.

Latest Returns.

London, Oct. 30 (By the A. P.)—At 3 o'clock this morning the standing of the various parties in the parliamentary election was as follows:

Conservatives 160 seats; labor 72 seats; liberals seats; other parties 9 seats.

This shows a net gain of 49 seats for the conservatives and a net loss of 15 for the laborites and 36 for the liberals.

NOTEWORTHY DETAILS OF THE BRITISH ELECTIONS

London, Oct. 29.—The first announcement of a laborite elected in today's election was Arthur Henderson, secretary for home affairs. The first labor leader whose defeat was announced was Benn Tillett, in a triangular contest for Salford, North.

The university town of Oxford, which in the last election displayed strong liberal tendencies, seems likely to revert to its former conservative leanings.

The famous oarsman, Captain R. C. Bourne, conservative, who wrested the seat from the liberals at a bye-election in June, has retained the seat with a largely increased majority.

The first woman elected is a new accession to the house of commons, Miss E. Wilkinson, national organizer for the national union of distribute and allied workers and a representative of the Manchester city council.

Sir E. W. M. Gregg, who was one of the candidates elected for Oldham, was formerly Mr. Lloyd George's secretary.

The story from Manchester is still of the conservatives regaining seats lost to the liberals at the last election.

The first communist elected to the new parliament was S. Saklatvala, who defeated the liberal member, H. Hogbin, his conquerer in the last election in Battersea, North. This threefore was a loss for the liberals.

The vanquished air sub-secretary, William Leach, was noted for his pacifish learnings.

Arthur Ponsonby, who was re-elected, was the minister in charge of the Russian treaty negotiations.

FRENCH PRESS COMMENT ON RECONSTRUCTION OF RUSSIA

Paris, Oct. 29.—(By The A. P.)—The recognition of the soviet government by France calls forth only a small amount of adverse criticism in the afternoon newspapers today as the action of the government, which Premier Herriot had proclaimed the leading plank in his platform in his ministerial statement, had been discounted by anticipation.

The Journal Des Debats is almost alone in unmitigated disapproval of the action of the government. It reprints textually the American note of August, 1920, regarding the impossibility of the United States recognizing the soviet government, and notes that it is almost identical with President Wilson's notes of 1918 and 1919. This newspaper describes Premier Herriot's recognition as "really without condition" and declares that the soviet will admit certain French rights in principle but will postpone material satisfaction of them indefinitely.

The press generally, however, is of the opinion that recognition of Russia reserves France's rights and maintains the engagements taken and the treaties signed by France.

The Temps thinks recognition might have awaited until the fate of the Anglo-Russian treaty had been settled by the British elections, but it adds that no doubt the French government had important political reasons for taking the initiative at the present moment.

Several of the editorial writers suggests that these reasons were founded on a desire to help Ramsay MacDonald, the British prime minister, at the eleventh hour in his battle, when the question of the soviet was playing a great part in it.

ADVERTISING MEN PLEDGE SUPPORT TO COOLIDGE

Washington, Oct. 29.—A group of advertising men who called at the White House today to pledge their support to President Coolidge for election were told by Mr. Coolidge in a brief, informal talk that he intended to maintain an administration devoted to economy peace and prosperity.

The delegation, representing the Coolidge-Dawes National Advertisers' league, was headed by Frank B. Presby, president of the league, and escorted by Rhinelander Waldo, organizer of the Coolidge-Dawes Non-Partisan club of New York, had breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

In connection with the president's consideration of the vacancy in his cabinet resulting from the death of Secretary Wallace, it was made clear to several visitors at the White House today that Mr. Coolidge has an open mind on the subject and expects to obtain the views of all farm leaders before acting. The name of Charles March of Litchfield, Minn., was suggested to Mr. Coolidge today in a message from Governor Preus and other republican leaders of Minnesota.

NOMINEE DAVIS ANSWERS COOLIDGE AND HUGHES

New York, Oct. 29.—President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes were singled out tonight for a direct attack by John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, when he answered speeches delivered by them last Thursday and pointedly replied to definitions they gave of the administration's foreign policy.

Speaking at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, Mr. Davis declared he would replace "sporadic, exceptional and casual" international conferences with "a system of organic, regular and periodic conferences, whose coming together will not depend upon the passing whim of any nation but which will be a part of the ordered life of the world."

"This is a vital question," Mr. Davis said "of far greater consequence than any matter of machinery or the language of any particular covenant. It marks the whole difference between the old world with it dreary record of appalling disasters, and the new world with its promise of a better day.

"And to this coming change which will separate the future from the past," Mr. Davis added, "the president is obviously blind or deliberately hostile."

The candidate read numerous excerpts from the addresses of President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes. The president's statement that "we propose to continue our efforts to promote international justice under international law, through international conferences, advancing always towards the goal of outlawing aggressive war" was analyzed in this way:

"To call such a statement 'well defined' is to make mockery of the English language. Just such a statement might have been made by any nation in all the globe at any time within the last thousand years. As a lamp for the twentieth century it throws little light upon the pathway."

BURIAL IN DES MOINES OF HENRY C. WALLACE

DesMoines, Oct. 29 (By the A. P.)—While all of DesMoines paused reverently in memory of him, the late secretary of agriculture, Henry C. Wallace, was buried in Woodland cemetery today.

Officials of the government in Washington and of the state, together with countless friends of the secretary here, were present at the simple services at the Wallace home on Lyndale road and at the family plot in Woodland, where the final rites were spoken.

Throughout the morning Mr. Wallace's body lay in state in the rotunda of the state capitol building and there several thousand people of all walks of life filed silently past.

Rev. W. P. McCormick of Storm Lake, Iowa, former pastor of the Elmwood Presbyterian church of Des Moines, where the Wallace family worships, conducted the services at the home and at the grave. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. A. Jamieson of Mannouth, Ills., and the sermon was given by Rev. Fred Elliott, who spoke of Mr. Wallace's "lasting contributions" to the state and nation.

Secretary of the Interior Huber Work, the personal representative of President Coolidge at the funeral, was an honorary pallbearer, together with United States Senator A. B. Cummings, Gov. N. E. Kendall, Acting Secretary Howard S. Gore of the agricultural department and State Secretary of Agriculture M. G. Thornburg. The active pallbearers were officials of the national and state agriculture departments and members of the Wallace's Farm Union staff publication, of which Mr. Wallace was editor.

Among those who attended the funeral in addition to the government and state officials were E. T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's cabinet; Charles A. Rawson and Clyde L. Herring, republican and democratic national committeemen for Iowa; James C. Davis, director-general of railroads; Dr. Noel T. Boone, the White House physician, who attended Mr. Wallace during his final illness, and Major James F. Coupal of Washington.

AN EXPLOSION ON C. P. TRAIN KILLED SIX PERSONS

Vancouver, Oct. 29.—Six persons we rekilled and ten were injured in an explosion aboard a Canadian Pacific railway train between Nelson and Grand Forks, B. C., today.

The dead are J. L. Machie, member of the British Columbia legislature for Grand Forks; Harry Bishop of Nelson, an amateur hockey player; Peter Veregin, head of the Doukhobors colony of British Columbia, and three unidentified persons, one a woman.

The explosion occurred shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, while the train was en route here. The terrific blast blew bodies out of the passenger car. It was believed at first that a tank of illuminating gas under the coach exploded, but an investigation showed, according to officials of the Canadian Pacific, that the accident was caused by high explosives in the car.

D. C. Coleman, vice president of the western lines of the company at Winnipeg, Man., said "the explosion was caused by some human agency within the car, either intentionally or accidentally."

Working For Truce in New York Chinatown

Oriental Precincts Are Awaiting the Outcome of Negotiations Now in Progress.

New York, Oct. 29.—(By The A. P.)—An air of seeming tranquility hung over Chinatown tonight, as it awaited the outcome of extraordinary palavers among Tong chiftains.

Chinatown hoped that there would be a truce and an end of the feud in the Oriental precincts of at least seven great American cities.

Just where the Tongsmen were negotiating no one knew, or was willing to tell—not even the police. Members of the Hip Sing gestured vaguely in the direction of Long headquarters on Mott street. Members of Leong were equally vague in suggesting that the negotiations were going forth at the Hip Sing headquarters.

Plain-clothes men of the bomb and narcotic squads professed to know that the Hip Sing and On Leong leaders had taken separate suites in an uptown hotel. The Chinese consul general and officers of the Chinese Merchants' Benevolent association were understood to be at the same hotel, acting as liaison and peace envoys during the fuedists' negotiations.

What precipitated the Tong war that has caused so many casualties was disclosed today, after weeks of reticence, by Ong Foon, chieftain of the New York Hip Sings of 25 years' standing. The hostilities, with the attendant assassinations, hatchet murders and shootings, were not a backwash of the civil war in China said Ong Foon; they were the climax of a bitter competition between merchant-members of the Hip Sing and On Leong Tongs in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Washington, Boston, Cleveland, Philadelphia and New York.

"Six big concessions," including a $50,000 indemnity and a satisfactory explanation of why firearms had been stored in the New York headquarters of Hip Sing, are demanded by the On Leongs, according to Ong Foon.

His Tong, said Ong Foon, was ordered to give up its business locations in Pittsburgh; to restore to On Leongs the prosperous businesses on Clark street in Chicago which the Hip Sings acquired 25 years ago; to expel from membership in Hip Sing in large American cities all former members of On Leong; and to open up no new businesses in the seven cities east of Chicago where commercial rivalry is keenest.

Through interpreters, Ong Foon expressed a belief that the $50,000 indemnity could be satisfactorily settled. But the other demands of the On Leongs—they were "un-American," he declared; "obviously ridiculous in this country that is free for every man to go into business."

Charlie King, leader of the On Leong, had no comment to make upon the reasonableness of his demands. But he, who had turned a deaf ear to previous invitations of the Chinese consul general, now indicated that he would meet Ong Foon half-way."

Hip Sing headquarters admittedly was well stocked with firearms. On Leong headquarters was assumed to have taken similar precautions against attack. That gas bombs were included in the munitions of Tong warfare was not learned by the police, however, until early today they raided a Mandarin restaurant and found several bombs which would have made casualties of all the people that could crowd into a good sized hall.

When John Sing of the Hip Sing Tong was arrested today for having in his laundry a sawed-off rifle and many cartridges, he told Magistrate Leving the On Leong had put a price of $3,000 on his 65-year-old head. The court held the prisoner in $1,000 bail and urged that the district attorney's office undertake an investigation of what appeared to be the promiscuous sale of weapons to aliens without police permits.

THREE FIRES IN NORWALK WITH TOTAL DAMAGE OF $50,000

Norwalk, Oct. 29.—Three fires, which caused an aggregate damage of $50,000 here today, gutted the former makeshop of the Crofut and Knapp company in Water street, razed sheds owned by the Harris and Gans Coal company and destroyed the Rosalie, freight steamer of the Hanson Steamboat line.

The fires started shortly before 10 o'clock, all fire companies being called to the scene. At 1 p. m. another alarm sounded and firemen at work on the smoulders of the makeshop, turned their hose on the Rosalie, which, moored at the dock in back of the makeshop, had caught fire from sparks. The boat is practically a wreck. During the fire at the makeshop explosions were heard coming from the electric equipment in the building. Between $25,000 and $30,000 was lost by the Harris and Gans company and the Norwalk Coal and Supply company, which owned the former C. and K. building.

Until two years ago, when the last of her novels, "Head of the House of Coombe" was published, Mrs. Burnett-Townsend had written more than a score of novels, six plays and was editor of "The Children's Book." She wrote her first novel "The Lass o'-Lowrie's," in 1877. CAMPAIGN FUND PROBE IS LEADING NOWHERE

Washington, Oct. 29.—A vast and tangled network of political by-ways was explored today by the Washington section of the state campaign fund committee.

Focusing its efforts mainly on the methods of the republican campaign organization, the committee followed through an all day session a long trail of charges and details, swinging from the famous campaign letter distributed in Massachusetts to the parcelling out of federal patronage in South Carolina, and touching on reputed efforts to line up the support of the negro, the laborer and the theatre.

The committee also sought to delve momentarily into the inside story of the LaFollette campaign and was told that one campaign collector had received about $120,00 among the trade unions, mostly in small amounts not covered by previous collection reports placed before the committee by LaFollette managers.

Late today E. J. Bliss, president of the Regal Shoe company, was questioned regarding newspaper advertising appearing in the name of the company discussing political issues along with selling talk for shoes. The witness told the committee he could not say offhand how much was spent in the advertising campaign which was directed toward preventing the election being thrown into congress but the only advertisement, which was printed in sixty cities where the company has stores, did cost $15,000. He promised to furnish the information to the committee later.

L. K. Liggett, a drug dealer and manufacturer and chairman of the Calvin Coolidge finance committee of Massachusetts told the committee he had raised $450,000 and hoped to get more than $500,000. He was questioned sharply by members of the committee and counsel concerning the letter which the committee sent out asking for funds and saying "very large contributions would be so divided as to conform to the law."

HAND WRITING MEANS OF SECURING A PENSION

New Britain, Oct. 29.—A soldier's handwriting on the leaf of a Bible was the means of securing a pension from the government for his widow. It became known here today. When Charles E. B. French died here in September, 1923, his widow made application to Washington for a pension. French had served in the Spanish-American war and had seen service in the Boxer uprising and in the Philippines. He had enlisted three times once in the marines and twice in the cavalry. But in all three cases, he gave his name as Charles Edward. Mrs. French for months was unable to prove to the government that Charles Edward and her husband were the same man.

Rev. Raymond N. Gilman of this city, became interested in the case and he took up the matter with Theodore Johnson, commander of the Connecticut department, Spanish War Veterans. When the war department wrote for a sample of French's handwriting written during the Spanish war, the widow was unable to furnish it, but she replied to Washington that she had a Bible presented to her by her husband at the time of their marriage fifteen years ago. The war department asked for this Bible and Mrs. French forwarded the fly leaf with the writing on it to Washington. The proof was accepted and recently Mrs. French received a government check covering the time since Mr. French died more than a year ago.

TO BAR SALE OF GASOLINE CONTAINING "LOONEY GAS"

Action Taken by Health Officials of New York—Mysterious Mixture Has Caused Four Deaths and Varying Degrees of Insanity at the Bayway, N. J., Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company—Mysterious Malady Caused by the Mixture Has Baffled Scientists.

New York, Oct. 29.—City health officials today took the first step toward barring from local sale all gasoline containing "Looney Gas," the mysterious motor fuel mixture, the fumes of which to date have claimed four lives and caused varying degrees of insanity to 16 other employes of the Bayway, N. J., laboratories of the Standard Oil company.

City Health Commissioner Monaghan announced that the New York Board of Health, at a meeting tomorrow, would consider resolutions prohibiting the sale of gasoline containing the mysterious poison. His announcement was made after he had conferred with Dr. Charles Craster, health officer of Newark, N. J., and Louis J. Richards, representing the health department of Elizabeth, N. J.

The proposed prohibition of the sale of the poisonous gas followed warning from investigating scientists who frankly admit the mysterious malady induced by the mixture still baffles them, that extensive use of the fluid might be fraught with danger to the public of congested areas.

On leaving today's meeting Dr. Craster had a conference with Mayor Bridenbach of Newark, after which he announced that officials were contemplating the extension of the embargo against the poison gas to that city. The officials also were contemplating, he said, a series of tests of the gas with Newark traffic policeman stationed at busy street intersections as the subjects.

It was said that the chemically treated gasoline, designed to increase the efficiency of the motor fuel and eliminate the "knocking" in automobile engines, as on sale at many gas filling stations in New York and New Jersey.

In the meantime, doctors and scientists of the Standard Oil company and members of the staff of the Reconstruction hospital, where 16 gas victims are being treated, continued their efforts to determine the death-dealing elements of the concoction. They admitted that they still had not devised an adequate treatment of the sufferers.

William Kresge, 29, of Elizabeth died at Reconstruction hospital today, the fourth victim of the fumes. Two others have died at the same hospital. Another victim died in an Elizabeth hospital, one, Herbert Fuson, was said to be critically ill. He was said to be confined in a straitjacket because of the violent madness brought on by the action of the mystery poison.

The dead and ill, twenty in all, represent virtually half of the force of men who had to a several months worked in the Bayway laboratories, experimenting with the deadly concoction. Others of the experimenters, who were under the constant surveillance of doctors and scientists, Standard Oil officials said, were reported to have suffered from the fumes in one form or another.

LAFOLLETTE WOULD NULLIFY THE ENTIRE CONSTITUTION

Providence, R. I., Oct. 29.—The entire constitution would be nullified by an amendment giving congress power to re-enact legislation over the adverse opinion of the supreme court, Secretary Wilbur declared tonight at a public mass meeting.

In thus making "constitutional restrictions subject to legislative control," he said, there would be no legal obstacle to congress re-establishing slavery, or to an overturn of some other long established principle.

Secretary Wilbur devoted his entire address, his first political speech since he was called east from California by President Coolidge, to a defense of the judicial system. He ridiculed the charge that majority rule in the courts made the will of one judge outweigh those of his several associates.

"This is an assertion of a mathematical impossibility," Mr. Wilbur said. "It would be just as absurd to say the Washington baseball team won the world series by one lucky hit."

Continuing his baseball comparison, the secretary recalled that "nobody has ventured to make the assertion that Washington won by a favorable decision of a biased umpire, and inquired whether "we have arrived at that point in our national existence where wre are not willing to accord to men who have devoted their lives to the study of judicial questions the same consideration that is given baseball umpires."

It was a fallacy, Mr. Wilbur insisted, to speak of a judge's "vote."

"A judge doesn't vote upon a legal question," he said, "any more than a doctor votes upon the disease of a patient when he is called to diagnose a case. The position of a judge is that of an umpire, and we can't get along without umpires."

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IS LA FOLLETTE'S CURE-ALL

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, independent presidential candidate, advocating government ownership and development of water power in a speech here tonight, declared that "when we purge our life of monopoly through public ownership, we purge our government of corruption as well."

"This corruption springs from monopoly and monopoly privileges. It does not come from the farmers. They have no special privileges. It is not the workers who corrupt the state. They have no lobbies in Washington, and who undermine our institutions. They are carrying on no propaganda of intimidation and coercion.

PLEA FOR "SMASHING BLOC CONTROL" IN CONGRESS

Washington, Oct. 29.—A plea for the "smashing of bloc control" in congress was made by Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, in a statement issued here tonight through the republican national committee.

Analyzing political conditions as he saw them, Senator Moses declared a democratic majority in the senate was an impossibility and that it was of "paramount importance" to elect a "reliable republican" majority in that body.

To elect Coolidge, the statement said, "and to leave him in the White House with a congress unresponsive to his policies, either through hostile democratic control, or, what is even worse, through control of the bloc, will be to defeat the purpose of the country at the outset."

There is little reason to believe, Senator Moses asserted, that any sitting republican would be dislodged, and he also said Rhode Island and Connecticut would choose republicans to fill the vacancies in those states.

"The democratic seats upon which the republicans are concentrating their campaign," he said, "are in Massachusetts, Montana, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee. In addition, a most vigorous and promising campaign is being made by the republican candidate in Minnesota against Magnus Johnson, one of the two farmer-laborite senators.

"If it should prove possible to unseat these seven anti-republican senators, the senate of the 69th congress would carry on its rolls 58 republicans and 37 democrats and 1 farmer-laborite. Among the 58 republicans whom we expect to see upon the rolls in the next congress, there is to be reckoned with the bloc whose irreducible minimum is five, and which in some circumstances might rise to eight.

"Therefore, to assure to President Coolidge the constant support of his policies which he is entitled to expect from a senate nominally republican, it is necessary for the republicans to have at least 49 senators exclusive of the bloc.

"No man objects to a militant minority party, but I am confident that the present system of bloc control in congress is not expressive of the will of the American people."

STOCK EXCHANGE BROKERS TO RAISE COMMISSION RATES

New York, Oct. 29.—Members of the New York Stock exchange, by a minority vote, today approved an upward revision in commission rates effective tomorrow on the sale of stocks traded in on the floor. While 341 members voted in favor of the change and 448 against, the new rates go into effect by a constitutional rule of the exchange which provides that amendments and alterations approved by the board of governors automatically go into effect unless disapproved by a majority vote of the entire membership of 1,100.

The new rates reduce the commissions of stocks selling from $10 to $25 a share from $15 to $12.50 a hundred shares. Commissions on stocks selling from $25 to $50 are unchanged. On stocks selling from $50 to $75 the charge is raised from $15 to $17.50, and on stocks selling from $75 to $100 it is increased to $20 a hundred shares. To enter grammar school with only a knowledge of a few words of English without being tutored in any way, and within ten months to qualify with a mark of 99 per cent. for entrance into the eighth grade, is the remarkable record of Jacob Gordon, fifteen, son of Morris Gordon, a Church street merchant, and tailor. The boy will be graduated from Natchaug Grammar school next June.

Morris Gordon, the father, came to this country prior to the outbreak of the World war, leaving his wife and three children until such time as he could raise the money to provide for their transportation. The family resided in Ayre, state of Vilna, in Russian Poland. On account of the war and for some time afterwards when conditions were unsettled between the two nations it was not until November, 1923, that Mr. Gordon's wife and three children came to this country. All three children spoke but a few words of English upon entering the local grammar school and were assigned to the ungraded room. They were tutored in English by Mrs. Chas. H. Caswell.

Jacob proved a most apt student and upon reaching such proficiency that he could be assigned to a class he was placed in the fifth grade. In a short time he went to the head of his class and was promoted to the seventh grade when school closed for the summer recess. At the opening of the fall term in September in his examination for the eighth grade, he passed with a mark of 99 per cent. Queried as to how the boy was able to qualify in such a conclusive manner, President J. L. Harrour replied Wednesday: "The Gordon boy is exceptional. He is a marvel and there is little doubt that he will be graduated at the close of the present school year, just two years from the time that he entered grammar school." Principal Harroun further stated that all the education the youth had previously acquired was in a Hebrew school, which is entirely different from the graded system.

There will be two democratic rallies in this city Sunday. The first will be held in the Gem theatre in the afternoon while one will be held in St. Mary's hall in the evening, when a prominent French speaker will deliver an address.

The boys both have work, but yesterday the foolish notion came into their heads that they wanted to see the sights. Travelling to Providence by truck, the boys, who were without funds, finally wound up in this city. One of the pair got into communication with his aunt in the Hub and was told that the necessary funds for their transportation back to Boston would be sent in the morning.

Both cars were damaged. Charges of reckless driving have been preferred against both men.

This natural "anti-knock" gasoline is one of Nature's wonders

Knocking in an engine is caused by the gasoline mixture exploding too quickly or too violently. There is no knock if the mixture burns progressively and evenly.

The Midgley Indicator, a remarkable scientific instrument, enables us to photograph the progress of the explosion of a gasoline mixture in the combustion chamber.

Explosion of Tydol mixture—This graph shows how a Tydol mixture explodes. The smooth, even curve denotes progressive combustion. There is no tendency to knock.

NOTE: Tydol, of course, will not eliminate knocking in motors which are defective mechanically.

Motorists are now being told that they must pay extra for gasoline in order to stop motor knocks. Tydol users save that extra money. If you use Tydol consistently, it is not necessary to doctor your gasoline or pay more than the regular price per gallon. Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

* * * *

When you hear a motor knocking desperately on a steep hill you have visions of the damage that may result. You know that motor knocks steal power, pound bearings, rack your motor and lead to repairs.

For years, scientists sought vainly to produce a gasoline that would not knock. Then Nature, in her own underground laboratories, produced a crude petroleum oil, from which it is possible to refine gasoline having natural anti-knock qualities.

It is from this particular crude that Tydol Economy Gasoline is made, by special processing, at the Tide Water Refinery at Bayonne, N. J. Tydol is, therefore, a natural anti-knock gasoline.

Tydol will not only eliminate knocking in your engine, but it will also give you a speedy start, quick pickup, full power and mileage, and minimum carbon.

Prove all this to yourself. Fill up at any Tydol pump and pay no more than the regular price per gallon.

Painted World's Best-Known Picture

Newspapers all over the world published recently notices of the death of a man who while not the world's most famous painter, can lay a strong claim to having painted perhaps the world's most famous picture. That is, if we may construe fame as meaning the picture that has been seen more often and is generally recognized by the greatest number of this earth's inhabitants.

Francis Barraud made no pretense at great eminence in the world of art. Son and nephew of two famous British artists, his work—His Master's Voice—the little dog sittingbefore the horn of a talking machine, quizzically cocking a puzzled ear—is instantly identified in all corners of the world in places where Michael Angelo and Da Vinci are strange names, and where even Coles Phillips and Maxfield Parrish are unknown. No other picture has been copied and parodied so often and with such eloquent force; no other so widely distributed. Yet may we not again see here the hand of Destiny? For it was the father of Francis Barraud who in 1840 published the most popular picture of that day—We Praise Thee, O Lord—which was copied and distributed as no picture had been up to that time.

Values are relative. Does this apply to paintings? Is the intrinsic merit of a painting the only criterion by which its merit is to be determined? Or do the accumulations of time, sentiment, popularity, legitimately increase the value of a work of art? Such questions open large fields for discussion—too large a field to be covered by a dogmatic yes or no. We may only recount the interesting of the value of His Master's Voice.

Francis Barraud was a descendant of an old Normandy family that emibrated to England in 1650. He was born at London, and began to study art at the age of eighteen years, at Heatherly's school, and later at the Royal Academy Schools, where he was awarded a silver medal for drawing from the life. Later he worked at Antwerp Academy. Aside from His Master's Voice, his most notable canvas is An Encore Too Many, which hangs in the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool.

His Master's Voice was not executed as a commission from any commercial enterprise. By the merest accident it found its way to the attention of the great corporation whose trade-mark it later became. Barraud inherited from his father and uncle a love of animals and exceptional skill at depicting them. In the Strand Magazine of August, 1916, he tells the story of His Master's Voice. One day he noticed his little dog, Nipper, sitting in an attitude of somewhat puzzled interest in front of the horn of the talking machine in use at that time. Immediately the picture appealed to him as one which would strike a popular chord, and he painted it. Dissatisfied with the ugly black horn of the machine he had painted, Barraud, at the suggestion of a friend, asked the Gramophone Company, Ltd., to lend him a brass horn which would add color to his picture. Company officials, realizing at once the value of such a painting, bought the completed picture.

It has been said that His Master's Voice is the most valuable painting in existence. It is carried in the inventory of the company which owns it at a valuation of $1, but probably five million dollars would not buy it now. Technically, the picture is well-done, for Francis Barraud knew does and how to picture them. But who now can put a value upon it? An art critic? The company which owns it? And, between these two, how many divergent opinions would there be.

Francis Barraud, quite humble before his art, modest in his position in it, builded better than he knew. It must have been a satisfaction to him as an artist to know before his death that he had created, not a painting that became a trade-mark worth millions of dollars, but a symbol that has done more than any other one thing to further the cause of an art related to his own. The value of such a contribution to the world is not to be measured in dollars, but in the satisfaction of the millions who have come to know music in its highest forms through the talking machine. To have aided, to have participated in that satisfaction is a privilege that Francis Barraud must have appreciated, in which lies a sufficient claim to remembrance.

Some years ago the company which purchased his painting awarded Barraud a pension in recognition of its appreciation.

John F. Marsh, Jr., former member of the state police department and now proprietor of a restaurant in Danbury, saved his wife from death by burning in their summer camp and in doing so received severe but not dangerous burns.

Palace Theater

One of the finest casts ever assembled will be seen in Behold This Woman at the Palace theater. Irene Rich, who was last seen here in Rosita and The Gold Diggers, plays the part of the motion picture star. Marguerite de la Motte, one of the younger beauties of the screen, who was seen in The Famous Mrs. Fair, Shadows and other super-features, is caast as Sophie. Charles Post, who is 6 feet 6 inches tall and the largest leading man in pictures, plays the part of the cattleman.

Harry Myers, long a screen favorite and who won his greatest fame in The Connecticut Yankee, plays delightfully the insouciant De Seyre. Rosemary Theby, recently seen in The Girl of the Golden West, Rich Men's Wives and Yellow Men and Gold, plays Calavera, the vampire. Anders Randolf will be seen for the first time in many years in a Vitagraph production as Stephen Strangeway, the bitter man of the range.

Short subjects, Last chapter of the Telephone Girl stories, Pathe news and Sport Light complete this high class program.

Breed Theater

A Son of the Sahara, the First National picture coming to the Breed theater for the last half of this week is heralded as one of the most ambitious screen productions of the year.

It was produced in the Sahara desert under the direction of Edwin Carewe. The principal players who went with Mr. Carewe to Algeria to film this picture were Bert Lytell, Claire Windsor, Walter McGrail, Rosemary Theby, Montague Love and Paul Panzer.

Mr. Carewe is particularly proud of the fact that there is nothing of the Hollywood Sahara about this latest cinema effort and likewise nothing of the western costume company's chief-wearing apparel in it. Everything is genuine even to the extras, who were not touched either by a cutturner or makeup man.

DANIELSON

Coroner Arthur G. Bill on Wednesday filed with the proper officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., company a request that members of the crew of special freight train No. 1314, that figured in the serious wreck at Putnam Friday evening—a wreck that cost the lives of Engineer William S. Carpenter and Fireman Joseph Hoppman, crew of the passenger train engine that was in a head-one collision with the locomotive of the special freight, be permitted to come to Danielson on the earliest date possible that they may be examined at an inquest which the coroner is to hold.

Coroner Bill received Wednesday a transcript of the testimony given by member of the crew of the special freight when they were called before a railroad investigation committee at New London Saturday last. Mr. Bill declined to state that, if anything, the papers he has received contain in the way of vital information bearing on the causes leading up to the wreck. For the present any information the papers contain is held as confidential. Not until after the inquest is completed does the coroner anticipate giving out any statement relative to the unfortunate affair.

General business may be a bit depressed in this territory and the cotton industry not at its best, but in one line of activity regarded as a fundamental barometer indicating a community's confidence in the future, regardless of impending elections, there is a splendid display of optimism. And that is in the building trades.

Carpenters are just about rushed off their feet in Danielson this Fall, in trying to meet the demands being made upon them to erect new structures—new homes, new business block, barns, garages and what not. One contractor said Wednesday morning that he is so deluged with work that he does not know which way to turn. He anticipates keeping his entire force of carpenters busy through the fall and probably through the winter season. And this contractor is considering no greater rush than some of his competitors.

Danielson refuses to stop growing in spite of all the pessimists and calamity howlers. Enough people are confident of the future of the nation and the fine community in which they live to do things while others wait—and miss the train.

The building boom is a good sign of the times. It is encouraging to all who have faith in the town in which they live. It is further evidence that Danielson—like a healthy, growing child—must have larger clothes. In this instance the outfitting is being expressed in terms of places in which to live and do business. Let the good work go on!

In the first pitch tournament of the season, the team captained by Michael Dascoll defeated a team captained by Alfred Dubuc at the rooms of Rose of Lima council, K. of C. The Dascoll team victory was only by a small margin. This tournament closed Tuesday evening. After the games refreshments were served and there was music and singing for the diversion of the members. Another pitch series between council members is to be started next week.

"Das bade wader fer hambrella and rubber boot," remarked a man who has once Brooklyn way, when he was in town doing a bit of shopping Wednesday and a man who lives at Attawaugan agreed with him. Umbrellas and rubber boots have been about a necessary, on account of the other, the past thirty days as a pair tire for an eel. However, the unreproachable weather has been a boon to outdoor workers. They have lost no time on account of rainfall.

Mrs. Louis Peloquin of 22 Winter street was taken to St. Vincent's hospital at Worcester Wednesday to undergo a surgical operation.

The Orpheum theatre management will keep open house following the show next Tuesday night and a radio will furnish election returns. The public will be welcome to stay as late as it may desire.

Wednesday afternoon, funeral services for Miss Etta Whiting were conducted by Rev. John R. Pratt of Brooklyn at the home of W. F. Herr of Canterbury, where she died. Louis A. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. The body will be forwarded to Saloma, Pa., for burial.

"Spirit, whose name I cannot tell, arise from your gloomy depths and dwell," begins a quotation that will be invoked by the hosts that are preparing here for the observation of Hallowe'en on a more elaborate scale than was known in other years. House parties, trips to inns and other such events are on the cards for Friday night. And, of course, the young people will stage a spooky parade that will make the black cats arch their backs high. It promises to be a big night.

A radio show planned for Danielson Friday and Saturday of next week, will be a great free attraction for the public, not only for those who have radios and are already deeply interested in them, but for everyone who cares to study the mysterious science and the apparatus used in connection with it. The show will be something different than Danielson has seen.

Gracious sakes!. What a furore those Danielson income taxes created Wednesday morning! The Bulletin cannot accede to demands for the tax returns by Used Tires & Co., Useless Conversation (Un) Ltd, and Universal Home Brew, Inc. That would be 2 mutch, as a great American once said!

A number from this territory were at Elliott Wednesday to attend an auction sale of cattle conducted by Witter Brothers at the Cunningham farm.

The Covered Wagon closed a three days' showing of the picture at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday, playing to probably as large business as any attraction of the kind has brought out in Danielson.

A heating plant having been installed at the new dance palace at Wildwood park, Manager P. J. Sheridan plans to continue week end affairs there indefinitely. The park continues to attract splendid patronage.

PUTNAM

A. Newton Vaughn, depository agent selected by the citizens' committee of the Citizens National bank to receive pledges of subscriptions to the stock in the new bank, says that the pledges are coming forward rapidly and that new subscriptions are also coming in at a rate gratifying to those concerned and that there is now no question that the $236,000 necessary to establish the bank will be raised.

Before the charter can be had, 51 per cent of those who subscribe for shares must have paid their money in. It is believed that within a week the charter will either be in hand or on the way from Washington. As soon as the charter arrives the bank will be opened. There seems no doubt that before another month passes Putnam will have a national bank functioning in the beautiful building which was remodeled by the old First National Bank shortly before it closed its doors, the morning of August 12th. For the past four days Mr. Vaughn and a representative of a Providence bank have been devoting all of their time to receiving money and giving receipts for payment of shares of stock.

A substantial proportion of the business men of Putnam are among the subscribers to the shares of stock and the surrounding towns, representing Putnam's banking community, are generously represented. The citizens seem to be as united now as following the failure of the old bank, when, in mass meeting assembled, they were a unit for a new bank to be owned and controlled by citizens of the banking community which the bank is to serve.

The citizens' committee, and especially the sub-committee that has been actively engaged in the work of securing a charter, are being praised for their persistent and successful efforts to secure a national bank for Putnam and the succeeding result. Is is well known that they had obstacles to overcome and for a time it was felt that the undertaking was of doubtful success by all but the loyal, hard working citizens who made up the committee. This community owes the committee a debt of gratitude that should at some time find spontaneous public expression.

The hook and ladder truck was called out three times, Wednesday, for a brush fire in the Bates avenue section of the city. The firemen believe that in extinguishing each preceding fire the leaves being so light and dry would be forced a considerable distance and one being lighted would smoulder and the fire would break out again.

A rumor gained currency in the city that Steven Stickney, injured in last Friday night's railroad wreck, was in a critical condition. This was denied by hospital authorities. Wednesday afternoon. He is getting along as well as could be expected.

Funeral services for Darwin Clark, 85, for the past 60 years a resident of the village of Eastford, were held on Wednesday afternoon at Eastford Congregational church. Rev. J. R. Miller of East Thompson and Rev. Frank K. Abbot of the Eastford church officiating. Burial was in the Grove cemetery.

Mr. Clark was born October 19, 1839, and had lived in this section of Windham county all his life. His early days were spent in Thompson and Putnam, he at one time being employed by the Putnam Woolen company. After being employed on farms in Putnam he moved to Eastford.

Mr. Clark leaves his wife, who is 80, and four children: Mrs. Emma Lewis, of Eastford, George L. Clark, Putnam, Mrs. Mary Marcy, Putnam, and Charles W. Clark of Eastford; also 11 grandchildren.

An apple packing demonstration is to be held at the farm of L. H. Linderman, East Woodstock, at 10 o'clock Friday morning, Oct. 31. The demonstration is under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' association and Frank L. Davis, county agent, has secured the services of W. H. Darrow, extension fruit specialist, for the demonstration. The demonstration will include the packing of bushel boxes, baskets and barrels. In addition to this, the Connecticut grading laws will be explained and grading will be done with one or more varieties. The demonstration affords an opportunity to be present at a practical discussion of apple packing and grading that may mean a great deal to the apple-grower who witnesses it. This section is developing into an apple growing district and the annual crop is valued at thousands of dollars. The grading and packing is an important part of successful marketing.

The year book of the Thompson W. C. T. Winter clothing for children will be the topic of discussion at the next well child conference, to be held at the high school next week Wednesday under the auspices of the state board of health, department of child hygiene.

Irving W. Foote Wednesday called the attention of The Bulletin to the fact that in the case of Maurice Foster, formerly a fruit dealer in Putnam, now of Moosup vs. Irving W. Foote, a potato grower, judgment is for the plaintiff to recover $44.65 and for the defendant to recover $128 on his counter-claim. This is in reality a victory for Mr. Foote. The case grew out of the sale of a large quantity of potatoes.

GILPATRIC GOING TODAY TO PLEAD IN NEW HAVEN COURT

Putnam, Oct. 29.—G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, will leave about nine o'clock Thursday morning for New Haven where he will be presented in the United States district court to plead to counts of the indictment to which he pleaded not guilty to three weeks ago. While it is not specifically known it is believed that during the three weeks' period that has elapsed since Gilpatric's former arraignment his attorney, William A. King, has investigated the counts to which a plea of not guilty was entered and that the case is now in shape where sentence can be imposed. All concerned have expressed their desire not to retard the proceedings in any way, but to have a final disposition of the case reached at as early a date as possible. It is believed that should Gilpatric be immediately sentenced to the federal prison at Atlanta he will be held for some days at least, until U. S. Marshal Jacob Walters can make arrangements for the long trip south with the blind cashier.

There has also been some speculation as to whether or not Gilpatric might spend some months in jail before proceeding south. This because of the fact that it is understood that he is of more or less assistance to the receiver of the bank. This phase of the case, however, is conjecture and nothing has been given out as to what those in a position to know expect the outcome will be.

The trip to New Haven will be made in a closed automobile and Mr. Gilpatric's wife will again accompany him on the trip. The former cashier is still philosophical in his attitude. He realizes that he has to go to prison and has expressed the opinion that it is right that he should be imprisoned, not only as punishment to himself, but as an example to others.

WOODSTOCK'S NEW LIBRARY DEDICATED WEDNESDAY

Putnam, Oct. 30—Dedicatory exercises were held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon on Woodstock Hill when the Howard Webster Bracken Memorial library, the gift of Mrs. Lila Bracken Pratt as a memorial to her first husband, a native of Woodstock, was accepted on behalf of the town and the library trustees. Mrs. Pratt and her husband, a rector of a large Episcopal parish in Ridgeland, Va., were present. The new building was inspected and a Bible 150 years old was the first book placed upon the new library's shelves.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Pratt and then Arthur Sherburne Hardy, famous author and diplomatist, who has a beautiful summer home on the Hill, spoke of the Bible that had been given by Mrs. Barnes, the book being 150 years old, and of its being the request of the donor of the library that th efirst book placed upon the library shelves should be a Bible.

Rev. David Hatch of Woodstock also spoke of the Bible and placed is as the first book on the library shelf.

Mr. Hardy told of the conception of the library and formally tendered the gift to the town and to the library trustees It was accepted on behalf of the town by Rev. Henry Baker of East Woodstock.

Frederic W. Hinrians of New York, a summer resident of Woodstock, spoke of the first library in Woodstock in 1790 with two volumes and outlined its growth and development. He discussed the value of books and libraries in general.

Clarence W. Brown told of the ancestors of Howard Webster Bracken, for whom the library is a memorial, of his being born in Woodstock, attending Woodstock Academy, graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and of becoming a prominent citizen of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Lila Bracken Pratt, the donor of the library, spoke briefly of her object in giving the memorial and formally turned it over to the library trustees. Mr. Hardy accepted the library on behalf of the trustees.

The exercises closed with benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Hatch.

The library stands (near historic Woodstock Academy and is for the use of the academy and the town. Its exact cost is not known but estimated at from thirty to forty thousand dollars.

After receiving $4,500 in compensation from five firms for injuries received within 18 months, a laborer in London was sent to jail for 11 months because in his later reports he said that he had never had an accident before.

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before"———

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car———

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given the public.

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

Come in and see these new cars.

Although it is not necessary for officers to perform this duty, should they be employed somewhere else, if the department paid a reasonable sum they would be able to get some town citizens to guard the traffic. BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

MAKE CONGRESS REPUBLICAN.

Connecticut is rated as a republican state. It is expected to give seven electoral votes to the election of Calvin Coolidge as president. But don't stay at home on election day in anticipation of such a result and think that your vote is not needed. It is the duty of republicans and others desirous of sound government to get to the polls and vote, and thereby pile up just as large a plurality as is possible. And it is well to remember that there is the same need of supporting the republican candidates who stand for good government in Connecticut.

Along with the desire to insure a stable federal administration there goes the responsibility of giving the president a congress that will be of the same political complexion. There is needed that republican majority that means standing by party policies and principles, which has not existed in the present congress, where bloc control has governed action or the lack of it.

Let the voters of Connecticut recognize the importance of getting to the polls next Tuesday for the continuance of Calvin Coolidge in the white house for the next four years, but in addition let them understand the need of sending five republican congressmen to Washington. It is their opportunity to do their part and they should not be remiss in their duty.

The second congressional district, taking up the eastern end of Connecticut, cannot overlook the service that has been rendered by Congressman Richard P. Freeman for the past decade. He has been a strong administration supporter and he has made the most of all opportunities in looking after the interests of the district. He has rendered that service which his constituents expected. He has represented the second district and Connecticut. It is therefore time to give a rousing endorsement of such representation and to make sure that it will be continued for the next two years. The welfare of the district and the choice of a representative who will render service, and who will not be acting as a administration obstructionist or through bloc control be standing in the way of needed legislation.

TWO WELL KNOWN PERSONAGES.

Two nationally known figures have been removed in the death of Lew Dockstader and Laura Jean Libbey. It is true that they have appealed to widely different classes, but they have nevertheless awakened widespread recognition in their particular lines of effort.

Entertainers of the black faced comedian type are getting fewer rapidly. The days of Dockstaders' minstrels are over. There have been others, and there may spring up still more, but there is little chance that they will detract from the popularity of him who will probably go down as minstrelsy as the greatest end man. Those who have laughed at and with him and those who are wont to quote Dockstader are not few in number. He made a careful study of his particular type of entertainment and he succeeded. Dockstader established an enviable reputation and his career on the stage was a conspicuous one.

Laura Jean Libbey was not an elderly woman, but she wrote for another generation. Like Dockstader, her work made its greatest appeal in the days that are gone. Times have changed and sentiment has changed. It is not probable that Laura Jean Libbey's works will find their place in the country's best literature. It, however, had its appeal for certain circles and the 80 volumes and 40 plays which she wrote were certainly in much demand, to say nothing of the short story writing that she did. She had a faculty of writing those strong appeals to the heart which always ended happily and the number that reveled in her writings was legion. Perhaps she didn't always picture life as it is, and possibly she was disposed to paint too rosy a hue at times, but she pleased great numbers even though she may have produced no classics and her name may occupy no niche in the hall of fame.

HOW TAX LAW WORKS.

While it is held that the publication of the income tax returns is illegal, there is an interesting light thrown upon that old controversy between Senator Couzens and Secretary Mellon as the result of such publications as have been made.

This controversy revolved about the Mellon plan for the reduction of surtaxes, such a plan being advocated for the purpose of getting that large amount of money which is now covered up in non tax paying securities interested in industrial activities, from which federal taxes would be obtained. The reduced surtaxes would be the inducement to engage in the productive industry from which it had been driven by the high rates demanded. It was also urged by the secretary of the treasury that the further issuance of tax exempt securities be stopped.

Mr. Couzens was a leader in the opposition to any such move. He fought the cutting of the surtaxes and he opposed the idea of stopping tax exempt securities. He even declared at the time that his fortune was invested in state, county and municipal bonds which are non taxable.

By common report it is understood that Mr. Couzens received the handsome sum of $30,000,000 when he disposed of his Ford motor stock. How much more he has is not known. If he obtains three and a half per cent on his fortune he has a million dollar income and better, out of which there would accrue to the government an income tax of a half million or better yearly. Mr. Couzens dodges any such payment. He has paid the government a little over $5,000 because his funds are invested in tax exempt securities, and they are likely to stay there just as long as surtaxes continue where they are.

Not all are placing their money in tax exempts. Many are. Mr. Couzens indicates quite clearly why he stands against the cutting of surtaxes and the placing of a ban on tax exempt securities. Was the Mellon plan or the Couzens opposition calculated to favor wealth?

THE BRITISH ELECTION.

Not a little interest is centered on this side of the water in the outcome of the British election. It is a test of the labor government that has been in existence since the opening of the year, which government was made possible and has been sustained only through the coalition of the labor and the liberal parties.

There has been no majority party since the last election. The conservatives came the nearest to it with 258 out of 615 members in the house of commons, or 50 short of a majority. Labor has had 193 and the liberals 158. If the conservatives can make up the necessary 50 to gain the majority the situation will be changed. Efforts have been bent in that direction. There have been combinations made in various ways in various districts to overcome the triangular contest and to bring about a majority party, but unless the conservatives can close up the gap there seems little prospect that either of the other two parties can.

It is necessary to get a majority party to upset existing conditions, and the election is therefore an interesting test before the people of the MacDonald government.

PERCY HAUGHTON.

As an organizer and leader Percy D. Haughton held a position in football circles that was enviable. He has not only produced football teams, but he has by his coaching won football victories. A team that had had the benefit of Haughton's advice, snap, strategy and determination was known to be a hard opponent.

It made little difference whether it was the old form of mass play or the present open style of football, Haughton was a general on the gridiron, and he imparted his knowledge and enthusiasm to the players in so complete a manner that they lived, talked and played football for all there was in it. The team which had the benefit of his instructions was most fortunate, but it was invariably a winner. He knew men and he picked teams for what they could do rather than as a matter of favor. He knew how to get results and therein rested his brilliant success.

The claim is made that Pennsylvania has 28 times as many autos as the kingdom of Italy. But how do the accidents compare?

Cross word puzzles are numerous, but the biggest puzzle is why so many are willing to throw their lives away at railroad crossings.

The sending to jail and prison of the Maryland mob which used tar and feathers showed the right attitude toward the mob spirit.

Are you prepared to participate in the rejoicing that will start along late Tuesday night and increase in volume as the returns come in?

As the railroad crossing fatalities continue to shock, the wonder grows how people in this enlightened age can continue to ignore such obvious dangers.

Over that question of veracity which has arisen between Premier MacDonald of Great Britain and the soviet government not much soviet support can be expected.

THE TALE OF THE LAME PUP

The fat clerk at the handkerchief counter suddenly gave way to reminiscent laughter.

"Say, kid, listen," she chuckled, "when you get right down to it, ain't folks about the comicalist things there is, huh? I'll say there are!

"Now, you take it like ma acted when I brought the lame pup home, see? It was one awful cold night when I was beatin' it down from work, and when I come down from off the "L" platform here was this little pup waggin' himself all over just like he'd been waitin' till I come along see?

"Cute? I'll say he was, even if he wasn't no special kinda pup or anything. And when I give him a double O and seen how he—you know—had got his foot hurt and was kinda holding it up like, he thought I was goin' to put somethin on it to make it get well or something, could I help from lettin' him beat it home with me? I ask you. Even if I did kinda suspicion ma'd throw a couple elegant fits when she seen the two of us blowin' in.

"But, say, kid, lookut. All the time she was bawlin' me out for lettin' the little pup foller me she was stickin' her head in the icebox lookin' for things for the pup to eat. Ma's swell that way.

"But, say, dearie, listen. The pup stuck around all right and pa and the kids and me was all crazy about him. Cute? I'll say he was. He had all the other pups on the block backoff the may. That's how cute he was.

"But, say, girlie, listen. Did ma ever fall for him? She did not. She never quit bawlin' me out for lettin' him follow me home, and every chance she'd get she'd—you know—kinda pick on the pup, see? Like when he pulled all her wash off the line and she had it to do over again. She sure give him an earful then, I'll say.

"Sure. Only he done it so cute you couldn't hardly see how a person could of bawled him out for it. Well, anyway, it seemed like something had oughta be done, so I started lookin' round for some place else for him to live, see?

"Sure. So one night when I stops in the grocery store to buy something ma asked me to get for supper the feller that runs it says something about wantin' a pup to look after the store nights, so I says how about him takin' our pup, and he says sure, that's suit him fine, see?

"Well, I beats it home and tells ma and says I'd bring the pup right over to the store. And, say, kid, listen. Ma give me a kinda push with her elbow like a person does when you're in the way, and everything, and she says 'Well,' she says, 'you can't go now,' she says. 'Your supper's ready,' she says.

"Sure. So I ate my supper and then I says I'd bring the pup over again, and ma says, just as crabby, she'd think I'd be willin' to take one night off and stay to home sometimes. It struck me kinda funny for ma to act so crabby, but I never got her reel good till the next night. Soon's I come home from work I says I'd bring the pup over to the grocery after supper and ma says she guessed the little pup's foot wasn't reel well yet and what if he was a pest, she'd think I'd have a little feelin' for a dumb animal and all, so I kinda give pa and the kids the wink and says, I guessed the feller to the store could wait a coupla days.

"So then a coupla nights afterwards I says I'd take the little pup over again, and did ma jump on me? She did. She says she was to the grocery store that morning and that feller wasn't gt to have no animal around his place, she says. She says she'd saw him pull his cat out of a basket of murphies by the tail, she says, and then push it out the store with a broom. She says she was just sick abed havin' that pup under her feet all the time, but there wasn't no animal that had lived in her house goin' to be sent where he would be treated cruel, she says. When he was goin' to be give away, she says, she was goin' to find a place for him to live herself, she says.

"Sure, he is. And that's where he's goin' to stay. I guess, while ma's at the wheel. Can you beat it? Now, I ask you. Ain't folks comical?"—Exchange.

By DAVID CORY

Never Forget Mother

"Oh, what has become of my Carrot Cents?"
Cried the anxious bunny boy.
But on finding a lettuce leaf dollar bill
He was filled with hope and joy.

"Now I can buy a million lollypops," he laughed, throwing his knapsack over his back and picking up his rod went with a skip and a hop, to the Rabbitville Three-in-One Cent shop. Dear me, and please pardon,—I should have written store. But it wouldn't have rhymed if I'd done so, which would have been too bad, and maybe three worse.

All this made no difference to the little rabbit, however. Nothing bothered him now that he had found a Lettuce Leaf Dollar Bill in his knapsack. He didn't care whether your Uncle Dave wrote poetry or prose. Not in the least. Neither would I were I a careless boy again, on my way to a candy shop.

Pretty soon he came to the bridge that spanned the River Sippi. He was now in Bunnybridge, the little town just this side of Rabbitville, with the river between. Looking up at the clock on the tall steeple and the big bronze bell that called all the people, he saw that it was 13 minutes past four.

"Dear me," he sighed, "I must hurry or I'll be late, I should be home at a quarter of eight," and over the bridge he hopped, two skips at a jump, and three jumps at a skip. The next minute or three he opened the door to the candy shop and up to the counter he went on a hop.

From the shiny glass case, the pink and yellow lollypops winked and blinked at him as the kindly lady salesman, a pretty white duck in a blue apron inquired:

"What do you wish, my little man? A dozen and three in a bright tin pan?"

"Hw many will a lettuce leaf dollar bill buy?" he asked with a wink of his little pink eye.

"Dearie me and dearie you," exclaimed the pretty white duck lady, leaning over the counter. "You don't want to buy a million, do you?"

"Maybe and perhaps," answered the bunny boy spreading out the lettuce leaf dollar bill on the counter. "I've never had enough lollypops all at one time. Of course, I've eaten a million more or less, but not late in the afternoon. Maybe I'd better take only three, one for mother and two for me."

"That's a good boy. Never forget Mother. You can't buy mothers and they're sweeter than lollypops. Oh yes, indeedy," replied the pretty lady duck handing him a little package.

Then away he hopped, out of the store, his candy cane in his little left paw, and the bag of lollypops in his right, until pretty soon he was out of sight.

But, Oh dear me, and Oh dear you. As he hopped over the bridge he stubbed his little toe, and down he went. Through a crack slipped the package of lollypops and dropped, with a splash into the river. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Ashurst, Penniless, Put Off the Train

When Henry F. Ashurst first tried for political honors, he was defeated, and he had to wait several years before his ambition was achieved.

Born in the little desert town of Winnemucca, Nev., he attended the nearby school. At eight he owned his first saddle horse and at 12 ran for page in the territorial legislature, but was defeated.

"Never mind, Pa," he told his parent, "when I'm older, I'll come back here as a member of the legislature. I guess that's better than being a page, anyway."

Then he went to work on his father's ranch as "cow-puncher" and all-round ranch hand, studying at night. At 18 he left home and started out "to see a lot of people and learn the world," as he told his parents. Starting for Phoenix, Ariz., he was put off the train in the middle of the desert because he did not have enough to pay his fare. But he beat his way and got work in a hayfield near Phoenix. Next a lumber-jack near Los Angeles, then a hod-carrier in San Francisco, he "saw the world," but was glad to turn back.

Returning home, he was made deputy sheriff at $60 a month, more than he had ever earned before. A year later the political complexic of the county changed, and he we to work in a lumber yard at Flagstaff.

Having saved enough money, he took a course in stenography at Stockton, Cal., helping out his finances by reporting for a local newspaper in his spare time. "Hiking" to Williams, Ariz., he worked as clerk and stenographer in a law office and read law when he had the time. In a short while he was admitted to the bar, and at 22 began to practice at Williams.

Elected a member of the territorial legislature at 31, he was chosen speaker of the territorial house of representatives three years later, the youngest man to hold such a position in the country. Next he was a member of the territorial senate. Then he studied political economy at the University of Michigan. Married at 39, he was elected district attorney for Coconino county, Arizona, a year later, and served four years.

At 57 he was elected United States senator from Arizona, and at 48 he still represents that state in the upper house of Congress at Washington.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

A CROSS PUZZLE IN PLANT NAMES

The proofreader will rejoice in this story; but the linotype operator won't.

The National Geographic Society has issued a bulletin about the "most confusing and most frequently misspelled names of the plant world."

The names are: Coca, Cacao, Cocoa, Coco and Coconut.

The fortunes of nomenclature thus make similar the spelling of a shrub which produces apowerful narcotic, of a tree which yields a delectable beverage, and of a palm which propens that the "a" and "o" variants in these names render them all but indistinguishable in the average person's penmanship.

"The word, Coca," continues the bulletin, "refers to a South American shrub, extensively cultivated in Peru, where its dried leaves are mixed with lime and chewed by the natives for their stimulating effect, and from which the cocaine of medical use is obtained.

"The leaves resemble tea leaves somewhat, but they are peculiar in that their upper and lower surfaces deep green, smooth and velvety, while the lower is light green with a paler band on each side of its midrid.

"The plantations of Coca occur on the lower Andean hillsides and the leaves are eaten by natives and fed to mules because, in addition to their stimulating effect, they make respiration easy in climbing at high altitudes.

"The word, Cacao, is the name of a tree, cultivated in South America also, as well as in Mexico, Central America and the West Indies. It is from the pulverized seeds of the Cacao that two of the world's best-known plant products, Cocoa and Chocolate are derived.

"The Aztecs prized the Cacao tree highly; they used the beans of the tree for money until the Spaniards showed them that gold was a better medium.

"The Mexican State of Tobasco, and the Soconusco region of Chiapas state, gave names to the kinds of cocoa which rank with the Mocha and Java of the coffee output. In Chile and Peru cocoa still is called 'soconusco' and it is a mark of honor to be invited to take a cup of rich, chocolate beverage. The viceroys of Mexico used to send the King of Spain soconusco as a special gift.

"The word, Coco, is the name of a tree which produces the familiar Coconut (frequently misspelled 'cocanut'.)

"The Coconut tree is to the South Sea Islanders what grain is to our plains states, or cotton is to our south—only more so. It is the most precious gift of nature to the dwellers on coral isles, and where itdoes notgrow usually there are no inhabitants.

"The green coconut furnishes milk and a delicate meat like the white of a soft-boiled egg. The ripe nut provides the copra of commerce. The dried and polished shells make water bottles and oil flasks.

"The fiber which surrounds the nut in the husk is twisted into cord, which serves a multitude of ways, from binding the rafters of huts and timbers of canoes to tying sharks' teeth to spear blades and making bird cages and fish nets.

"The sap which drips from the severed flower stalk is sweet toddy which, fermented, becomes a favorite intoxicant. The unopened leaves of the tree's crown make a delicious of oki whaling days.

"The sheath at the base of the leaf, the lower leaves, the leaves dried, and the tree trunks are put to a wide variety of other uses.

"To make the idyllic picture perfect for the idle native the coconut trees plant themselves. With their great, air-filled husks the coconuts travel up and down the seas for months, and even years, until they find a beach where they gain a foothold. Consequently not matter what the geological history, or other plant life of the vast number of islets in the tropical waters, their shores are fringed with coconut palms.

"In your memory's eye then, coconut and coco may be grouped together; cocoa, the beverage, and the Cacao tree from which it comes; and Coca, a shrub, which is the source of cocaine."

Stories That Recall Others

Animal Intelligence.

The cat with her kittens was quartered in the barn. On a cold and rainy night the mother cat was heard crying at the door. It was not entirely unusual, but on this occasion entrance didn't put an end to the cries. She wasn't interested in something to eat, but kept following the members of the household about with plaintive cries.

At last it was surmised that something was wrong and the cat eagerly led those who would follow. She went directly to the barn and upon reaching there went down cellar. The kittens had managed to get down into the cellar but the mother cat could not get them back again. She knew, however, where and how to go for help.

A Dead Shot.

"Ever study much jography?"

"Yeh."

"Ever hear of Pike's peak?"

"Sure."

"Well, my grandpa built that mountain."

"Zat so? You ever hear of the Dead sea?"

"Uh-huh, why?"

"My grandpa was the guy what killed it."

GIGANTIC MERGER OF RAILROADS IS ASSURED

New York, Oct. 29.—(By the A. P.)—Stockholders of the five railroads involved in the gigantic "Nickel Plate" merger have deposited sufficient stock to assure completion of the plan, O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland, who engineered the consolidation, announced through their counsel here tonight.

"The progress of the proposed unification is most satisfactory," said the Van Sweringen brothers. "Sufficient shares of all companies have assented to assure the completion of the plan. Counsel for all railroads involved are proceeding at the preparation of the voluminous documents required to effectuate the plan as rapidly as is possible, for in a transaction of this magnitude there are innumerable details growing out of the financial structure of the various railroad properties that require careful consideration.

"Just as soon as the documents have been finally prepared and approved by the boards or directors and stockholders of the several companies, application will be made to the interstate commerce commission for their approval."

WHITE LEGHORNS WIN WITH NEW EGG RECORD

The 13th egg laying contest at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, which closed Wednesday, returned the White Leghorn pen of North Branch, N. J., as the winner with a total of ...31 eggs, which beat the previous high record of 2,352 in 1918. Second was the pen of Rhode Island Reds from Fernside farm, Attleboro, Mass.

The Fernside pen had the highest individual hen with 304 eggs and the highest Connecticut pen was the White Leghorns from Hilltop farm, Suffield, 2,475 eggs.

The total eggs from the 1,000 hens from 18 states and the province of Ontario was 167,713.

The 14th contest starts Nov. 1, with 1,400 hens.

A Mr. Wardmaier of Santiago, Chili, agent for Chilean government, tried to buy the 8 best hens in the Leghorn class for breeding purposes in Chile, but was told "if they were good enough for Chili they were good enough to stay in America."

ARE YOU COMMITTING THIS CRIME AGAINST YOUR HEALTH?

An enormous number of people are weak, nervous and ailing, always complaining and doctoring, simply because they have committed the great American crime against their health—because while indoor life, overwork and improper diet have exhausted the iron from their blood, making it thin, pale and watery, they have made no effort to replace this iron which the blood must have to keep them well and strong.

You can easily determine whether you have been committing this health crime. You can get more iron by eating plenty of spinach, lentils and green vegetables. But doctors always advise people who are anaemic, weak, nervous and run-down to take iron in concentrated form—organic iron. Nuxated Iron is organic iron like the iron in your own blood and like that in spinach and green vegetables. It is entirely different from the mineral iron used in the past, for it is readily assimilated and so acts much more quickly and surely. Besides, it doesn't injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such concentrated from that one dose is estimated to be equal to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen baked apples. Millions of people have used it to quickly help make rich red blood, and give increased strength, energy and endurance.

Make this convincing test: Get Nuxated Iron today and take it for only two weeks. You will notice a marvelous improvement in health and strength, or your money will be refunded. Sold under this absolute guarantee by all good druggists.

SPEAKS AT DEDICATION OF WOODSTOCK LIBRARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Woodstock, Oct. 29.—At the dedication of the Woodstock library, given by Mrs. Pratt, wife of ev. Dr. Pratt of Richmond, Va., in memory of her first husband Howard Webster Bracken, Clarence W. Bowen said:

"Howard Webster Bracken, born in Woodstock October 15, 1869, died December 17, 1919, a student at the Institute of Technology, Worcester; 20 years with the Draper Company, Hopedale; chairman of the board of assessors and member of the school board, superintendent of the Sunday school in Hopedale, a resident after retiring from business of Boston and San Mateo, Florida, was the son of Corporal James Bracken, who at the beginning of the Civil war enlisted in Co. E, 13th Connecticut, and after his discharge for disability enlisted again in Co. H, 1st Connecticut Cavalry. Mr. Bracken's mother, Anna Child, born in Woodstock, was daughter of Capt. Samuel McClellan Child, granddaughter of Deacon William and great-granddaughter of Nehemiah Child and Mary McClellan daughter of Gen. Samuel McClellan of Woodstock and Jemima Chandler.

"Jemima Chandler, third great-grandmother of Howard Webster Bracken, was daughter of Capt. William Chandler and granddaughter of Col. or Judge John Chandler, a founder of Woodstock—one of the most distinguished men who ever lived in Woodstock. Jemima Chandler's oldest brother was Thomas Bradbury Chandler (Yale 1745), who might be called almost the founder of the the American Episcopal church, received the honorary degrees of M. E. and S. T. D., from Oxford university, and was father-in-law of Bishop Hobart of New York. Other brothers of Jemima Chandler were Theophilus Chandler the surveyor, who built the Chandler house on Chandler hill; Capt. Samuel Chandler of the Revlutionary war, who lived and died in the Paine house in the Paine district; and Winthrop Chandler the artist. Jemima Chandler's sister Mary married Col. John Chandler of the Revolutionary war (Yale 1759) and her sister Mehitable married Col. Ebenezer Crafts (Yale 1759), also in the Revolutionary war, founder of Craftsbury, Vermont whose son Samuel Chandler Crafts, born in Woodstock and a graduate of Harvard, was member of congress, United States senator, governor of Vermont.

"Jemima Chandler's mother, Jemima Bradbury, was daughter of Mary Hilton, the daughter of Col. Edward Hilton Exeter, New Hampshire and Ann Dudley, whose father, Rev. Samuel Dudley was son of Thomas Dudley, governor of Massachusetts, and whose mother Mary Winthrop was daughter of John Winthrop, governor of Massachusetts. To the memory of Howard Webster Bracken, descendant of two founders of Massachusetts, Governors John Winthrop and Thomas Dudley, this library building is given this day through the generosity and love of one who was so near to Mr. Bracken. We thank the donor from the bottom of our hearts."

It was learned Wednesday that the directors of the Bankers Trust company have appointed John R. Tarrant acting secretary and treasurer to succeed Martin E. Jensen, who has been acting temporarily in that capacity, under appointment from the directors, since the resignation of George A. Finn was forced last week upon the discovery of his embezzlement from the bank.

Mr. Tarrant, who is chief clerk at the Dime Savings bank, is to assume his new duties as soon as possible, probably about the first of November. He has been with the Dime Savings bank for the past 21 years, entering as a clerk and steadily earning promotion because of his ability and zeal in his work. He is a native of this city and has always lived here, having graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1903 of which he was president. He is married and resides at 15 Slater avenue.

Pressure of duties in other business connections has made it impossible for Mr. Jensen to continue for long to hold the temporary appointment at the bank.

Attached Berker Accounts.

Attachments on two bank accounts of Gabriel C. Berker in two different cities of the state was made Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main in a state wide tour by automobile which he made Wednesday. He covered 242 miles and visited New Britain, Bristol, Torrington, Waterbury, New Haven and Bridgeport, but he declined to say where the attachments were made but admitted that the amounts were small.

The deputy sheriff also attached in this city two automobile belonging to Berker, one a Cadillac roadster and the other a Packard sedan.

The head of the brokerage house for whom the police have a warrant for his arrest on the charge of theft had not put in an appearance here Wednesday.

It was learned Wednesday that Finn's dealings through the Berker brokerage house had been under the name of Simons, and it is claimed that the former bank treasurer still maintains that he would have had a return of $175,000 from his dealings by the first of November which would have enabled him to make good all the money he had used from the bank.

Had this not been a rather "hectic" year in banking circles, it is altogether probable that the bank commissioners would have visited the Bankers Trust company in their regular course of examinations before the bulk of Finn's embezzlements had been made. The bank was last examined by the state in December and it is their duty to visit each state bank once a year. Several dates had been set for a state examination, the first one for nearly two months ago, but because of the rush of other things demandipe immediate attention, there had been postponements each time. Had the bank commissioners made their expected visit two months ago it would probably averted the whole tragedy of the present disclosure as practically all the money used by Mr. Finn had been taken within the last two months. The state examiners would have unquestionably visited the Bankers Trust company by this week anyway if the shortages had not been discovered.

TO KEEP HUNTERS FROM WOODS IS GOV. TEMPLETON'S AIM

Numerous inquiries received at the office of the state fish and game commission ask whether the ban put on hunting by Governor Templeton for the period of the drought affects duck hunting in the marshes along the coast, coon hunting, fox hunting, or other particular kinds of hunting favored by the inquiries. Superintendent John W. Titcomb makes the same reply to all. He says that the object of the ban is to keep hunters out of the woods where fire is easily started, during the present dry season and that exceptions cannot be made in favor of hunters after any particular kind of game.

Mr. Titcomb explains that the embargo will be lifted as soon as there has been a heavy rain, which is reported by weather bureau stations as due within seventy-two hours Public notice of the lifting of the ban will be given. He said that giving duck hunters special privileges during the drought, because the place where they hunt presents less fire hazard, would lead to complaints from hunters of other game.

The rabbit hunting season will open Saturday, November 1. Mr. Titcomb says hunters must be careful not to take advantage of the lifting of the embargo, if such should happen before then, to shoot rabbits before Saturday. The rabbit hunting season is longer than the bird season, he says, and hunters will have plenty of opportunity for this sport during the legitimate season.

Game wardens of all counties were at the office of the superintendent Tuesday for the quarterly discussion of hunting and fishing regulations.

BURNING RUBBISH MADE CALL FOR FIREMEN

Burning rubbish in a big blow pipe at the Crescent Fire Arms plant in the Industrial building, Falls avenue, threatened the plant with destruction for a few minutes Wednesday afternoon. At 3.30 o'clock the fire department received a telephone call from the plant and learning on their arrival of the nature of the fire a bell alarm from box 114, the plant's private box, was ordered pulled, calling out additional apparatus.

The flames were extinguished with a line of chemical and a stream of water. As the blaze was confined to the interior of the blow pipe the firemen found it necessary to do some chopping in order to get at the seat of the fire. The blow pipe, which carries refuse from the plant to the boiler room, had become clogged in sections and the refuse and rubbish caught fire in some manner.

Herbert M. ...ou addressed the meeting in regards to the Armistice day parade, saying that the general committee had estimated the cost of the parade at about $3,000. Of this amount $1,000 has been given by the city and about $500 raised by popular subscription. This is not enough said Mr. Lerou and asked that five Rotarians volunteer their services to assist in the raising of $1,500 or $2,000. Those who will serve are Clinton E. Lane, Dr. R. R. Agnew, Charles J. Twist, E. LaRue Bliven and Herbert B. Cary.

Flowers were voted for a club member who is in a New York hospital, and several announcements of club interest were made by secrtary J. Nelson Weymouth.

Program Chairman Herbert B. Cary announced that the meeting of Nov. 6 will be in charge of the Public Affairs committee, with James L. Case as song leader; Nov. 13 there will be a talk by Mr. Bryan of Swift & Co., Boston, with Willis Austin as song leader; Nov. 19 the Fellowship committee will have charge, with Lucius Briggs song leader; and Nov. 26 will be the monthly business meeting, with Edwin A. SPECIAL MEETING VOTES $7,000 MORE FOR SEWER

At one of the shortest city meetings on record, held Wednesday evening in the town hall, the sum of $7,000 was appropriated as an additional appropriation to complete the sewer on North street The meeting lasted a scant five minutes and there were about 75 present. Mayor Milo R. Waters called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and after City Clerk Weston C. Pullen had read the call for the meeting Mayor Waters explained the object of the meeting. He made reference to the fact that Norwich is built on a foundation of rock and considerable rock has been encountered in constructing the sewer. The original appropriation was found to be inadequate to complete the work. We want to finish this work, said the mayor, so that the people on that street can get to their houses and so that they can connect their premises with the sewer.

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., offered a resolution authorizing the appropriation and it was seconded by Alderman Henry Gebrath. As there was no opposition to the resolution Corporation Counsel Wm. H. Shields, Jr., moved that the clerk be instructed to cast one ballot in favor of the resolution and the motion was adopted.

Mr. Shields then presented a resolution authorizing the borrowing of the amount appropriated and this was adopted like the preceding resolution. As there was no other business to come before the meeting, adjournment was taken.

THROWN FROM AUTOMOBILE AND INSTANTLY KILLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 30.—Tony Baccara, about 36, of Shaw street, was almost instantly killed this afternoon when thrown from an automobile, owned and operated by Claude B. Jette, 27, of 26 Maple avenue, Danielson, and employed as an inspector of highways by the state highway department. The machine, according to Jette became uncontrollable on Stanton hill, near Mystic, by the disabling of the steering gear and plunged across the highway and against the tree. Baccara was thrown with great force from the automonile and landed in the highway, sustaining a fractured skull and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Jette was arrested by state police officers of the Groton barracks, charged with manslaughter and is being held in bonds of $5,000, pending an inquest by Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich.

Jette and Baccara had been in New New London and were on route to Baptist Hill, Mystic, where construction work by the state is in progress. In descending Stanton hill, the machine suddenly started across the highway and travelling at a speed estimated at 35 miles an hour crashed against a tree. The collision caused Baccara to be thrown out landing upon his head and he lay bleeding where he was thrown. Before Jette could secure medical attendance Dr. John E. Roissi of Westerly came along in his machine and an examination by the physician revealed that Baccara was dead. The physician summoned state police officers and Jette was taken into custody.

It is understood that while Jette was in New London he visited Baccara's home and partook of wine and evidence of the wine was found following the fatality for a quart bottle that had contained liquor was found near the car but smashed. Whether the bottle was intentionally broken or whether by the crash against the tree of the car it is not known but it is also understood that Jette has admitted drinking some of the wine.

Jette could not explain the car getting beyond his control except that he declared that when descending the grade the front wheel struck a stone and caused the steering gear to become defective.

Mrs. Flynn addressed the auxiliary and urged all members, if possible, to attend Home Day for the United Spanish War Veterans at Norton Heights, November 2nd. Mrs. Twoomey also gave a short talk on the good of the order.

WALKER STEPS OUT OF CLASS AND EASILY OUTPOINTS MALONE, MIDDLEWEIGHT

Newark, Oct. 29.—Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, stepped out of his class and outpointed Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight in a 12-round match at Newark armory tonight.

The bout was a no-decision affair but the concensus of opinion of newspapermen at the ringside gave Walker a wide margin. The welterweight champion was the aggressor throughout but could not knock out the clever St. Paul boxer.

Walker fought an aggressive fight, using both hands with terrific speed but at times his judgement of distance was poor and his timing was bad. Malone fought purely a defensive fight, allowing Walker to do the leading and boxing his way out of the situation when it became too torrid for him. In the fifth round it appeared that Malone was going to be knocked out as the result of a right hand smash to his jaw which floored him and almost knocked him through the ropes. Malone got up immediately and forced the champion into a clinch.

In beating Malone, Walker went out of his class. The St. Paul boy is a legitimate middleweight, having five pounds on the welterweight king tonight. Walker weighed 147, the limit for his division, while Malone scaled ...

YALE TEAM HAS SHORT SCRIMMAGE

New Haven, Oct. 29.—With three of the veterans of the Yale football team out of the lineup, the first scrimmage of the week was held in the bowl today. Captain Lovejoy was given a rest today, his place at center being taken by Burt. Luman, end, and Bench, quarterback, are still suffering from muscle bruises received in the game against Brown last Saturday. Osborne took Luman's place and Bunnell ran the team at quarterback today. Cottle injured his ankle slightly in the practice and his place was taken by Lindley.

The varsity made three touchdowns against the scrubs, using close formations throughout the scrimmage.

The first touchdown was made by Allen on a plunge through center, the second by Cottle on a run around left end and the third by Allen in another short plunge after Cottle had gone out of the game. The varsity was able to keep the ball practically all of the afternoon.

Several former Yale players were at the field today including John R. Kilpatrick, Ralph Bloomer, Morris Ell, George Goss, Ted Lilley, Jack Field, C. R. Black, Eli Cutler and Dann Cook.

The practice tomorrow will consist of a dummy scrimmage and a signal drill and on Friday there will be a light signal drill with final instructions for the Army game.

BULKELEY SUFFERS INJURIES FROM CROSBY GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 29.—Crosby High school eleven paid a visit to Bulkeley last Saturday, but found Bulkeley a little to strong for them in football and the former eleven departed from this city a badly beaten team. But while the victory is being enthused over by Bulkeley students, yet it would have been better if the contest had not been played. For injuries took their toll of the players, and today Coach Canty finds himself in a tight position for available men.

The injured squad today was swelled by the addition of Watterson star tackle and considered as an all state tackle possibility, and Hutchison regular end. It has been developed that Watterson has water on the knee and a badly wrenched ankle. Hutchison's ailments are confined to the left ankle, which makes it necessary for him to be confined in bed for the time being at least. There is no possibility of Hutchison being included in the lineup against New Britain, while Watterson who has yet to report to the Bulkeley mentor for practice this week may not report for practice this week, but it is most likely that he will play in Saturday's game.

Capable men to fill the position of the above named players have not been found and the Orange and Black coach will have to do some good work to groom Le Blanc for Hutchison's place at end and Booth at Watterson's position at tackle. In practice this afternoon, the first team lined up with Watterson, Hutchison and Brown missing. It has been reported that Brown, who makes the third regular to be missing from the lineup this week has blood poisoning, which has made it almost impossible for him to use his right arm.

The line with the three players missing made a wide difference in the effectiveness of the Bulkeley's plays. Even in the second team line very few holes were made, and the backfield which is fortunately intact from the previous game, had to shift for themselves in most cases.

The situation is one that cannot be scoffed at at at the present time with such an important contest with New Britain High coming on the schedule. There has not been one game this season that Bulkeley was fortunate enought to escape the after effects. The three injuries added to the already long hospital list makes it doubtful whether Bulkeley will continue its winning streak or not. The total listed as being physically incapable to play football are now six first team players and it is feared that Capt. George Sheffott because of his recent operation for appendicitis will also have to remain idle for a week or two, being advised so by his physican. Of the injured six players, two are out with broken bones and are about on crutches. These players are James Latham, regular end; Joe Barry, fullback; Watterson has water on the knee ,Hutchison a possible sprain of his right ankle, Brown out with blood poisoning, and Booth with a possible fracture of his face.

If Bulkeley can come through the game with New Britain with flying colors, some of the cripples may rejoin the squad by the time the next important game with Torrington High rolls around. It is the hope that Bulkeley students are holding out for, but it will be a difficult thing to do to come out of a game with a team as strong as New Britain on the winning side and with a team composed of a number of cripples.

Academy Juniors Win.

The Academy Juniors after their defeat by St. Patrick's school last week made a strong comeback Wednesday afternoon and defeated the Saints 13 to 0. The score would have been larger had not darkness cut the game short. For the Juniors, Kahn, Courbois and Vitagliano starred. Murphy and Kahn with their tackling set the Saints back several times with losses. The lineups: Juniors, Murphy, re; Dynon, rt; Kahn, rg; Tirrell, c; Mikuetel, lg; Casey, lt; Wilbur, le; Courbois, rhb; J. Kahn, lhb; Vitagliano, fb; Tiger, qb.

KEEN COMPETITION EXPECTED IN REMAINING GAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 29.—Staying on top of the ladder in the standing of the teams entered in the Eastern Connecticut league is anything but an easy job. For the league leading team is the objective of every other team in the league, and the cry is to topple the leaders from their lofty perch. Chapman Tech is the eleven on top of the heap in this section of the state, and shows promise of staying there. Three victories and no defeats consist of Tech's record to date, and following closely is Norwich Free Academy and Westerly each with one defeat. Academy by virtue of its victory over Stonington is second in the standing, while Westerly has yet to score a victory in league competition.

This week, league contests are resumed and will find Chapman Tech opposing Stonington High at Stonington on Saturday. It's most likely that either Norwich Free Academy or Westerly will be forced to remain out of the running for the top position, when these teams meet at Norwich on Friday afternoon. It will be a busy day for league competition, and the outcome of the week end battles will have some final bearing on the championship.

Stonington High furnished the present sensation of the league season by holding the strong Tech team to a lone touchdown and came near crashing through for a score itself. While Stonington is figured for another fall, and because this team is last in the standing of the league, it by no means points towards an easy victory for the Red and Black machine.

If Stonington can hold the present league leaders to a lone touchdown while both the Academy and Westerly, regarded as much stronger opponents, were left by the wayside by a much larger score, it is most certain that Tech will have its hands full gaining the decision. Working on a hypothesis only, of course, that Stonington will continue its good work of the initial meeting of the year, and that Chapman Tech plays no stronger a game than it exhibited on Oct. 4.

The game with Westerly left no bad effects, and the team has reported for practice this afternoon for the first time since Friday. Courbois, regular quarterback, has returned to the lineup for the first time in three weeks.

EASTERN TEAMS NOT SHOWING WELL AGAINST WESTERN ONES

New York, Oct. 29 (By the A. P.)—Eastern elevens, unless they show a reversal of form in remaining games, face the prospect of losing the intersectional football laurels they held by such a decisive margin in 1923.

So far, the east has won nine out of 15 games with intersectional opponents, but seven of these victories have been earned at the expense of southern teams, while against the middle west, where the rivalry has always been keenest, the Atlantic seaboard can show only two triumphs in seven starts.

Thus, while the south apparently has been mastered, the crown seems likely to pass to the middle west, whose claim has been led, as in 1923 by the brilliant Notre Dame outfit, conqueror of Army and Princeton. The Hoosiers played practically a lone hand a year ago against rivals of this region but they have had able support in the 1924 intersectional fight.

Nebraska's victory over Colgate, Chicago's triumph over Brown and the trouncing administered by Marquette to the Navy had helped to settle some of the middle west's old scores and more than offset the victories hung up for the east by West Point in downing St. Louis and Detroit universities.

There seems scant hope for the east to retrieve its prestige in the eight intersectional games of importance remaining on the schedule for the powerful Marquette eleven figures in two of them, against Boston College and Vermont, while Notre Dame tackles Carnegie Tech in another.

Against the south, however, the east has gained the verdict seven out of eight times so far, Georgia Tech hanging up the only triumph for the territory below the Mason and Dixon line by defeating Penn State. Yale has taken Georgia and North Carolina into camp. Harvard and Pennsylvania both scored over Virginia, while Penn State conquered North Carolina State and Syracuse downed Mercer and William and Mary.

Next Saturday the principal intersectional games in which the east is involved find Washington and Jefferson battling Detroit and Boston College meeting the Haskell Indians.

EWING DEVOTES TIME TO HIS DROP KICKING

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 29.—Sammy Ewing, substitute back and Princeton's accomplished drop-kicker from Philadelphia, feautred the Tigers practice on University field today. Ewing booted a number of hard shots between the uprights from the 30, 35 and 40 yard lines.

While Ewing was developing distances and accuracy for the part he may be called upon to play in the Yale and Harvard games, Coach "Bill" Roper gave his varsity men another signal drill in preparation for the Swarthmore game Saturday.

AETNA FIVE SHOWS POOR FORM AND DROPS THREE STRAIGHT TO LAWRENCE

New London, Oct. 29.—The Lawrence bowling five gained sweet revenge this evening for the two game defeat handed this team by the Aetna Quintet at Norwich on Monday evening. Hitting a total of 500 or better in every string the Lawrence bowlers took all three strings from their Norwich rivals. All games were won by large margins with the exception of the first which went to the locals by the slim margin of 10 pins.

Although Combies hit 133 in the initial encounter it was not enough to pull his team through for a victory, as Stone made up this difference with a string of 121, for the Lawrence. Hitting 114 and 99 in the next two strings Stone crashed through for high string honors of 334. Campbell also of the Whalers was second high with 323 while Combies with high single of the evening of 133 had 322 for three strings.

The Aetna team was way off the form which carried this team into second place in the league standing. Filmore had the small total of 264. The score:

NEW ATHLETIC FIELDS BEING DEDICATED IN WEST

Chicago, Oct. 29.—(By The A. P.)—The dedication of Minnesota's new football field in the game with Michigan next Saturday, and the inaugural of the Ross-Ado stadium at Purdue on November 22 completes a circuit of huge new athletic fields in the present western conference which is now in its twelfth year.

These two, and the Illinois field, were completed this year. Indiana's new stadium, which was to have been dedicated November 8, was found to need considerable rebuilding because the concrete crumbled and will not be ready for dedication until next fall, also sections of it are now being used.

Ohio's field has handled the record crowd of these new fields when 73,000 saw Michigan defeat the Buckeyes two years ago. Illinois has the next largest, accomodating 67,000 in the Michigan game of October 18.

"The development of football which has compelled University officials to build these immense athletic fields does not mean commercialism of the sport," declared Major L. Griffith, athleics commissioner of the big ten today. "It is simply a response to the demand of the friends of these boys and these schools for opportunities to witness their games. Prices are kept down. In almost every case the public can always get tickets, and the influences which might harm the amateur status of the boys are closely watched.

"These big football fields with their large box office receipts merely mean that the schools are able to devote more money and time to the athletic development of the entire student body by using part of the profits the public pays to see football. Ohio State for instance, spent $13,000 last year, from football profits, for intra-mural athletics for all the students—Money which the state did not have to appropriate for this purpose."

COLUMBIA PAYS FINAL TRIBUTE TO COACH HAUGHTON

New York, Oct. 29.—One thousand Columbia university students filled the auditorium at McMillin hall today to pay their respects to the memory of Percy D. Haughton, Columbia's late football coach, who died "in moleskins" on Monday.

Athletes, graduate students, professors and representatives from all walks of University life contributed to a fund collected at the meeting to send a floral tribute to the funeral of the dead football mentor who was "downed" right at the height of his struggle to transplant his famous "system" to Morningside Heights. Blue and White flowers the colors of the university will be sent to the funeral.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock simultaneously with the funeral services at Boston, a memorial service will be held at the college chapel in charge of University Chaplain Raymond P. Knox.

Frank D. Packenthal, secretary of Columbia University will officially represent the institution at the funeral services in Boston. Representatives of the athletic organizations who will attend include Charles Halstead Mapes, chairman of the University committee on athletics; James Knapp, chairman of the football committee; Walter Koppisch, captain of the 1924 eleven; Dr. Paul C. Withington, new head coach, and Charles Crowley and William Murray, assistant coaches.

The special train carrying the supporters of the team to Ithaca for the Cornell game on Saturday will be run as originally scheduled but all demonstrations planned were definitely cancelled.

WERTHEIMER PRAISES AMERICA FOR ITS GOOD SPORTSMEN

Paris, Oct. 29 (By the A. P.)—Pierre Wertheimer, owner of the noted French race horse Epinard, returned to Paris this evening from his American visit and declared that "the breaks went against us as they say in the United States."

"I would have given a lot to have won at least one race," M. Wertheimer continued, "but I have no kick coming. Everybody was pulling so hard for Epinard to win that I would have liked to have given the American public the satisfaction of cashing in once on my horse.

"But it's all in the game. I was treated royally by everyone connected with the turf and really got almost as big a reception as the Prince of Wales. They are all good sports."

Mr. Wertheimer said that he had no fault to find with anyone connected with his stable. He said that Jockey Haynes would continue to ride for him and that Gene Leigh would remain as his trainer. The fact that he put Kummer on Epinard at Laurel, he said, was no reflection on Haynes' handling of the big chestnut.

Epinard's own disposition of the numerous reports printed in the French and English press that the horse would go to stud in England by declaring "He will remain in France."

"Epinard will land in Cherbourg from the Berengaria," Mr. Wertheimer stated, "and go directly to my farm in the southern part of France to be retired to stud there. He will never race again, although the breakdown at Laurel was not serious. He probably would be able to stand training for 1925."

Discussing his racing experience in the United States, M. Wertheimer said "the second race was the toughest to lose," referring to the mile event at Aqueduct.

"This race was mine throughout," he added, "but Ladkin got the brackets." It was a satisfaction, at any rate, if one must be beaten, to lose to such a fine sportsman as Major Belmont. I won't say that I will try again, because an owner is lucky to have such a horse as Epinard carry his colors once in a lifetime."

STATE TAX BILLS ARE TO BE SENT OUT TODAY

Hartford, Oct. 29.—The state tax of $1,500,000 apportioned amongst the 169 towns of the state on the basis of actual receipts from taxes for the past three years is payable to the state treasurer on or before November 10, and bills for the individual amounts payable by each town will be mailed from the office of the tax commissioner tomorrow. Bills will also be sent out tomorrow for the military tax which is apportioned in the same manner. The amount of military tax to be raised this year is $298,300. The state treasury pays 15 per cent. of this amount and the balance, $253,555 is apportioned among the 169 towns.

There is no substantial change in the amount of tax due from each town, from the amount paid last year, as the individual town would have had to have a large increase or decrease in actual receipts from taxes during the year to change the amount due the state. The last session of the egeneral assembly decreased the aggregate of the state tax from $2,000,000 to $1,500,000 making a substantial difference in the amount of tax paid by towns this year from the amount paid in 1922.

CLAIMS NERVOUS ATTACK INSTEAD OF INTOXICATION

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Services of Dr. J. Victor Haberman, New York city nerve specialist, were brought into court here today by E. M. Statler, of Buffalo, owner of a chain of hotels, in an attempt to prove that his adopted son, Milton Statler, was suffering from a chronic nervous attack rather than intoxication during an automobile accident on the night of October 11 for which he is being given a jury trial on a charge of intoxicated driving.

The nervous disorder affecting the boy, Dr. Haberman explained in his testimony, was "hemi-chorea" a form of St. Vitus dance, which in extreme cases causes twitching of the muscles and even dizziness.

ARRESTED IN BOSTON FOR ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL

Boston, Oct. 29.—An attempt to blackmail Henry G. Lapham, socially prominent financier and millionaire resident of Brookline, Mass., resulted today in the arrest here of Salvatore Schiazone, of Boston. Schiazone, the police say, was trapped by a ruse when he accepted from a messenger a package containing marked bills in place of the $5,000 which had been demanded of Mr. Lapham, under threats of death.

Mr. Lapham, who a year ago gave a $350,000 clubhouse to Yale university and who is a member of the Boston Athletic association and a director in numerous large financial enterprises in Greater Boston, received on October 25 in his mail at the athletic club a demand for money.

The note was written on a small piece of paper inclosed in a plain envelope and bore the caption: "Italian blackhand."

BRANDEGEE WILL HEARING SET FOR FRIDAY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 29.—A will that is acknowledged to be invalid, and which is the only will in existence, so far as is known at this time, of Senator Frank B. Brandegee is to be admitted to probate in all likelihood at a hearing for that purpose to take place in the probate court Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The instrument was found among the effects of the dead senator in possession of Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey and because of the sole beneficiary, Helen Brandegee, sister, being deceased and because of the father, Augustus Brandegee, who was named as executor, also being dead, the will automatically becomes invalidated.

The hearing has been ordered by Judge Arthur B. Calkins upon application of Col. Moses Gray Zahler, brother-in-law of Senator Brandegee who has petitioned that as a rule of the estate administration be granted to W. Don Lundy, secretary to Senator Brandegee many years, that the hearing take place.

The petition is as follows:

"Frank B. Brandegee died on Oct. 24, 1924, leaving a cousin, Edward Brandegee, residing in Brookline, Mass., a sister of Edward Brandegee whose name is to your petitioner unknown, and a cousin, Clarence Woods, Boston, Mass., whom your petitioner believes may be the only kin and heir-at-law. Wherefore your petitioner, a creditor, prays that will be admitted to probate and letters of administration with the will annexed on said estate may be granted to W. D. Lundy."

It has been claimed that the senator had no property to die at his death and that he was heavily involved in debt, but that was accepted by his close friends as an exact statement of the case. It is claimed that the senator left an estate on which there were no debts. Londoners in endeavoring to ascertain the amount of the estate, which may be disclosed at the probate hearing, it may not, well known New Londoners are named as executors of Senator Brandegee on notes, but reports as to this have not been verified. It was the biggest kind of a surprise when the senator ended his life voluntarily and still as surprising that he should not have had any money at his death. It is pointed out that he paid no income tax in 1923, indicating that he was then financially embarrassed.

Mrs. Thomas Kiley and infant son of 25 Prospect street were given their discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Miss Alphea Marsh from New Haven, graduate of the Connecticut Training School for Nurses and the New Haven hospital, is being entertained by Miss Florence Prendergast of Montauk avenue.

A horse, the property of an Italian peddler, collapsed this morning on Montauk avenue, corner of Holmes street. Several efforts were made to get the horse upon its feet but without success. When a veterinary was summoned and it was determined that the horse was suffering from paralysis the animal was killed by Humane Agent John Sweezy.

Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky reported to the desk sergeant at the police station last evening that the sidewalk in front of the former Brandwald property, Bank street, is in a dangerous condition. The property is now owned by Meyer H. Hollandersky.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Oct. 29.—Pre-election dullness characterized today's uneven stock market, speculative interest was confined to a few issues, transactions in which were influenced by recent trade or news developments, the main body of stocks drifting lower with losses, as a rule limited to fractions.

Failure of the United States Steel corporation to earn its full dividend requirements in the third quarter brought about some selling of the steel shares. United States Steel common closed a point lower at 107 1-4 and most of the independents yielded fractionally. Revival of activity in Penn Seaboard, which closed slightly higher, reflected the elimination of heavy interest charges through the liquidation of bank loans.

Investment rails displayed a firm tone, the unusually heavy car loadings and favorable September earnings reports acting as a sustaining influence. Atchison and Atlantic Coast Line closed about a point higher, but Norfolk & Western fell back 1 3-8 on reports that negotiations for the leasing of that road to the Pennsylvania had been broken off.

New 1924 highs were established in the railroad group by the preferred stocks of the Omaha, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Colorado and Southern (first) Bangor and Aroostook and Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago. Hudson and Manhattan touched a new low.

Merchandising issues continued to develop outstanding points of strength. Montgomery Ward was bid up 1 1-2 points to a new high for the year at 39 1-2 while H. R. Mallinson advanced 3 points to 28, a new top on the current movement. Simmons company also attained a new peak price at 32 1-4.

American Tobacco issues jumped about four points each on the announcement of increased dividends but sold off about a point from their highs in the later trading. Maxwell Motors "A" continued its rise to new high ground on buying influenced by reports of record breaking car sales. Good buying also was noted in Beech Nut Packing, American Metals, International Business Machine and St. Joseph Lead, up 1 to 2 points.

American Ice broke more than 3 points to 73 3-4 on rumors of new financing but later rallied to above 76 on a denial of these reports. South Porto Rican Sugar broke 8 points to a new low at 58 and American Water Works and West Penn Power each showed net losses of 3 points. Other weak spots were General Electric, American Bosch Magneto, Congoleum, Manhattan Electrical Supply and American Express, off 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points.

Call money held steady at 2 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates held firm despite unprecedented grain and cotton exports in the last few weeks. Demand sterling advanced slightly to around $4.50 3-8 and French francs ruled just under 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 29.—Bond prices held relatively steady today, although conflicting price movements marked trading in virtually all departments. Buying orders were most effective in railroad liens.

Announcement that negotiations for the lease of the Norfolk & Western to the Pennsylvania railroad had been abandoned caused a break in the Norfolk & Western Convertible 6s, which closed the day with a net loss of 2 1-2 points.

Other railroad issues, however, responded to a steady demand, with substantial gains scored by Atchison Adjustment 4s, New York Central 6s, St. Paul Refunding 4 1-2s, Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s and Kansas City Southern 5s. Seaboard issues were active on prospects that the road will profit by the completion of its new branch line in Florida.

Price changes were narrow and insignificant in other sections of the list. Weakness persisted in sugar company issues, American Sugar 6s and Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2s receding a point or more.

New Bond offerings tomorrow included $6,000,000 National Steel Car Lines company 6 per cent equipment notes, issued under the Philadelphia plan, which will be sold to yield $4.25 to 6 per cent and $3,950,000 Michigan Highway 4 and 4 1-4 per cent bonds priced at 99 1-2 and 102 respectively.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Corn jumped rapidly in price today, and gave a lift to values in every grain pit on the exchange. Numerous reports were current that husking was showing 50 per cent reduction from the corn yield which had been looked for. The corn market closed buoyant, 2 3-4 to 3 7-8c net higher, with December delivery commanding $1.07 1-8 to 1.07 3-8 a bushel. Wheat closed firm 1 3-8 to 2 1-4c up, December $1.44 1-8 to 1.44 1-4 and May 1.49 1-2 to 1.49 5-8, oats at 3-4c to 7-8@1c advance, and provisions varying from 25c decline to a rise of 32c.

All grain closed at virtually the top prices of the day. Late buying of corn was especially impressive with previous sellers flurried and in a general rush to alter their market positions. Earlier, and during the first hour in particular, the corn market had a downward tendency owing to wheat weakness. Offerings of corn, however were scarce, and with news about husking becoming more and more bullish, the corn market soon began a swift upturn, the poor husking returns coming from a very wide territory.

Special significance was attached to word that the Pacific northwest was purchasing corn freely in Omaha for November and December shipment. There were also estimates that the corn crop in Iowa, the banner corn state of the Union, would be at least 100,000,000 bushels less than in 1923. Reports from the best sections of Illinois were likewise the subject of much attention and appeared to confirm extreme depreciation of the corn yield.

Apparent slowness of wheat export business was responsible for early weakness of wheat. Both wheat and oats, however, were quickly responsive when corn started up grade. Packers' buying made provision values average higher.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 29.—Backing and filling movements characterized the trading in today's curb market. Prairie Oil and Gas jumped 5 1-2 points to 218 on the announcement that the stockholders will be asked to approve the splitting up of the stock on a four to one basis, but reacted 2 1-2 points later on official suggestions that dividends might temporarily be reduced. Other oils failed to derive much benefit from the ninth successive weekly decrease in crude production.

American Tobacco issues featured the industrial list, each jumping about 3 points on the announcement of an increase in dividends and then sagging slightly on profit-taking. Freed-Eiseman Radio, heavy transactions in which featured yesterday's trading, fell back about back about a point. Other radio issues showed only nominal changes. Baking issues were strong, United Bakeries advancing two points to 122.

Public utilities were mixed, American Water Works new stock touching a new low at 72 in sympathy with the weakness of the old issue of the "big board." Commonwealth Power dropped nearly two points. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore moved up about a point.

Revival of activity in Goldfield development on reports that new interests were identified with the property featured in the mining lists.

Complexion better than ever before
Embarrassing eruption had resisted many treatments

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12:—"A year ago I had a very ugly and embarrassing itching rash on my chin. I tried so many different treatments on it which did little good, that finally I became discouraged. The druggist one day recommended Resinol Soap and I decided to try it and after using it less than one week, the itching and burning ceased. I thought if the soap alone could bring such relief, then the Resinol Ointment must certainly clear away the trouble entirely. After applying it for three nights, you can imagine how delighted I was to find the rash all gone, with not even a trace of redness left.

I now keep Resinol Ointment within reach at all times — would not be without it. I find it very economical to use, as a little goes a long way. I have used Resinol Soap daily and will continue to do so. My complexion today is better than ever before, has a healthful glow and, in fact, is all that it should be—thanks to your wonderful Resinol Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. J——. Name and address on request. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

MYSTIC

A number from here are planning to go to Pawcatuck this (Thursday) evening to attend the republican rally to be held in the Central theatre under the auspices of the Coolidge club of Pawcatuck. So far as political activity here is concerned it is very quiet and one would hardly realize that a national election is impending. It is quite in contrast to former years when rallies and parades were held by both major parties. Many deplore the passing of the old time torchlight processions and illumination of houses and the rallies held afterward but in modern campaigns other means of interesting the voters have been adopted, such as distribution of literature, etc.

Walter T. Fish of Hartford was a visitor at her home here Sunday.

The Hartford Times recently had the following interesting item regarding Carl Lawless and Arthur Meltzer, artists who are painting in Mystic this fall: "Twenty-nine paintings by Carl Lawless and Arthur Meltzer, graduates of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, are on exhibition at the gallery of L. A. Wiley & Sons, for two weeks. The exhibition, consisting mostly of landscapes, includes several sketches made at Gardiner's Point and at Crescent Beach on the Sound. Both young artists in 1921 won the Cresson traveling scholarship given by the Pennsylvania Academy while last year Mr. Lawless was awarded the J. Francis Murphy prize for landscape work at the National Academy in New York. Mr. Lawless also won the fellowship prize in 1922 at the Pennsylvania Academy. His work is familiar in this city since he received honorable mention at the recent exhibition of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts. Mr. Lawless' winter scenes are his force, and especially snow, which he paints with consummate skill. While Mr. Meltzer's best picture is probably a winter scene at Stony Run, near Reading, Pa." For many years Mystic and its environs has attracted many artists and each season sees an increasing number of those who come to transfer to canvas the artistic scenes in which this section abounds.

Thursday and Friday of next week the New England Southern Conference of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church is to meet with the local Methodist church. At this meeting delegates will be present from all parts of eastern Connecticut, Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts.

Men in the employ of the town are having a busy time trying to keep the streets free of leaves. Due to the wonderfully mild weather this month and the fact that such frosts as have visited the village have not been severe in all sections, flowers are still blooming and green corn was picked Tuesday in a garden on the east side of the river. Flowers in bloom Tuesday were asters, marigolds calendula, cosmos, larkspur and chrysanthemums.

A meeting of the members of the Mystic Bridge Congregational church was held Monday evening in the church, to consider procuring a pastor, purchasing a parsonage and appointing a superintendent for the Sunday school. It was decided to have additional candidates supply the pulpit before a choice is made and various properties suitable for a parsonage were discussed but no purchase was decided upon. John F. Meyer was chosen superintendent of the Sunday school to assume his new duties at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wheelch and daughter, Miss Edna L. Wheeler, have returned from an automobile trip on Long Island and to other points of interest.

Capt. and Mrs. Elias F. Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thorpe and family have returned from a visit in Quincy and Boston, Mass.

The Parent-Teachers' association of the Mystic Academy is a public spirited organization as is shown by the work they have undertaken of bringing to Mystic next month, for a lecture, Thomas Moit Osborne, whose subject is to be "Rebuilding Manhood." The man object of the presentation of the lecture is educational.

At the meeting of the Garden club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis P. Allyn, Henry Verkade of New London, gave a talk on Evergreens and Hardy Shrubs which was listened to with interest and which was followed by an informal discussion of the subject, after which tea was served by the hostess. This is the last meeting of the club for the season.

Commencing the first Wednesday in November a study of missions is to be begun at the Union Baptist church, to be called the Church School of Missions. This school is to cover the efild of foreign missions, particularly China, and is to run for six weeks. It is to be held each Wednesday evening, commencing at seven o'clock, and will continue study for three-quarters of an ohru, after which three-quarters of an hour will be given over to the prayer meeting usually held Wednesday evenings. The plan is to have four classes and each class will have a leader or teacher. An enrollment of those who desire to take the course will be made next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wheeler have returned from an automobile trip to the Cape.

The Covenant meeting of the Union Baptist church is to be held Friday evening.

4-H EGG LAYING CONTEST FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Every boy or girl under 20 years of age in New London county who owns laying birds is eligible to enter the Connecticut 4-H egg laying contest, plans for which were announced this week by County Agent W. T. Clark at the farm bureau office at Norwich. There are, at present, 10 boys and girls enrolled in the poultry clubs in this county but the new plan makes it possible for every interested youngster in the county to receive free poultry instruction.

Boys and girls who enroll in this contest will be supplied with record books and report forms and will receive a letter of instruction each month, without cost. They will be expected to keep feed records and egg production records, to be filed each month with their county farm bureau.

The contest is to be divided into three classes, based on number of birds owned. Ribbons will be awarded in each class at the end of the year and a sweepstakes ribbon to the pen having highest average egg production, thus determining the champion poultry raisers in the state under 20 years of age.

Before launching the contest, A. J. Brundage, state club leader, with headquarters at Storrs, wrote to nearly one hundred of the leading poultry producers and experts of the United States and Canada. He found that of this selected group, considerably more than half had owned poultry before 12 years of age and, without exception, these men agreed that success in poultry management is largely dependent upon taking up a study of the business at an early age.

Any boy or girl interested in this new contest can get complete details from the farm bureau office. The birds will be kept on the home farm and must be owned and cared for by the boy or girl who enters them in the contest. Participation in the contest gives the youngster free access to the best poultry information obtainable.

CLAIMS STATE INSTITUTIONS ARE NOW INADEQUATE

The need of increased accommodations at several of the state institutions is emphasized in a letter which H. G. Bailey, superintendent of the Hartford municipal charity department, has sent to the state board of control, with a statement that lack of facilities at state institutions is resulting in a hardship in the care of tubercular patients, feeble-minded persons and others. The superintendent argued that the state farm for women should be enlarged to provide for the care of at least three times the present number for which accommodations are available.

The letter, which follows, alleges that in some cases it is necessary to violate the law, as a result of the inadequate facilities in the state institutions:

"I take the liberty of writing you concerning the need of increased accommodations at several of the state institutions.

"If the public officials of many of the cities and towns are to be able to care for some of the unfortunates that come under their charge in a proper and humane manner as well as to conform to the law regarding their care, either the statutes should be amended so that public officials should not be obliged to evade them owing to lack of proper facilities in the state institutions, or the said institutions should be so enlarged that certain classes could be cared for in the manner prescribed by law.

"In the first place, advanced tubercular cases have to be cared for quite often in the Municipal hospital, or almshouses, owing to lack of room in the state sanatoriums, creating a menace to other patients; yet the law states that such cases must be cared for in state sanatoriums provided for that purpose. Humanity demands at times that certain tubercular patients be provided for at once and when taken to other hospitals they prove a menace to the regular patients and their care practically creates a violation of the law.

"Second—Lack of accommodations at the Mansfield Training School creates a very serious problem for public officials as children over 4 years of age, who are feeble-minded, should not be kept in almshouses, yet they cannot be sent to the county homes, there is no room at Mansfield, and they have to be provided for in almshouses or homes, a menace to smaller children and a violation of the statute regarding care of children over 4. The accommodations at Mansfield should be increased far beyond the present capacity, to properly care for the many persons who should be sent to that institution, many of whom are now a menace and a violation to the law.

"Third.—The State Farm for Women should be enlarged to care for at least three times its present number, as many proper cases for that institution are now at large owing to there being no accommodations there for them. This is a very serious question and should be remedied soon. State insane hospitals are almost filled to the limit, the Connecticut State Hospital being filled and the Norwich State Hospital almost full. Need for increased accommodations in both is great so that the patients needing the treatment that the state hospitals provide could be admitted without delay.

"The problems of the public officials are many and varied, and they should not be complicated by inability to conform to the law and properly care for such patients. Owing to lack of space at present in state institutions provided for their care, this is many times impossible, greatly to the detriment of the proper care of the patient.

"I write to your honorable board trusting that your influence will be used to bring about the necessary building program needed, if same should meet with your approval."

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut was held in the lecture room of the Morgan Memorial at Hartford, Tuesday afternoon, Deputy Governor Edwin H. Bingham, presiding.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. George B. Kingsbury of the 28th year of the society, spoke of the loss sustained in the recent death of its governor, Colonel Charles Edward Thompson which occurred on September 25th. Nine other members have been taken by death during the year: Mrs. William B. Hills of New York city; Mrs. E. M. Bixby of Poultney, Vt.; Mrs. T. L. A. Greve of Cincinnati; Mrs. Isaiah Baker, Jr., of Hartford; Mrs. James L. Merriam of Bolton, Mass.; Mrs. Luther G. Turner of Torrington; Mrs. George T. Woodford of Bloomfield; Mrs. Waljo Tillinghast of Plainfield; Mrs. John E. Morris of Hartford. By resignation, the society has lost Mrs. Leroy P. Tilden of Watterford and Rev. O. H. Folger of East Lynn, Mass.

Two members, Mrs. Willard Haff, now of Newton, Mass., and Dr. Edward A. Pease, now of Brookline, Mass., have been transferred to the Massachusetts society. Thirty-seven new members have been added, so that the society now numbers 439 as against 416 reported at the last annual meeting.

The secretary referred to the spring meeting held on June 11 in New London in the "first home of the Connecticut Mayflower Society."

The secretary also stated that the society was represented in Plymouth on September 2nd and 3rd at the tenth triennial congress by 22 delegates, the full number to which the society was entitled.

The treasurer, Edwin H. Tucker, gave a detailed account of the treasury which was followed by the report of the historian, Dr. Edwin A. Hill, of Washington, D. C., read in his absence by the secretary. Dr. Hill's report showed that 28 volumes have been added to the library, among them Vol. 781, History of Barrington Township, Nova Scotia, which was purchased with funds specially donated by Mr. Martin Welles.

Mrs. Albert C. Bates reported for the press and publication committee and Mrs. J. William Bailey of Middletown, chairman of the committee on historical research and the marking of historical spots, spoke of the plea made at the congress recently held in Plymouth for a statue in memory of the first governor of Plymouth colony, John Carver. She made a plea for a similar memorial to Governor William Bradford, who was instrumental in accomplishing much for the ideals of the colony. Mrs. Bailey also spoke of the desecration by "souvenir hunters" to the magnificent memorial erected in Plymouth by the general society.

Resolutions upon the death of Colonel Charles E. Thompson were then presented by Charles Welles Gross and unanimously adopted.

A tribute to his memory was presented by Mrs. J. William Bailey of Middletown in which she said in part:

"Col. Thompson was the type of man that we could send as a representative with pride for he was dignified, of military bearing and of delightful personality. Gov. Thompson possessed in large measure the spirit of the Pilgrims mellowed by the influence of many generations that have come and gone through the 300 intervening years.

"The board meetings in his home which a few of us were privileged to attend some half dozen times a year were a real pleasure as we sat around the presiding genius just as though it were a little home circle.

"The atmosphere of refinement, the evidences of music and books, the occasional glimpse of little children, the hospitality that not only included a hearty handshake at the door, but a bit of sweetmeat or refreshing drink that was passed around either by Gov. Thompson or by the gentle lady of the house while we were discussing problems presented by the society. But how can one translate into words the intangible; the something that one feels rather than sees.

"The tablet in the Capitol building is no less a memorial to our late governor than to the men and women whose names are writ thereon. Statues of marble and tablets of bronze however are not essential for "to live in the hearts of our friends is not to die" and as future generations pass down the corridors of time, the annals of this society will show the many achievements and in what affection and esteems was held the memory of our beloved leader.

"At the 10th trienniel congress of the Mayflower society held in Plymouth just eight weeks ago today Governor Thompson was apparently in full physical health and mental vigor. On Thursdayfi, Sept. 25th, he answered the summons of the great commander. We know he was fully prepared to enter the life eternal. Therefore we weep not, but rather rejoice that what is our loss is his gain.

Two new members were elected, as follows: Miss Eleanor Beebe Starr, of New London, 10th in descent from Richard Warren and Miss Marjory Allen Starr, also of New London, 10th from Richard Warren.

A change in the by-laws of the society was made necessary by the action already taken by the general society, so that it was voted to increase the dues from two dollars to three.

The report of the nominating committee of which Hon. Charles E. Gross was chairman, was read in his absence by Miss Addie S. Arnold who presented the following names and these were unanimously elected to their respective offices:

For governor, Edwin H. Bingham; deputy governor, Charles Welles Gross; secretary, Mrs. George B. Kingsbury; assistant secretary, Miss Fannie F. Brown; treasurer, Edwin H. Tucker; historian, Dr. Edwin A. Hill; elder, Rt. Rev. Chauncey Bunce Brewster, D. D.; captain, Percy Coe Eggleston; auditor, Samuel C. Doty; for assistants for three years, Mrs. Edward J. Pearson and Miss Betsey Larrabee.

After the singing of Forefathers' Hymn, a favorite of Colonel Thompson's, the meeting was adourned.

HOME MISSION TALKS TO CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN

A large and interested group of women from the church of Eastern Connecticut journeyed to Danielson Wednesday to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Women's Congregational Home Missionary union of Connecticut. The two sessions were held in the attractive old Westfield church where no pains had been spared in providing a hospitable welcome and excellent luncheon and a programme full of interest and value.

The importance of our study of home missionary topics, of planning and varying our methods of service in the home church and of sympathetically acquainting ourselves with the missionary work being carried on, both among our natrve and foreignborn people all over the country were among the points urged by Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, Mrs. D. S. Winchester of New Haven and Miss Norton of Westchester during the morning session.

In the afternoon Miss Dorothy Robinson of Hartford described her nine weeks of work last summer among the Indians of North Dakota, and Miss Gile, for years a teacher among the Gentile children in Utah, told of the alarming spread of Mormon propaganda in all parts of this country, including schools and colleges in New England

In the concluding address Dr T. S. Clifton of Winsted urged his audience to a much deeper understanding of "Our Unfinished Task" and of more self-sacrificing zeal in accomplishing it.

During the noon intermission Miss Ellenor Cock of Hartford most charmingly rendered in costume some of the folk songs and dances of Eastern Europe.

Y. M. C. A. Bible Class

The second session of the Men's Bible class at the local Y. M. C. A. was held Wednesday evening at supper time, 6.15 o'clock, and the men present greatly enoyed the supper and discussion. The topic was "Paul at Athens." The scripture studied was Acts 17:16-34. The following points were developed from the discussion: In the wonderful address on Mars hill he told the people plainly that though they had many Gods, they were absolutely mistaken in their belief, and he aptly took for his text, "The Unknown God," an inscription he had seen on one of the altars. In a very tactful manner, Paul told them that the unknown God was his God, even Jehovah. These people were very religious, but not necessarily good, in fact they were just the opposite in many cases While the people of Athens believed that the different races had absolutely no relation to each other, Paul insisted that "God hath made of one blood, all races of the earth." On this point, there was a lengthy discussion, it was finally decided that God loved equally all nations and races and that there should be a close relationship among them. While at times there are certain people that we find ourselves, hating, we have no right, as Christion men to hate any man. There are many idol worshippers, today in America; a habit or appetite may become an idol, and many make these their idols. Money is undoubtedly the idol of many people, and ambition may easily become our idol. The only possible way to avoid the worship of idols, is to give God always the first place in our lives; many seem to give Him the second place, but we must "seek first the kingdom of heaven, and then all things needful will be given us."

The study developed a keen interest. This class will meet each Wednesday at 6.15.

THE SEEKERS.

Friends and loves we have none, nor wealth, nor blest abode,
But the hope, the burning hope, and the road, the lonely road.

Not for us are content, and quiet, and peace of mind,
For we go seeking cities that we shall never find.

There is no solace on earth for us—for such as we—
Who search for the hidden beauty that eyes may never see.

Only the road and the dawn, the sun, the wind, the rain,
And the watch-fire under stars, and sleep, and the road again.

We seek the city of God, and the haunt where beauty dwells,
And we find the noisy mart and the sound of burial bells.

Never the golden city, where radiant people meet,
But the dolorous town where mourners are going about the street.

We travel the dusty road till the light of the day is dim
And sunset shows us spires away on the world's rim.

We travel from dawn till dusk, till the day is past and by,
Seeking the Holy City beyond the rim of the sky.

Friends and loves we have none, nor wealth, nor blest abode,
But the hope, the burning hope, and the road, the lonely road.
—John Masefield.

Dark silhouette against the glowing west,
When all the wildwood birds were seeking rest
In leafy boughs, and all the woods were still
Save for the piping of the whippoorwill
That from some deeply hidden bower addressed
His song to absent mate. Upon the crest
The solitary sentry mute and still,
Stood undisturbed by woodland song or sigh,
And gazed on something I could not behold.
Beyond the stars in the unclouded sky,
Or in the vale where rivers run with gold.
Ah, well I knew that that lone statue's eye
Was bleared with tears for one he would enfold.

GILPATRIC SENTENCED TO 15 YEARS IN PENITENTIARY NOW IN N. H. COUNTY JAIL.

Sentiment of Regret Expressed by Judge Thomas Prior to Pronouncing Sentence—Defaulter Now in New Haven County Jail Awaiting Transportation to Atlanta Some Time Next Week—Gilpatric Changed Plea From Not Guilty to Guilty on Nine Counts of Embezzlement in Addition to Fourteen to Which He Previously Had Pleaded Guilty—Accepted Sentence Without a Sign of Emotion—Was Accompanied to Court by His Wife and Two Brothers.

New Haven, Oct. 30.—G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and cashier of the First National bank, of Putnam, occupied a cell at the New Haven county jail tonight, awaiting transportation sometime next week to Atlanta federal penitentiary to serve a sentence of fifteen years imprisonment imposed by the United States district court Judge Edwin S. Thomas, following pleas of guilty or nolo to twenty-two counts of embezzlement of funds, totalling in round numbers $3[illegible] of the funds of the bank.

Gilpatric accompanied to court by his wife and two brothers and counsel received sentence without a trace of any possible sign of emotion. His face was shaded by reason of the wide brim of the self-inflicted with suicide hat he bought last August were concealing glasses.

Change of Plea.

Gilpatric through his counsel, William A. King, former state attorney general announced a change of plea from guilty to guilty on nine counts of embezzlement, in addition to fourteen to which he had pleaded guilty on October 9th last when first arraigned. On two counts he entered pleas of nolo contendere.

Assistant District Attorney George H. Cohen, of Hartford, moved for dismissal of fourteen counts of the indictment which had totalled 39 charges of defalcation or unlawful conversion of the funds of the Putnam bank. He declared that some were duplications and others involved notes concerning which there was some question as to whether they had been paid. Mr. Cohen then made a detailed explanation of the 25 counts on which the government asked sentence.

Former Attorney General King explained the pleas of nolo contendere on two counts of the indictment and District Attorney John Buckled addressed the court asking a "penalty commensurate with the acts alleged and with the responsibility which had rested on Mr. Gilpatric" be imposed, declaring that in view of the whole situation a penalty of at least fifteen years be fixed.

Plea For Client.

Former Attorney General King made a brief plea for his client, declaring that "the money that is gone" was not used for personal gain or extravagant living; that the great bulk of the money went in loans to "a woolen company, manufacturing corporation and as loans to finance certain real estate holdings." Mr. King declared that Gilpatric had handed over to the bank everything he possessed and said "there is a wide moral difference between embezlement for personal gain and the facts attendant in this case." Pleading with the court to be "as merciful as your grave responsibilities will permit," he declared that Gilpatric would never recover from his wound, that "his senses are clouded and lying" and that he is "totally, permanently blind."

Assistant District Attorney Cohen said the government was little concerned with the purposes for which the funds in the neighborhood of $250,000 were taken. "His acts have wrecked the town of Putnam so that it will be years before the inhabitants can recover," he said. "He took the money and it is gone, and that is why he is here today."

Judge Thomas Imposes Sentence.

In passing sentence Judge Thomas said in part:

"The responsibility of the court is indeed great and exceedingly unpleasant. This defendant has inflicted on himself severe punishment. The difficulty is that the punishment is not meted out to the individual but as a deterrent on others similarly inclined who are in a similar situation of handling trust funds for others. It is for this reason that I have given this matter serious consideration. As the attorneys have pointed out, this defendant held a position of trust not only in the community but in the state. The public had a right to rely on his trustworthiness. It does seem to me that a very substantial penalty must be imposed. All of these cases present a serious situation for the whole household, the community and the state. My sentence is that the defendant shall be confined in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta on the first count, five years, on the second count five years and on the eighth count five years to run consecutively and on the fourth and sixth and all other and succeeding counts to which he has pleaded guilty or nolo contendere a sentence of one year and a day to run concurrently with the first count, a total sentence of fifteen years."

Counts of Sentence.

The three counts on which sentence of five years each was passed were the first count, which, as explained by Assistant Attorney Cohen, charges taking of $20,000 which were the funds of the state of Connecticut, on deposit at the Putnam bank. There was no record of the disposition of the money on the books of the bank, he said, and the money went to Mr. Gilpatric.

The second count, according to Mr. Cohen's statement, deals with $19,000 federal land bank bonds, bought by R. H. Bradley, a director of the bank, through Mr. Gilpatric. While the bonds were in the bank, he said, they were never delivered and the payment for them was never made to Blair and Company, brokers.

The eighth count, Mr. Cohen explained, concerned $6,000 in Liberty bonds, of Dr. S. B. Overlock, which were taken and used by Mr. Gilpatric. Dr. Overlock is superintendent of the Putnam hospital and attended Gilpatric following his attempted suicide.

Other Counts Involved.

Other counts and the amounts or other property involved on which sentence was pronounced were: Third, 57 shares of Putnam Foundry and Machine company stock; fourth, $8,000 check carried as cash; sixth, $7,000 carried as cash on a slip in the bank; ninth, $3,319.56, carried as a cash item in the name of G. S. Bradley; tenth, $8,305.39, similar to the ninth; twelfth, $40,000 Liberty bonds of the Putnam Woolen company, taken from the bank; thirteenth, $35,000 given Gilpatric by a Mrs. Loom, of which $31,000 is gone; fourteenth, Putnam Woolen company note, payment for which was charged to their account and the note not paid; fifteenth, $14,250 of the Paris Water company, money taken and not entered on their bank book; sixteenth $4,000 of the Putnam Woolen company; nineteenth, $5,000 entered as a deposit in a pass book of the Windham County Savings and Deposit company, and not deposited in the bank; twenty-first, $18,000, forged note; twenty-third, $9,393; twenty-fourth, $4,500 and twenty-fifth, $8,000, these three being similar cases where notes which were paid to Gilpatric remained in the bank, not being delivered to the payers; twenty-seventh, $12,000 taken for special deposit with no account in the bank's books; twenty-ninth, $10,000 of Mary Larotte account; thirtieth, $12,000 Ransom H. Bradley note; thirty-first, three notes aggregating $24,000 of Alexander Gilman, kept in the bank discounted and money used; thirty-second, $3,000 note transaction; thirty-

COOLIDGE TO CONSIDER WISHES OF FARMERS

Washington, Oct. 30.—Farm leaders were called upon today by President Coolidge to submit recommendations as to their preference for the appointment of a secretary of agriculture.

By telegraph Mr. Coolidge asked officers of the farmers' union, the Federated Farm Bureau, the National Grange, and the American Livestock Association to consult heads of their state organizations in this regard. He also is planning to consult other organizations, it was said at the White House, and would especially welcome suggestions from any of the farm organizations of the country concerning the filing of the cabinet vacancy.

Tentative arrangements were made today by Mr. Coolidge to speak over the radio on Monday night—election eve—in an appeal to citizens to go to the polls and vote.

The president has frequently emphasized the importance he attaches to voting and has called it to the attention of party leaders also. Arrangements are under way by the republican national committee to set up a radio system on that night which will permit Mr. Coolidge to reach every section of the country in his talk.

While no new names were received at the White House today in connection with the vacancy in the cabinet it was said that additional endorsements of Charles March, of Litchfield, Minn., had been received. His name was proposed first by republican leaders of Minnesota, including Governor Preus

An early appointment is expected to be made by the president in view of his plan to call an agricultural conference and appoint a commission to investigate farming conditions immediately after election

CHINESE OF NEW YORK CONTINUE THEIR FEUD

New York, Oct. 30.—The crack of a murderer's pistol echoed through Chinatown again today, shattering all prospects of immediate peace among tong warriors.

The Chinese consur general, with government officials from Washington, Oriental merchants from distant cities and local tong leaders had drawn a 14-day armistice and were about to sign it.

Then the sound of rapid gunfire rattled the dusty windows of the little room where they deliberated. Gee Ling, alias Frankie Lee, a Hip Sing tongsman, swayed through a neighboring doorway, clutched at the air a couple of times, shrieked, and died in the arms of a police detective.

Who killed Gee Ling and why has not been determined. His slayer escaped across the housetops into another section of Chinatown before the authorities reached the spot.

Peace negotiations were in progress at Hip Sing headquarters at Nos. 13-15 Pell street—the winding, narrow thoroughfare forming one side of the lop-sided triangle which is the heart of Chinatown

On the other side of the triangle was Mott street, home and headquarters of the On Leongs, and on the third side Doyer street, claimed as the domain of both tongs and "No Man's Land" for both.

Charlie King, chief of the On Leongs, had just presented to the negotiations his tong's demand for $50,000 indemnity and other concessions aimed at curbing the business activities of Hip Sing merchants in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Washington and New York. Ong Foon, leader of the Hip Sings, had demurred at the terms, but professed a willingness to arbitrate. The 14-day armistice had been agreed upon, when the shot sent the arbitrators scampering to the nearest basement.

GOV'T RESTS IN ELKS HILLS NAVAL OIL RESERVE CASE

Los Angeles, Oct. 30.—The government today rested its case against the Pan-American Petroleum and and Transport company for cancellation of leases and contracts on the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California.

The unexpected completion of the prosecution's testimony into the suit charging Edward L. Doheny with paying $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, to get leases and contracts worth $100,000,000 found several witnesses subpoenaed by the government but not heard.

Attorney Frank J. Hogan started immediately to present the defense.

That orders for secrecy surrounded negotiations for the supplemental leases and contracts to the Doheny company were coincident with the holding of the limitation of arms conference in Washington was developed by counsel today in the examination of H. Foster Bain, director of the bureau of mines.

Attorney Hogan called attention to a letter from Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, dated Dec. 9, 1921, stating that "all those matters concerning fuel shortage base must be strictly confidential." He developed testimony from Bain that instructions were issued to officers in the department of the interior to preserve secrecy concerning the war defense plans as involved in the leases and contracts.

This occurred at the time the arms conference was being held in Washington, Bain testified in answer to a question by Hogan.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION ON INDIAN RESERVATION

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Defying the challenge of Indians that the Volstead act is not enforceable on the Indian reservation, a squad of seven federal agents, four state troopers and three deputy sheriffs today swooped down upon the Indian settlement, confiscating two stills and destroying a large quantity of alleged liquor.

Remembering the beating administered to Frank E. Sayes, enforcement chief, one year ago when he attempted to make an arrest at the reservation single-handed during a lacrosse game, Chief Marc Buckland invited county authorities and state police to assist in the raids

Groups of Indians lurked about the places which were being searched, but refrained from any attempt to interfere. Agents making the raids were of the opinion the Indians were hostile enough to attack, but reinforcements from the state police and the sheriff's office dampened their lust for fight.

TNRKEY IS AWAITING ACTION BY AMERICAN

Brussels, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Turkey is awaiting for American ratification of the Turko-American Lausanne treaty before according parliamentary approval to that document. This statement was made today to the Associated Press by Fethi Bey, president of the Turkish chamber of deputies, who added that he earnestly hoped the United States senate soon would endorse the instrument, which he was convinced suitably protected American interests.

Fethi Bey expressed the opinion that long continued cessation of regular diplomatic relations between the United States and Turkey could only prove detrimental to the interest of both countries.

The Turkish statesman insisted that the Lauscanne treaty afforded ample protection to American missionary interests and educational institutions.

Coolidge Sweeping in Literary Digest Poll

Has More Votes Than All His Opponents Combined—Lafollett Leads Davis in Popular Vote.

New York, Oct. 31.—President Coolidge seems certain to receive more than enough electoral votes to retain his office for another term on the basis of the final returns of The Literary Digest's non-partisan national poll which will appear in tomorrow's issue of that periodical.

Of the grand total of 2,386,052 ballots recorded, Coolidge receives 1,348,033 votes, La Follette, 508,516, and Davis, 505,410. The balance of 24,093 votes are scattered among the other five regular candidates.

Wisconsin, casting 13 electoral votes, is the only state which accords Senator La Follette a plurality in The Digest poll. The states credited to Mr. Davis include Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas, representing a total electoral vote of 139.

But according to The Digest's figures Senator La Follette has evidenced considerable strength in California, Nevada, North Dakota, and South Dakota, which if he gains on election day would increase his electoral votes to a total of 39.

The Digest states that in pursuing this policy of giving the benefit of doubtful states to a vigorous contender for leadership in the state, Mr. Davis might be credited with Oklahoma, West Virginia, and Maryland, which would increase his electoral poll 26 votes, making him a total of 165.

Granting the democratic and progressive candidates these states, where President Coolidge is leading by a narrow plurality, it would leave the president 327 electoral votes, with 266 required for election to the executive chair.

On a special map which The Digest has prepared from the final figures of its record-breaking poll, 28 states are marked republican, 12 democratic, 1 progressive, and 7 doubtful. A special table showing the official returns by states in the Harding-Cox election of 1920 is also presented.

"Here are the final figures," states The Digest, in summation of its poll, "presented in that spirit of non-partisanship, of honest desire to get at all sides of a complex question, which The Digest, among other American periodicals, has made peculiarly its own.

"Briefly, Mr. Coolidge receives more votes than all his opponents put together, and Mr. La Follette receives a slightly larger popular vote than goes to Mr. Davis."

Final returns of the Literary Digest presidential poll follow:

MILTON O. STATLER WAS NOT UNDER INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Milton O. Statler, 18-year-old foster son of E. M. Statler, millionaire hotel owner, was acquitted in court of special sessions here late today of a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. The charge was placed against him after an automobile collision on the night of October 11 in which his car figured.

The verdict was based upon the fact that no persons had seen Statler driving his car on the wrong side of the street prior to the accident, and that this was taken to indicate neither his ability for judgment to operate an automobile had been impaired by the use of intoxicating liquor.

Counsel for Statler admitted at the outset of the trial yesterday that the boy had taken two drinks of alleged liquor a short time before the accident, but sought to prove that his nervous condition at the time of the accident was due to a recurrence of St. Vitus dance rather than to influence of the liquor.

D. C. Medical Society Fixes Scale of Fees

General Visits Range From $3 to $25—Removal of an Appendix May Cost From $100 to $5,000.

Washington, Oct. 30.—A scale of minimum and maximum fees for almost every ill that a physician or surgeon is ever called upon to treat, has been fixed by the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

Minimum fees range from $2 for minor office consultation or a word of advice over the telephone to $300 for certain major operations. Maximum fees for similar service range from $10 to $5,000

Charity work is permitted on the part of physicians and surgeons, but they will not otherwise deviate from the scale, either in reducing the minimum or raising the maximum except for good cause The importance of the case, and the responsibility attached to it, weigh heavily in placing the maximum fees, and likewise, it was pointed out, the scale will allow persons of moderate means to obtain the best medical skill at a cost within their reach.

An example is the fee for a small pox vaccination, where a minimum of $2 and a maximum of $25 is fixed. General visits range from $3 to $25 and the removal of an appendix may cost from $100 to $5,000.

HUNTING SUSPENDED TO KEEP PEOPLE OUT OF WOODS

Hartford Oct. 30.—The governor's proclamation prohibiting hunting also bans trapping during the period of drought, Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state fish and game department announced today. He pointed out that the object of the suspension is to keep people out of the woods. Firing a gun very rarely sets a fire. It is the carelessness in the use of matches and throwing away lighted cigarette stubs that causes most of the fires, he said. Fire is just as likely to be started by a trapper as by a man with a gun.

The trapping season begins November 1 and unless the suspension is revoked by the governor before that date trapping will come under the ban. Mr. Titcomb suggests bass fishing as a substitute for the other open air sports. This season of the year, he says, is one of the best for bass fishing as they "seem to bite better in the chilly weather." This will serve to supply out of doors exercise, he said, and yet keep the anglers out of the woods, except along the edges of streams.

Hunting is defined on the first page of the game laws to include pursuing, shooting, killing, capturing, trapping and snaring of any bird or quadruped, or attempting so to do, or to set or use any device intended to take or catch any bird or quadruped. Questions are asked as to whether a man may hunt coons at night or foxes which are not protected, but the word "quadruped" is defined as including any four-legged animal, except dogs and domestic animals. Reports from hunters throughout the state indicate approval of the governor's action, notwithstanding the fact that it is deprivation to many of them.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HAS MAILED HIS VOTE

Washington, Oct. 30. — President Coolidge voted today, using an ordinary White House pencil to mark the ballot which he later mailed to Northampton, Mass., his home voting place.

While the president voted in the presence of several newsmen and a battery of photographers, he carefully held his hand so the ballot so that no one could see him write, while Mrs. Coolidge looked by, smiling, with her back turned.

The ceremony was conducted on the lawn in the rear of the White House, the president using a table brought from the executive offices for the occasion. Rob Roy, a playful Scotch collie of the family, nosed up between the president's arms as he wrote but after a glance scampered happily away.

The president gave Mrs. Coolidge several instructions on the manner in which to mark the ballot but said not a word about how to vote and then retired to the background after warning her to put a pad before her as she wrote.

Nelson Webster, disbursing officer at the White House, had a notary public administer the oath to both after they had sealed their ballots in separate envelopes to be mailed to the city clerk of Northampton.

If tentative plans of the national committee are executed, the president's address will be broadcast from 23 stations reaching from coast to coast.

The president is scheduled to start speaking at 10 p. m., eastern standard time. He will speak from the White House.

OVERWHELMING DEFEAT MAY CAUSE RESIGNATION OF THE BRITISH CABINET

Conservatives Will Have More Than 400 Members Out of of Total Membership of 615 in New House of Commons—Premier MacDonald is Hastening to London to Call a Cabinet Council to Consider the Government's Position—The Expectation is That the MacDonald Cabinet Will Resign.

London, Oct. 30 (By the A. P.).—The conservatives will have more than 400 members out of a total membership of 615 in the new house of commons. That is the startling outcome of the third appeal to the country within two years. The exact figures cannot yet be given, because in the universities and some outlying Scottish highlands the counting will not be completed for another week.

Because of this astounding conservative victory it is expected that Premier Macdonald, who returned to London tonight, will call an immediate cabinet council to consider the government's position. This may quite possibly prove to be the last meeting of a labor cabinet in England for the next five or more years.

The expectation tonight is that the Macdonald cabinet will decide to resign forthwith, thus making way for the Baldwin ministry.

There is, however, another alternative—to follow the precedent set by the Baldwin ministry after the last general elections—meet parliament and wait for defeat on the address from the throne. One strong motive for following this course would be that Premier Macdonald has declared his intention to probe to the roots of the Zinovieff affair, and this he would be in a position to do effectively only while he retained the foreign secretaryship, with access to all departmental documents.

In the face of such a stunning defeat as the government has suffered at the polls, however, it is generally thought that even the investigation of the Zinovieff affair would not justify the cabinet in carrying on until parliament meets.

Next to the tremendous success of the conservatives, who gained approximately 159 seats and lost something under 10 to the other parties, the most striking thing is the submergence of the liberal party. When Herbert M. Asquith, the liberal leader, announced a bare two months ago his intention to move a censure motion on the government's Russian policy, he could not possibly have envisaged the fate which has overtaken his old and respected party, that now sees itself faced with extinction.

The existence of any official pact between the liberal and conservative parties for purposes of election is still denied by the leaders of the respective parties, but there were evidences of the existence of something of the kind when the liberals in a large number of constituencies stood down to help the conservatives in otherwise triangular contests, and it would seem impossible to avoid the conclusion that there was some sort of understanding for coalition tactics in the new parliament. Any such coalition is not needed now, and consequently nothing more will be heard of it.

The conservatives have, in fact, a majority so unwieldy as to be almost embarrassing to them. It is a commonplace of politics in England that no really strong government is possible without a strong opposition. When a government commands such a large majority as to be independent of any possible opposition, it tends to become heedless, listless and lacking in discipline, and is more easily liable to snap divisions happening in sparsely attended sittings. Thus sometimes a strong government meets defeat through over-confidence.

The view at conservative headquarters tonight is that should the ministry resign and the king send for Mr. Baldwin, a new government could be completed before parliament meets.

The debacle which overwhelmed the liberal party has not been confined to any particular section of the country or community. Even in Scotland, the home of liberalism for the past half century, not excepting Midlothian, which Gladstone made famous by his electoral campaigns, liberalism has succumbed to Torvism.

Of the 41 women candidates, only four have been returned. Thus the women's representation has been reduced from eight in the last house to four in the new house.

Philip Snowden, the labor chancellor of the exchequer, interviewed tonight, professed not to be greatly downhearted. He asserted that the conservative government would in a short time bring about a reaction and labor might reasonably hope for a majority at the next election.

Stanley Baldwin, the prospective prime minister, will leave London tomorrow for a short holiday in the country, he having been advised to take a rest and recover from the strain of campaigning. Both Ramsay Macdonald and H. H. Asquith, returning to London tonight, had an enthusiastic welcome from their respective admirers.

COMPOSITION OF NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, Oct. 30 (By the A. P.).—When the counting of all the election returns, with the exception of a few outstanding returns from the universities and Scotland, was concluded tonight, the composition of the new house of commons was found to be as follows:

Conservatives 398.
Liberals 40.
Independents 4.
Co-operatives 5.
Constitutionalists 3.
Communists 1.
Total 600.

Membership of the house 617.

Conservatives 259.
Labor 192.
Liberals 158.
Others 5.
Vacant (London university) 1.
Total 615.

Returns from the universities, when available, will bring the conservative strength to 400 or more.

Following are the gains and losses:

Gains—Conservatives 159, labor 24, liberals 9.

Losses—Conservatives 6, labor 24 liberals 120.

Roughly, in the new house the conservatives will number double all the other parties combined. A cabinet council has been summoned to meet at Downing street tomorrow, at which the government will consider the situation and decide upon its course of procedure.

TO ADJOURN SLUSH FUND HEARING IN CHICAGO TODAY

Chicago, Oct. 30.—After exploring new and old trails of political financing for another six hours today, the Chicago section of the senate campaign fund committee still was without direct evidence to sustain charges of a republican "slush" fund or of the expenditures of "enormous sums," on behalf of the La Follette-Wheeler independent ticket.

Chairman Borah gave notice that the hearings here would close at 4 p. m. tomorrow. He will leave for Washington immediately afterward to confer with the other members of the committee there regarding the issuance of a statement on the investigation up to this week-end.

That statement probably will have reference to the circumstantial stories told by two Chicago witnesses and referred to before the committee last week by Samuel Untermyer of New York, who said the stories, if sustained, might have a "profound effect" on the republican campaign.

Another effort to get information bearing on these stories was made late today by Untermyer, who asked Chairman Butler of the republican national committee, if he ever had seen before some documents which the New York lawyer handed him and which were withheld from the record and from publication. Butler said he had never heard of them before.

Discussion as to whether it was proper to show the documents to the witness without having them spread on the record led Chairman Borah to make this observation:

"The committee at this point does not take any stock in the matter."

J. Henry Roraback, republican national committeeman for Connecticut, testified he had received $55,557.48 from contributions in the state and had donated $20,000 to the national committee.

NEW YORK LABOR LEADERS URGE ELECTION OF DAVIS

New York, Oct. 30.—Outstanding developments in the candidacy of John W. Davis revolved today about the endorsement given him by the executive council of "the Centra' Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and the delivery by him of three speeches in Long Island districts.

Announcement of the labor action was made public by the eastern democratic headquarters and was hailed by officials there as a revolt in American Federation of Labor ranks which assured Mr. Davis "the support of approximately 700,000 union workers in the greater city."

It was pointed out also in a statement signed by 11 members of the executive council that they had voted to withdraw the endorsement previously given Senator La Follette "because we have been requested by our membership to place ourselves squarely on record for the election of John W. Davis for president and Alfred E. Smith for governor of New York.

The statement contained a recommendation "to our entire membership and to all interested in the cause of labor, to vote and work for the election of Davis."

EDSEL B. FORD WITNESS IN TRIAL FOR EXTORTION

Detroit, Oct. 30.—Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, was a witness today at the trial of Mrs. Anna Hladick, charged with attempted extortion. He testified to receiving letters last summer which demanded $1,050,000 from him on the threat of inury to his children.

Vaclav Simek, now serving a one to two year prison term in connection with the case, was brought from Jackson penitentiary to testify at the trial, asserted that he was kidnapped and forced to write the extortion letters. He implicated Mrs. Hladick. Simek's testimony today was virtually a repetition of his previous statements. Edsel Ford's secretary first received the extortion letters which demanded that the money be placed in a vacant lot. The letters were in such poor English as to be scarcely intelligible. After consultation with Ford, the secretary notified the police and a trap was laid. Simek was arrested.

Mrs. Hladick, testifying in her own behalf, denied all part in the affair, and introduced character witnesses. The case is expected to go to the jury early tomorrow.

Outside the Circus, a skit on life around the big top was fourth.

Delmar's Fighting Lions, the most exciting and sensational wild animal act on the American stage, closed the show.

Every one of the above acts are great. They are heartily endorsed and we advise you to see them, but start early.

An unforgettable story plus flawless acting and admirable direction combine to make Sinners in Heaven one of the high lights among the season's current films. This Paramount picture made its debut yesterday at the Broadway theatre and its hearty reception by the first night audience is a positive guarantee of its worth.

The story, an adaptation by James Creelman of the prize-winning novel of the same name by Clive Arden, deals with Barbara Stockley (played by Bebe Daniels) and Alan Croft, (portrayed by Richard Dix).

Big Business by the A. & P.

The Great Aalantic & Pacific Tea company, founded by George Huntington Hartford, a native of Augusta, Me., 65 years ago, when he opened a small and tea coffee store in New York and which has now grown so that today the company operates well over 10,000 of the well-known red front stores, is now doing the largest cash business in the world. The total sales for the last fiscal year of the concern reached the amazing figure of $302,588,369.

A slight idea of the tremendous volume of business carried on through this gigantic chain of stores, located in the largest cities and the smallest towns, may be gained from a comparison of the tonnage that passes through the stores of the chain in the course of a year.

Coffee sales amount to 67,000,000 pounds, which would require a trainload of 1116 freight cars, eight miles long, to transport. The tea sold, if placed in a gigantic cup, would be sufficient to submerge the Rock of Gibraltar.

A quarter of a million dairy cows would be required to produce the amount of butter sold annually in the "A. & P." stores while eggs sold yearly if they could be craned would require a box sufficiently large enough to be used as a hangar for the Shenandoah.

The flour sales of this concern for a year were 225,000,000 pounds and the sugar sales reached 385,000,000 pounds, which would require a fleet of 100 large steamers to transport. The potato sales of 504,000,000 pounds would fill a barrel the size of the Woolworth building.

All the infants in the United States could be fed for a month by the cans of milk sold which amount to 90,000,000.

The concern operates salmon canneries in Alaska, canned milk plants in the dairying sections of the country, macaroni plants, chocolate and cocoa factories, peanut butter plants and a coffee plantation.

From all sections of the world the firm imports foodstuffs and the finest imported commodities procurable are handled through the newly opened London office.

The local headquarters and warehouse of the company are located on Elmwood avenue, Providence, R. I., from which the stores in this section receive their supplies.

All of the A. & P. stores throughout the country are observing their sixty-fifth anniversary this week by drastic reductions in retail prices.

The stores in this section are part of the Southern New England Unit, R. Clougher being the general superintendent.

PERCY D. HAUGHTON EULOGIZED BY PRESIDENT OF COLUMBIA

New York, Oct. 0.—Eulogizing Percy D. Haughton as a cominating influence over the moral and physical welfare of Columbia university and urging the undergraduates to "carry on" the work left off by him, President Nicholas Murray Butler today paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the late football coach at a chapel service held in McMillin auditorium simultaneous with the funeral services in Boston. Fifteen hundred students, including members of the football squad, attended the service.

"Haughton possessed a rich and virile personality," said Dr. Butler. "He was the greatest exponent of knowledge and control of the body and his educational influence on the university was as great as any professor of mathematics. It was not easy to do so much in so short a time.

"The principles for which Percy Haughton stood should be carried on in the minds and hearts and character of the youth of Columbia. Let us 'carry on,' for Percy Haughton."

The members of the Columbia football team quietly entrained for Ithaca tonight for the game with Cornell on Saturday. There was no demonstrations and no noisy farewell, either on the campus or at the train, but the silence which marked the departure of the squad fittingly illustrated the respect in which Percy Haughton was held by his men on Morningside Heights.

New York University, one of Columbia's chief football rivals, joined today in paying tribute to Haughton's memory. A blazing "seat Columbia" sign that had been swung across a street at the university just before the coach's death on Monday, was removed. It will remain in storage until next Monday when it will go up again to stimulate school spirit for the game with Columbia at Baker field on November 8.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

This Week's New Records

The violin is the aristocrat of musical instruments. It fails to respond to the uncouth or unskilled. In such hands as Chemet's, however, it becomes the veritable servant of beauty. This week she records two slow and highly emotional numbers—Borowski's Adoration and d'Dambrosio's Romance. They are played with the effortless grace of finished artistry.

One usually connects Mah Lindy Lou with a male quartet. However this week we hear this plantation idyl sung by no less an artist than Galli-Curci. It isn't the first time this great soprano has sung admittedly popular songs, and this is not the only popular song on this record. On the reverse is the tender Memory Lane with its swinging waltz-rhythm. The accompaniment effects in themselves are worth a hearing.

Negro melodies seem to be the order of the week. Reginald Werrenrath sings on a record, Goin' Home, based on the largo of Dvorak's New World Symphony, from themge inspired by the spirituals, and Follow Me, a highly dramatic song by an American Negro composer. The latter is an extraordinary number, making exceptional demands on even so powerful a voice as Werrenrath's.

Victor Symphony orchestra catches the gossamer style of two waltzes from Leo Delibes' immortal ballets. Subtle and thrilling are the Entr'Acte waltz from Coppelia Ballet and Intermezzo from Naila Ballet.

Edgar Guest speaks four more of his verses, simple and familiar rhymes of American domestic life. Proud Father, Dirty Hands, The Man To Be and Compensation will gain a large hearing.

Georgie Price, with brilliant orchestral support, sings two fox-trot songs on a double-duty record, i. e., for listening, for dancing, or both. Bring Back Those Rock-a-Bye Baby Days and My Best Girl will appeal to those who dance, pedally or aurally.

Direct from No, No, Nanette you may hear two of the song successes this week, duets by Helen Clark and Lewis James. Tea for Two will be recognized by those who dance; now comes the melody in its original form for voices and orchestra. Its companion-to-be I Want to Be Happy, another tuneful number.

We count that week lost when we do not hear Paul Whiteman. This week his dance orchestra records Rose-Marie from the musical comedy of the same name and My Road from Be Yourself, two foxtrots with the a mazing originality that seems to keep the Whitman method from settling into standardization.

Henry Halstead and His Orchestra and Art Hickman's Orchestra gain wider attention to their coast popularity through two dance records this week. Sweet Little You by the first organization is soft-toned but brisk. If I Stay Away Too Long From Carolina by the Hickmans is moderately timed with strongly accented rhythms.

Go Your Way and I'll Go Mine with its logically protesting companion Oh, Peter are two foxtrots by Glenn Oswald's Serenaders, Oriental in manner and particularly adapted to the Collegiate.

Breed Theater

Extraordinary characterization marks the screen version of A Son of the Sahara, First National picture, produced by Edwin Carewe, in Algeria, which is fascinating patrons at hte Breed theater this week.

This does not apply alone to Bert Lytell and Claire Windsor, the leading players in the desert romance. It can be said of all the important members of the cast.

Notable work is done by Montagu Love, who plays two roles of widely contrasting type, and by Paul Panzer, who proves himself a consummate artist by carrying out three characterizations in masterful fashion.

Montagu Love first appears as an old Arab sheik, the Sultan Cassim Ammeh, and next as Colonel Barbier, commander of a French desert garrison. Paul Panzer is first seen as the lieutenant of the old Sultan, and finally as the autioneer in the slave market. It is Panzer who auctions Claire Windsor in the village square of a quaint Algerian community. Bert Lytell being the secret buyer of the beautiful slave.

Larry Semon in Her Boy Friend, William Duncan in The Fast Express and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Palace Theater

Before commencing work on Behold This Woman, which is now being shown at the Palace theater J. Stuart Blackton made more than 100 still photographs of important buildings and spots of beauty in Hollywood. The story is laid manly in the motion picture colony of Hollywood and many local spots were needed for atmosphere. The stills were taken in the search for suitable backgrounds against which to film this unusual story.

When they were developed Mr. Blackton was so impressed with the photographic value of Hollywood's show places that he regretted that it was impossible to use all of the locations in the sequences of the story. As this was impossible, he found use for some of the most artistic as the backgrounds for titles.

Last chapter of The Telephone Girl stories, Pathe News and Sport Light complete the program.

Man was made to mourn, but probably it was never intended that he should spend so much of his time at it.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Production has reached such a stage at the Main street plant of the Paco Manufacturing company that with the night force now operating, 200,000 yards of material is being turned out each week. This production will necessitate establishing here before long a curtain manufacturing branch of the business. Electrically operated sewing machines, set in what are termed batteries, will be installed. The company, which is now manufacturing, bleaching and finishing its product here will give employment to 50 or 60 girls at clean and interesting work when the curtain manufacturing department is in operation. This will increase the number of employes to a point in excess of 300. It is anticipated that the curtain department to be established here will turn out from 1,000 to 2,000 pairs a day.

Shades of the Sacred Cod and its Bivalve associates! What a story comes out of East Killingly. Near that capital of the empire of King George, where feasts of the Order of the Royal Quahaug have been held from time out of memory and have added fame and fortune of the Great Ruler the lakes and ponds are going dry. What in normal seasons are acres of placid blue water have been reduced by the drought to little more than trickling streams along the old watery channels—and into these thousands of fish are huddled. They are facing death from thirst. The situation gives King George great concern. This Hallowe'en, therefore, has been set aside for the weird ritualistic ceremonies that should bring rain and save the fishes. Royal Quahaug members, wearing their robes of office, will chant to the Rain God. And it is announced that any competition that swings in with a lusty rendition of "Saint Louis to Rain No Mo' will never sing again so long as singing remains a vent for human emotions. They will be fed to the goldfish. The party is going to be strictly and exclusively in the interest of getting water for those thirsty fishes.

The men connected with Danielson Baptist church met in the vestry Tuesday evening to organize a club for the purpose of assisting along all lines of church work. This organization will meet monthly and Rev. C. J. Armstrong, the pastor is hoping that many men will enter into this work. The speaker Tuesday evening was Rev. W. D. Hetherington of East Killingly. An excellent lunch was served by the ladies.

An appeal from a fine of $100 imposed in the town court upon John P. Hamilton of Worcester by Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis of the town court will eventually bring before the superior court of the county consideration of a case in which the charge against the accused is overloading a motor truck. Hamilton is a driver for a Worcester concern. He was ordered into court by State Officer Ross V. Urquhart. It is alleged by the state that the truck in question was carrying a double capacity load or thereabouts. Hamilton was represented by counsel.

Sidewalk construction continues in Danielson and will so continue so long as weather permits. Contractors engaged in the work have several weeks of building ahead of them.

Saturday marks the opening of the hunting season for rabbits but it so happens that hunting is banned until a heavy rain comes along.

Attorney Eric H. Johnson of Putnam acted as stenographer Thursday at the hearing conducted by Coroner Arthur G. Bill in the railroad wreck investigation.

Today rounds out a full month without a rainstorm. The last heavy rainfall in this territory was September 30. In the meantime there has been only an occasional drizzle.

Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mrs. Hugh Carragher, Miss Kathleen Beeney, Joseph Gauthier, Emil Menuier and Joseph Gallichant were winners of the honors at the whist given Wednesday evening by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American legion at the legion rooms here. The hall was prettily decorated with Hallowe'en devices. After the whist refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weaver of Central Village are coming to Danielson to make their home and will be resident on the West Side.

A new gas main put in between the gas station of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company on Hutchins street and the plant of the Paco Manufacturing company on Main street has been connected up and is ready for use. The line will furnish gas required by the concern in some of its finishing operations.

Mrs. Roland R. James of Oak street will have the members of St. Alban's Sewing circle at her home for a meeting this (Friday) afternoon.

An exclusive and choice selection of jersey and flannel dresses and some special offerings in ladies' silk and silk and wool hosiery, at the Alice-Eleanor shop.—adv.

At a session of the town court Thursday morning, Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis presiding, two men charged with having been intoxicated presented. Unable to pay a fine of a dollar and costs, one of them went to jail for a period of two weeks.

If this town doesn't get prompt election returns next Tuesday evening, it will not be the fault of the radio. Over 400 sets will be tuned in in Danielson and as many more within a radius of a few miles.

Though this the eve of the time limit for filing lists of taxable property in the town of Killingly, many property holders have as yet failed to make their visitation to the assessros. After tmorrow, there will be a 10 per cent. penalty attached to the lists of delinquents.

A final warning is issued this (Friday) morning by Chief John McFarland that celebrators of Hallowe'en must restrict themselves to having a sensibly good time and that any damage they may do to property will be promptly punished.

At Dayville Lloyd Baccock has been elected president of the Junior Y. M. C. A., Clarence Weeks vice president and Merrill Chase secretary-treasurer.

ENGINEER AND CONDUCTOR CRIMINALLY NEGLIGENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Oct. 30.—Within an hour after they had completed their testimony at the inquest, conducted here Thursday by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, relative to the railroad wreck at Putnam last Friday afternoon Engineer Joseph P Bartlett, Midway and Conductor Joseph C. Noyer, New London, of special freight No. 1314 were given into the custody of Sheriff Chas. E. Ayer and bonds for their release were fixed at $2,000 each. This they immediately started to arrange for through the railroad brotherhoods of which they are members.

Their testimony, Coroner Bill said, indicated that they had been criminally negligent and that he would ask for a bench warrant to promptly bring about their presentation before the superior court of Windham county to answer to a charge of manslaughter.

Engineer Bartlett and Conductor Noyer were the responsible members of the crew of special freight train No. 1314 when it figured in last week's wreck, an accident that cost the lives of Engineer William S. Carpenter and Fireman Joseph Hoppman of passenger train No. 73, which crashed head-on into the freight locomotive, after plunging through an open switch in the upper part of the Putnam yard.

It was positively established at Thursday's inquest that the switch had been left open after train No. 1314, which included a string of 72 car, had backed in off the main line to await the passing of passenger train No. 737. It was further established by tha testimony that the freight train did not back far enough off the main line to even allow of closing the switch.

Under the railroad rules, Conductor Noyer and Engineer Bartlett were the responsible members of the train crew, they being charged with the duty of seeing that the switch was closed. Their admissions at the inquest were such that Coroner Bill ordered them into the custory of the sheriff. Bartlett and Noyer faced the serious situation in which they find themselves with coolness and immediately requested that they be allowed opportunity to arrange for bonds, which request was acceded to.

Sheriff Ayer, for years a railroad engineer and still a member of the brotherhood, gave Bartlett and Noyer every assistance, in their efforts to get in touch with those from whom they expected to secure bonds.

Fireman Joseph J. Davis Robert P. McFee, head breakman and W. A. Garlock, trainman, members of the crew of train No. 114 and all of Midway, were the other witnesses heard by Coroner Bill at Thursday's inquest. None of these men were held.

Of special interest in Fireman Davis' testimony was his statement that subsequent to the wreck he visited at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Fireman Stephen Stickney, who was dead-heading home to Putnam in the cab of the locomotive of the wrecked passenger train and who was badly injured when he leaped from the locomotive to escape the crash that he saw was inevitable. Davis said that he went to the hospital in his own interest and to obtain such information as might be valuable to him. He quoted Stickney as telling him that Engineer Carpenter of the passenger train had said as the speeding train approached the switch where the freight was standing that it did not appear to him the freight was out of clear and with that remark took instant action to stop the passenger train, but too late for any human agency to accomplish that end.

It was developed during the testimond that even had the switch been closed the locomotive of the freight train was not sufficiently far back from the main line to prevent a sideswiping accident.

At the inquest, Bartlett and Noyer both admitted infractions of the railroad rules applying to the responsibilities in such situations as brought about the wreck.

Approximately half an hour elapsed between the time the freight backed off the main line onto the switch, where it stood waiting the passing of train No. 77, and the time of the wreck. All this time the switch was open.

CONGRESSMAN R. P. FREEMAN REPUBLICAN RALLY SPEAKER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Oct. 30.—Congressman Richard P. Freeman, Miss Emily Spears, of New London, and Attorney Harry A. Gaucher, of Willimantic, were the speakers at a republican rally held in the town hall Thursday evening. Attorney E. L. Darby, chairman of the republican town committee presided. The attendance was representative of about all sections of the town of Killingly. Congressman Freeman covered the ground that has marked much of his talks during the course of the campaign, stressing the economies which the republican administration has achieved during the last three and a half years. Before coming to Danielson, Congressman Freeman addressed a republican rally at Goodyeur. The rally Thursday night is the only one scheduled by the republicans of Killingly before election.

It is a sober truth that intemperance is a vice.

PUTNAM

The H. K. H. Silk company is moving more of its machinery from its old mill on South Meadow street to its new mill on Providence street. Workmen are engaged in constructing the new dye house. When this is completed the whole plant will operate at the new mill.

Workmen are engaged in repainting and remodeling the old Thompson bank building which was occupied by the First National Bank during the time when the new bank building was being erected. While no statement to that effect has been made, it is believed that the building may be occupied by the Cargill Trust company, if a state charter is granted, as now applied for.

County Coroner Arthur G. Bill held an inquest in Danielson, Thursday, to fix the responsibility for the collision between a south bound passenger train and extra freight 1314, in which William G. Carpenter, engineer, and Joseph Hoppman, fireman, lost their lives. Joseph P. Noyes, conductor, and Joseph C. Bartlett, engineer, were held following their testimony and will be arraigned on a charge of manslaughter for criminal negligence according to the coroner.

The semi-annual social and business meeting of the Drop-in class of the Congregational Sunday school was held at the home of Mrs. Milo Warren, Mechanic street, Thursday afternoon.

G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National Bank, left Putnam Thursday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Gilpatric. His brother-in-law, Henry A. Wheelock, drove the car. They stopped in New Britain, before proceeding to the federal building in New Haven where the former cashier was presented in the U. S. district court. At New Britain G. Raymond Gilpatric, young brother of the former cashier, joined him.

A party of thirty, members of the Putnam Rotary club, their wives and young women friends, left Putnam in several automobiles at 6.45 o'clock Thursday evening for Providence, where they attended the theatre. After the entertainment the party motored back as far as the Twin Elms, where tables had been reserved for supper. After the supper the party had the dance floor to themselves as it had been reserved in advance and dancing was enjoyed until 1 o'clock Friday morning, to music by the Twin Elm orchestra. During the supper there was singing and impromptu talks.

More wells and springs going dry, more brooks with loss of water supply, the farmer making long hauls by wagon or truck for his domestic water needs and water for his stock. These stories are becoming more and more frequent and still there is no rain in sight. The rain the weatherman promised for Tuesday got sidetracked and did not appear in this section. However, Putnam's domestic water supply is adequate and no curtailment of usage has been necessary. In this Putnam is more fortunate than some of the other nearby cities where conditions have become alarming. The water in the Quinebaug river is a handicap to manufacturers as it is the lowest in years.

David Favereau of Putnam has been taken to the Worcester county (Mass.) jail in default of paying a fine of $200 imposed by the judge of the district court at Webster, Saturday, when Favereau pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Favereau sent out an S. O. S. call to friends in Putnam but, although a number went to Webster to see him while he was confined in the lockup there, none would assist him financially.

Favereau got into trouble at an early hour Saturday morning, when he drove a hired car through the iron gate of the Bates shoe shop yard in Webster, the machine turning bottom side up, near the boiler house. Neither Favereau nor the man and woman with him was injured. Favereau was arrested, escaped and was recaptured when about to board a trolley car for Putnam Saturday morning.

Miss Elizabeth Wheelock, younger daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock, Church street, has entered the office of the Putnam Woolen company, of which her father is agent. Miss Wheelock was graduated last June from Simmons college, Boston, where she specialized in clerical and secretarial work.

Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Rafferty, has gone to Hartford where she has a clerical position in the office of State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, formerly of Putnam.

Music Hall, used by Putnam's military company as an armory, is being remodelled to meet the company's needs. The checking room on Livery street is being changed into a captain's room, orderly and company room. Plans are under way for several social affairs during the winter.

Bills were sent out to all towns in the state, Thursday, from the state treasurer's office for the state and military tax. The total state tax is $1,500,000 and the total military tax $298,300. This tax is apportioned among all of the towns in the state in proportion to the amount of tax each town received. The bills are payable on or before the 10th of November. Putnam's state tax amounts to $5,438.86 and military tax, $919.37, a total of $6,358.23. As the assessment levied by the state is a half million less than in 1922 each town town has less to pay than before. Where Putnam paid $8215.23 two years ago this year the town will pay but $6,358.23.

New York, Oct. 30.—Elizabeth Blee Frasch, widow of the former "sulphur king," Herman Frasch, left virtually her entire estate, valued at several millions, to be "devoted to research in the field of chemical agriculture with the hope of attaining results which shall be of practical benefit to the development of agriculture in the United States." Her will was filed here today. Mrs. Frasch died in Paris Sept. 24.

The will directs that the income of the trust, to be known as the Henry Frasch Foundation for Chemical Research, shall be paid over to one or more incorporated institutions, which shall be selected by the trustee after consultation with the American Chemical Society. If, at the expiration of five years, the society shall decide that a beneficiary institution is not making proper progress, the aid is to be withdrawn.

Herman Frasch, who died in Paris ten years ago, worked with John D. Rockefeller Sr., as a chemist for the Standard Oil company. His discovery of a process by which sulphur could be taken from the ground yielded him a fortune.

TRUSTEES NEW ENGLAND PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

Boston, Oct. 30.—John Murray, of Boston, was chosen chairman of the trustees here today of the twenty-annual meeting of that body. He succeeds Rev. A. Mason Brown of Providence, resigned. The election is for three years.

Other members of the board are Rev. Robert Watson, of Boston, three years; Rev. C. A. Fisher, of Worcester, two years; J. P. McPherson, of East Boston, two years; and Mrs. Marsh, of Lynn, one year.

The democratic state central committee has been able to raise only $16,000 and "hopes to get a little more" from the national democratic body, according to Fred P. Ilsley, treasurer.

ding to the observations of ullivan, a rather keen political r, the democratic ranks are ed and shocked by the growpace of the third party. Just his should be regarded as an e to democratic victory at this t got clearly disclosed, inasas it has been manifest for me that the democratic campaign was not making the appeal to ntry that would bring success has been persistently shown straw votes that the third andidate was drawing more an the democratic candidate. just become apparent to the ts that their efforts to play hands of the third party are to their dertiment? Have st begun to realize that there enace involved in the third as at present constituted?

ding to the final pool of the Digest it is shown that the arty candidate is running f the democratic candidate, a he has maintained from the g, and which for a time was ed to the fact that the south y to a slow start. Inasmuch as been unable to overcome id and the democrat holds ince there is thus shown for the democratic fear.

f the third party is regarded nace to the democratic party r to presume that it is reas a menace to the country. nder those circumstances there is one thing for the democrats, or those inclined to the democratic party, to o. Instead of contributing their support, directly or indirectly to the advancement of a menace it is time to employ their votes for the election of the republican ticket, which will not only mean the selection of a safe and sane national ticket but will operate to eliminate all possibility of the menace becoming effective.

It must be remembered in this connection that there is need not only of electing Coolidge and Dawes for the welfare of the country but of electing a congress that will be sympathetic with the administration they will head. The democrats may well heed the importance of preventing the menace to congress and the national government as well as to their party's success at this particular election. The democrats must realize that there are at least two years of fighting a menace.

NEEDLESS ACCIDENTS.

spite of all that has been done to being done to overcome them highway accidents not only keep out there is a tendency to multi-

There are the instances where auto driver may be to blame, and e are the cases where it is the fault of the pedestrian. There are accidents when injuries are minor and there are others where fatalities are involved. It is not a new situation, but one that has been looming up larger each year.

It has gotten so that more and more accidents are being expected, and it is getting so that they are being taken more and more as a matter of course. In spite of the great number that are struck, injured or killed there is not a sufficient impression created by the apparent need for greater care to accomplish a slowing down of the accident cases.

The fact that there are more automobiles every year does not in itself constitute a good and sufficient reason for accepting such a condition as a necessary accompaniment. There is a constant demand for safety in the streets and highways. If there are more cars, or more people, the demand is all the greater and the responsibility of safeguarding self as well as others increases in that very same proportion that automobiles increase.

While there is much carelessness, and even recklessness, on the part of the auto drivers which needs checking, it is not to be overlooked that those who walk in or cross streets must look to their safety in a greater degree than in the old days when only horse drawn vehicles had to be guarded against. It is through the exercise of the highest degree of vigilance on the part of all users of the street and highways that less accidents and greater safety will result. There is, however, a large contribution which each one can make in that direction. Too many accidents are actually needless.

WHAT THE POLLS SHOW

Are you a follower of straw votes? There have been many of them this year. The biggest and most thorough of them is that which has been conducted by the Literary Digest and as the result of the final count of over 2,300,000 votes the political wind is shown to be strongly blowing toward the election of Calvin Coolidge as president. By that poll, even giving certain states which show a plurality for the president, but which plurality is small, to the opponent it is indicated that Mr. Coolidge will have 327 votes in the electoral college, which is a substantial majority in view of the fact that 266 is sufficient to elect.

The Digest makes it a point to say that it is not making a prediction. It has engaged in the poll on a non partisan basis and has of course let the straws fall where they may, and from the disclosure it shows where a large part of the voters are going to place their votes. Picked from all states, with 15 per cent of the ballots being returned, the showing is an extremely favorable one for the republican ticket.

But the Digest poll is not the only one. Several others on a smaller basis have been taken, including those in colleges, and invariably there is displayed that same strong and favorable sentiment for Coolidge. This is indicative of both the popular and the electoral vote. Certainly if that portion of the electorate which has expressed itself secretly represents the sentiment that prevails in general there remains no question as to the outcome on election day. All that remains is for the voters to get to the polls and see that the indicated outcome actually transpires.

THE BRITISH ELECTION.

The outcome of the British election shows a complete victory for the conservative party, the largest British party but for this year lacking by 50 votes a majority in the house of commons. It is likewise a repudiation of the MacDonald government which has been in power through a coalition of the labor and liberal parties.

Following a short but active campaign the British people have once more placed their faith in the hands of the conservatives. Though the liberals joined hands with the laborites to make a labor government possible the people have rebuked such action if we are to judge by the heavy loss which has been suffered in liberal seats. Rather than see a continuance of the government that has prevailed liberal supporters have swung to the conservatives, while many who made labor seats possible in the past have seemingly recognized the error of their way and turned to the conservatives.

When the labor government took up the reins of British government it was realized that the length of its service was uncertain. It was subject to its accomplishments and the period the laborites and liberals could stick together. To the laborites there is an unmistakable omen not only in the losses sustained but in the defeat of former Premier Asquith. The conservatives are given the control and it remains for them to make the most of it while remembering mistakes which made it possible for the labor government to have its chance. In a number of ways Premier MacDonald has rendered good service. In others he failed to satisfy, and it is interesting to note that in certain respects this was true of the radical element of his own party.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Beware of the dangers of Hallowe'en.

The rowdy element in Hallowe'en celebrations is one that can well be dispensed with.

The greatest pleasure some people are going to get out of the election is anticipating the impossible results.

During this last week of the campaign watch the desperate politicians resort to all kinds of exaggerations and scares.

The prohibition navy is making almost as big scores as some of the football teams. It is getting much of the kick stuff.

Hallowe'en may inspire a wide variety of entertainment but there's reason for keeping it within the bounds of safety and sanity.

If the people give to the republican fund because they want Coolidge elected, and refrain from going to the other funds because they want neither Davis nor La Follette what can be done about it?

When one business man asks the collector of internal revenue for a list of those paying income taxes because it would be "an advantage to him in his business" he proves what has all along been maintained.

There are those who claim they would like the chance of paying even twice as much income tax as some of the biggest taxpayers. But those who know human nature know they would never do it willingly when the time came.

If it were so as Attorney Darrow tries to claim that competent lawyers could have prevented the conviction of the condemned prisoners at Sing Sing he apparently figures that all judges and juries are weak hearted and paying more attention to sentimental pleas than to justice.

WHEN THE BELL RANG

"I believe you clean each piece of silver on the buffet every morning," said the visitor. "Why don't you pack the large pieces away for the summer, before you polish all the luster off of them?"

"You flatter me," returned the young matron who was polishing the silver. "But the fact is, I never touch my silver more than once a week. And this morning I feel lucky to be here at all. I came within a wink or less of landing in the calaboose last night."

"I have often wondered how you managed to keep out," smiled the visitor. "You step pretty heavily on the gas pedal."

"Yes, but this time it was not speeding and the little comedy was enacted right here in the apartment. It was all Frank 's fault. I have been much irritated by my husband lately. He has been in one of his teasing and practical joke moods. For instance, only last Friday he called me on the telephone at noon and, in a charming falsetto, said that he was the cashier of my bank, and regretted to inform me that I had again overdrawn my balance. You know, I did that last month. So I was scared to death. I immediately canceled a bridge engagement, and sat down the whole afternoon and figured and figured, but I could not find any blunder. By 5 o'clock I was a wreck.

"When Frank came home he admitted under pressure that he had called me, and gave me the laugh. I have been angry with him ever since. But yesterday I decided to bring back the dove of peace to our family. I made his dearly beloved chicken croquettes for dinner. He is very fussy about croquettes, preferring them so dark brown that they appear almost burned. It is quite a trick to catch them at just the precise moment when they are chocolate brown and not coal black.

"When I was bending anxiously over the skillet the front door bell gave an imperative ring.

" 'There,' I thought to myself, 'is that man Frank! He has left his house keys hanging in his desk drawer again. I suppose the minute I turn my back to open the door for him these croquettes will promptly proceed to burn to cinders.'

"Turning the gas low, I hurried to the speaking tube. 'Well,' I demanded, 'what it is you want now?'

" 'Madam, are you the owner of that blue coupe standing out in front?' came up the tube in a peculiarly pitched voice.

" 'Yes! What about it?' I snapped, anxious to get back to the croquettes.

" 'It's against the law to park a car facing the wrong way. An' why haven't you got your lights on? You come right down and turn that car around and get your lights on. Next time pull up close to the curb and don't leave your car standing half way out in the street.'

" 'You have got your nerve bothering me when you know I am busy getting dinner. I am not coming down to turn the car around, and if you want the lights on, why don't be shy. Turn them on yourself.' And I hurried away to my neglected dinner.

"Before I could reach the kitchen the bell gave a more persistent ring. I marched right back and snapped open the tube.

" 'I have had enought of your orders now,' I cried. 'If you want the car turned around the keys are in the sidepocket. Help yourself. You can put on all the lights as far as I am concerned. Only it is too bad that the spotlight bulb is burned out. You will not be able to play with that.'

"With the feeling that I had handled my husband very neatly, I walked to the sunroom window to see what he would do.

"In a minute there was a determined pounding on the upstairs door. 'You are an inveterate tease, and a regular old nuisance,' I cried opening the door.

"There stood a burly six-foot policeman."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Child Labor Amendment.

Mr. Editor: Arthur Ouimet in a letter to The Bulletin of Oct. 21st states his opposition to the federal child labor amendment. He inquires, "Why in the name of common sense pass an amendment so the Constitution that will give power to congress to pass laws any one would admit would be silly and dangerous to our economic life?" Mr. Ouimet is referring to the so-called 18-year limit.

May we not make use of your columns to state to your readers as well as to Mr. Ouimet the reasons for such a wording of the amendment?

In the words of Senator Walsh of Montana, "The power is to be given to congress to point out particular vocations that will be injurious, and to enact legislation accordingly: but we are going to trust to congress to ascertain whether a particular employment is or is not injurious to the child. We have got to repose confidence in the judgment of congress."

The occupations to which Senator Walsh refers are many and varied and state laws, in a great many instances, are inadequate to deal with them. Twenty-seven states still allow children under 16 to work at such dangerous machines as circular or band saws, wood-working machinery, stamping machines, power printing machines etc.; 39 states allow children under 18 to oil, wipe or clean machinery in motion, and 13 states allow children under 16 to perform this work; 37 states allow children under 16 to work on scaffolding; 36 states allow children under 16 to work on railroads; 29 states allow children under 16 to run elevators, and 39 allow children under 18 to run elevators; 22 states have no laws whatever as regards the age limit for work in or around dangerous acids, poisonous gases, dyes, red or white lead, dust, etc. Space forbids the enumeration of other occupations in which state legislation for children is inadequate. The prohibition of these occupations to children is the first and best method of preventing accidents and occupational diseases.

Surely in the face of these facts Mr. Ouimet will not inquire further why congress should be given the power to regulate to the age of 18!

Sincerely yours,
JEAN MACALPINE HEER.

Johnson Sorely Needed His Tattering Job

When it was rumored that the Lester Boot & Shoe Company, of Lestershire, N. Y., was to close down permanently, the outlook was very dark for George F. Johnson.

For 20 years he had worked in shoe factories. His parents were poor and he had left school in his home town near Bosaon, at 13 and started to work for a shoe concern. Learning the shoemaker's trade he finally was earning $2.50 to $3 a day, which then was considered fair wages for a ten-hour day.

Gaining a greater reputation as a baseball player than as a shoeworker, he shone on the diamond. Weekend trips to Boston also took time and money. Able to borrow in advance from a fellow workman, he usually was nearly "broke" even on pay day.

Drifting from Massachusetts to New York state at 23 he finally obtained work in the Lester shop. He was considered just an ordinary workman at the bench treeing boots. He married, rented a little house and lived from pay day to pay day, never accumulating as much as $100. He bought an organ, but was taken from him because he could not keep up the payments.

So when there was possibility of the factory shutting down, Johnson's future looked gloomy.

H. B. Endicott went from Boston to save his interest in the company. When Johnson, touching his cap, asked what was to be done with the business, Endicott said it would probably be closed out because there was no one in the world who could make it succeed.

"I could. I could run it to make it pay," said Johnson.

And so earnest was his plea that he was made superintendent after promising to make the bankrupt concern pay its way within six months.

Soon seeing success ahead he bought a half-interest in the company giving his note to Endicott for $150,000, but was so poor that his partner had to furnish the documentary stamps.

The Endicott-Johnson firm made rapid strides from the start and became the world's largest boot and shoe concern. And Johnson's dealings with the 14,000 employees gave him the reputation of making the greatest human and economic success in the history of American industry.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

BREAKING DIPLOMATIC CORPS PRECEDENTS

"The recent promotion of Madame Alexandra Kollontai to be the full-fledged 'envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary' from Soviet Russia to Norway at the same time that Professor Timothy A. Sniddy is given a similar position in Washington, makes diplomatic history," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic. D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Madame Kollontai is the first feminine 'minister plenipotentiary' to enter the diplomatic corps," continues the bulletin, "since that specific position and body were recognized by the Congress of Vienna in 1815 and the follow-up Congress of Aix-la-Chappelle in 1818; and she is one of the very few women ever to become an envoy of a sovereign state. Catherine of Aragon is the most famous predecessor of Madame Kollontai, and she hardly deserves a similar classification. While she was Princess of Wales, her father, Ferdinand the Catholic, named her his ambassador to the court of Henry VII. It was a hollow honor, largely to increase her prestige with the English.

"Madame Kollontai is considered to have won her laurels by real work on behalf of her government while serving for the past two years as d'affaires in Norway. She successfully negotiated recognition of the two countries over Spitsbergen, and obtained an official Noregian guarantee of Soviet credit purchasing huge supplies of fish for Russia.

"The appointment of Professor Smiddy is somewhat less precedent-smashing. From the 16th century until the beginning of the 19th the component states of the so-called Holy Roman Empire sent envoys to foreign courts. The situation was not entirely parallel with that of the modern British 'Empire,' however, for the 'Holy Roman Emperor' was never represented by envoys—on the theory that his dignity was too great. The simultaneous existence now of an ambassador from an overstate and a minister minister from one of its component parts, sets a true precedent.

The growth of the diplomatic corps as an institution has been slow. Special envoys undoubtedly were sent from court to court of the earliest historic empires such as those of Egypt and Babylonia. Later in Grecian, Roman, and Byzantine days the practice was fairly common. But in all such cases, as far as history discloses, the messengers were sent to transact specific business and returned as soon as possible to report the results of their mission.

"In the west the Republic of Venice seems to have been the pioneer in the establishment of embassies. In the 12 and 13th centuries the terms of Venetian envoys were limited to two or three months. Strict rules hedged them round. Any gifts received from courts visited must be turned over to the republic and written reports had to be filed with the senate. In the 15th century the ambassadorial term was extended to a maximum of two years and in the 16th century to three years.

"The earliest record of the appointment of a resident ambassador—though probably this was not the first ambassador so appointed—was in regard to the sending in 1455 of an envoy from the Duke of Milan to reside at Genoa. One of the first permanent embassies outside Italy was created in 1494 when Milan sent a minister to take up his residence at the court of France. In the same year a Spanish ambassador went to reside in London. This is believed to be the oldest surviving diplomatic post in existence. By the second half of the 16th century resident embassies had become the normal means of intercourse between important countries.

"The term, 'ambassador,' was given to the world by Venice where it first appeared in the form, 'ambasiator' in a decree of 1368. At first there were no degrees among the envoys of states. The ambassador was considered the vicar of his sovereign and was received with royal honors and had to maintain a sort of little court. This became embarrassing both because of the expense and because it was a handicap in attending to business. The custom grew, therefore, of sending less important individuals as envoys or messengers. These, not hedged about by pomp, proved much more efficient agents. Later again it became customary to accord the rank of the envoy to the importance of the country sending or recieving him, and a gradation in representatives grew up."

Up today (Friday) Supt. John J. Corkery expects that the fifteen men working for Contractor Louis Petrosi on the 200-ft. cement core wall for the main dam at Stony Brook reservoir will have finished their work. Ten more men are engaged clearing up the watershed.

While about 249,000,000 gallons are impounded in the two Norwich reservoirs, the dry fall has left them at the lowest point ever reached. Consequently it is the part of wisdom, as well as patriotism, not to waste a drop of water while waiting for the rain, which cannot be long delayed.

As a delegate to the synod of the New England Province of the Episcopal church, held Tuesday and Wednesday at Worcester, Mass., with 75 present, Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, Norwich, was in attendance. There were four clerical and four lay delegates from each diocese.

TELLS NORWICH MEN METHODS TO ACHIEVE INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

Talk in the language of dollars and cents, find out what your city has to offer and then find out what industries will fit in with these advantages was the substance of the advice given by George C. Smith of Baltimore when he spoke upon Industrial Expansion before 150 men at the annual banquet of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce at 6.15 Thursday evening at the Wauregan house. Before industrial expansion could be expected, he said, it would probably be found that there were some local conditions to be corrected and he raised a burst of applause when he declared that in Norwich this meant a change in the tax system which he described as damnable and the cause of more than one industry being lost to this city.

The big gathering, which made the annual banquet one of the most successful that the chamber has held, opened the evening by singing America, led by Swahn's orchestra, and grace was said by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, concluding with the Lord's prayer chanted by the Lotus male quartette of Boston.

H. M. Lerou, the retiring president, presented the new president, Arthur E. Story, who briefly but earnestly spoke of the administration of his predecessor which had been marked by progress, development and results. Mr. Story bespoke for the current year the same cooperation that had been given in the past and said that he accepted the office in the spirit of community service.

He was greeted with prolonged applause as he was presented by Mr. Lerou. As Mr. Story had made a previous engagement for the evening he was unable to remain and Mr. Lerou continued as the presiding officer.

Well rendered selections by Swahn's orchestra and numbers by the Lotus quartette, one of the finest male quartettes ever heard in this city, were the musical features of the evening and were enthusiastically applauded.

The annual report of the chamber was distributed in printed form, and Chairman Lerou spoke briefly in addition to this in introducing Mr. Smith, who is connected with the Bureau of Industrial Expansion in Baltimore.

Mr. Lerou reminded the members that this was the fourth annual meeting since the reorganization of the chamber and the achievements had shown that this was well worth while. The activities had been many in the past four years in service for the membership and for the community. The improvement of the road at Williams crossing, the repairs to the Colchester road and participation in educational activities were some of the things he mentioned as achievements in that time and the reorganization of the chamber, he said, has enabled them to engage a full time secretary who had wrought wonders for the community. (Applause.)

In conclusion Mr. Lerou said that if any good had been accomplished for the community he would feel amply repaid for any time that he had given in his two years as president.

Baltimore Man Speaks

Introduced by Mr. Lerou, Mr. Smith spoke humorously of some experience in his travels in meeting a Norwich man and went on to say that the building of a community industrially is not so hard, but is a matter of cooperation and earnest effort in a given direction. Baltimore, he said, was favored with some natural advantages which Norwich did not have ,but this city has some enterprises that he would be glad to take to Baltimore. Norwich is favored in the diversity of its enterprises. It is not dependent upon one kind and its business life will not rise and fall with one. He spoke of four attempts in Baltimore that had failed to advance the city industrially but said that in 1919 the industrial bureau had been organized and as a result of its methods more than sixteen million in outside canital had been brought in in four years, bank resources had increased three fold and the population was growing faster than any city in the east. A new vision had been brought to the business community.

The question is whether we are satisfied with a complacent community or whether we want to get into the active competition of modern life. If you want a quickened business life there is no quicker way than to build your industrial payrolls. It is possible to build up a community industrially and not hurt the moral tone of that community. How can you sell a community to an industry? You have got first to find what your city has to offer to industry and then what industries are in the best economic position to fit into what you have to offer. In the past it is the fact that industries have been located by preudice and not through economic forces. As an example are the textiles in New England, automobile manufacturing in Detroit, and the tire industry in Akron. But economic forces have played an important part in the success of industries.

Find out what your labor conditions are, continued Mr. Smith, what you have to offer in living conditions for labor, what markets are accessible and what raw materials you can reach. Study what particular business fits into the economic structure of the community. Big business is seeking locations, the places to assemble raw material, to manufacture and to distribute at the lowest cost. If this is true, isn't it worth while for us to find out what our economic condition is, what the living conditions are, what transportations we have and what about public utilities that can carry a heavier load? Develop a consciousness of industrial value and support of local enterprises. Grow both from the inside out and from the outside in. You can't guarantee results, but you can keep fighting for them and develop the community spirit, but don't expect the secretary of the chamber of commerce to do it all. Every member should keep in mind industrial expansion for his city. You may have to get a good many prospects before you get an industry, but one industry is worth a good many prospects.

In reply to a question that was asked him about taxation in Baltimore, Mr. Smith said that there was no tax on the personal property of manufacturing plants, the machinery equipment or stock in trade. There was no tax on the machinery of production, but there was a re-assessment of real estate every five years. Don't invite a new industry in and tax it on the 1924 rate of value while you are paying on a valuation of 1883. You have a damnable tax rate and situation here and you as business men ought to clean it up.

Mr. Smith was loudly applauded and after Chairman Lerou had thanked the speakers, the musicians and the committee for the programme of the evening the meeting came to an end with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

MANY VISITORS AT TROY STEAM LAUNDRY

So far this week at least 500 women have visited the Troy Steam Laundry on Franklin street. This is Visitors' Week in the laundry and F. Russell Smith, proprietor, and his assistants, have been kept busy conducting the visitors through the plant.

The visitors are first taken to the lower floor of the laundry where the clothing, collars, linen, etc., are received for washing. The new Thermo Vento Tumbler, recently installed, and which does feather pillows and heavy blankets, is attracting considerable attention and much favorable comment from the visitors. The uses of the various styles of washing machines are explained in more or less detail. The method of handling family washes is also explained.

After inspecting the lower floor the visitors are escorted through the main floor where the ironing, folding, sewing on of missing buttons and wrapping is done. All the fancy froning is done on this floor by hand electric irons operated by eight women.

Those who have visited the plant have remarked on the absolute cleanliness of the laundry and on the modern methods and machinery used. Each woman who visits the laundry is presented a dainty apron by the management.

LIONS WILL WORK FOR DIRECTION SIGNS

With Secretary Edward C. Carpenter in the chair the Lions club held its weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by Rev. Robert B. Day. During the business session Louis J. Fontaine was appointed a committee to work in conjunction with committees from the Rotary club and Chamber of Comemrce relative to the locating of direction signs in the city.

The following were appointed a committee to co-operate with committees of the Rotary club and Chamber of Commerce in raising funds for the Armistice Day celebration: Charles Frink, Harlow Bogue, Frank Rinella, Rudolph Henschell and Earl Taggart. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

WATCH GLARING HEADLIGHTS AMONG FOOTBALL CROWD

Automobilists who start out for the Yale-Army football game in New Haven tomorrow without making sure their headlights conform to the law will do so at the risk of being temporarily stranded in the neighborhood of the Yale Bowl, if police authorities cooperate in a plan suggested by the state motor vehicle department to all local departments throughout the state and the state police.

The suggestion has been made in a letter sent out by Commissioner Stoeckel in which enforcement of the headlight regulations without delay is requested. This will apply not only to the lenses used by to proper focusing, as the department recently issued a bulletin pointing recently issued tomobile lamp with legal lens might still be a menace if not properly focused. The state police will not hesitate to stop a car with glaring headlights to examine the lamps and adjustments and, as sufficient warning is deemed to have been given, arrests will be made wherever warranted, and the automobiles held up until the headlights have been brought into conformity with the regulations.

"The condition of the lighting system of a car is of more importance just now than at any time of the year," says the motor vehicle department's letter to the police. "The volume of traffic has not yet begun to diminish; the roads are crowded at night. The percentage of glaring headlights is larger than it has been even during the summer, and there are more one-light cars running."

Upwards of 40,000 automobiles are expected to pass through various sections of Connecticut tomorrow in going to and from the Yale-Army game and, in addition to the local police supervision in their respective jurisdictions, a motorcycle squad of over fifty state policemen will be assigned to state highway patrol work.

Traffic regulations will be strictly enforced to avoid congestion, confusion and accidents. The state police will distribute to automobile parties cards urging extreme caution.

"By maintaining a reasonable average speed, having regard to the width of the highway, volume of traffic and weather conditions.

"By refraining from passing or cutting-in on the vehicle ahead. Passing on a curve at the top of a hill or where sight line is obstructed is illegal and will be prsecuted.

"By keeping to the right of the center line of the highway.

"By having your brakes, headlights and other equipment in good order.

"By giving the proper and distinct signal when stopping or changing direction

"By parking your car completetly off the traveled portion of the highway whenever it is necessary to stop.

"By obeying the officer's signals and directions.

"By following the arrow signs to the Bowl upon reaching the city of New Haven."

Those who plan to go to the game by automobile are encouraged to start out early to co-operate in a movement to thin down the traffic by spreading it over a longer period.

TAKES APPEAL IN LIQUOR LAW CASES

In the city court Thursday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby on the bench, Nicholas Lombarella, 24, of No. 157 Franklin street was fined $200 and costs and given 30 days in jail on a charge of selling liquor. An appeal was taken to the court of common pleas and Lombarella was released on bonds of $1,000. Lombarella has just been released from jail where he served a 10 day sentence for violation of the liquor law. The second chrage grew out of an investigation made two days previous to his arrest on the first charge.

John Belloni and Thomas Depolito of No. 157 Franklin street were each fined $200 and costs and sent to jail for 30 days. They entered pleas of not guilty to the liquor charges against them. The fines were paid and the two were taken to jail to serve their sentences.

Max Szakalum, proprietor of a grocery store at the corner of Ninth and North Main streets, was fined $200 and costs and given a 10 day jail sentence for violation of the liquor law. He appealed to the court of common pleas and was released under bonds.

SEVEN TICKETS ON THE VOTING MACHINES

Seven tickets are on the voting machines in this city this year, appearing in the following order from top to bottom: Republican, democratic, socialist, socialist labor, La-Follette-Wheeler progressive, workers and prohibition.

The republicans, democrats and socialists have full lists of candidates, national, state and local. The socialist-labor has only the national and state candidates with a candidate for congressman and no local ticket. The so-called progressives have only the presidential electors on their ticket, while the workers, which are understood to be the communists have only a state ticket. The prohibitionists have one one candidate to vote for on their ticket, the representative in congress.

PEOPLE ARE OBEYING THE BAN ON HUNTING

With the ban on all hunting proclaimed by Gov. Charles A. Templeton now four days old, the deputies working in this district under County Fish and Game Warden Robert B. Chappell have yet to record their first arrest for violation of the governor's order.

Hunters apparently have comprehended the spirit in which the order was issued and are acting in accordance with the order in the realization of the necessity of the preservation of the forests and elimination of fire hazards during the present drouth.

That the suspension of hunting ordered by Governor Templeton makes no exceptions to owners of hunting grounds is evidenced by the following statement received by Mr. Chappell Thursday morning from J. W. Titcomb, superintendent of the state board of fisheries and game:

"The proclamation of the governor suspending the hunting season is far-reaching, in that it suspends all trapping. It means that no hunting or trapping is allowed even when a man wants to hunt or trap on his own land. In other words, conditions are the same as if there were no open season whatever, but it goes even farther, in that it is unlwaful to hunt or trap unprotected quadrupeds like foxes."

Mr. Chappell said that he was in hearty accord with the assertion of Ira Comstock that autoists like hunters are often responsible for forest fires. Sunday, Mr. Chappell said, Deputy Game Warden Watson reported finding three fires started by people out getting nuts.

Having possession of pelts of fur-bearing animals is as much a violation of the law under the present ban as it would be when the animals are ordinarily out of season, Mr. Chappell pointed out, and violators of the ban in this regard will be prosecuted the same as others.

ACADEMY ELEVEN WILL CLASH WITH WESTERLY HIGH THIS AFTERNOON

The Westerly football team invades Norwich today for its second contest of the season with Red and White. The Academy eleven is planning to receive the visitors with a hot reception. As the first meeting of these teams resulted in a scoreless tie, both teams are out to prove their superiority over the other.

Hard scrimmages during the week have put the home team in great condition. Coach Aitkens has schooled his men in a fast running game which has been developed during last week and which may upset the aspirations of the Westerly eleven. The locals went three a light signal drill of 30 minutes yesterday as a windupe in practice and await only the referee's whistle to start hostilities with thus "Little Rody" rivals.

There is much talk and excitament in the student body as to the outcome of the game. A large crowd promisses to be out and they surely will be treated to a good football game.

COLLEGE HARRIERS IN RACE ON SATURDAY

New York, Oct. 30.—Hill and Dale runners of the east's leaving universities are preparing for the first major event of the crosscountry season Saturday. Athletes representing Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania will match their speed and stamina over the Van Cortland Park course which also will be the scene of the intercollegiate championships November 24.

All four universities have veteran material and their relative showings are expected to give the first definite line on their chances in the title a few weeks later.

Cornell, which has won 17 of the 24 team championships held since 1899, is out this season to regain prestige lost during the last two seasons, when the Orange of Syracuse has flashed to the fore. Jack Moakley has a veteran leader in Ed Kirby, new national half mile champion and member of the Olympic team, and is reported to have collected a strong array of Harriers.

Columbia, with most of the members of its 1923, team, which finished second to Syracuse in the championships, is likely to be a favorite Saturday. The Blue and White has never won Titular Cross-Country honors but may break through this season if bright early season prospects are fulfilled.

HERRUPS WANT ONE MORE GAME WITH MOOSUP TEAM

The Herrups, of Hartford, one of the fastest semi-pro baseball teams in Connecticut would like one more game before the season becomes too cold and the uniform must be packed away in the moth-balls. They would like to close the season with a last game with Henry Loughan's Moosup town team next Sunday afternoon at Moosup. To make the game attractive Manager Ken Barnard says that he will play Moosup either on a 60-40 basis or on a proposition of $200 if they win and nothing if they lose.

The Herrups have played good ball this season winning two out of three from the State Hospital, beaten the Willimantic Thread team and lost twice to Moosup.

YALE STILL WITHOUT FULL NUMBER OF REGULARS

New Haven, Oct. 30.—The Yale varsity football team was forced to go through another day's practice today without its regular field general, Eddie Beinch, quarterback, still being out of the game with muscle bruises, received in last Saturday's battle against Brown. There is some doubt whether he will be able to start the game against the Army next Saturday.

Captain Lovejoy, center, and Dick Luman, end, who were kept on the bench yesterday, were back in their regular places today and went through both the scrimmage and the signal drill. The coaches put the teams through a sharp twenty minute scrimmage this afternoon. Bingham was in his regular position at end, Butterworth and Joss held down the tackle posts, Sturhahn and Wortham were in as guards, Bunnell directed the team at quarter while Pond, Allen and Cottle were behind the line. Failing, who has been laid up for some time with bronchitis, was back at the field this afternoon, seemingly in good shape, and went in for Cottle about half of the scrimmage. Cottle will probably start the game Saturday but may be replaced by Failing before the final whistle blows. The varsity made two touchdowns in the scrimmage today, both by Pond.

The plans for tomorrow call for a short signal drill only for the varsity. The entire team, with the exception of Bench, is in good physical condition. The Army team does not arrive until Saturday.

In addition to the regular staff of coaches, Ted Lilley, who was tackle in 1908, was at the field today.

Other dates fixed by the commission for 1925 were: Grand Prix, Indianapolis, May 30; France's Grand Prix for touring cars, Montlerly Autodrome, July 19; France's Grand Prix for speed cars, Montlerly Autodrome, July 26; Italian Grand Prix, Monza, Italy, Sept. 6; St. Sebastian Grand Prix for touring cars, Sept. 14, and for speed cars, Sept. 15.

FOOTBALL WORLD PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO DEAN OF COACHES, PERCY HAUGHTON

Boston, Oct. 30.—The funeral today of Percy D. Haughton, founder of a football system at Harvard college, coach of that game at Harvard, Cornell and Columbia, and a man of many activities in the field of sport as player, coach and executive, was marked by the simplest of services. The congregation that filled St. Paul's Cathedral was representative of many interests of the man whom they mourned, players who mhe had guided to greatness, mothers of men who had been the better for his coaching, deans and delegations from colleges that he had served, classmates at Harvard, fellow officers in the army, friends of high social standing, associates in business ane in professional baseball. These were present, seated behind or above his family.

The altar from which Bishop William Lawrence head the simple sentences, Psalms and prayers of the Episcopal burial service, assisted by Rev. Shrrard Billings of Groton, was banked with flowers. It seemed that all the colleges of the east had sent their tributes to the man who put the game of football on a new plane, and a score or more of the men who played under Haughton at Harvard, Cornell and Columbia, added floral tributes to their presence.

Yale A. A. trustees and faculty at Columbia, Harvard '99 (his class), Columbia university football squad, from which death removed him as coach, Needham post, American Legion, Holy Cros A. A., Tufts A. A., Fordham A. A., Colgate A. A., Harvard Varsity club, Boston university, Harvard A. A., Cornell football team, University of Pennsylvania Varsity club, American Football Coaches' association, the Boston National League club, Christy Mathewson, president, (of which Haughton was the head for several years); Harvard clubs in many places, Princeton A. A., the Harvard coaching staff, the Harvard Varsity team, and "The Surviving Members of the Football Group of Seven," were a few of those who sent flowers.

This "group of seven" names that are immortal in Harvard football history, has been said by Haughton to be "the halo of my football career."

Members of the class of 1915, who won positions in their freshman team and never relinquished them in four years of play, they sent "with deepest sympathy and in loving memory of their three years of wonderful association and inspiration," a large spray of Jack roses. The card bore the signatures Charles E. Brickley, Huntington R. Harwick, Wallace H. Trumbull, T. Jefferson Coolidge, F. J. Bradlee, Jr., and Malcolm J. Logan. The seventh member of the group, Stanley J. Pennock, has died.

As honorary pall bearers, Robert J. Fisher, who succeeded Haughton as head coach at Harvard, and Dr. Paul Withington, who succeeds him at Columbia, served with others who were associated with him in college on the gridiron or in business. A surpliced choir chanted hymns, "The Strife is O'er," "Now the Laborers Task Is Done," "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand."

There was no eulogy, but Bishop Lawrence, in reading prayers from a position at the head of the bier and between the choir stalls selected five prayers as most appropriate. In the procession, the American flag was carried after the clergy and before the bier in observance of Major Haughton's World war service.

At Mount Auburn cemetery in Cambridge, a short distance from Soldiers' Field and the Stadium where as player and coach Haughton gained fame in baseball and football, interment was made in the family lot. The simple committal services were read by Rev. Mr. Billings. There was no football drill today for the Harvard or the Columbia teams, out of respect to their former coach, and each of the universities sent official delegations to the services.

The Baltic Wanderers and Bantams basketball teams have been organized for the season with the following committee: Peter Robertaille, Harry Collins, Alfred Peloquin and George Sullivan, who have elected Peter Robertaille, chairman; Harry Collins, manager; Alfred Peloquin, assistant manager and secretary.

The first general practice was held last Monday night when the following turned out: Willis Ridgeway, Walter Coady, Fargo Robertaille, Walter Charron, Adelard Simoneau, Walter Robertaille, Chick Andrews, Arnold Sewart, Bugler Rondeau, Slim Creaupeau and Blond Phillips.

The manager of the Wanderers would be glad to hear from first class basketball teams for engagements in Baltic and out of town and from smaller teams for preliminary games with the Bantams.

"HUDDLE SYSTEM" BEING DROPPED BY COLLEGES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 30.—The "huddle system" of calling football signals, which has aroused eastern members of the rules committee to demand legislation this winter against it is only a fad, in the opinion of many western conference officials, and is even now falling into the discard. Eastern officials say it makes the referee's job more difficult because it is so hard to tell if all players are motionless when the ball is snapped.

Its chief value, western football referees say, is its apparent similarity to the original and famous "Minnesota shift," which stood the football world on its head twenty years ago. It is said to have been used first in a regular varsity contest by Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois, ten years ago, but for many years before that it was a common custom in practice scrimmage where both varsity and scrubs knew all the signals and some secrecy was important.

"The huddle system produces the unbalanced line of the shift play," Major John L. Griffith, athletic director of the western conference said today. "But its disadvantages are becoming more and more apparent. It will soon, I believe, be almost entirely abandoned, without any rule against it.

"Its great defect is that it makes eleven quarterbacks instead of one, to decide on the best play, and that is bad generalship. Also, it completely ignores the defensive alignment, as the players jump into place and snap the ball, without sizing up their opponents' positions.

"It is widely used, but many coaches are dropping it, except where cheering from the stands might make the signals difficult for all the players to catch.

"Coach Rockne of Notre Dame had used with great success this fall, against all eastern teams, a puzzling backfield shift without the 'huddle system' while opposing linesmen are trying to see what the backfield is doing. Rockne's linesmen plunge into them, catching them off guard.

"Western football, in intersectional games this fall, has demonstrated another element of superiority over eastern systems. In moving out of the defensive end to play opposite the tackle, or even out bevond him. Times without number, the eastern-coached tackle had been drawn into that apparent hole, only to be 'boxed' by the defensive end exactly as planned. The widespread offensive line is one of the west's best contributions to advancement of the game, and is a further indication that the west is taking the lead in making the play more open, and therefore less dangerous to players and more interesting to spectators. The west also leads the east in development of the forward pass, using it less frequently, but far more effectively."

STEAM ROLLERS TO PLAY SUB BASE ON SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 31.—The Providence Steam Rollers, recognized champions of New England will act as host to the blue Submarine Base football eleven at Kinsley Park Sunday afternoon. Expecting resistence of the stiffest kind, a thoroughly prepared navy eleven will make its intial bow in Providence this season. But it will be far from the last, for Providence College has also booked the "Playing Gobs" for a game in the capitol city of Little Rhody.

Realizing the importance of the Sunday game, Head Coach Lieutenant Craig, to whom much of the present success of the Base team can be attributed because of his finished football methods, he employs to get results from the gobs, has driven his eleven harder than usual in the past several days. While there is considerable chance for improvement over the game with the U. S. S. Wyoming on Monday, yet it proved one thing that has been lacking in Base tactics for years back. It was the efficient use of the overhead game, and this dangerous method of advancing the oval will enter conspicuously in the remaining contests from present indications.

But the Steam Roller eleven is by no means a team of meodicre ability. The linup harbors nearly all former college grid stars and the teams which have made the invasion of the Roller eleven or rather tried to make an invasion, were flattened like the insignificant pebble is flattened in the street by the real steam roller. No matter what resistence the gobs offer the Rollers, once that sharp shooting backfield gets into action it is over and another has succumbed to a defeat. The Roller victories this season are many and numerous, and it is without a single doubt that the Providence outfit is on the right path for its second year as the dean of all professional football teams in New England.

Included in the Steam Roller lineup will be a former Base back field star who has since graduated to the higher ranks of pro football, by hooking up up with the fast and seemingly unbeatable Providence outfit. This player is Clark, who was a star with the Base for the past two years, and from all reports carrying from Providence he is likely to start against the Whaling aggregation. He will be particularly watched with the closeness of a hawk watching a prey which it is about to seize. His ability on the gridiron can not be underestimated, and the local gobs intend to watch him carefully all afternoon.

So when the gobs depart for our neighboring state on Sunday morning, all will depart in the same determined spirit which seems to prevail at the government institution this week. Regardless of the fact that scouts from Providence College will be on hand to watch the local gobs perform, all the plays will be unleashed from the brainy head of indefatigable Baldy Locke. An inspiration to his team, Baldy Locke has proven to be the best backfield player among the navy backfield. Much of the line plunging will depend on him and Bunny O'Hare.

WINDHAM RANKS WITH LEADING HIGH SCHOOLS

Willimantic, Oct. 30.—Recognition as one of the leading high school teams of the state for Coach T. A. Callaghan's Windham eleven hinges upon the outcome of the game at Bristol Saturday afternoon. The Crimson and Blue's record has surpassed that of any scholastic aggregation in the state so far this seasin. Undefeated since 1922, the local gridiron this year will have recorded 162 points in their five games this season while they have whitewashed their five opponents, Stonington, Westerly, Killing, Middletown and Weaver. With such an impressive record, Windham's representatives have been omitted from the unbeaten Connecticut which is hardly fair.

Coach Callaghan devoted his time Wednesday to pointing out the faults in individual play. A strenuous workout took place and the varsity shaped up admirably. Thursday another scrimmage was held and today the squad will be drilled in signal play so that when the team lines up against Bristol High this coming week end it should be well fortified for anything in the way of a surprise which Bristol may present.

Saturday's game will be the last away from home for the season. The following week, the locals play Chapman Tech in this city while they conclude their season on November 15th, receiving the South Manchester warriors. Of the three, this coming Saturday's game is conceeded the most difficult test and providing Coach Callaghan's proteges come through in successful fashion as they should they undoubtedly face 1925 with a clear slate.

The value of interference play in teamwork is being forcibly impressed on the squad by Coach Callaghan and already a noticeable improvement is being noted in that respect.

RADIO ANTENNAS NOT PROTECTIVE IN LIGHTNING

Washington, Oct. 30.—Radio antennas are not an effective protection against lightning, according to the bureau of standards. On the other hand their limited extent prevents them from becoming a menace from that source.

Being classed with other metal objects about a house, such as gutters and spouts, radio antennas, the bureau said today, need not "be considered as potential inviters of lightning strokes," if they are properly grounded and provided with a lightning arrestor they may effect a gradual drainage of electricity as well as a lightning rod, the bureau found, but a direct stroke is likely to fuse them or tear them from their fastenings on account of their small diameter.

GOV. TEMPLETON ENDORSES FORGET-ME-NOT-DAY

Hartford, Oct. 30.—Commander Howard T. Barr, of the Connecticut department of the disabled American veterans has received a letter from Governor Templeton endorsing "forget-me-not-day" on Saturday November 1. The governor said: "The purpose of 'forget-me-not-day' appeals to me strongly. When this country saw its duty and entered the World war, four million men gave what they had to give, fully and freely. Of this vast army, some never returned. Some were so fortunate as to escape inury altogether But many still bear marks of wounds or sickness. To these men our hearts go out in grateful remembrance. I hope that the people of Connecticut will respond liberally to the appeal of 'forget-me-not-day.'"

FRANK THOMAS, ALLEGED WIFE MURDERER, SUICIDES

Belvidere, N. J., Oct. Oct.—On the eve of the day he was to have been charged with the murder of his wife, Frank Thomas ended his life in the Warren county jail here by hanging from the grating of the detention room.

His wife, Grace, detectives say, was shot to death as she slept in her little Glen Gardner home Sunday night and then her body, only scantily clad, taken to an old mine shaft near Oxford and there hidden by burlap bags containing the woman's clothing and bullet torn and bloodstained bed coverings.

The husband was questioned immediately after the discovery by a school boy and placed in a cell as a material witness. The prisoner used a pair of suspenders to end his life.

FOSTER SETS ANOTHER RECORD IN LEAGUE

Mike Foster, super-bowler of Eastern Connecticut, hung up another record in the Industrial league Thursday evening when he hit 380 for a three string total. Foster set the record last week and then last evening broke it. His "wrong-foot-front" delivery is the wonder of the bowling fans but Foster for all his awkward and freakish contortions gets there just the same and it is a good man that can beat him. The scores of the Industrial league follow:

TO ERECT MEMORIAL TO FRANK CHANCE

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Frank Chance, one of the great players and leaders of organized baseball, who died recently after a lingering illness on the Pacific coast, is to be honored by the erection of a fitting memorial to his skill as a player and his genius as a leader of the old-time pennant winning Chicago Cubs. It was so decided today by the board of directors at the club who met in annual session.

Chance, known as the "Peerless leader," led the Cubs to many National league pennants and two world's championships.

At the time of his death, "The Peerless Leader" was manager of the Chicago White Sox of the American league, but due to poor health never was able to assume charge of the club.

As a member of the "old school," Chance started his career as a catcher for the Cubs on the old West Side grounds. Later he was shifted to first base, at which position he became one of the greatest first sackers and hitters the game has ever known. He was a member of that famous double play combination of "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance." He succeeded Frank Selee as manager of the club, and for a number of years remained at the helm.

Under the regime of Charles W. Murphy, Chance subsequently retired from the game, only to return a few years later as leader of the New York Yankees. Afterward he assumed the reins of the Boston Red Sox, but being in ill-health he returned to the Pacific coast. He was induced by President Charles Comiskey of the White Sox to accept the leadership of the American League club, but his health would not permit it. He returned to the coast this spring after witnessing one game at the Sox park, and his death occurred a short time ago.

In addition, the directors approved the financial statement of the treasurer, voting confidence in the old officers, who were re-elected. William Veech continues as president and treasurer; John O. Seys, as secretary, and William M. Walker, vice president. William Wrigley, Jr., continues as chairman of the executive committee.

The signed contract of William Killefer as manager for 1925, to succeed himself, also was approved. The directors announced that the work of the Cubs under his leadership in the past two seasons was entirely satisfactory.

SALE OF "LOONEY GAS" IS PROHIBITED IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 30.—Gasoline containing tetra-ethyl, the mysterious "looney gas" compound may no longer be sold in New York city. The board of health today adopted a resolution prohibiting the sale after the death of the fifth of the 32 laborers affected by the fumes while experimenting with the mixture in the Bayway, N. J., laboratories of the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey.

The health board also made it a misdemeanor for anyone to use the gasoline in motors in the city.

Herbert Fuson, 29, of Elizabeth, N. J., was the fifth man to succumb to the gas poisoning, which has made its victims insane. He died early today, a few hours after the corps of Standard Oil physicians and scientists seeking a successful treatment of the baffling malady had announced their quest successful.

A few hours after Fuson's death 11 more gas-crazed men were taken to the reconstruction hospital. This brought the total of those affected to 33 out of the 45 who were employed in the laboratories.

SCHOOLBOY MURDERER TO BE SENTENCED TODAY

Ellsworth, Me., Oct. 30.—Roland McDonald, 15 year old Amherst schoolboy, will be sentenced tomorrow for the murder last May of his school teacher, Miss Louise Gerrish. A jury in Hancock county supreme court after two hours' deliberation today, found the boy guilty of first degree murder. The penalty for this crime in Maine is life imprisonment.

Young McDonald showed no trace of emotion when the verdict was announced, but later on the way back to his cell in the custody of an officer he appeared on the point of a breakdown. His parents, who had attended every session of the trial, wept as the foreman told Justice Charles J. Dunn the finding of the jury.

Americans are their best customers and during the summer the drivers are able to make a surplus that takes them over the lean winter months, when their airy and slow vehicles can not combat the present day taxi.

Firemen stand the heat better than lean ones, the bureau of mines has established, through experiments in a specially constructed chamber at Pittsburgh. The fat men, the bureau found, lost more weight when subjected to uncomfortably hot temperatures, but they were less exhausted when they were relieved. In a state of rest and in still air, the experiments disclosed, the human body can not endure indefinitely a temperature higher than 90 degrees Fahrenheit with 100 per cent relative humidity. Pulse rate, rather than rise in bodily temperature, it was discovered, apparently determines the extent of discomfort in high temperatures. Subjects became very uncomfortable when the pulse reached 35 pulsations a minute, and unbearable symptoms appeared at 180. The highest pulse rate recorded was 184.

HALLOWE'EN

Little black witches on little black broomsticks,
Big golden pumpkins fresh from the vine,
Rosy red apples to bob for in water,
Here and there candles that glimmer and shine.

Far on the wind comes a strain of low music,
The elves are a-dancing, their garments are green.
An owl in a tall tree is solemnly hooting,
He's telling the world that tonight's Hallowe'en.

Slowly the moon's creeping up through the pine tree,
Darker the shadows, more weird grows the scene,
Surely the fate of all maids will be forecast,
Their future be settled, on this Hallowe'en.

PHOENIXVILLE

At the meeting of the Phoenixville society, Saturday evening, the bounds of the Community were voted to extend to the town limits. The general tendency in the past has been to consider the building given by Mr. McNair to the society as a strictly Phoenixville building only residents of said village being eligible to be members of the society to whom the building belonks. But the unanimous vote taken Saturday evening widens the limitations to town boundary lines, so that it permits all residents of the town to be eligible to membership. This vote was taken to motivate the general activities and to give larger scope to the usefullness of the building. This is a non-denominational gift presented to the community, which the society formed has now unanimously voted to consider of town limit. This will greatly help to develop the religious and social life of the town, and Eastford has no public town hall and used the Congregational chapel as a kind of general public building. The Phoenixville society will be greatly increased in number at the next secretary appointed at the last meeting and there is none and will be none.

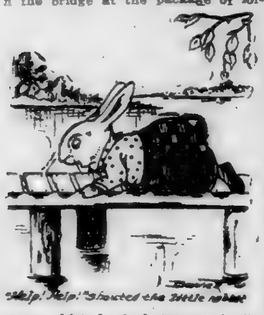
LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Sticky Lollypops

"Help, help!" shouted the unhappy little rabbit peeking through a crack in the bridge at the package of lollypops which he had dropped in the last story. But there was no one in sight. No one he could see, I mean.



"Help! Help!" shouted the little rabbit.

"Goodness me, what's the maater?" asked a big Black Spider from her web under the railing.

"I've dropped my bag of lollypops," sobbed the bunny boy, pointing down to the bag of candy, suddenly caught by an overhanging bush, close to the water's edge.

"Don't cry," answered the kind spider. "I'll slide down my rope and bring it up to you." And, would you next minute down she went like a fireman on a brass pole or a sailor boy on a rope, and, running along the branch, carefully picked up the bag of lollypops. Then, up she came climbing hand over hand, although I won't say for certain, until, not the least bit out of breath, she reached the top of the railing.

"Oh, thank you, Mrs. Spider," cried the happy bunny boy. "Maybe some day I'll be able to help you."

"Never mind about that," answered the Kind Lady Spider. "Just help your mother every day before you run outdoors to play. Now, hop along or you'll be late for supper."

As soon as the bunny boy, happy now that he had his lollypops, reached the Shady Forest he sat down beneath the tree. Dear me, when he opened the package, the three lollypops were stuck together,—stuck so tight that he was afraid he'd break the little sticks to pull them apart

"Now what shall I do?" he asked himself, hunting through his pockets for his knife. But he had left it again sighed the bunny boy, licking one end of the sticky mass with his tiny tongue. "I wish I could make three lollypops out of this big stickery one."

"I'll help you," said a voice all of a sudden, and down from the tree fluttered Mr. Woodpecker. "Do you like them all one at a time and then all acetther?" he asked, squinting up one eye.

"No, no, no," quickly answered the bunny boy. "I dropped them in the water. If Mrs. Spider hadn't been near I guess some pretty mermaid would now be having a feast. Mermaids must love lollypops. All little girls do."

"Never saw a mermaid," replied Mr. Woodpecker. "But I can help you if you wish. But why isn't one big stickery, lickery lollypop just as good, or even betaer, than three little ones?"

"Because I want to give one to Mother," answered the bunny boy. "The pretty pink one. She looks prittier sucking a pink lollypop than a yellow one."

"Goodness gracious, you're a strange little bunny," exclaimed Mr. Woodpecker. "I'm a good carpenter and my chisel bill will soon make three lollypops out of this big one."

THE NET DEBT

When the last Democratic administration (Simeon E. Baldwin, governor, came into office in 1911, the net debt of the state of Connecticut was ..... $ 3,837,523.73

When it went out of office in 1915, the net debt had been increased to 10,961,272.03

Since 1915, we have gone through a war, rising costs, and a period of deflation, which affected the state the same as any other business administration, and yet successive Republican administrations have brought the net debt at the close of the fiscal year 1924, down to 1,466,668.42

AND, ON OCTOBER 1, 1924, A BALANCE IS SHOWN ON THE BOOKS OF THE STATE TREASURER —THERE IS NO DEBT SHOWN.

SUMMARY: In four years, Democratic administrations ADDED TO the state's net debt 7,123,748.30

In nine years, Republican administrations have REDUCED the state's net debt, until now the debt has been wiped out!

THE FUNDED DEBT

When expenses are greater than receipts, or when extraordinary expenses must be met, governmental institutions issue bonds to meet the emergency.

When the last Democratic administration came into office in 1911, the funded debt of the state (or bonded debt) was 2,894,100.00

During the four years that the Democratic administration was in office, expenses ran higher than receipts, and the funded debt grew to 11,064,100.00

Under subsequent Republican administrations, since 1915, through the war period, including $2,000,000.00 in bonds which had to be issued immediately in 1915 to clean up deficiencies left by the outgoing Democrats, and including $2,500,000.00 expended by the Republicans for the Soldiers' Relief Fund, the funded debt today is 16,291,100.00

SUMMARY: In four years, Democratic administrations added to the state's funded debt 8,170,000.00

In nine years, after cleaning up Democratic deficiencies allowing two and a half millions for Soldiers' Relief, and paying for the extraordinary expenses incident to the war and the period of depression following it, Republican administrations have added but 5,227,000.00

THE SINKING FUND

Sound management in governmental affairs is demonstrated by the manner in which provision is made to ultimately pay off bonded indebtedness.

When the last Democratic administration went out of office, it had added over eight million dollars to the funded debt, (as above) and had made NO PROVISION WHATEVER for payment of this debt.

When Republican administration of the state came back in 1915, a sinking fund was established, to take care of the bonded indebtedness.

In 1916, this sinking fund was 507,551.86

Since then, Republican administrations have kept adding to this fund until it is now 11,756,545.67

The amount of this sinking fund, with its interest, will PAY OFF all outstanding funded indebtedness, when that indebtedness comes due!

SUMMARY: During the Democratic administrations, the bonded indebtedness was increased about 400% and NOT ONE CENT provided for ultimate payment.

Since 1915, a reserve of $11,750,000.00 has been provided by Republican administrations, which will pay off ENTIRELY, the bonded, or funded debt.

ANNUAL DEFICITS AND SURPLUSES

During the four years of Democratic administration, a treasury deficit was generally the rule. For instance:

In 1913, the annual deficit was 3,615,812.04

In 1914, the annual deficit was 2,467,603.71

After adjusting themselves to after-the-war conditions, the Republicans, since 1921 have showed annual surpluses each year. For instance:

In 1922, the annual surplus was 356,924.44

In 1923, the annual surplus was 1,016,300.58

In 1924, the annual surplus was 955,671.52

SUMMARY: Annual deficits in the treasurer's reports—were the rule when the Democrats were in power. Annual balances, surpluses, are the rule now, with Republicans in power.

*The $2,500,000.00 Soldiers' Relief Fund, according to the act authorizing it, is invested in Liberty Bonds which belong to the state. The income goes toward the relief of dependent soldiers and their families. The principal is an asset of the state.

The townsmen have been relieved regarding the mystery of the new business plant near the Keir Service store. Some believed it to be a new garage but were relieved when it proves to be a simanizing station. The two local boys had the public guessing for the past week.

The detour of the Plainfield-Jewett City highway certainly is a dangerous trap and motorists are taking the highway to Packerville to Jewett City, rather than face the possibilities of being wrecked. The automobile owners of the town are daily complaining, but conditions remain unchanged. The trap, as the motorists call it, is patrolled from seven in the morning until eleven at night but the heaviest traffic through the highway is after the dances and shows and at six in the morning, when the farmers are driving through.

A dance was given by the Community House Dance committee Thursday night, many out of town young people were present. The hall was effectively decorated. Harry Armour's orchestra from Worcester furnished music.

The A&P store has moved to its new location.

Jacob Weschler was a business caller in Hartford Thursday.

Says Dandruff Causes Baldness

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quick—it's positively dangerous and will surely destroy your hair if you don't.

Dandruffy heads mean faded, brittle, gray, scraggly hair that finally dies and falls out—new hair will not grow—then you are bald and nothing can help you.

The only sure way to abolish dandruff for good is to destroy the germ that causes it. To do this quickly, surely and safely, and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisian Sage, which you can get from Lee & Osgood Co. and good druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair, and stimulate new hair to grow or money refunded.

Parisian Sage is a scientific preparation that supplies all hair needs—an antiseptic liquid neither sticky or greasy, easy to apply, and delicately perfumed.

If you want beautiful soft, thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it by all means use Parisian Sage. Don't delay—begin tonight—a little attention now insures abundant hair for years to come.

Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy was hostess Wednesday evening when the Neighborhood Whist club was entertained at her home on Town street. There were sixteen present, four tables being in play. Mrs. Charles Marsh and Michael Buckley won first prizes. Mrs. George Smith and Miss Alice M. Smith were given the consolation awards. Mrs. Kennedy, assisted by her daughter, Miss Alice H. Kennedy, served sandwiches, cake and coffee. This was the first in a series of whists to be held during the winter. Miss Etta Walker is to be hostess for the next meeting, within a fortnight.

The sale held Wednesday afternoon and evening in the First Congregational chapel under the auspices of Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters, Miss Jennie L. Congdon, leader, was most successful. There was a good attendance and ready patronage for the articles offered for sale, which consisted of a variety of food, needlework, knitted articles, aprons, etc., also ice cream. Mrs. Frederick Rose was at the fancy work table, while Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe had charge of the food table, and Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Miss Rose K. Durr sold candy. Mrs. Philip B. Whaley was in charge of the ice cream.

At the former Harland estate situated on Sentry Hill the mansion has been remodeled into a three-apartment house. A handsome new bungalow has been built on one side facing Washington street, and where the barn and shed were torn down on the other side a new house is under construction, the frame having been put up this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith have closed their home on Huntington avenue and at present are residing with their son, Sidney P. Smith, of upper Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tague and son, George Tague, of McClellan avenue, motored to Westfield, Mass., and were over Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tague's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Tague. Returning by way of the Granby mountains, the scenery through the notch was reported especially beautiful.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Once on a time, in days when cheating and chousing were not regarded as evidences of "smartness," some philosopher remarked that "figures never lie."

The other day a typically modern wise guy,—twentieth century representative of the practically extinct philosopher,—said with a backward fling of his cock-sure head; "Figures always lie."

Now, these two assertions can't both be true, for they mutually contradict each other. Without pretending to be myself either a philosopher or a "wise guy," I'm inclined to take a middle ground and hold that figures are neither infallible truth nor invariable fiction, but depend a good deal upon their source and the way they're used.

Anyway, when they mount to huge mouth-filling dimensions there's something fascinating about them. No one feels oppressed or overawed on hearing that So-and-So has sixty cents in his pocket. But when Henry Ford appears in the headlines as worth $600,000,000 we open our eyes and begin to goggle. That's something of a pile. It's exciting just because of its size.

Well, if you'll permit me, I want to talk a little, this morning, about still bigger figures representing a much bigger pile. Figures representing sums which come right out of our pockets, yours and mine.

Ten thousand million dollars. That's the first figure. "Whose it is? Who got it?" Those are the questions I fancy you flinging at me.

Easy enough to answer. It was ours, yours and mine again, a year ago. Since then it has been taken from us to pay the costs of the various, not to say multifarious forms of government under which we live.

Ten thousand million dollars. That's the round sum which it takes, each year, to pay the innumerable bills incurred by the government we elect.

Ten thousand million dollars, the "demnition total" of the taxes which are collected from us, each year. Some by the federal government; some by the state governments; some by county boards; some by town boards; some by city councils; some by school boards.

Ten thousand million dollars. Of course, this is taken from the whole country. It is spread out as thin as population and wealth will permit. But it is collected. And it is spent.

The appropriations made, the taxes collected, and the expenditures laid out are all matters of public record. To gather them simply requires a country-wide raking: to sum them up simply a bit of arithmetical addition.

Ten thousand million dollars. That's what the collected and added figures show. I'm repeating them somewhat tiresomely, perhaps, for I want them to soak in a bit, before I go on any further. With the exception of tramps and paupers and imbeciles in institutions and criminals in prison. We all pay our pro rata share of that enormous sum. We pay it, not once and for all, but each year. It was ten thousand millions last year. It will be somewhat more next year. As population increases and as one or another bloc of uplifters or grafters bullyrag through new laws involving new outlays the total swells to a comparable amount.

As sure as any legislative body meets so sure are a parcel of self-appointed reformers or uplifters to appear before it pleading and cajoling and threatening and bullying to secure the adoption of some more or less plausible reform or improvement which almost invariably calls for a new and fresh appropriation. Equally certain to appear are the place-hunters and office-seekers and other grafters on the public treasury, pulling wires and working schemes to secure new laws under which they hope to smuggle out easy jobs for themselves, at high salaries.

Why, one single state legislature, last winter, passed 451 new laws. I haven't the slightest doubt that there were arguments, good or bad for every one of them and that their lobbying proponents pleaded for every one as if it was as essential as an eleventh amendment to the Decalogue. I am just as sure that the state and its people, as a whole, would have been exactly as well off if that legislature had met on a Monday, passed one bill on a Tuesday, defeated four hundred and fifty on a Wednesday and adjourned sine die on a Thursday.

For that single state has, already, over 42,000 laws on its statute-books. F-o-r-t-y t-w-o t-h-o-u-s-a-n-d! And no living man in that state, from the robed judge scowling on his luxuriously cushioned "bench" to the lowest pettifogging lawyer practicing before him, knows them all or understands them, or even agrees precisely what they mean. One lawyer will tell you one thing and another lawyer will tell you the other thing. One judge will decide that a law means So-and-Thus, which is exactly 'tother end to. It has been reckoned, by a competent estimator, that a school-boy, beginning in primary class, and keeping steadily at it till he was fifty years old might, by that time, acquire a casual knowledge of the laws he was supposed to be living under,—if he hadn't forgotten the first 20,000 by the time he'd got up to the fortieth thousand!

Nevertheless, who doubts that the legislature of that state will be called on, the coming session to enact from two to ten thousand more laws, and will actually pass four or five hundred? Of course, not all those which have been made law involve taxation. Nor will all the new ones proposed. But a certain share always have and always will.

Now I'm coming to what seems to me by far the most important lesson taught us by these swelling government expenditures. Of the ten thousand million dollars which are annually spent in this country by various governing and taxing bodies only about one-third, ($3,451,000,000) are spent by the federal government at Washington. The other two-thirds ($6,549,000,000) are spent by local legislatures and boards and councils. Furthermore please note that, with the exception of the income tax collected by the federal government, virtually all its taxation is indirect. It comes in the form of customs duties, internal revenue receipts, postage-stamps, etc., etc. Practically all the taxes we of the common herd pay to tax collectors go to meet local expenses.

We are apt to get mighty hot under the collar when we read about the three thousand millions and a half which the national government spends. We're simply rip-roaring advocates of economy in federal administration. We squeal like stuck pigs when congress wastes a few millions on some fad we don't approve of.

But we are, most of us, as blind as bats to the more than six and a half thousand millions which local legislatures and councils spend, though these latter expenditures are directly under our local control.

Look back over that local record for the past twenty years, no matter in what town or state you happen to reside. Compare your own present tax bills with those you paid twenty years ago. And don't forget while comparing that out of every dollar governments take from you to run themselves with, less than thirty-five cents go to Washington, and more than sixty-five cents for neighborhood expenses.

It's all very well to keep down the feed costs for the big sow. But don't forget that the big litter of half-grown pigs is eating more than twice as much as she. It used to be considered poor policy to save at the spigot and waste at the bung-hole.

Another extremely significant fact is that the federal government has, in the last two years, despite the arrant wastefulness of an incompetent congress, cut down federal expenses by a great many hundred million dollars,—$600,000,000 or $800,000,000, if my memory serves. States and city and town governments have, in the same time, increased their expenditures by a considerably larger sum. In other words, while we, as a people, have been howling ourselves black in the face over the cost of the national government, we've been simply scattering money broadcast on state and country and town and city and school expenditures.

This doesn't show a broad or even an intelligent grasp of the situation. It seems to indicate that we've been using our own brains too little, and depending too much on the bellowing of selfseeking demagogues for inspiration.

I understand, as every sane man does, that every tub must stand on its own bottom and every community regulate by the use of its best judgment its own affairs. Outsiders show temerity, at least, in attempting to mix up with local matters in which they are not taxable concerned and of which they are practically ignorant.

But insiders, who are taxably concerned and are in possession of adequate information about local needs, certainly show a lack of balance when they bawl like whipped school-boys over a national expenditure of three and a half thousand millions, yet never bat an eye-lash over the purely local spending of six and a half thousand millions.

It is quite as bad as straining out a gnat and swallowing a camel.

Of course, we are a great and a rich country, take us by and large. We can afford to have what we need, in public ways, and to pay for it. But no country ever was or ever will be rich enough to stand the strain of profuse expenditure for everything any minority thinks it wants, rather than something which it actually needs. There is a very real difference between what some members of society find desirable or think they'd like, and what society, as a whole suffers from a lack of.

It is rather common to denounce as old-fogies and skinflints and stingy misers those who are forever ranting about economy in local boosts of governments. It would be quite as justifiable to scarify as spendthrifts and wastrels those who denounce them.

As a matter of fact, there isn't much commendation deserved by either. The man who crabbedly opposes a really needed appropriation is no nearer the ideal of good citizenship than the one who gets red in the face crying for some plaything he happens to want.

Good citizenship balances community ways and means, and sets its face as sternly against extravagance as against public parsimony.

We farmers have a better chance than some others to think this matter out, unmoved by mob demands and with clearer vision of the difference between actual public hunger and a mere public appetite.

One thing is clear: there's got to be a rebirth of the old thrift, in public as well as private concerns, or the doors of bankruptcy will sooner or later gape open. Worst of all, those, once open, will suck in those, who do know and those who do care, as indiscriminately as those who don't know and don't care.

THE FARMER.

BEAT ALL RECORDS IN STORRS EGG LAYING

Two records at Storrs have been smashed to smithereens in the egg laying contest. A forward pass on the last down resulted in a net gain of twelve egs for C. T. Darby's pen of White Leghorns from North Branch, N. J., and made them winners of the thirtenth annual contest at Storrs with the remarkable record of 2,531 eggs, an average of over 253 eggs for each pullet in the pen. The best previous pen record of 2,352 eggs was made in 1918 by ten birds from the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis. Rhode Island Reds owned by Fernside farm at Attleboro, Mass., led the laying contest for thirty-one weeks. They looked like the pennant pen until the final quarter when lack of decisive punch in the last two scrimmages pushed them back into second place. There is a big crumb of comfort for the Reds, however, in the fact that one of them, hen No. 501, has hung up the highest individual record ever made at Storrs. This pullet came through with 324 eggs in fifty-two weeks, which means that she is not only the out-standing bird in the contest just closed but is the best out of 13,000 hens that have been trapnested by the college during the last thirteen years. The best previous individual reord of 308 eggs was made in 1918 by a White Wyandotte from Bridgeton, R. I. The following is a list of the winning breeds at Storrs for the last seven years:

Year	Breed	Score
1914	White Leghorns	2088
1915	White Wyandottes	2072
1916	White Wyandottes	2265
1917	Barred Rocks	2119
1918	Oregons	2352
1919	Barred Rocks	2023
1920	Barred Rocks	2234
1921	White Wyandottes	2234
1922	White Leghorns	2216
1923	White Leghorns	2237
1924	White Leghorns	2531

Hilltop farm at Suffield had the highest scoring Connecticut pen, but a great deal more than this can be said of the Hilltop Leghorns. Their record of 2475 eggs makes them the third pen of a total of 1,280 pens that have been entered since the contests started at Storrs back in 1911. Harold F. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., was an easy first in their class with a margin of more that 350 eggs over a Missouri pen that was next nearest in line. Barred Rocks staged a more interesting race, Edgar Stoughton of Wapping, Conn., finished first with 2086 eggs, while Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., crossed the line only 8 eggs behind. In the Wyandotte class D. O. Witmer from Joplin, Mo., was at the top with a score of 2,019 eggs or more than 100 eggs ahead of a New York pen that ran second. There were entered in the contest 164 pens of ten birds each a total of 1,600 hens, from eighteen states and two province of Ontario. They laid a grand total of 167,713 eggs. The table below shows the number of birds in each of the principal varieties, the average individual egg yield for the year, and the general average for all varieties that took part in the contest:

400 White Leghorns	179.6
240 Rhode Island Reds	166.0
180 Barred Rocks	162.1
100 White Wyandottes	158.2
80 White Rocks	141.3
1000 Average for all breeds	167.7

The individual stars together with their records for the year are listed below. Each hen was the best in her class. The Red was entered by Fernside farm at Attleboro, Mass., the Leghorn by Hilltop farm at Suffield, Conn., the White Rock by Harold F. Barber at Dover, Mass., the Barred Rock by the Agricultural college at Guelph, Ont., and the White Wyandotte by Thomas H. Matteson at Davisville, R. I.

Rhide Island Red	No. 501	324 eggs
White Leghorn	No. 796	290 eggs
White Rock	No. 248	281 eggs
Barred Rock	No. 23	268 eggs
White Wyandotte	No. 202	253 eggs

The following is a list of the twenty best pens in the order of their production:

Pen	Breed-Owner	Eggs

Entertains at Birthday Party.

Miss Louise Herring entertained ten of her little girl friends in honor of her ninth birthday at her home, 128 Asylum street, Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6. Games were played and prizes won by Anna Brooks, Margaret Haggerty and Marie Shepard, of New London. The house and table were prettily decorated with Hallowe'en colors. The little hostess received many gifts. Those present were: Mary and Margaret Haggerty, Loretta Manning, Anna Brooks, Esther LaPre, Catherine Caulkins, Rosaline Raisin and Marie and Naomi Shepard of New London.

In Wellesley College Society.

Four girls are on the list of new society members just announced at Wellesley college. Among them is Miss Florence Carpenter, of Norwich, who has been admitted to the Tau Zeta Epsilon society. The others from this state are: Charlotte Banta of New Haven, A. K. K., Katherine Marsh of Cos Cob, Z. A., and Phyllis Pimm of Hartford, Shakespeare.

True to Wellesley's democratic tradition there are no secret societies or sororities in the college. There are, however, six societies which had their origin as secret societies and which in a sense take the place of these organizations in Wellesley life. Membership in these societies is limited to juniors and seniors, and students whose academic rank is sufficiently high are privileged to apply for membership.

		Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
Adoration (Bazzini) Violin Solo / Romance (d'Ambrosio) Violin Solo	Renée Chemet / Renée Chemet	6473	$2.00

In the hands of a great artist the violin is the veritable servant of beauty—and how Chemet makes it speak! Both numbers are slow and of highly emotional character.

Memory Lane (de Sylva-Spier-Conrad) / Mah Lindy Lou (Lily Strickland)	Amelita Galli-Curci / Amelita Galli-Curci	1047	1.50

The tender "Memory Lane" with its swinging waltz-rhythm; and the quaint "Lindy Lou" in American Negro dialect, with a bright celesta and a banjo-like accompaniment which give an unusual background to the lovely voice.

Goin' Home (Words by William Arms Fisher) / Follow Me (Fields-Gay-R. Nathaniel Dett)	Reinald Werrenrath / Reinald Werrenrath	6472	2.00

"Spirituals" of modern derivation—the first based on the slow movement from Dvorak's "New World Symphony"; the other, highly dramatic in style, by a prominent American Negro composer.

Melodious Instrumental

Coppélia Ballet—Entr'acte and Waltz / Naila Ballet—Intermezzo	Victor Symphony Orchestra	19435	.75

Waltzes from Leo Delibes' great ballets—immortal masterpieces of music written for the dance. Both have delicate, gossamer-like melody with a smooth pour of counter-melody underneath.

Light Vocal Selections

Tea for Two (from "No, No, Nanette") / I Want to Be Happy (from "No, No, Nanette")	Helen Clark-Lewis James	19463	.75

Tuneful numbers which are big duet successes. The first in its original form for the voices and orchestra; the second with some interesting orchestral effects.

Bring Back Those Rock-a-Bye Baby Days / My Best Girl	Georgie Price / Georgie Price	19465	.75

Fox trot songs by this famous comedian, with orchestral accompaniments which make them as agreeable to dance as to listen to.

Recitations

Proud Father and Dirty Hands / The Man to Be and Compensation	Edgar Guest / Edgar Guest	45454	1.00

Simple and familiar rhymes of American domestic life. The poet, perhaps the most prominent figure in the American literature of today, "speaks his own pieces."

Dance Records

Rose-Marie—Fox Trot (from "Rose-Marie") / My Road—Fox Trot (from "Be Yourself!")	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19461	.75

Two tempting fox trots, done in Whiteman's brightest, snappiest and latest style; new, different effects, but the familiar perfection of time and rhythm.

Sweet Little You—Fox Trot / If I Stay Away Too Long from Carolina—Fox Trot	Henry Halstead and His Orch. / Art Hickman's Orchestra	19406	.75

Fox trots from Pacific Coast organizations of immeasurably more than coast repute. The first soft-toned with brisk tempo; the second in moderate tempo with strongly marked rhythms.

Go Your Way and I'll Go Mine—Fox Trot / Oh Peter—Fox Trot	Glenn Oswald's Serenaders	19410	.75

These records adapt themselves perfectly to the "Collegiate" and similar dances, but may be used always for the standard fox trot.

Pocara sustained, besides a fractured skull, internal injuries and innumerable lacerations and bruises.

As told by The Bulletin yesterday, Jette has admitted to have partaken of wine at the Pocara residence before the ride from New London was started. Jette claims that he was not under the influence of liquor when the accident occurred and that the accident was due to one of the forward wheels of the machine striking a stone in the highway, which caused the steering gear to be disabled, permitting the car to get beyond control of the driver.

A gang of youths appear to be on the right road to finding themselves in the toils of the law for their conduct last night is sure to land them in the police court, if continued. The youths secured a quantity of green apples and hurled them at the residence of A. C. Bellefleur, 324 Ocean avenue, one of the apples crashing through a large window while another barely escaped through the glass of the front entrance. The gang then visited the Harbor school where another large window was broken and where a pole supporting a basket used by students of the school in playing basketball was destroyed. The police were summoned to the Bellefleur residence last night but no trace of the youths was found.

CHESTERFIELD HOOCH CAR HELD UP BY THE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 30.—Joseph Spakowsky of Chesterfield was taken into custody here tonight, charged with violation of the liquor law, being apprehended by Sergeants Samuel Hick and John Cavanaugh while bringing hooch from his place in Chesterfield to a New London customer. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

The police received a telephone message about 7.30 o'clock from a person who refused to reveal his identity that Spakowsky was on his way from Chesterfield to New London and that he was transporting liquor for purposes of sale. Sergeant Hick, securing the assistance of Sergeant Cavanaugh, who was off duty, went to Broad street, near Connecticut avenue, and awaited the arrival there of Spakowsky and his machine. After a short time the automobile put in an appearance and was halted. When the car was searched two gallons of hooch was found. This was seized as evidence and the car was placed in a garage.

Stakowsky succeeded in securing a bondsman later in the evening and was released.

Prosecutor's Statement.

District Attorney John Buckley in his opening statement to the court said in part:

"We have now arrived at the point where we must endeavor to determine what sentence is justified by all the facts and circumstances of this case. The state provides a maximum penalty of five years. Each count is a separate offense. It is for the court to determine in view of all the facts what is a reasonable sentence. It is not an easy proposition to determine from the standpoint of the district attorney, but I suppose the court ought to have a suggestion as to a reasonable sentence. The defendant is not an ordinary individual. He was perfectly aware of what was required of him in his position of trust and of the legal penalties involved. He knew the position of officers of a national bank, whose stock is subject to assessment. Not only this but individuals relied on him as a citizen and an official. He wrecked the institution and some of the stockholders must now pay all they possess, while others must mortgage their homes and property. It seems to me that with the higher degree of responsibility expected of Mr. Gilpatric a penalty should be fixed commensurate with his acts and that responsibility. In view of all the circumstances I would ask that a penalty of at least fifteen years be imposed."

Facts by Counsel for Defense.

The plea of former Attorney General King, which he had reduced to writing, was as follows:

"The undisputed facts are these: The money that is gone was not used in speculation. It was not taken with any intent of making personal gain. Gilpatric did not enrich himself, nor did he seek to enrich himself, with one dollar of it. In short, he got none of it for himself. There is not, and cannot be, any charge of extravagant living—for he lived modestly and well within his income.

"Practically the entire amount chargeable to the defendant went as loans to a woolen company, a machine manufacturing corporation, and as loans to finance certain real estate holdings. These loans, originally legal in amount, grew to large proportions and were never paid. True, the bank held other loans, legitimate in themselves, but now considered of uncertain value; but the great bulk of the money went in the three loans first referred to.

"He has handed over to the bank everything that he owned, and is today without any means at all. Mr Coffin, now in charge of the bank, authorizes the statement that Gilpatric wounded and ill though he was, has done all in his power to assist the receiver to the end that the bank may have the full benefit of every asset.

"I know, very well, that I am not making an emotive plea for mercy; but if your honor agrees with me, even in part, that there is a wide moral difference between embezzlement for personal gain and the facts attendant on this case—then may I not trust that you will be as merciful as your grave responsibilities will permit?

"Perhaps I should say no more, for there are no words to express the remorse and despair of the defendant. Yet, at this solemn moment ought we not to remember, is it not legally right to remember, that this man awaiting your sentence, is, at the best, only a broken, physical wreck? We may not know how many weary years of life are ahead of him. But this we know:

"He will never recover from his wound. His brain still carries the bullet that was meant to end his life. His senses are clouded and dying. He is totally, permanently blind."

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE EXPRESSED BY GILPATRIC

Putnam, Oct. 30.—G. Harold Gilpatric, recovering his physical strength and his mind clearing, was fully aware of prison sentence awaiting him for his misuse of the funds of the First National bank of Putnam, it was disclosed today. A few days ago, in conversation with a caller, he outlined his future plans. He said that after he had served his sentence he hoped to start to rebuild his life and "to find new happiness with his family around him." He said that he expected his ability as a bank man would earn him a good position and it was his hope that from his earnings he would be able to apply some money towards reducing the amount which he had used belonging to the bank.

HOPES MOTHERS OF SICKLY BOYS WILL READ THIS

My boy was run down—just about skin and bones, and no appetite, writes Mrs. Baker of Boston.

Now Sturdy and Strong

Boy Also Gained 11½ Pounds in About 9 Weeks

I am writing you in the hopes that other Mothers will read this voluntary testimonial regarding McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. My boy, Emanuel, was run down completely, just about skin and bones; also irritable and with no appetite.

I noted a wonderful improvement in him while taking your tablets and purchased three more boxes. His appetite picked up, and he is now sturdy and strong. A cheerful youngster and a happy mother want to thank you."

"You may print this at any time or anywhere you wish."

Very respectfully,
(Signed) Mrs. Albert E. Baker
33 Ridgewood St., Boston, Mass.

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy, there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing, and wise parents are buying, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George J. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, think or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist will return your money.

Be sure—always—to get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents, at Lee & Osgood or any druggist in America.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STEADY

New York, Oct. 20.—Stock prices developed moderate strength on a slightly increased turnover in today's market. Net gains in the popular rails and industrials ranged from small fractions to 2 1-2 points. Sears Roebuck was the individual feature, soaring more than six points to 121 5-8, its highest price in four years.

Buying for both accounts was influenced by the overwhelming victory of the conservative party in the British elections, which also accounted for the unusually heavy demand for sterling exchange which was carried above $4.52, to the highest price since last August.

Reports of improved trade conditions and large current earnings were responsible for the continued accumulation of mail order and merchandising issues. Associated Dry Goods was lifted to a new high for the year at 122 7-8 on predictions that the 1924 earnings will approximate $20 a share. H. R. Mallinson was bid up to 28 3-4 and then eased to 28 for a small fractional gain on the day. Hartman Corporation and May Department Stores improved slightly, while Woolworth climbed more than a point to 110. Montgomery Ward held steady around 39.

Steel shares developed a slightly better tone, United States Steel common moving up about a point to 108 1-8 and Republican gaining 1 1-2. American Can was the strongest feature among the so-called pivotal shares, showing a net gain of more than two points at 133.

Rails were mixed but mostly higher. Atlantic Coast Line advanced 2 1-2 points and gains of a point or more were recorded by Union Pacific, "Katy" preferred "A", Missouri Pacific, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico and Pittsburgh and West Virginia "Rights" the last named touching a record high at 11.

American Tobacco touched another new top at 166 3-4, up 1 3-8 and good buying also was noted in North American, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Bosch Magneto, Atlantic Refining Davison Chemical, International Harvester, Loose Wiles Biscuit, United Drug and Worthington Pump.

Fresh weakness cropped out in the sugar shares, American Sugar Refining common and preferred establishing new 1924 lows at 36 and 77 respectively. Heaviness also was apparent in General Motors, Manhattan Shirt and Yellow Cab Manufacturing.

Except for the buyancy of sterling and the sale of Canadian dollars at a slight premium, there was little of interest in the foreign exchange market. French francs continued to rule ust below 5 1-4 cents and the other European rates showed only nominal changes. Call money fell back to two per cent. Reports being current that proceeds of the recent German loan were being temporarily employed in the call money market. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 30.—An abundance of money at lower rates imparted a firm tone to the bond market today, although continued dull. Wall Street's supply of funds was swelled considerably by the payments for the German loan, which fell due today, more than 100,000,000 flowing into the offices of J. P. Morgan and company.

Distribution of the funds for deposit in other banks creating large German balances here, is expected to accentuate the ease of money and so become an important factor in investment buying of bond.

This situation was reflected to some extent today in steady accumulation of high grade issues. Standard investment railroad transactions such as Atchison Adustment 4's, New York Central 6's, Union Pacific first fours, and Northern Pacific refunding sixes and fives D, were in demand. Selling of several low prices rail bonds failed to depress the general tone of this group.

The influence of the consecutive victory in the British elections and the resultant rally in sterling was shown in the upward movement of United Kingdom 5 1-2's of 1929 and 1937, both of which sold around the year's highest levels. Liberty bonds and other foreign obligations were steady.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of 25,000,000 Brooklyn Edison General mortgage 5 per cent. bonds around par. Another public utility issue offered at part consists of $7,500,000 Southeastern Power ad Light company five year six per cent. notes. Offering of 100,000 shares of Standard Power and Light Corporation preferred stock is being made at $100 a share.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 30.—With export demand light, even for deferred shipments, the wheat market today displayed a downward tendency from the beginning. An unexpected lull in the purchasing of corn was also a source of weakness for all grain values. Wheat closed unsettled, 1 3-4c to 2 5-8c net lower; December 141 5-8 to 141 3-4 and May 147 1-8 to 147 3-8. Corn finished 3-8c to 1-2c down, oats 1-4—3-8 to 7-8c down, and provisions varying from seven cents decline to 10 cents gain.

Fairly general selling, together with evidence that buying power was lacking, developed quickly in the wheat market, the fact being apparent that the Liverpool trade was unresponsive to yesterday's advance in grain prices here and that aggressive support here for corn had largely disappeared tonight.

A little recovery from the day's lowest prices in the wheat market came from profit taking on the part of previous sellers.

Although disappointing returns from husking were again numerous, the corn market showed little buying activity except when prices underwent a setback. On the other hand offerings became scarce during declines. Oats chiefly reflected the action of wheat.

Most of the time provisions were easier, in line with hog values.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 30.—Speculative interest in today's curb market was divided between the 20 point break in Prairie Oil and Gas, based on official intimations of a temporary reduction in dividends and the strength of United Bakeries, which scored ten points to 132 and then eased to 130 1-8. Oils held relatively steady in view of Prairie's sharp reaction. Losses of one to two points in Galena Signal, Illinois Pipe, Prairie Pipe, Southern Pipe and Magnolia, largely on small turnovers, were counteracted by gains of one to 2 1-2 points in Buckeye Pipe, Cities Service, Crescent Pipe, Standard Oil of Kentucky and Standard Oil of Ohio, preferred. Ward Barking, class "B" number 2 3-4 points to 37 3-4. Radio shares showed little change, Freed-Eisman yielding further on profit-taking. Considerable interest was manifested in the new Thermiodyne Radio shares, which will be offered to the public tomorrow and traded in on the curb next week. Lehigh Valley Coal certificates moved up a point to 39 1-2 and Pittsburgh Terminal Coal showed a net gain of 2 points at 49 on reports that a special meeting of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia stockholders had been called to act on the segregation of this coal property.

METAL MARKET

New York, Oct. 30.—Copper steady. Spot and nearby 13 1-2; futures 13 1-2 13 5-8. Tin firm. Spot and futures 52.87. Iron steady and unchanged. Lead steady. Spot 8.85-9.00. Zinc steady. East St. Louis spot 6.50; futures 6.50-6.52. Antimony spot 11.75.

COTTON

MONEY

New York, Oct. 30.—Call money easier; high 2; low 2; ruling rate 2; closing bid 2; offered at 2 1-4; last loan 2; call loans against acceptances 1 3-4. Time loans steady; mixed collateral, 60-90 days 2 1-2 a 3; 4-6 months 3 1-4 a 3 1-2; prime commercial paper 3 a 3 1/4

Mrs. Mary White, aged 71, and her daughter Alice, aged 35, were found overcome by gas at their home in Lynn, Mass., by a son, Leslie. Mrs. White was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Lynn Hospital. Miss White will recover.

No need to pay cash for your Gulbransen. Just a few dollars down will put one in your home.

The prices in this ad are cash prices. But any Gulbransen can be purchased on our convenient payment plan. We will gladly give you the full details.

Don't deprive yourself of the pleasure of Gulbransen ownership when so few dollars down will bring the music of the entire world to you at once, to be personally played by you with your own expression.

Pedal Touch

You register your touch, through the pedals, when you play the Gulbransen, just as you would if you touched the keys with your fingers.

The Gulbransen will do, musically, things that you never believed possible with any musical instrument of its type.

Remember the Gulbransen is a Registering Piano, registering your exact touch and expression—it is not an ordinary player-piano.

Expect big things, musically, of the Gulbransen; it will not disappoint you. Gulbransen "pedal touch" gives you artistic piano music without a trace of the mechanical—it gives you the thrill of personally playing music with your own expression.

This Week—Choose Between These 4 Beautiful Gulbransen Models

There's the splendid White House model—with a tone that captivates the musicians—an instrument worthy of its fine name—Gulbransen "White House" model.

Also the "Country Seat" model—sturdy and substantial; the "Community" model, economical and satisfactory.

And then the "Suburban" model—the popular favorite! It has been adjudged the most for the money obtainable in musical instruments.

You'll think so, too, when you see the Suburban. It's a winner—it will prove to be an investment in happiness for you and your family not for one, two, or three years—but for many years.

If it were not for the tremendous capacity of the Gulbransen factories—45,000 instruments a year—and the economical manufacturing that is the result—it would be necessary for us to get $200 or $300 more for the Suburban model.

TAFTVILLE

Notices are being sent out by the Taftville Foohball and Social club notifying all members of a social to be held next Tuesday evening in the club rooms in the Ponemah House. Refreshments are to be served by a committee in charge, and the election returns will be heard over a radio that is being installed for the purpose. Two of the ancient hitching posts on North B street were all dressed up for Hallowe'en Thursday. One was attired in some perfectly good clothes, and the other held a half dozen pails, which were probably borrowed from the yards of residences in that vicinity.

One of the peculiar situations that has risen in this year's political campaign, comes to notice in the town of Lisbon, where George A. Ross, a republican is a candidate for representative on the democratic ticket. Mr. Ross was nominated in both the republican and democratic caucuses, but was defeated in the former by Clarence Whitaker. The situation is an unusual one and the outcome will be interesting.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH ON DERRY HILL

Mrs. Morris D. Wilkinson, 26, of Poquonnoc Bridge, was almost instantly killed about 4.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and her mother, Mrs. Ella Parke, 50 also of Poquonnock Bridge, died shortly afterwards at the W. W. Backus hospital here, as the result of a collision in which the Chevrolet touring car they were riding in, a Ford roadster, and a trolley car figured at Derry Hill, a few miles south of this city on the Norwich, New London highway. The two women were riding in a Chevrolet sport model touring car, owned and driven by Mrs. Wilkinson's husband, Morris D. Wilkinson.

They had been to Norwich and were on their way back to their home in Poquonnock Bridge, town of Groton, when the fatal accident happened. When the Chevrolet was about half way down the long hill, a Ford roadster, owned and driven by Clarence H. Luther of R. F. D. No. 5, Norwich, and headed up the hill towards Norwich, collided with the touring car, near the left front wheel. According to witnesses the impact appeared to lift the front of the Wilkinson car into the air. The impact tipped that car to the right and the top and side of the machine landed against the front end of trolley car No. 206 which was on its way up the hill bound for Norwich and due in Franklin square at 4.45 o'clock. The impact with the trolley car toppled the machine back into the highway.

Motorman James Sigerson immediately stopped the trolley car, and Conductor Milton Terry gave what help they could in righting the overturned machine. Both the women were under the machine. When the machine was righted Mrs. Wilkinson was still in her seat, dead.

A hurry call was sent in for the ambulance from the Backus hospital and Mrs. Parke was rushed to the hospital. Her injuries were of such a serious nature that she died about ten minutes after reaching the hospital.

The state police barracks at Groton was notified and a detail of officers was despatched to the scene. Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond of this city was also notified and immediately started an investigation at the scene of the accident. After questioning the drivers, Coroner Desmond said he could see no grounds for holding Mr. Wilkinson. Mr. Luther was held by the state police and later in the evening was released on bonds for a hearing in the Montville town court.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner for the town of Norwich, viewed the body of Mrs. Parke at the hospital and then, acting for Dr. Morton E. Fox, medical examiner for the town of Montville, viewed the body of Mrs. Wilkinson. Mrs. Wilkinson's body was taken to the rooms of Undertaker Byles of New London, after permission for its removal had been given. Undertaker Byles also took charge of Mrs. Parke's body.

Mrs Ella Parke, wife of Fred A. Parke, was born in Norwich 59 years ago last February, the daughter of Richard and Anne Davis. For a number of years she had made her home at Poquonnoc Bridge. Mrs. Wilkinson, whose maiden name was Dorothy Parke, was born July 6, 1898. Five years ago, in Groton, she was united in marriage with Morris D. Wilkinson, and since their marriage they had made their home in Groton, at Poquonnock Bridge.

Besides her husband and father, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. John Fellows of Oakdale and Mrs. C. T. Landphere of No. 1 Monument street, Groton. There are no children. Mr. Wilkinson is employed by the Connecticut Company as a conductor on its New London city lines.

Medical Examined Gildersleeve stated that from an examination of Mrs. Parke's body, she was evidently thrown on her right side and chest. Her arm was broken halfway between the elbow and shoulder, the ribs on the right side were crushed and the lungs were punctured, this causing extensive hemorrage.

Mrs. Wilkinson's death, the medical examiner said, was caused by multiple injuries, principally concussion of the brain. Both jaws were broken, her teeth knocked out and she had bad cuts on her head, chin and throat. She was evidently thrown against the windshield. The frame of the windshield was bent backwards and pinned her in her seat, where she died.

TROLLEYMEN GATHERED FOR SOCIAL EVENING

Connecticut Company employees of the New London Division including the trolley lines in Norwich, New London, Danielson and Putnam, gathered in this city Thursday evening at Odd Felows hall, Main street, for a supper followed by an entertainment programme and social hour. A baked bean menu was served the 75 trolley men at 8:15 o'clock by the Rebekahs. Reuben Ladd, Thomas Young, and Joseph Wooley were the committee in charge of the arrangements for the supper.

Following the menu the remainder of the evening was turned over to Peter Tracy and Harold Humphrey who provided an excellent entertainment programme. There were solos by Walter McNeely, who played his own accompaniment, a duet by Peter Tracy and his son Francis, and also a trio by Mr. Tracy, Francis Tracy and Charlotte Tracy, vocal and cornet solos by Milton Souter, vocal solos by Arthur Prodell, violin solo by John Maher, club swinging by Charles Roessler, and a violin solo by Henry Ladd.

TWELVE GIVE $50,000 BOND FOR G. A. FINN

George A. Finn, former treasurer of the Bankers Trust Co., who was to have been presented Saturday morning in the city court on a continued hearing on the charge of embezzlement from the bank, was brought before a special session of the court Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when his counsel entered a demurrer which was overruled by Judge A. F. Libby, who found probable cause and bound the accused man over to the January term of the criminal superior court.

Attorneys J. J. Desmond and C. L. Stewart counsel for Mr. Finn, then asked to have the mater of bond reopened and stated that they were prepared to furnish $50,000 in bonds and they asked that this amount be set instead of the $80,000 bond that had been called for after the arrest of Mr. Finn upon the charge of embezzlement of $40,000 on Sept. 15, this being only a part of the total alleged embezzlement.

City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins, who has opposed reduction of the bond, stated that as the court knew his position there was no need for him to say anything further, and Judge Libby placed the bond at $50,000. Twelve Norwich business men were accepted by the court as surety on a "joint and several" bond for $50,000, which, it is understood, holds each and all for the whole amount or any part of it. Those on the bond are W. F. Bogue, Clarence C. Carpenter, Emil M. Fox, Max Hanover, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, Joseph Panek, David J. Kerr, Charles W. Frink, Rudolph Henschel, Judge Nelson J. Ayling, John B. Caron, and Jacob R. Slosberg.

A number of those on the bond are member of the Lions club of which Mr. Finn is president, and it was largely through their sympathy and their desire that Mr. Finn might be able to return to his home and family that efforts were directed towards raising the bond. Mr. Finn left for his home after the court session.

PLANTING WILD RICE TO ATTRACT DUCKS

The Norwich Fish and Game association has received from Wisconsin a quantity of wild rice seed which it is distributing along the shores and inlets of the ponds in the vicinity of Norwich. Wild rice is a favorite food for wild ducks, attracting and holding them. Where it grows they often remaining all winter.

Wild celery is also another food that is eagerly sought by ducks. Next spring the association will receive several hundred bulbs of this plant. Seed was ordered to be sown this fall but the growers report that duck had gathered in such numbers, settling up the seed beds, so as to damage them to such an extent that the crop was practically ruined. The bulbs will mature and produce a year earlier than the seed. Twelve thousand fingerling trout have been placed in the the brooks during the year. While the brooks are very low on account of the continued drought it is hoped that the work has not been lost. One hundred pheasants were released in August.

The introduction of this bird to the game birds has proven a success as they are reported in all sections. That they will breed successfully is shown by the large number of flocks of young birds seen during the summer.

THE "BIG SISTER" WORK OF STATE CATHOLIC WOMEN

The Big Sister committee of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women has as its first state chairman Mrs Arthur Emmett, of Hartford. Every local council has been reuested to appoint a representative to serve on this committee, and this representative shall be the chairman of a local committee on Big Sisters. The Big Sister movement is an important phase of the work of the council and it is for the purpose of standardizing the work throughout the diocese that a statewide committee is being formed. The work of the Big Sisters is to take a friendly interest in the children and young girls who have been brought before the juvenile court, to prevent further delinquency. Children are not really bad; they are too frequently the unfortunate little victims of bad environment and of unfavorable home conditions. They respond to kindly guidance. The Big Sister seeks the cooperation of parents, pastor, teacher and recreation leader in reconstructing the life and directing into proper channels the activities of the little sister. The Big Sisters as someone has said, must be selected as the choices fruits. The work calls for continuous zeal, self-sacrifice and the true spirit of charity.

Miss Helen L. Dodd and Miss Mary E. Coughlin will attend the meeting at Hartford Saturday, Nov. 1st when the Big Sisters project will be discussed.

Swat the Fly

The state department of health in a recent bulletin has the following to say about swatting the fly, which is pertinent to this season of the year.

The active fly season is over for this year. How active it has been, depended entirely upon the work done in each community to rid itself of flies by destroying or eliminating all breeding places and protecting food supplies and privies from flies.

The cold days of early fall are first aid assistans in closing the fly season, but many flies more hardy than the rest run to cover to the warmer places. Here they are found in houses and warm buildings—not over active, but annoying in their persistence. Some of the house defenses such as screens have already been removed and the fall house cleaning has made entrance for them easy.

These flies are more than an annoyance. As the colders weather advances they will find out of the way places in the cellars and attics in which to spend the winter. It is this October generation of flies which is harbored over the winter season.

Do not allow one fly to live over the winter. Kill the late fly. This will form the first defense against flies for next season.
